A number of American tourists arrived this week at "Cedar Isle," which is always a scene of great activity. A party of tourists from Pittsburg, Pa. has secured accommodation next week at the cook cottage and still they come for the shooting and hare hunting until the river begins to freeze up. There have not been any new cottages erected this year, but prospects look better for another season.

Mr. Thomas Doupe has disposed of nearly all his building sites as far down the river as Mr. Riendeau's cottage. Previous to this Mr Doupe used the entire property for pasture land. The cottagers at this point command a wonderful view up and down the Trent waters.

A lot of time was spent during the latter part of the summer making a road down Doupe's big hill, leading to the resorts owned by Messrs. A. L. Riendean, Campbellford; Mrs. Wright, Havelock and Dr. O. C. Watson, Campbellford. Mr. V. Chaplain and Sons were engaged for the work and with the assistance of one horse, did a wonderful job. The hill consists of quantities of large flat rocks and sufficient of these were removed for Mr. Riendeau, to make various walks around his property and also one up leading to the hill, where the road has been made easy of access, wllowing the cars to pass up and down without any difficulty.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hildred left on Wednesday by motor for Ottawa where Mr. Hildred attended the teachers' convention in session in that city. Mrs. Hildred intends moving some of her household effects from her home (near Ottawa) to Havelock, where they have secured a house and will occupy the same on their return.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell, Toronto arrived Wednesday at "Raeden" to spend a few holidays. Mrs. Mitchell was formerly Miss Ruby Wallace of Lindsay.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. A. Wight, Wednesday afternoon and quilted two quilts for Mrs. Sutton, Toronto. The proceeds go into the Aid treasury.

The anniversary services which were being arranged for Sunday, October 16 will be postponed one week later. The fowl supper will follow.

Mr. John Armstrong is having a new wharf built at "Lazy Lodge."

A fine tourist sailing yacht passed through on Thursday morning en route up the canal.

HOW VIROL BUILDS for LIFE

Marjorie McKenna TO-DAY

PROOF of the Unique Powers of VIROL

Only nine years ago, Marjorie McKenna was suffering from the most serious form of wasting. To-day, thanks to Virol, she is, at the age of sixteen, a healthy well grown girl showing no trace of the tremendous strain thrown upon her constitution during her terrible illness.

Read this Remarkable Evidence—

At 7 years 5 months (Feb. 25th, 1918), Marjorie McKenna was admitted to Rosevale Hospital, Dumfries, in a state of extreme emaciation and exhaustion (Photo 1). She had no special treatment except Virol, which was given her thrice daily.

(Photo 2.) Virol not only restored her to health then, as the Matron of the Hospital certifies, but to-day her doctor is able to write: "I have examined Marjorie McKenna and find that she is in perfect health."

No other food has the same reconstructive power as Virol.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1927.

A CURT WARNING.

A nearby village has erected a somewhat curt warning to motorists to the following effect; "We Need Our Children; We Do Not Want Your Dust."

Perhaps the patience of the community has been exhausted by the conduct of drivers who coast through at express speed, endangering the lives of its citizens and filling their homes with dust.

There are motorists to whom it is exceedingly difficult to be polite, and it is possible that the skins of such drivers are so thick that it is necessary to use sharp language to penetrate into their inner consciousness.

At the same time, however, courtesy usually pays, and it must be admitted that there is a bluntness in the wording of these signs that is apt to have an unpleasant reaction on the motorists who read them.

Human nature being what it is, the lack of politeness in the village warning is likely to cause some drivers at least to step on the gas as they pass through.

THE HONESTY OF BASEBALL.

The sudden termination of the World's Series was a good thing for the reputation of baseball.

There are so many people who are convinced that nothing or nobody could be straight and honest when large sums of money are involved that it is a source of much satisfaction to point to the recent series as an example of squareness in sport.

The failure of the annual classic to go further than four games has made it necessary for the two clubs to refund $350,000 paid in advance for tickets for the fifth and sixth fixtures, which, of course, did not materialize.

Those who have been predicting that the completion would be prolonged at least over Sunday in order that the public might be milked of a few more thousand dollars will be at a loss to explain the fact that the Yankees terminated the series as speedily as it was possible to do so.

There have been some crooked ball players, World's Series games may have been thrown, but the general run of professional baseball is honest.

It has had to be or the game would never have reached the point where million dollar World's Series competitions are possible.

OFF TO A GOOD START.

The Kiwanis Produced-in-Canada Exhibition got away to a flying start yesterday, and the event, which is bigger and more ambitious in almost every department than last year's Exhibition, promises to be a splendid success.

The Kiwanis Club officers and members have worked faithfully in planning and arranging the many details that necessarily enter into the completion of such an undertaking, and they will undoubtedly have their reward this week in the shape of a record patronage that will enable them to carry on and extend their activities.

As these, of course, are all along the line of public service work, the financial success of the Exhibition means much to the community.

There is a varied programme for the week that will make it well worth while to visit the Armouries more than once, and the attendance throughout should on that account set a new record for such events in Peterborough.

WE ALL PAY THE BILL.

"When we begin to realize that every fire anywhere in Canada costs each one of us something in dollars and cents, then we may give more thought to ways and means of reducing fires."—The Financial Post.

There is no doubt that Canadians as a whole are too indifferent in their attitude to an economic waste of over $100,000,000 yearly.

We have shut our eyes to the fact that we have all got to pay our share of that bill.

In different ways it comes out of the pockets of every one of us, and there is no surer way of saving money than to cut down this annual fire loss.

It can be done, easily, simply.

At least three-fourths of the huge sum lost in fires every year in this country should be saved through a general exercise of common sense and carefulness in regard to fire hazards.

It will pay handsomely to prevent fires, and that thought should sink home during the present campaign.

We can't leave everything to the Fire Department, though; we have got to do a lot of this prevention work on our own account.

MINING THE PEOPLE.

It is a salutary and timely warning which is contained in the annual report of the Bureau of Mines of the Province of Quebec, a Province which has witnessed considerable expansion of its mining activities within the last few months and towards which the attention of investors is being turned in ever-increasing measure. The new mining camp at Rouyn includes a number of properties which have already become producers and which give hope of returning satisfactory dividends to shareholders. But it also includes many other properties which are completely worthless and always will be worthless. The aim of their incorporators, according to the Quebec Bureau of Mines, is "to mine money out of the excited public rather than ore from the ground." It is pointed out that on March 15 last there were 225 companies organized to operate in the Rouyn-Hurricanaw district, of whom only a few had as their primary object the earnest and systematic prospection of the mining claims which they hold, endeavoring to make mines out of them." The remainder have been formed for the sole and express purpose of bleeding the public which has become excited by the reports of rich discoveries made upon legitimate mining properties and which is apparently only too ready to entrust its funds to designing promoters in the hope that it, too, may share in the golden harvest.

The Bureau of Mines counsels those who may be approached to invest in Rouyn-Hurricanaw mining ventures and who may be tempted to yield to the importunities of the high-pressure salesmen for many of the mining promotions connected with that area to ascertain, before doing so, to which category the mine in which they may be interested belongs—whether its promoters are conscientiously endeavoring to develop a producing mine or whether their object is to mine the public, rather than the soil. The acceptance of this advice will undoubtedly save many individuals large sums of money; it will come too late, however, to save the investments of a large number of people who have been induced to part with their money, often the savings of a lifetime, by the operations of unscrupulous and designing promoters.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

WASTED UNIVERSITY EDUCATION.

There is a good deal of common sense in Premier Ferguson's suggestion that the High School course be extended so that it will cull out unfit students before they matriculate into the university only to fail there, dropping out in the first or second year. As the Premier points out, this is a great waste of money because it costs $400 a year out of public funds to provide this one year's education in the university, to say nothing of what the student himself as to spend, which is even a more important consideration for the reason that it is not only money wasted but valuable time as well.

Of course, it will be regarded as heresy for a newspaper published in a university city to say it, but we have been more than once impressed with the fact that there is a mis-directed desire on the part of some young men to have a university education at all costs. Our observation has been that some of these young men would have been infinitely better off if they had never seen the inside of a university, since the fragmentary education which they received, because incapable of receiving any better, before finally dropping out, gave them a false standard and at the same time in a measure that unfitted them for other work.

The trouble is there is too great a tendency today among many young men to go in for education not for education's sake but merely because they think that by so doing they can assure themselves of what are known as "soft collar" or "cushy" jobs. In this perhaps they may be correct, but even if they are correct they will be unfortunate because in the case of such jobs the supply is becoming infinitely greater than the demand, whereas the field in other businesses where real workers are demanded is by no means filled.

To be sure, education is a most desirable thing and we would be the last in the world to discourage it, but just the same we believe that there are not a few men who have gone to universities who would have fared better and been of more value to mankind if they had never seen the inside of such an institution.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

TARIFF PERPLEXITIES AT OTTAWA.

That useful body, the Advisory Board on Tariff and Taxation, will have a busy month. The public which follows its proceedings is getting new light on the complicated nature of the tariff structure. Many of the applications are for tariff reductions. These do not come from consumers alone—a surprising number are from manufacturers using dutiable articles as raw material, machinery, or accessories of their own products. For instance, a Montreal brewery wants a reduction of the duties on beer bottles and wax papers, a question on which the makers of these two commodities will probably take a different view. A Montreal cork and insulation company asks for lower duties on slabs, planks and tiles of corkboard which are its raw material. A Fort William fish-net company applies for a refund of duty on fish-net machinery. A Montreal firm asks that borax glass be put on the free list. The Ontario Mining Association petitions for reduction of duty and exemptions of sales tax on mining machinery and apparatus. The Consumers' League, which has become very active, wants tariff reductions on aluminum hollow ware, all cotton goods, and manufactured rubber goods.

A field day is expected on October 25, when a hearing will be given to an application from William Thrasher of Saskatoon for a decrease in the preferential rate on sugar and the abolition of the Dutch standard. This petition will be countered by one from the Dominion Sugar Company, Limited, of Chatham, for increased duties on refined sugar. Here are two directly opposite demands, illustrating the difficulty of the tariff problem from the standpoint of producers. Mr. Thrasher says the tariff on sugar by raising its price checks its use for preserving and canning, and puts a burden on the manufacture and export of Canadian confectionery. The Dominion Sugar Company says the present protection on refined sugar is inadequate and points to the failure of the sugar beet industry to expand since 1920. The company sees a new menace in the form of Cuban granulated sugar.

If we considered the consumers alone, a tariff for revenue only, without even incidental protection, would be the logical system, but our general tariff policy is based on protection. Two difficulties inevitably arise. One is the safeguarding of the interests of consumers so that they will not be exploited by tariff-sheltered producers. The other is the attempt to reconcile the conflicting interests of different classes of producers. A manufacturer may have a finished product in which he incorporates other products, and these he will naturally wish to buy as cheaply as possible. The maker of these auxiliary products is entitled to his share of protection, but the final article of which they form a part must enjoy a still higher duty if it is to have a margin of protection itself.

The public hearings before the Tariff Board are illuminating, and they are becoming increasingly interesting as the Board's findings and recommendations may play an important part in the next Robb budget.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Let us make this Fire Prevention Week mean something, for after all fire prevention is essentially a personal matter.

Drinking and driving do not mix. A Peterborough County man who tried the experiment for the second time will have the next two months in jail to think the matter over.

Mr. Ferguson refuses to tear himself away from Ontario, and most people in the Province are rather glad that he is going to stay.

Some 350 cases were tried in the Traffic Court of Toronto last Friday, most of which were excessive speeding charges. It looks, says The Globe, as though the campaign against the reckless driver was beginning to bear fruit.

The Produced-in-Canada Exhibition is in full swing. It should attract big crowds throughout the week in view of the excellence of its attractions and the merit of the cause for which it is being held.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., October 11 (Canadian Press). — The export business in Canadian grain here yesterday was very quiet, there being practically no demand from any source.

The trade in cash grain in the local market was also slow owing to the continued limited demand from both exporters and local buyers, but the feeling was firm.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were firmly maintained under a quiet inquiry.

A fairly active trade was transacted in all lines of millfeed, and the undertone was firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and steady.

The demand from English importers for Canadian baled hay continued good, and a moderate amount of business was transacted. The local trade was quiet and prices were unchanged.

The egg market was moderately active and firm. The receipts were 500 cases.

The trade in butter showed no improvement, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 1,048 packages.

There was an increased demand from English importers for cheese yesterday, and a fair amount of business was done. The spot trade was dull and prices were easier. The receipts were 10,680 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, October 11 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices averaged higher yesterday, traders failing to anticipate that the United States Government crop report would increase the 1927 estimate of spring wheat yield. Official figures on corn production, although expected to prove bearish, were much more so than had been looked for.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish, to ½c to ¼c advance; with corn 1c to 1¼c down; oats unchanged to a shade lower; and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 5 cents.

Crop figures from Washington were not available until long after the day's trading in grain was at an end. Meanwhile the wheat market here was affected mainly by the decided broadening of export demands for wheat from North America and by word of a blizzard in Alberta and of snow in Saskatchewan, causing further delay to threshing as well as impairment of quality. Yesterday's sales of wheat to Europe were estimated at 1,200,000 bushels, largely Canadian, and news was also received that the German wheat crop this season had been officially estimated at 19,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Favourable weather advices dominated yesterday's corn market. No attention was paid to frost.

Oats prices held steady, few if any traders foreseeing that the official returns on oats would show 15,000,000 bushels gain for the month.

LIQUOR AND ACCIDENTS

Dear Mr. Editor:

The tragic accidents which are almost a daily—or nightly occurrence, are ample justification for the growing alarm which finds expression in the demand that "Our highways must be made safe." The efforts to remedy this situation will be scarcely less than criminal, unless they reach through as far as is humanly possible, to all the factors involved.

Will you permit me to mention three directions from which this problem should be approached.

The density of traffic, due to our crowded streets and highways makes the driver's task, under any condition, a difficult one. From this aspect, the approach to a solution must be largely physical, through better and better guarded highways, one-way traffic, stop-streets, carefully wrought out traffic regulations and cars that have passed a strict and thorough inspection. Our highway authorities, the Safety League, and the manufacturers will surely give unceasing care to such necessities.

The second element in the problem is the undisciplined driver, and the general infallibility of the human mind. It is recognized that the driving of a motor under conditions prevailing today is, in many respects, a more critical and dangerous task than that of a railway engineer. It is only reasonable that a much more careful test of mental alertness and other capabilities should be required before anyone is permitted to drive. This test should apply to old as well as to new drivers. There ought to be regular driving schools, where the novice could be taught by completely competent instructors. Now, they learn, in any old way, at the risk of human life. The course of instruction and tests should cover not merely the physical training, but the code signals, the special dangers and the courtesies of driving. We have in many cases the rawest kind of people on the roads.

The fallibility of the human mind can be overcome only in a degree, and only by clear instruction and ceaseless reiteration by every possible means of all the points as to the traffic laws, codes, precautions and courtesies, until the response becomes practically automatic. Good driving is primarily a state of mind, and this educational process is the only way to create it.

The third element in this problem is the presence of liquor. Of course, it would be absurd to attribute accidents in a wholesale way to drink. It would be doubtless inaccurate to charge the present deluge of disasters wholly to liquor indulgence, but there is evidence that drink figures in this matter to a very considerable extent. It would seem that this fact in the prevalent discussion has been all too slightly stressed, and needs further ventilation. The public generally are still thinking of liquor in the traditional ways of a by-gone age. They are ignorant, for the most part, of the scientific findings as to alcohol, resulting from the investigations of the last ten years. In this matter of driving, so long as we think in the terms of "drunk" and "intoxicated persons" we do not touch the root of the matter. The real menace of the road is from people who are under the influence of liquor and do not know it.

Non-Prohibition Britain, during the war, created a Liquor Control Board, to improve its efficacy in war-industrial areas. This Board called into existence an Advisory Committee of scientific men. They were eight in number. Subsequently this Committee continued to act under the Medical Research Council of England. They considered only the physiological effects of alcohol, and their findings are published by His Majesty's Stationer's Office. A few of their statements are as follows:

"Alcohol attacks the functions of the brain and of the nervous system generally. It will be seen that mental changes are naturally among the first of all the symptoms of derangement to appear."

"With small doses, they may be the only symptoms noticeable. Further, these symptoms are traced to that blunting of the self-criticism and control which the mind normally exerts."

Some of these effects are—

"An uncritical self-satisfaction of the subject with his own performances, and a disregard of occurrences and conditions normally evoking caution of act and word."

"They may occur when the dose and degree of action of the alcohol are quite insufficient to cripple manifestly and openly the power to perform routine, technical operations."

"Without signs of intoxication in the ordinary or in the legal sense of the term, the individual attitude of mind suffers temporary change as an effect of the drug" . . . "Defects of judgment and behavior just mentioned are likely to be fraught with serious consequences in the discharge of responsibility in all walks of life."

"Accuracy, avoidance of accidents, observation of discipline—are all obviously impaired."

Good driving is, more than anything else, a matter of accurate judgment and quick decision. The first effect of even a small dose of liquor is to impair the judgment and paralyze the sense of caution. It slows down the mental processes and retards the nervous response, at the same time that it gives the feeling that one is rather more fit than ordinary. It is with such conditions that risks are taken and that accidents are bound to occur.

The London Times "The Thunderer" as long ago as January 15, 1925, in an editorial entitled "The Test of Drunkenness" dealing with motor accidents in England, closed its leader with the following words: "As things stand at present, there would appear to be no absolute safeguard for the motor driver but total abstinence."

Will those seeking to promote the public safety reach through, without fear or favor, to all the facts in the case?

Interesting Facts About Zam-Buk

A Natural Balm v. Artificial Salves.

IN ancient times the Roman Gladiators had a speedy and sure method of healing their wounds and sores. This was by the application of costly balms prepared, with consummate care, from valuable medicinal herbs.

When the secret of these preparations perished with the fall of Rome, civilisation fell back upon substitute ointments concocted of lard or wool-fat and crude mineral compounds of lead, zinc, mercury, etc.

A return to Nature's own way of healing has been made possible by the discovery of a powerful healing substance—Zam-Buk—which is in universal use to-day.

The complete absence in Zam-Buk of solid particles of insoluble mineral drugs enables the tiny pores of the skin to absorb the fine soothing, antiseptic, and healing extracts without hindrance of any sort. Zam-Buk carries health and healing into inner tissues and uproots deep seated disease.

Its Remarkable Purity

Containing no animal fat to go rancid, Zam-Buk "keeps" indefinitely and its remedial virtues never change. The purity of Zam-Buk is proved by analysis which shows it to be 99.92 per cent. vegetable or organic matter (see accompanying table).

Scientific ingenuity has endowed Zam-Buk with a high therapeutic value in skin ailments—whether used for a cut, wound or rash, a case of chapped hands or cold-sores, or for the graver cases like ulcers, eczema, ringworm, poisoned sores, piles.

OPENING NIGHT'S PROGRAM GOOD

One Act Play Competition One of Attractions—Pageant of Empire.

MEN'S FASHION SHOW.

The programme of entertainment provided by the directors of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition at the Armories this week is quite an ambitious one, and includes a one-act play competition for which entries have been made for every night in the week the winner to be judged at the conclusion of the series by Mr. J. A. McKone, Mr. J. John and Miss Cathleen McCarthy, of The Examiner editorial staff. Other musical and novelty offerings to be given in the upper auditorium, the rooms formerly used as a dancing hall, now fitted up with a spacious stage, well lighted, with three entrances and pretty painted back drops, are in charge of Mr. E. V. Morphet. Across the balcony, in the large room at the south side formerly used as a stage hall, is the newly constructed dancing floor, where the "Melody Kings" orchestra of six pieces provides excellent music throughout the evenings of the week.

Last night, the programme presented before a good sized audience in the auditorium included a one-act play, "The New Reporter," the first in the series, and presented by the A. Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church, also a men's fashion show given by Mr. Jack Primeau, a dance by Senorita Orita Provita Vasquez and a pageant, "Empire Builders," presented by the Young Women's Christian Association, under direction of Miss Caroline Littlefield. Assisting in the make-up of the various actors was Mr. Hugh Lush, giving his usual generous and capable help.

As the one-act plays are to be judged later, it will suffice to say that the youthful company presenting "The New Reporter" did very well, acting creditably to themselves and their director, Miss Flossie Pammett. Those taking part were: Mrs. W. Hepburn as Mrs. Brannigan, Miss Amy Drope as Nancy, Morgan Perry as Jack Lewis, Victor Sedgwick as Otto Hansler, Herbert Lee as the office boy, R. Krant as Mr. Hobbs, Howard Pammett as Policeman Flynn, and Douglas Bethune as the reporter.

The Pageant, "Empire Builders," presented by the Y.W.C.A., was very interesting and well staged. It opened with the appearance, in courtier suits of velvet and satin, with knee breeches and periwigs and velvet hats, of General Wolfe (Mr. E. Smith), Sieur de Champlain (Mr. J. John), Jacques Cartier (Mr. A. J. Reynolds), and General Brock, (Mr. Roy Taylor). Girls in snowshoe outfits of brilliant red and white, to the music of "Jingle Bells," do a pretty dance, and are followed later by the Maple Leaf girls, representing the nine provinces of the Dominion of Canada, who also have a pretty dance. Then an Indian Princess (Miss Geraldine Collins) in buckskin, fringed costume and long black braids, appears, to be followed later by a demoiselle of France (Miss Helen Lamb) in the traditional red, blue and white of the French national costume, and Miss Canada (Miss Daisy Murray) draped with the flag During Miss Collins appearance, the singing of 'Sky Blue Water' takes place and "O Canada" is sung for Miss Murray's appearance on the stage, which concludes the performance. Mrs. H. F. Doig sings the "Marseillaise" in French for Miss Lamb. The songs and choral numbers of the Pageant are provided by a small choir of several of Mrs. Park's pupils, with Miss Gwen Donley at the piano.

Girls taking part in the snowshoe dance and maple leaf dance, from the "Y" dancing classes, were: Snowshoe — Misses G. Gimblett, Irene Chambers, V. Graham, Adele Milburn, L. Farthing, B. Willis, Edna Forster, and Greta Welbourn. Maple Leaf — Misses Victoria Goodson (as Ontario), Arleigh Comstock (British Columbia), Viola Harvey (Manitoba), Myrtle Burns (Alberta), Mary Mulholland (Saskatchewan), Margaret McCulloch (Quebec), Mary Comstock (New Brunswick), Margaret Vance (Nova Scotia), and Jeannette Allin (Prince Edward Island). Singing in the choir were Mrs. Park, Mrs. Doig, and Misses H. Lytle, M. Jory, —. Maybee, and M. Wolstenholm.

The solo dancer of the evening, Senorita Vasquez, was loudly applauded for her very clever and brilliant rendition of a Hawaiian dance number in hula skirt and island floral decorations. It was a decidedly novel offering, which will be repeated this evening, with a Spanish dance as well.

The Men's Fashion Show presented by Mr. Jack Primeau completed the evening's programme, with young me nas models, who were joined in a by a quartette of young ladies in a section devoted to a showing of the latest types of Tuxedo.

Business suits, spring and fall coats, blue suits of every type, winter overcoats and evening dress for men were shown, with several novelties in new ideas in materials, buttons and hats. A tango tangerine of reddish hue was something unique, also a mustard colour checked suit. Double twists and worsteds in double and single-breasted styles, stripes, and French cords, Scotch tweeds and novelty weaves, hand-tailored effects, and English ulsters, illustrated the latest modes in men's wear. Music fo. the show was played by Miss Musa Cox, and gowns for the girl models in the last section were from the J. A. McNabb store. Those acting as models for the Fashion-Craft showing were Messrs. Wayne Wilbur, W. J. Bannon, Joseph Daly, and James Elliott, while the girls were Misses Rhoda Deannard, Eleanor Dodds, Irene Elson, and Janet Young.

The programme for this evening includes the one-act play, "One Night in Medical College," by the Dramatic Society of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, the Hawaiian and Spanish dances, the Fashion Show by the Hall Store, a solo by Mr. Harold Snelgrove, and musical competition.

St. Paul's Young People's Society have the play to-morrow evening, with the Fashion Show by the Canadian Department Stores, Limited, and solo by Miss Greta LeBarr.

Manitoba Mine Owners Expect Great Results

It was a most reassuring and encouraging official statement made by John Taylor and Sons, the world's leading gold mine managers in Central Manitoba Mines, which they control. Henry Taylor, head of the firm, has just visited the property and on his return to Toronto issued a statement in regard the position of the venture. Having in mind that the Taylor house is one of the most conservative of the London (England) mining houses, one can, on reading between the lines, get a great deal of information from the statement. The operation is important. It is the pioneer effort to open this new gold camp and the logical conclusion from the statement is that the Central Manitoba Mines is going to provide a rich producer. Recently, a Canadian engineer stated that he thought Central Manitoba would be another Kirkland Lake. The Taylor statement does not detract from this optimistic statement at all.

Mr. Taylor says that the mill on Central Manitoba will be running next month and will be in normal working condition in November. Indications afforded by the shallow diamond drilling of the property have been amply confirmed by the underground development. On the 125-foot level, there is a continuous length of 1,200 feet of stoping ore. As far as development has gone, payable values have been proved in this particular ore zone down to about 50 feet below the 375-foot level but the quartz continues just as wide and as strong to the deepest point reached, 250 feet below this level. Mr. Taylor says there is every reason to look for new makes of payable ore as development proceeds. This is encouraged by the fact that a new exploratory winze, started from the 375-foot level, some 600 feet west of the main winze, has entered upon what appears to be a new shoot which did not show on surface nor in the levels above. At a depth of 80 feet, the vein showed an average of four to seven feet and $8.30 in value.

Mr. Taylor outlines plans for deeper development of this, the Kitchener section of the property. The main Wad ore zone, 4,000 feet long, is to the east, and in the Tene 6 section, a lens of ore 15½ feet wide and assaying $13 to $20, opened shallow prospecting, has been disappointing at 60-foot level. Rogers section to the south shows some improvement over surface showings.

Latest word from Barry Hollinger at Boston Creek is that the drift on the 1,000-foot level is now 150 feet long and is still in ore. This is focusing attention on the area which now looms as an important camp. Gold Hill and Hilltop, two operations adjoining to the east and which are well financed, are launching new efforts.

Abana Mines has drifted 100 feet on its ore body on the 300-foot level. The mineralized section is close to 40 feet wide and gives average values for the feet100 feet of $38.

Amity Copper is a new issue that is just being offered to the public. The venture sizes up as the most promising copper prospect so far uncovered in Ontario. It is located at Boston Creek station of the T. and N. O. Railway and has been opened up to 200 feet. Some massive chalcopyrite ore has been encountered.

The boom which is taking place in mining shares has attracted an army of high-pressure salesmen from United States and daily there are reports of people being fleeced. The Attorney-General of Ontario has made some effort to stem the tide of crooked finance by confining their operations to dealing with known responsible houses. The fly-by-night houses have no stake in the country and when they get hold of as much of the public's funds as they can they decamp. Millions are being made by mining investors in Canada but only by those who are showing discrimination in their choice, both of issues to buy and brokers to deal with.

Amulet and Area Decline This Morning

TORONTO, Oct. 11 (Canadian Press).—Amulet suffered a net loss of half a dollar on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, but recovered to 5.45 at noon, a net loss of only sixteen points. Its companion, Area, had a five-point loss at 57. Laval Quebec lost one at 43, but despite these and occasional other recessions the market generally was steady. Newbec firmed a point at 99, and Tough Oakes, the most active stock on the board, gained two at 55. Barry Hollinger had another one point gain at 94, while Kirkland Hunton sold up 1½ at 23.

Grain Drops To-day On U. S. Crop Report

CHICAGO, October 11 (Canadian Press).—Grain underwent an all-around early drop in price to-day, tumbled down by the United States Government crop report. All deliveries of corn reached a new low price record for the season. Opening at ½c to 3-8c set back, wheat afterward showed some additional losses. Corn started 1½ to 2¼c off and then recovered to a moderate extent. Oats declined but held better than corn or wheat. Provisions as well as cereals went down grade.

PRACTICE GAME FOR RUGBY TEAM

Local O.R.F.U. Juniors Hope To Play Oshawa on Saturday.

The Junior O.R.F.U. team is holding practices every night this week, with the exception of Wednesday, in Confederation Square in preparation for the postponed game with Oshawa Intermediates which it is expected, will be held this Saturday, in Riverside Park. The secretary of the local organization is getting into communication with Herb. Wolfe, of Oshawa, and expects to have the final arrangements completed within the next few days.

Each night the boys are being put through their paces in running, tackling, broken field running, clipping, and line plunging, with a few minutes' scrimmage and signal practice at the end of each session, and with a few games under their belts they should be in the pink of condition to meet the heavy-weight aggregation of Penetang pig-skin chasers in the preliminary round of the O. R. F. U. schedule.

On Wednesday there will be a practice game at Riverside park and all the players are expected to be on hand as the new plays will be tried out and it is important that they should be thoroughly mastered before Saturday's game.

LADIES DO SILHOUETTES.

Pottery Booth at Fair is Attracting Great Deal of Attention.

The Pottery Booth is attracting much attention at the Kiwanis Exhibition. It might attract even more if it was generally known that the young ladies in charge will do silhouhette work. If there are any in the admiring crowd that would like to take advantage of the opportunity, they have only to make their wants known, and the ladies will do the rest.

PIGSKIN COMING.

Will Be Presented With Freedom of City Jail By Mayor.

Pig Skin Peters will arrive in the city on Wednesday to attend the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition. It is not known whether he will arrive by automobile or airplane, but it is certain he will be there, both afternoon and evening. At 7.30 p.m. he will be publicly welcomed by the Mayor on the grand stand in front of the Armories, and possibly presented with the keys to the city, the lift-lock, the city hall, and police station. tI is not known just how Pig Skin will announce his arrival, but you can be very sure every one will know he is among those present.

CHURCH'S TASK

Hope, and referred to a twenty-five years 'acquaintance since their student days in Toronto, and said he was sure the speaker took a message wherever he went.

Mr. Anderson said that he felt his first word should be one of congratulation for the successful inaugural of the season's work ,reiterating the old adage that had already been quoted once that "nothing succeeds like success." He felt that with the co-operation of the ladies a continued success through the fall months was assured. He said he was pleased to be on hand and that when he was asked to speak it was suggested that he speak to the association on the subject of the church's work, that in beginning the season's work, the men might have something to carry in mind for the months ahead.

The church's task brings two questions to one's mind. What is implied in the word church? What is the task of this institution called the church? The English word church is the translation of the Greek word ecclesia—those called out from another larger group of people—to constitute a unit for fellowship and service. There is the church visible and the church invisible. The former are those who belong to the great fellowship in the family of God. The church visible is a more tangible form to human minds. The unit of organization of the church is to give visibility to the instituton known as the church.

Another distinction that the speaker made was that between the church militant and the church triumphant, those maybe not of the military spirit but militant, and those of the glorious host gone on before.

They should put themselves into the business of the church and be thankful that they have the honor to be identified with it as the Apostle Paul uses the figure of the church as being the body of Christ, and gives a splendid analogy of what the church ought to be. This is the conception of the church.

What is the task of the church? At the centenary celebration, President Cornell proposed a toast to the university in which he declared that the task of the university and of the world today is to "safeguard the principles of liberty, justice and opportunity." The obstacles to be overcome are ignorance and prejudice, the latter being born largely of ignorance may only be conquered by a continual search for truth. That is essentially the business of the Christian church, and also the task of the world, and the church is the institution to give inspiration to that task.

The church is behind the university and the secondary schools and the home. The task is most worthy of the church and the men identified with the church should be proud of their relationship. Jesus Christ said, "I am the way, the truth and the life," and He is the head of the institution that is called the church.

The church has a dual function, to worship and to witness. The worshipping attitude is essential before the witnessing. The function of the local church is to function effectively in this double capacity and the spirit of sincere worship should be borne in all church activities. But one man cannot make a congregation of worshippers, and people out in motor cars and on golf links cannot help the worshipful attitude much. The speaker referred to the mid-week service and the small attendance, and the task of the church not only in local fields but also in distant fields in this and heathen lands, and spoke of how Japan, China, Korea, India, and the other mission fields are accepting the Word.

In the Sunday School work, he said, he was glad of the request that had been made for men to teach the classes and encouraged the men of the Men's Association to adopt the spirit of the Big Brother and leader towards the boys, as exemplified by the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, of whose work he spoke in the highest terms. He concluded by exhorting the men to thank God for their opportunity of service, but not in a Pharasaical spirit, and if they cannot serve in person at least do their duty by proxy, to the unenlightened of the world.

G. A. Gillespie briefly expressed his pleasure at hearing the address and moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and to the quartet that had entertained. Mr. Frazer seconded the motion, which was extended by the president.

MAN DROWNED IN AUTOMOBILE

Drives Off LaSalle Causeway Into 15 Feet of Water.

AT KINGSTON.

Kingston, October 11. Canadian Press. — Driving off the Lasalle causeway at ten o'clock last night, Milton Murray, a young man living at Barriefield, was drowned. His body was not recovered until two o'clock this morning. When a wrecking truck from a garage failed to bring the truck to the surface a call was sent for the steamer Concretia, when the car was raised to about 3 feet above water. Here the cable broke and the machine crashed into the water again. The car was finally raised at the second attempt and the body taken out. The causeway road was under repair and a detour was necessary to a narrow road near the water. Apparently Murray was not familiar with the road for the car plunged over into 15 feet of water.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Henderson and daughter, Marjorie, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Armstrong of Glanmire spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. Lavender.

Mrs. H. Shantz of Timmins is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Arthur Smith, owing to the death of the latter's husband.

Mr. Fred Holland is erecting a new residence north of Hays street.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gray were home from Lakefield over the week end.

Pointed toes have always been favored by women. Leather soles of shoes worn by the Roman ladies of the London of 1,800 years ago, and recently discovered during excavations near the Bank of England, prove this.

When in residence at Windsor Castle Queen Mary spends much of her time in exploring the attics, cellars and storerooms of the historic pile in search of old furniture, china and pictures, for which she has a veritable passion.

TINY APPEAL IS DISCUSSED

Separate School Trustees Lose Out in Canadian Supreme Court.

ON TWO COUNTS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The appeal of Tiny Township Roman Catholic school trustees to the Supreme Court of Canada was dismissed yesterday. The judgment reads: "Three members of the court being of the opinion that the appeal should be dismissed, the appeal stands dismissed accordingly. As to the claim of the original suppliant to recovery of the sum of $736, the court is unanimously of the opinion that the appeal fails."

The appeal which has been dismissed but which may be carried to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, challenged the validity of a whole section of the Ontario Education Acts, and sought to have them declared ultra vires. The appellants challenged the authority of the Province of Ontario to tax supporters of Separate Schools for the maintenance of Continuation Schools, Collegiates or High Schools not established or conducted by the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate School.

RUNS AFTER 12 YEARS

IOLA, Kan., Oct. 8.—A dollar watch which had been imbedded in solid concrete for 12 years was discovered by a workman employed on a bridge gang here. It was exposed when a block of concrete was broken in two and began ticking as soon as it was wound.

Corn

comes out—root and all

An aching corn is like twitch grass—a prolific weed—which is very troublesome and steadily increases in growth.

The only effective way to remove corns or weeds of any kind is to grub below the surface for the roots. To pare the exposed parts only stimulates growth.

A foot-bath or two of Radox will grub out the most persistent corn—root and all—without pain or danger of infection.

When you dip your feet in a foot-bath containing Radox Bath Salts, the dead skin of the corn combines with the Radox Salts to form a protein salt of the actual corn itself. This protein salt dissolves in the water, and so soften the corn that, after a few baths, it may be lifted out bodily. Radox does not affect the living skin, but dissolves the dead skin—the corn.

R.C.M.P. Holds North for Canada

By Francis W. Rowse.

"PATROLLING NEW TRAILS"

"Bang!" went the six-shooter: sixteen redskins bit the dust—the redcoat remounted and rode down the trail.

That's how it used to be—or so the dime novels and the silver screen maintain. Today—well, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are still with us, and, if their exploits are not all as sensational as those told of former days, they are many times as diversified. Now all that is needed in a clever scenario writer who can write a convincing sequence around the capture of bootleggers by stalwart "mounties," the snaring of drug peddlers and the enumerating of Chinese coolies in Eastern cities. That is the R.C.M.P. of today.

It used to be Jack Tar who was the man of all trades. Now the soldier-policeman can give him pointers in quite a few things. It was Shakespeare who said, " . . . and one man in his time plays many parts." Surely the famous poet would have added, "and some men play many, many parts," had he known the Mounted Police of today.

When the North-West Mounted Police was first organized, its main purpose was to preserve peace, law and order on the frontiers of our civilization, then the prairie provinces, where Indian and paleface were just beginning to know each other. Much water has gone over Niagara since then; many miles of steel have been pushed into the wilderness; frontiers have moved northward and north-westward. With the frontiers have gone the patrols of the R.C.M.P., as it has become meanwhile. In other days the patrolling "mountie" was the chief operative of the force, but just as frontiers have changed and trails have been picked up in new territories, so has the organization and the work of the force changed.

Today the patrols are the mere outposts of a great, highly-organized force which knows no frontiers. From Sydney to Dawson City the R.C.M.P. is at work as the main instrument of administering justice and law, of the Dominion Government.

The work of the R.C.M.P. in the West is history, although much similar work is still going on under the able direction of western division commanders. The work of the force in the frozen Arctic, another new feature, has been dealt with. How many Canadians, even, know that, romantic as this work may seem, it is by no means the every-day task of the picturesque trooper? How many realize that the R.C.M.P. is responsible, nominally, for the bulk of the work of enforcing the greater number of federal statutes?

It has been estimated that no definite bounds or limit can be set to the Mounted Police department's field of labor, but the list which follows contains a few of the laws, enactments and statutes under their surveillance:—Air Board Act, Animal Contagious Diseases Act, Bank Act, Canada Shipping Act, Canada Temperance Act, Canadian Temperance Act (to aid provincial legislation), Chinese Immigration Act, Customs Act, Dominion Lands Act, Explosives Act, Fisheries Act, General regulations for Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia, Yukon Territory and North-West Territories, also, Food and Drugs Act, Fugitive Offenders Act, Government Railways Act, Identification of Criminals Act, Immigration Act, Indian Act, Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, Inland Revenue Act, Leprosy Act, Migratory Birds Act, Naturalization Act, Naval Act, Militia Act, Northwest Game Act, Oleomargarine Act, Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, Patent Medicines Act, Penetentiaries Act, Post Office Act, Prisons and Reformatories Act, Public Works Act, Public Works Health Act, Quarantine Act, Radio-Telegraph Act, Railway Act Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, Special War Revenue Act and Ticket-of-Leave Act. Of course this is a mere list, and lists are always deceiving, but it may be added that, if there are any laws which do not, by their very nature, provide for their own enactment, it is undoubtedly left to the R.C.M.P. to see that they are not overlooked.

During the past few years the number and variety of these tasks, many of which are quite thankless, has increased steadily. At the same time the strength, numerically, of the force, has been reduced, but, true to its traditions, the Mounted Police force has taken up its manifold duties cheerfully, and has scored notable successes.

Few Canadians can have failed to read, in the press, accounts of R.C.M.P. work in the suppression of the narcotic drug traffic. This work has necessitated special skill on the part of officers engaged in it, and often meant extreme danger to the plain-clothes members of the force, who followed the devious trails of the underworld—trails as pregnant with distrust and hidden pitfalls as any western or northern track. Then there has been the work among smugglers on the international border, and on both coasts. In this, again, have R.C.M.P. officers shown no lack of energy, honesty and cleverness, as many a hapless bootlegger can testify.

In addition to these major cases, there have been curious, difficult, and often risky jobs for the "mounties" of which the public has heard little or nothing.

A somewhat unusual and very laborious case in aid of the Department of Labour, in which excellent work was done by officers, took place in June, 1925. Under the direction of a representative of the Attorney-General of Canada, machinery was set in motion to collect evidence relative to alleged combines in the marketing of fruit in the four western provinces. Numbers of warrants were served by R.C.M.P. officers at the houses of those implicated in a wide-spread fruit combine.

As a result, 53 fruit dealers were prosecuted under the Combines Investigation act. Carloads of documents were seized by the police in sudden and carefully planned raids, and the result was the conviction of the leaders of the "pool." For their work two officers and 33 other ranks of the force were highly complimented by the presiding Justice.

In contrast to this work is that assigned to officers of K. Division in Southern Alberta, during the same Summer, when six whole detachments were located in National parks where they were solely responsible for the enforcement of provincial and federal laws. In the parks, also, were stationed two motor-cycle officers of the force to supervise traffic on the highways in the Lake Louise and Marble Canyon districts.

A curious case of smuggling an aeroplane into Canada was dealt with in August 1926. Two men undertook to transport liquor by aeroplane into the United States, using a farm near Emerson, Man., as the Canadian end of the route, and, incidentally failing to notify the Canadian authorities of the entry of their machine. American Customs officers warned the R.C.M.P. detachment at Emerson, and it was seized; it had been damaged and parts for repairs had also been brought across the border without customs entry. The men were fined.

Acting in concert with police authorities of the counties of Middlesex and Elgin, and the excise authorities, members of the Mounted police in June 1926 made an interesting seizure in the township of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. In a farmhouse a huge still was found, so large that it required the cellar, first floor and attic of the house for its accommodation, it had a high pressure steam boiler, and needed two gasolene engines; the three copper tanks were six feet in height and four and a half feet in diameter. The amount of alcohol seized in the raid exceeded one thousand gallons. This elaborate plant was for the redistillation of denatured alcohol. It took several trucks and a number of men to move the plant. Four men, including the owner of the house, were arrested in the raid.

In all the work of the R.C.M.P. the principle of co-operation is strongly stressed, and it is therefore quite natural that much of the department's efforts should have been concentrated on assisting other branches of the federal administration. A great number of government departments from time to time require odd services of a field or executive nature.

The Department of Mines needs to have hardware stores, local contracting operations, etc., watched to make sure that its regulations regarding the storage of explosives are observed; the Department of Marine and Fisheries is interested to see that the multitude of persons who use radios take out proper licenses, and that fishery regulations are observed; the Department of the Interior wishes to have migratory birds protected, persons who trespass on timber reserved brought to book, its game laws enforced in remote places.

In connection with the protection of Migratory Birds, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has begun to share some of the glory of Jack Miner, at his famous gathering ground for wild fowl and other feathered visitors. Such a large crowd gathers in the right season, at Jack Miner's lakeside "summer resort for birds," that the services of two officers have been requisitioned and kindly loaned by the government, for the protection of the birds and the enforcement of other laws on the reserve.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries is, of course, mainly concerned with the Great Lakes and the coastal points, but it also has to extend its jurisdiction over the millions of little rivers and lakes of the Dominion. Without the aid of the R.C.M.P. in this respect, it can be readily understood what value federal laws would have in the back-blocks of the interior.

It has been estimated that in this particular alone, one R.C.M.P. officer might well serve the purposes of eight special government agents. In a more or less inaccessible settlement, for example, it might be necessary to investigate a number of things.

It would possibly be necessary to, at the same time, investigate the illicit sale of liquor to Indians, and illegal manufacture of spirits, the illegal netting of fish, the slaughter of migratory birds, the raiding of Crown timber reserves, the use of unlicensed radios, the storage of explosives and applications for naturalization. All these things might easily require looking into in one settlement.

To make it possible for an R.C.M.P. officer to cope with the many situations he may face on his patrols and investigations, quick work has been accomplished at Ottawa, on occasion, and men leaving on extended patrols have been created officers and officials of every description from supercargo to magistrates and coroners. With the co-operation of the Provincial governments, R.C.M.P. post commanders are frequently issuers of marriage licenses and tax collectors for the central authority.

During the year 1926 the quinquennial census of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta was taken, and the bulk of the enumeration in certain of the wilder regions of the northern parts of those provinces, was performed by R.C.M.P. men. In all seventeen parties were sent out, on this work. They covered a distance of 12,000 miles, including a visit to a point 1,500 miles from their base. The mounted men did not fail, although in the region visited only seven people spoke English, five spoke French, and the rest spoke the Cree half-breed tongue.

Work for the Department of Marine and Fisheries has been most unusual, on occasion. The trailing and bringing to justice of real old-time "wreckers" in Nova Scotia, is particularly worthy of mention. "S.S. Binghampton," a ship laden with famine relief stores for Russia, was wrecked and abandoned on July 19, 1921, at Gannet Ledges. On July 22 the Department of Marine and Fisheries asked that a detachment of R.C.M.P. officers be sent to protect the ship and cargo from looting, and to recover, so far as possible, any articles stolen from her. The necessary steps were taken. Sergeant J. P. Blakeney, who had charge of the case, reported that when the authorized salvers returned to the wreck they found the process of plundering the ship in full swing. The salvers found about 150 fishing boats and some 700 or 800 men looting the cargo. Owing to the attitude of these men they did not go alongside the wreck, and returned again to Yarmouth, from whence they had set out.

The C.G.S. Arleux was despatched to the scene and dispersed the looters, so that protection of what remained of the cargo was no longer necessary. The Department of Marine and Fisheries was consulted and requested that prosecutions be instituted in the most flagrant cases to be discovered. Orders were given to this effect and Sergeant Blakeney searched the coast for a distance of 60 miles; in the period from July 24 to July 28, articles from the wreck were found in possession of 101 persons. Proceedings were taken against 34 persons. All pleaded guilty and were fined $50 each.

Earlier in the same year a somewhat similar case occurred in the same vicinity. S.S. "Impoco" was wrecked on April 7, 1921, on Blond Rock. After she had been abandoned by her crew, persons living on the shore nearby stripped her of everything movable. According to information received by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, about $20,000 worth of ship's equipment was stolen. On May 17 the R.C.M.P. headquarters sent a constable to the scene and parts of the wreck were found in the possession of 17 people. Owing to various circumstances no one was prosecuted in this case, but a great deal of material was recovered and those in whose possession wreckage had been found, were warned.

The warning to the "wreckers" apparently had good effect, as only one person in the case of the Impoco was found to have participated in the wholesale raid on the Binghampton.

R.C.M.P. officers have been most successfully employed in the work of protecting lobster fishing grounds from persons using illegal means of fishing, and also in the prevention of the use of unsanitary and unscrupulous methods in lobster canning, which had, at one time, a most harmful effect on the whole industry.

But the work of the department ranges a long way from fish. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that a member of the great force must have a little knowledge of everything. Reports of officers in charge of detachments and of lone constables on distant patrols, shows that nearly every kind of aid it is possible for a mere man to render, was asked of the force during recent years.

In the far north and in outlying parts of the Dominion, medical skill, and just plain horse-sense, has been practised by the R.C.M.P. A constable coming upon a tribe of destitute and sick Eskimos in the Hudson Bay territory, cured them of sickness with doses of strong tea and a powerful laxative he happened to have in his napsack. That is only an example of the splendid work members of the force have done, and, despite the passing of time and the rapid colonization of the land, are still doing.

Several forms of assistance have been rendered from time to time to the Department of Health. An instance was the quarantining of a steamer at St. John, N.B., in 1921. The vessel arrived at the end of the month of March with small-pox on board and was quarantined at Partridge Island. The health authorities called on the force for help in maintaining the quarantine, as it was resented by the majority of the passengers. Inspector C. D. LaNauze, Sergeant Austin, and Constables Tumblin, Perry and Beazley of the R.C.M.P. promptly took the matter in hand. The general character of the work was explained to them and they promptly took over the whole duty of guarding the station and maintaining quarantine and order generally.

The assistance given in this case was appreciated, as is evident by the following letter from the Assistant Deputy Minister of Health to the Commissioner of the R.C.M.P.—

"The situation was handled by them carefully and tactfully at all times and the quiet influence of their presence at the right place and at the right time obviated many unpleasant experiences. They guarded the wharf as the key from communications outside, kept a watch on the smallpox hospital to enforce isolation, and, in addition, helped our quarantine officer personally in many ways. They looked after the mail and money, admitted the proper people to the telephone, and the handling of this portion of the work added very, very greatly to the contentment of the passengers detained in such a way as would have been impossible without the help of your people."

But the R.C.M.P. work has been more curious than that. Tact, of course, is essential in their work, but tact is not everything. Officers and men of the force have proven that they have more qualities than that. This was recognized by the Minister of Public Works and Mines of Nova Scotia, when, in 1922, he asked the R.C.M.P. for assistance in forming a Provincial police force.

Several non-commissioned officers of the force, drawn from several divisions, were allowed by the federal authorities to go to Nova Scotia, and reported to Lt.-Col. E. W. MacDonald, who had been appointed commissioner of the proposed Provincial Police. They had been in Halifax only a short time, however, before the Provincial Government changed its plans and men who had been enrolled for the proposed force were disbanded. During their time in the province, the R.C.M.P. detachment acted in an advisory capacity, and the warmest praise of their work was later forwarded to headquarters in Ottawa.

Truly there seems to be nothing beyond a "Mountie" (if that term may be used without bringing wrath on the head of the writer from all and sundry.) And it would seem that there are no lengths too great for them to go. In another installment of this series the drug warfare in which the R.C.M.P. drug squads have done so much, will be dealt with fully, but in passing it may be said that two members of the force went to the length of taking up residence in Spain and actually becoming involved in drug transactions themselves, to solve one of the great narcotic mysteries ever to come to the notice of Canadian authorities.

If this work is not just as dangerous as trail riding, as of old, it must surely be more nerve-straining.

Who would, for one moment, connect the R.C.M.P. with the underworld of great cities? Yet the force plays no inconsiderable part in the constant conflict that is being waged between the upper and the lower strata of the fabric of society. The department goes to the extent, even, of striking at the very roots of white slavery and procuring, and its work in this respect has been signally successful.

Under instructions of the R.C.M.P. a Montreal clergyman, Rev. John Chisholm acts as an Officer for the Suppression of Commercialized Vice. In Halifax another officer, Miss E. Egan, performs a similar duty. This work is not confined to residents in Canada, but is mainly carried on among immigrants, of all races and nationalities. Rev. Mr. Chisholm uses as his base of operations Dorchester House, a commodious home in Montreal, to which women immigrants not travelling in family parties are taken on landing before proceeding to their points of destination. Rev. Mr. Chisholm is at the head of a well-arranged system of protection. Directresses travel in ships coming to Canada, extending their supervision over women immigrants who are unaccompanied; conductresses travel on the immigrant trains from Quebec, St. John and Halifax, to Montreal, and girls are met at western and central points to which they are proceeding in search of work or a home, and put in touch with units there of the religious denominations to which they belong.

Assistants in this branch of R.C.M.P. work, far flung as it may seem from the original task of the force, are usually able to speak several languages, and thus establish a wholesome, intimate touch, with the immigrants, strangers in a strange, strange land.

How needy this branch of the department's work has been, will easily be realized when it is stated that it has been fruitful of incidents which cast a vivid and unpleasant light upon the dangers which threaten the unescorted girl who travels, and upon the number

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

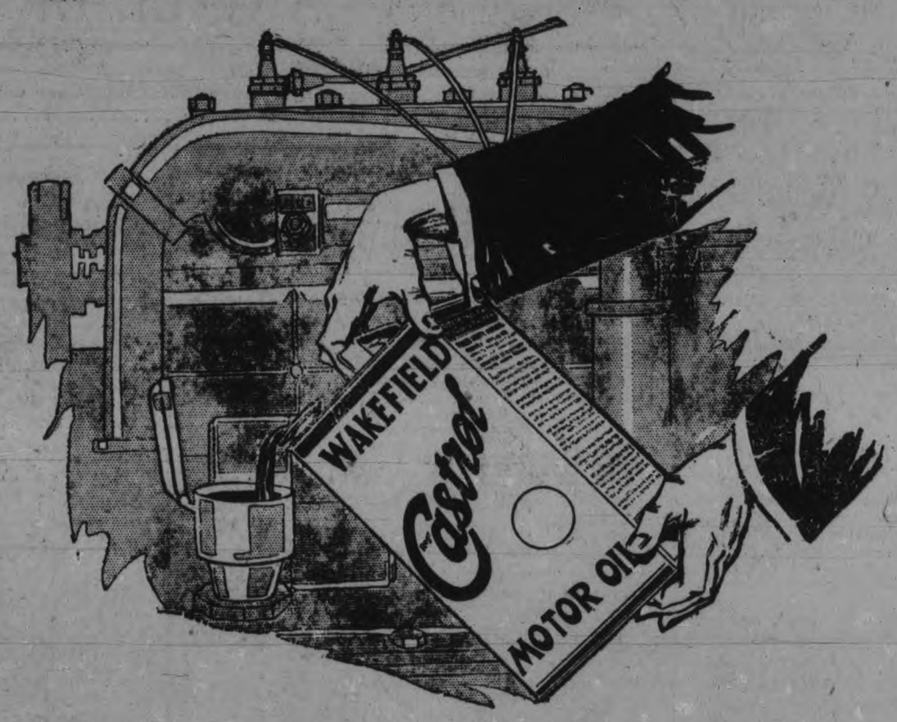
Your grocer knows when you order RED ROSE ORANGE PEKOE you are a judge of fine tea.



Treat your engine to a filling—

MISTREATMENT of a motor is as unnecessary and as cruel, in its way, as mistreatment of a horse. To a thinking type of man, a motor car also deserves much consideration. He keeps it washed and polished, just as he would keep his horse well groomed. He uses good gasoline and the best oil procurable (CASTROL), just as he would give his horse the best feed.

The Canadian motorist who is following in the footsteps of millions of car owners the world over will find that Wakefield CASTROL gives new life to the car. A new smoothness becomes evident. The motor runs more quietly, picks up faster.

The man behind the wheel, in some mysteriously pleasant way, becomes possessed of a feeling of driving security. New CASTROL users can tell you all about this.

Treat your engine to a filling of CASTROL. Today! Save money! Remember, this is the oil that gives 2,000 miles before changing is necessary.

Leading garages sell it. If yours does not, please advise.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT LEAGUE SERVICE

Talk on Prayer is Given—Shower for Bride and Groom.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, October 11. — In spite of other attractions thirty-five members attended Zion League service on Thursday evening when the meeting was in charge of Thomas Fry, devotional convenor. After a bright and enjoyable song service, led by the president, and the usual business routine ,a devotional discussion period was led by Rev. Mr. Daniel, the subject being prayer. Many interesting ideas were brought out during this half-hour which will be mutually helpful to a more complete understanding of this most important of religious forms.

A large crowd from this community, as well as many from adjoining districts, attended a shower for Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Nelson, held on Friday evening at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barnum . Many beautiful and useful gifts were received by the popular young couple. The evening was pleasantly spent with cards, music, and friendly conversation, with a short session of dancing for the younger members of the assembly. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson are taking up residence in Campbellford, and the good wishes of the whole community go with them to their new home.

On Tuesday evening last a goodly crowd of the friends and neighbours of Mr. Will A. Hume and his bride, formerly Miss Hilda Anderson, of Stirling, gathered at their home east of Burnbrae to spend a social time with the happy young couple and to shower them with many useful gifts. After a few remarks of congratulation by Rev. Mr. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Hume were called upon to open the gifts and read the many notes, humorous and otherwise, which accompanied them. The remainder of the evening was enjoyably spent in group contests and community singing, with a dainty lunch at the close. The young couple are among the most popular of Burnbrae's younger set. The bride, thought not a native of the community, is regarded as a friend by the young people here, while the groom is one of the leading sportsmen of the district as well as being a prosperous young dairyman.

In the sporting line, as a member of the Burnbrae baseball team of other days, Campbellford and Warkworth Northumberland League teams, the Menie hockey and football squads and lately as a star player on the Board's softball team, Will Hume has become almost famous to sport fans in this part of Ontario . He is equally well known in the agricultural sphere as a prominent breeder and showman of pure-bred Ayrshires in partnership with Alex. Hume & Co. As a judge of dairy cattle, he is also gaining prominence ,and his services are in demand all over the Dominion.

On Monday evening a number from Burnbrae visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Petherick, 9th Concession of Seymour, to present the young couple with a miscellaneous shower in honour of their recent marriage. Mrs. Petherick was formerly Miss Annie Tinney ,and a resident of this community. The evening was pleasantly spent in a social way with dancing, music being supplied by Messrs. Anderson and Lain.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Andrew's Ladies 'Aid was held at the home of Mrs. William McKenzie on Thursday afternoon, with over forty ladies present. After a short programme, plans were made for the annual fowl supper to be held on Tuesday evening, November 1st, following the anniversary services on October 30th.

WEDDING BELLS

ZUFELT—BILLINGS.

NORHAM, Oct. 11.—A pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the Norham parsonage on Saturday morning, when William Zufelt of Warkworth and Eva Maud Billings, of Bethany, were united in holy matrimony by Rev. D. R. Clare. The bride was charmingly gowned in rose-blush satin, with blond shoes and stockings. The couple were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ryckman of Orland. After the ceremony the bridal party attended a dinner given by Mrs. Ryckman at Orland. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon in Toronto, after which they will reside in Warkworth. The heartiest congratulations are extended Mr. and Mrs. Zufelt from their many friends.

The annual plowing match, under the auspices of the Cavan and South Monaghan Plowmen's Association, will be held on the farm of Frank Gibson, Carmel, on Wednesday, October 26. The original intention of holding a joint match with the Associations of Hope and Hamilton townships has been abandoned for this year. A good prize list is being offered and it is expected that the usual success will attend the match, the weather being favorable.

L. H. Winslow is President of the local Association, and L. C. McNeil secretary-treasurer.

The "West End Group" which has held a number of social gatherings this fall for which Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Kidd have generously given the use of the large room on the ground floor to the east side of their business premises, had another happy event on Tuesday evening when a pumpkin pie social, with toasted marshmallows also on the bill of fare, drew an attendance of more than forty guests.

Music, dancing, and other entertainment filled the time happily and it was considerably past the midnight hour when the event was finally brought to a close. These gatherings have been of weekly occurrence, and may continue so throughout the fall and winter months.

OBITUARY.

DR. GERALD McCARTNEY

BETHANY, Oct. 10.—One of the largest and saddest funerals services ever held in this village took place in St. Paul's Anglican church on Wednesday afternoon over the remains of Dr. Gerald McCartney, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William McCartney, of this village, who lost his life on Thursday, September 29th, when he was upset from a canoe while he, with a friend was duck hunting at Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan. The remains were then conveyed to their last resting place in St. Mary's cemetery, Manvers.

The body of this bright and talented young man who left his home only two short weeks before in the very best of health and spirits after a three weeks visit with his parents, arrived on the noon C.P.R. train to Manvers station and rested a few short hours in his childhood home, where a short service was held for the members of the family.

Long before the appointed time for the service the lovely old church was crowded to the doors with sympathizing friends and acquaintances from far and near who had come to pay their last respects to one whom they had known and loved from childhood.

The beautiful burial service of the Anglican church was read by the Rector, the Rev. Mr. Fierheller, while the Rev. A. T. Weir, of Omemee, a former pastor and friend of the family, read the lesson found in the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians. Several familiar and comforting hymns were sung by the congregation.

The rector, Rev. Fierheller, gave a short talk to the assembled mourners, basing his remarks on the words, "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted," Matthew, 5th chapter and 4th verse. Mr. Fierheller left a very comforting message with those present.

The floral tributes of sympathy were many and beautiful and were carried by eighteen young men, former school chums of the deceased. The bearers were also six young men friends, Karl Sisson, Charles Smith, Bruce Ryley, Harry O'Brien, Thomas Staples and Charles Staples. Left to mourn are the stricken parents, two brothers, Victor of Toronto and Aubrey, of North Bay, and one sister, (Vera) Mrs. Dr. Galloway of Alameda, Sask. Up to the present the parents and friends have been unable to get anything but the bare fact of the accident, and they are anxiously awaiting mail from the west. The sympatny of the entire community is with the heart-broken family.

JAMES FROST.

..NORWOOD, Oct. 11.—Mr. James Frost, who had been ill for more than a year and who had been confined to his bed for the past few months, died on Friday morning.

Deceased, who was in his sixtieth year had resided in Norwood for a number of years where he was employed by the C.P.R. as section foreman. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Rhoda.

Burial took place on Sunday afternoon. The funeral was held from his late residence, Colborne street, and was conducted under Masonic auspices, deceased having been a member of Norwood Lodge A.F. and A.M. The Rev. Mr. Aitkens of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church conducted the services.

The late Mr. Frost was highly esteemed, this being attested by the large funeral attendance and the many floral tributes.

ARTHUR SMITH.

MARMORA, Oct. 11. — The funeral of the late Arthur Smith, whose loss the town so deeply mourns, took place on Sunday afternoon amid manifestations of the greatest respect and under Orange auspices. The deceased, having been caretaker of the Orange Hall for the past 13 years and residing under its roof, and also following the office of financial secretary of L.O.L. 319 for some time, was known to the Orange brethren over a large area, and the attendance of over two hundred bretheren and nigh on forty sisters of the Lady Orange and True Blue Associations bespoke his popularity.

So large was the assemblage at St Paul's church that the brethern of the Order, exclusive of officers of L.O.L. 319 and a few visiting brethren, courteously consented to remain outside to permit other worshippers to participate in the service. The service was conducted at 2.30 p.m. by the Rector, Bro. Rev. A. C. Caldwell ,the lesson being read by the Rev. M. Levason, the newly appointed Rector of Rawdon. The hymns sung were "Jerusalem, my Happy Home," "Our Blest Redeemer," and "Rock of Ages." Mr. W. M. Lester beautifully rendered as a solo "Hold Thou my Hand."

Rev. A. B. Caldwell's message of counsel and consolation was based on I Cor. 16th chap. and 13th and 14th verses: "Watch ye stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong Let all your things be done with charity."

Following the service, the cortege proceeded to the Protestant cemetery via Madoc and Forsythe streets where it was seen that the procession extended far beyond the length of the business section. The committal was taken by the two officiating clergymen and the last sad rites of the Order discharged by Bro. W. J. Cottrell, Chaplain, and Bro. Rev A. B. Caldwell.

Visiting lodges represented at the funeral included Springbrook, Wellman's, Holloway, Stirling,Madoc, Sentinel, Stanwood, Blairton, Havelock Norwood, Hastings, Cordova, Nickle Millbridge, Ruth L.O.B.A. Millbridge Harmony, L.O.B.A. Marmora, and Marmora L.T.B. 177. The pall bearers were R. E. Bonter, C. Jones S. Lough, C. Airhart, B. Robson and P. Gray.

WORST OF ALL.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 8.—James W. Durham has been married eight times, but he says his last wife is the "doggondest one of all." Durham is 81; his wife is 17. Suing for divorce he charges her with kidnapping their 20-month-old baby.

TORY PAPERS ARE PRAISING LLOYD GEORGE

Rothermere Answers Baldwin's Challenge With Long Editorials.

PRAISES WAR RECORD.

Liberals Delighted To See Rothermere Join Beaverbrook in Tribute To Leader.

LONDON, October 10 (United Press). — The Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin's challenge to the Rothermere press in the attempt to ascertain whether those papers, in the future were going to support the Conservative party of Mr. Lloyd George appears to be bearing fruit. To-day, both The Daily Mail and its evening edition, The Evening News, print editorial long eulogistic tributes to Lloyd George, following the latter's recent publication of tributes to himself made by the late Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, whose biography published last week has created such a sensation.

The Daily Mail's tribute says:

"Whatever views may be held on Lloyd George's activities as a party or a domestic administrator, only blind prejudice can refuse him credit for being a great war minister—the greatest in our annals since William Pitt, the elder. It must be remembered also that Lord Chatham's task was far simpler and immeasurably easier than Lloyd George's. It is to the eternal credit of Lloyd George that he never despaired of our ultimate triumph. He remained confident and resolute through our darkest hours. He understood and correctly interpreted the national temper and inspired it with his own invincible will to victory."

Such a tribute, followed by The Daily Mail's recent defence of Lloyd George against Conservative attacks on his methods of securing party funds, by the distribution of titles, is interpreted in Tory quarters as an indication that Rothermere is contemplating a breach with the Tories for the benefit of Lloyd George.

It is understood that Lloyd George has also been regarded with favor by Lord Beaverbrook, for some time past, and the Liberals, although regarding with some suspicion any overtures in their direction from The Daily Mail and Daily Express, are naturally elated to find Lloyd George emerging again from the wilderness and regaining popular prestige as a contrasting figure to Mr. Baldwin.

HARVEST TEA CONCERT GOOD

Entertainment Arranged By Christ Church Willing Workers Well Received.

SOME FINE NUMBERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 11. — The Willing Workers of Christ Church, Campbellford, have one more feather to place in their caps now that the harvest tea is one of their things of the past. The short programme of ten numbers was just twice as long, since every number was encored at least once. It is customary for the society invariably to present a programme of the best talent in the district.

Major J. M. Bygott introduced each artiste as the occasion required, and had the extra pleasure of singing to a most appreciative audience. Miss Ivy Hay's reading and Miss Isobel Bygott's piano solo were very fitting numbers with which to begin the entertainment. Tney were each exceptionally well rendered and persistently encored. Mr. A. Hazell's rich baritone also won him an encore, but that is not at all unusual for him. Kenneth Collison, Campbellford's boy violinist, played as his first number "Adoration" (by Borowski), and for his encore "Souvenir." Kenneth is a student of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, and is a brother of Arthur Collison, organist of Murray Street Baptist Church of that city. Mrs. J. H. Bell's reading was well received. Miss Bonnycastle, as usual, displayed the remarkable talent which for years has been the envy of every singer who has ever heard her. Miss Wheadon at the piano proved her mastery of the art. Mr. A. M. Rollo is another of the artistes who made up the programme. His numbers were particularly pleasing.

At the conclusion of the programme the Willing Workers served a very appetizing lunch to their guests, a suitable conclusion to such an exceptionally good programme. When the National Anthem brought the entertainment to a formal close, the impression left with the audience was that the very small fee for admission was not at all in proportion to the class of entertainment to which they had been listening.

FEDERAL ARMY

The rebels had left the capital on Sunday night to join Gomez in Vera Cruz and the loyal troops gave pursuit. The rebel strength was estimated at about 400, and it is stated that after the clash they abandoned the revolutionary movement and rejoined the Government forces.

Federals defeated a small group of rebels commanded by Meliton Cid, a former officer of the local militia near Santa Rosa, state of Vera Cruz. This group was attempting to join the revolutionary movement. Cid escaped, but is believed to have been wounded. Two of his followers were captured.

Politicians Arrested.

Press despatches from Villa Hermosa, in Tobasco, say that travellers from Chiapas report the arrest of 15 more prominent politicians of that state, charged with complicity in the revolt. Previous despatches had reported many arrests in that state, and quoting officials as declaring that the revolutionary attempt in Chiapas was abortive.

From Puebla comes word that Federal troops captured former General Frederico Cordova, suspected of connection with the revolution. It was added, however, that "after representations in his favor, Cordova was released."

CROP PROSPECTS SHOW INCREASE

Due To Unusually Hot Weather During First of September.

WASHINGTON, October 11 (Associated Press). — Crop production prospects for this year were increased by the unusually hot weather during the first three weeks in September, causing a marked change from the very unpromising prospects of the early summer, the Department of Agriculture said yesterday in summarizing its October crop report.

Corn improved to the extent of 146,876,000 bushels, bringing the indicated crop this year to 2,603,473,000 bushels ,or about 43,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Spring wheat also improved, a gain of 5,646,000 bushels being shown in the crop now indicated, which is 313,771,000 bushels . That is 105,000,000 bushels more than harvested last year.

With the winter wheat harvest of 552,767,000 bushels this year, the country's combined wheat crop will total 866,538,000 bushels. That is about 33,000,000 bushels more than last year, and almost 50,000,000 bushels more than the average of the last five years.

Damage to the corn crop from frost is no longer a serious factor except to the very late planted corn, the Department stated. Warm weather during September greatly hastened maturity ,thereby removing the crop from danger which was greatly feared a month ago.

Oats prospects were somewhat improved by the September weather, but the crop is smaller than the five year average.

Potato yields are running substantially below expectations, and the crop was placed at 5,000,000 bushels less than a month ago, with total production now indicated as 395,000,000 bushels.

the men, since the adoption of angle parking, not to go along George street except when it was actually necessary. Another case brought up by Ald. Denne, when the men had come along Charlotte and up George to Hunter and then across to East City, had been due to a misunderstanding of orders, he said. The truck had been standing on Aylmer street, facing south, at the time, he said, and he had instructed the driver to go east on Charlotte to Water and then north.

The Chief and Chairman were authorized to sell the horses and harness and to obtain offers for the ladder wagon, the steamer, and the hose wagon at present in the hall. It was thought that some smaller places might consider buying this apparatus.

The Legal and Reception Committee voted $50 to the District Council of the A.Y.P.A. to assist in the entertainment of the Dominion Conference, which is to be held here next week. Aldermen Phelan and Macdonald expressed the opinion that a convention of this size is of benefit to the city, both because of the money spent and because of the advertising value.

A small committee was intructed to go further into the City's insurance problem, which has grown acute since the cancellation of the policy covering accidents on the streets. Among the proposals made in connection with this matter was one that men in receipt of charity be given work sanding the streets in order to get more of this done and prevent accidents.

The committee favors leaving the rates for indigent patients in hospitals where they now stand. The municipality pays $1.50 a day and the province $.50, while the hospitals claim that the cost is $3.14. Some of the aldermen were skeptical about this last figure, although agreeing with the hospitals' other complaints, that drifters accepted by no municipality come on the hospitals and that there is no allowance for babies

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

(Contributed.)

On Sunday morning the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The table was well filled, and with the sermon, dealing with Christ's death on Calvary, was impressive and helpful. Rev. Mr. Allan referred to the cosmopolitan gathering that day when Christ was condemned to death. No matter what station in life each held, all were sinners and Christ's atoning death on the cross was decreed that all might have life everlasting. The spirit of evangelism is still the way of true Christians.

The Three Questions.

The evening attendance was, unfortunately, owing to the rain and thunderstorm, depleted in numbers, but notwithstanding, a good congregation was on hand.

After duly thanking those who had braved the elements, Mr. Allan dealt with the usual three questions of the prelude, the answers to which were summed up in the words, "Give God control of our beings, and we shall never have cause to go wrong."

"Peterborough Without a Church."

This was the subject of the evening discourse, the text for which was taken from 2 Chronicles 28, 24, Mr. Allan said:

Some of the most interesting and suggestive incidents are recorded in Kings and Chronicles, despite the fact that to some folks they seem dry and uninteresting. Ahaz, whose name means "possessor," was the twelfth king of the separate kingdom of Judah, being the son and successor of Jotham.

When he ascended the throne, Pekah, King of Israel and Rezin, King of Syria, were in league against Judah. They proceeded to lay siege to Jerusalem, which was the capital city of Judah, intending to place on the throne, in Ahaz's place, Ben-Tabeal, probably a Syrian noble.

Isaiah tried his best to put heart into Ahaz by assuring him that the allied monarchs would be destroyed. They failed in the attack on Jerusalem although they did considerable damage elsewhere.

Paid Dearly for Assistance.

In his extremity Ahaz applied to Tiglath-Pilezer, King of Assyria, for assistance. The Assyrian king helped him by invading Syria, taking Damascus, and killing Rezin, King of Syria. The price he paid for this assistance was high. He became a tributary; he sent Tiglath-Pilezer treasures of the temple, of his palace and appeared as a vassal at Damascus. While there he took the pattern of an heathen altar and had a similar one built in Jerusalem, where he offered upon the altar, closed the temple, and removed the sacred vessels. He also raised shrines to heathen gods everywhere.

Had a Good Father.

Ahaz made bad use of a good opportunity. His father was a good man, too. Yet he departed from following God and worshipped idols. This was the ruin of him and all Israel. He went deeper into sin, with prophets to guide him—Isaiah, Micah and Hosea—but of no avail. He tried to make an end of the very thought of God by closing the doors of the temple and doing his utmost to destroy the sacred vessels. There was no sacrifice or prayer.

But he could not get rid of the desire to worship. This is part of the Divine Image which, though sorely marred, will manifest its presence and power in spite of all efforts to put it to death.

"In this narrative you have," said Mr. Allan, "the basis for what I want to say under the caption, 'Peterborough Without a Church'.

It Might Be a Blessing.

"How many people would be glad if there were no churches in Peterborough today?" asked Mr. Allan. "If our churches were all attended as they should be, the accommodation would be taxed. There would not be too many churches. Yet how poorly attended, at the best, are our churches, compared with what might be the rule. And why? There are three reasons:

"The Love of the World—pleasure, sport, thought of the present only, with its cards, its poolrooms and other amusements. Were there no churches, how much vice and lack of safety would be rampant, and outrage volud be on every hand?

"The Coldness of the Church—It is a wonder people come to our churches, when they are treated almost as usurpers, and are frozen out if they even sing a little too heartily. The spirit of the age has gripped it! Fetes, dances and whist drives. Oh! for the old-time zeal! There was no spiritual life."

Mr. Allan here mentioned the fact that newspapers gave front-page prominence to sport and pugilistic encounters, and little or no mention was given to church meetings, when noted preachers delivered powerful discourses. It all tended, he said, to show the trend of modern thought.

Familiarity Bred Contempt—Korea, Africa and India had all shown strides towards accepting the Gospel of Christ; the peoples of these lands had been without the Christian Church—now they were earnestly seeking affiliation. Many in Peterborough would be glad if there were no churches. Revivals and evangelistic campaigns had now no appeal—the class to be appealed to could not be reached. There was a wrong impression of evangelism. It was just possible that this familiarity bred contempt. Some of us will never enjoy our church until it is taken away.

It Would Be a Calamity.

That is what it was then; that is what it would be now. Think what you have in the church: The salt of the earth. Without its presence society would go corrupt. The light of the world—How can a sinful man be just before God? Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? If a man die, shall he live again? These and other questions are answered by the Church alone. It is a witness to the nations—slavery and many other sins are done away wherever the Church is established. The House of God—It is always present where we can be transformed through a closer communion with God; when we can feel His presence near. It is the Gate of Hope. Our hopes for a future life are lifted beyond the uncertain; our lives are raised to a higher plane; and the sinner is saved through the grace of God, by our vital relationship to Him through the Church. Without the Church we would become individually carnal, cruel, covetous, brutal and degraded. We should appreciate having a church, where we need not criticize everything concluded Mr. Allan, but crown Him King of kings and Lord of lords in our lives.

14,849 PEOPLE

includes an old Russian piece with figures in magenta dye. There is an exhibit of pretty hand-painted china, and a case full of odd jewelry in hand-made pieces, with pendants and rings and brooches, mirror backs of pierced silver and a wonderful walnut Florentine box with tooled leather insets on the top.

Another demonstration of artistic type is in the large section devoted to a display of the skill of the two young ladies from the Toronto Central Technical School, the Misses Lucy Williams and Beryl Forward, who model in clay and also make interesting little pen and ink silhouettes. Yesterday, the figure of "Christ on the Cross" attracted a great deal of attention as its modelling went forward in this booth.

Art Demonstration.

Miss Mamie L. McCarthy of this city is giving a demonstration of various types of painting, taking a different branch each day. To-day's subject was charcoal drawing, while to-morrow will be occupied with oil painting and Thursday with water colour sketches, the artist demonstrating the use of the brushes and materials in each instance, throughout afternoon and evening, with living subjects as models. At Miss McCarthy's booth, there is a very attractive display of art work in painting, against a background of green, with a border of painted maple leaves. Here are lovely water colour sketches, including a number of local scenes, in old mills and picturesque houses of the city, with Mr. J. A. Aylmer's residence, Mr. Cressman's garden and Mr. L. D. Magie's garden in prominent view. The oil portraits shown include a striking head of Dr. A. Moir, and there is a lovely assortment of Christmas cards and pieces of hand-painted china.

The booth in the circular section of the hall, at the western end, where Chinese embroideries are displayed, is another interesting section. Here are the products of the Hwaiking Shops of Montreal, agents for the Industrial Mission schools in the city of Hwaiking in China, where boys and girls make these odd things. There are brasses and ivories, bits of cloissonne, antique embroideries and mandarin robes and skirts, one of the latter in a gorgeous shade of red draping the front of the booth which is arranged with Chinese character signs and lighted lanterns.

Mrs. E. W. Coon is in charge, with Mrs. Jamieson from the headquarters as a demonstrator of the pretty articles, that include lengths of Korean cloth woven by the women of the country, a dresser scarf in the very intricate and fine mosaic embroidery, a banquet cloth, three yards long, with cutwork design and pillow lace edging, hand made, lacquered brass candlesticks, and a Chinese hand warmer in pierced brass.

Permanent Waving.

A demonstration of interest to men and women alike is the permanent hair-waving exhibit made at Madame Merriam's booth which is a very beautifully decorated section done elaborately in paper of pink and green shades and mauve forming the entire interior in a dainty streamer effect. Shades of pink and yellow cover corner lamps and a tall basket of artificial flowers forms another decorative note beside a waxen lady of beauteous countenance whose hair shows on one side a permanent wave and on the other a straight-lock effect. Pink furniture completes a dainty interior where permanent waving on living models will be shown during the week with a gentleman acting as a model for a wave some time during the interval.

The Bakers' Sales Company of Toronto are showing Baker's products in an attractively decorated booth where a demonstration of Baker's cocoanut will be given, and where a novelty is assured the audience in an old-fashioned barrel-organ that grinds out many melodious old tunes.

To the right of the entrance, as one goes in, Mr. H. Lord has an odd little section devoted to a showing of the dried everlastings or straw flowers that make such pretty decorative bouquets for winter time, with dried Chinese lantern flowers as high lights and a decorative effect in blue and white. Rat-tail statice are another novelty in the floral line here.

The F. R. J. MacPherson Company, Limited, in a large black and orange section, are showing electric vacuum washers and electric stoves, while next door is Barrie's small booth with a warm effect in the skins and garments made from fur-bearing animals. The circular sign in the centre is outlined by grey squirrel skins, a large polar bear warms the floor, and the background of the booth is contrived of Hudson seal, with a fringe of oppossum skins.

Making Paper Flowers.

The Interlake Tissue Mills have two sections, one a tiny corner and another a very lovely and ingeniously-decorated booth next to the Barrie's Store exhibit. Here Mrs. I. Smallwood is in charge and demonstrates the making of exquisite flowers from paper, including the newest idea in frilly-edged asters of very real appearance. All the colors of the rainbow have been used with very artistic effect in this booth, where the roof and walls are made of paper hangings of various colors and where a simulated garden background shows paper hollyhocks in red and yellow, tall bulrushes, artificial cherry blossoms in pink, and birds made from the same material, with a gorgeous parrot and a lovely butterfly. Tiny miniatures of Joe Wright, the souller, a flapper dancing the black bottom, Valentino and Vierkoetter, the victor in the recent Canadian National Exhibition swim, were shown here, made from paper, the latter presentation of Vierkoetter disappearing, however, before the afternoon was over. Just what can be done with this crinkly material is well illustrated in this charming booth.

Directly beside it is the large booth of F. H. Dawson, with a very interesting arrangement, in wreaths, festoons, fans and streamer of orange and blue paper and showing Purity products in bags and boxes of flour and oats.

The Canadian Departmental Stores Limited, have a large and very dignified double showing that simulates the Toronto Exhibition type of interior, in a dining room and living room set, the former in French finished walnut with taupe upholstery, the the latter including an exhibit of the splendid prizes to be given at the Canadian Legion's euchre and dance on December 21st.

The Watson Tire & Radio Supply Company, in a pretty blue and white section cosily arranged with rugs, show a fine collection of radios of various types and the latest up-to-date models.

Batik Designing.

An extremely unique attraction just here is the small booth where Mrs. Kate Stovel Mather of Banff, Alberta, shows how to make the lovely batik things which decorate her rose and black booth. Here there are exquisite scarfs in pastel tints of batik design handkerchiefs, beautiful hand bags and odd bits in wood block printing. Anyone interested in this novel work will be pleased with this exhibit.

The Atwater-Kent Radio exhibit by the local agents, Dawson and Johnston, with new models in radio goods, has a housing in a rug-draped and floored interior, and next door is the interesting showing by the Canadian Air Services Company, in charge of Captain Ayres, in various parts of equipment of an airplane, with a model also of the light airplane similar to those expected to be built shortly in Peterborough. Here is a whirlwind aircraft motor of practically the same type as the one used in Lindbergh's plane, also an Anzani motor, a propeller, wheel and carburetor, also the electric inter 'phones used in an airplane.

At the corner intersection, Miss Florence M. Benjamin, of Toronto, is demonstrating her own composition in the popular song, "Down Sweetheart Lane With You," with Miss Irene Foster at the piano as accompanist for Miss Benjamin's vocal renditions of her own composition. This song has a full orchestration, and is only one of a series of eighteen songs which have achieved popularity from the pen of this talented Canadian lady. The little booth has a lovely arrangement of rose and blue paper, with baskets of sweetheart roses to carry out the effect of the title.

In the Artillery section farther on, the J. R. Devine Company are showing, in a mauve and pink booth, the latest perfumes from their laboratories, in "Jasmin de Nuit" and "Little Flower."

Refreshment Stands.

The Adam Hall Company, in a blue and white section draped with flags, shows Tropic ranges and heaters, ingenious ideas in decoration are manifested in the single product exhibits of the Coco-Cola Company, exhibiting its wares in a section with red and green paper panels, edged with yellow, the Imperial Tobacco Company's decorative picture scheme and green and white background for Winchester cigarettes, the Lea Roy Candy Company of Toronto's red and green booth where butter scotch, chocolate bars and Mary Lea chocolates are shown, and J. Dean's counter, done in blue and yellow, for the sale of Rochester Root Beer

Across the aisle is the corner booth of the McDonald Lumber Company, in yellow and black, with an exhibit of interior woodwork and little alcove breakfast room in a bungalow, shown in detail, with curtained window at the rear.

On the main floor, The Examiner Printing Company has a very attractive small booth done effectively in black, green and silver paper and exhibiting, in dainty volumes, the most up-to-date ideas in Christmas cards.

Historic Exhibit.

The Fathers of Confederation, a loan exhibit from the T. Eaton Company, of Toronto, attract a lot of attention. These are life-size models of a dozen or more of the gentlemen who framed the British North American Act, and are made from plaster of paris and wax, colored cleverly to stimulate fresh tones and clothed in garments by which historians knew them. They are extremely life-like and give a very dignified touch to the Exhibition Sir John A. Macdonald dominates the group,

CHURCHES UNITE IN TWO SERVICES

Harvest Festival and Organist's Jubilee Observed at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK Oct. 11. — Saint Thomas' church was beautifully decorated for its annual Harvest Thanks giving services on Sunday, fall flowers, sheaves of ripened grain, brilliantly-colored autumn leaves, and other fruits of the harvest, being artistically arranged within the chancel, and on the windc.r ledges,while the pews along the centre aisle were marked with small sheafs of golden wheat which were tied with crimson flowers.

The Venerable Archdeacon Davidson was the special preacher for the day, assisting the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, with the celebration of the Holy Communion at the morning worship, and delivering inspiring discourses to large congregations at both services, the capacity of the church auditorium being taxed at night.

A feature of unique interest in connection with the ocacsion was the fact that Mrs. (Canon) Allen had completed 50 years of service as a church organist, the beginning of her ministry of music having been for about seven years in her home town of Shenley, England, and a little over 43 years in the parish of Millbrook and Cavan. "A record not to be paralleled in the diocese," Archdeacon Davidson remarked in the course of his sermon at night, when making personal reference to Mrs. Allen's valuable services, "leading in the music at public worship ,training others, teaching in the community, and thus bringing music into numbers of homes that would otherwise have been without it; giving unstintingly of her time and talents, shall we not at this anniversary occasion offer thanksgiving for her unselfishness, and the inspiration which her knowledge and skill has bright to the community, and to the services of the house of God?"

The combined choirs of the four churches of the parish led in the music at evening worship, about 60 members being present. Mrs McKee Bingham and Mrs. F. Waterman were the soloists for the day, the latter singing at the morning service, "God Knows," and in the evening "Eye Hath not Seen," from the "Holy City" by Gaul. Mrs. Bingham's solos were "Land of Hope and Glory" and "The Lost Chord," her numbers being given while the offertory was received and during the service of song with which the evening worship was concluded. The full choir anthems were: "The Earth is the Lord's" and "His Mercy Endureth Forever," Mr. W. H. Coombe taking the tenor solo in the latter selection.

Archdeacon Davidson extended greetings from the Bishop of the diocese before beginning his sermons, his morning theme being, "Praise and Thanksgiving," based upon Psalm 145. 2: "Every day will I bless Thee, and I will praise Thy name forever."

"Country Work and Country Workers," was the subect at night, th. text being "Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord; for ye serve the Lord Christ," Col. 3: 23-24; and "Some believed....of the honorable women not a few." Acts 17:4.

Emphasizing the need of thanksgiving, the speaker said he wished to bring a message of encouragement and cheer to the hard-working men and women from the farms "that will give you fresh heart in your most important work ,and help you to realize its value. Canada's contribution must always be one of food, and you determine its quantity and quality. The rush to the cities is making this country 'bottom heavy,' and your standing by the rural sections means much to the nation. More and more scientific proficiency is being demanded in your profession, which is the Lord's work given by Him to you; do it for Him as a religious offering with thanksgiving."

The call to the men to work for and support the church was urged; "it cannot go on without you; 'ye that are men now serve Him.'"

The high calling of womanhood as homemakers, with motherhood and housekeeping as component parts, and the faithful ministry which "the honourable women not a few' have given in both home and church, were vividly pictured as the Archdeacon spoke of the manifold calls upon strength, time, and patience which every day brings as a matter of course. "Consider the expense of bringing immigrants into this country. How long does it take to make them real citizens? How do they compare with the native-born sons and daughters who have the traditions and customs of our land in their very blood?"

The men were charged to frequently express appreciation of the wonderful work done for them in their homes, showing understanding of the exacting duties and the trying monotony which homemaking demands, and that a holiday for the wife and mother is absolutely essential.

In conclusion, the speaker spoke earnestly on the need of having the services of the church "warmed up" —more love, more inspiration, more warm-hearted enthusiasm in the religious life. "Women are by nature more fitted for the devotional side of life than are men, and I charge you to teach your children the Bible, church going ,and habits of personal devotion. Be content if woman's main job is given to you; what this country needs to-day is large families of healthy, well-brought-up children. You can raise the standard of church life and lift us up to a higher experience of the value and realities of religion."

The recessional hymn was "Who is on the Lord's side," and after adjournment to the Parish Hall, the choir members enjoyed a re-union as a social hour, with lunch served before those from outside the village left for their drive home.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Cherry came flying in to dinner, her freshly bathed body wrapped loosely in the jade green silk kimono which had been a part of the trousseau she had bought, with Ralph Cluny's money, as Ralph Cluny's prospective bride.

Faith, still trembling from reaction of anger into fear for the consequences of those hasty, too-revealing words of hers, watched Bob's angry, flushed face covertly, saw his moody eyes glance at Cherry, hover for a moment upon Cherry's lovely bosom, then return later, and again—

"Ye gods! What's the matter?" Cherry demanded, after Faith and served the family in silence. "Another row? I suppose, dear brother-in-law, you've heard the horrible news. Yes, I'm going out with Bruce Patton tonight, and I hadn't told you before because I knew you'd grouch at me all day. Now, spill it! I'm listening!"

"I've nothing to say," Bob retorted grimly, his furious blue eyes fixed unseeingly on his plate of spaghetti.

"Bob bought tickets for 'Naughty Nancy' for tonight, Cherry, not knowing that I had promised to take care of Hope for you," Faith explained coldly.

"Is that what's torturing the poor dear so that he can't eat this glorious spaghetti? I'll phone Aunt Hattie to come over and stay with Hope. She adores the infant—"

"And will want to rock her to sleep," Faith interrupted dismissingly.

"Don't bother, Cherry," Bob said sullenly. "Faith doesn't want to go."

"Then why is she sitting there, looking like the woman God forgot?" Cherry demanded flippantly, "Of course you two will go. Don't be blessed idiots. I suppose the poor thing was knocked into a cocked hat with surprise that you wanted to take her anywhere, Bob. About all the excitement Faith gets is wondering whether a cake is going to fall or not."

"Of course I want to go, Bob, if Aunt Hattie will come," Faith conceded calmly, taking great care to keep a tremble of appeal out of her voice.

"I wish I was grown-up," Joy remarked earnestly. "But when I am grown-up I'm never going to get married. I'm just going to have new beaus all the time, like Cherry. Can I have some more spaghetti, Faith? Lots more?"

"You'd better be glad you are not grown-up," Cherry laughed, her eyes sparkling with delight at Joy's indirect compliment. "If you were, you wouldn't dare take two big helpings of spaghetti. You'd be worrying too much about your figure. Thank heaven, I'm going to get in some strenuous dancing tonight. I've gained two pounds since I've been staying home, twiddling my thumbs and being a devoted mother."

A little later, while Bob was moodily eating cocoanut angel cake, furtively watched by Faith, who was only pretending to eat, Cherry called from the h all

"Aunt Hattie will be delighted to come if Bob will run over after her in the car. She says she'll spend the night and sleep with Joy. Shall I tell her you'll come for her, Bob?"

"I suppose so," Bob answered. Then, with a fleeting, shamefaced glance at Faith, he mumbled. "Darned good cake, honey. Joy and I will wash the dishes while you doll up."

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SERENADE.

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis.)

"Wuff! Wuff!" barked Jackie Bow Wow to his brother Peetie one morning as they were on their way to school.

"What are you wuffing about?" Peetie wanted to know, as he took a hard knot out of his tail. It had become tied there when he tried to climb up a tree like Tommie Kat.

"I am wuffing to tell you to wait a minute," answered Jackie. "I know how we can do something for Uncle Wiggily," he went on when he had caught up to his brother. "Do you want to?"

"Do I want to what?"

"Give Uncle Wiggily a serenade?"

"What's a serenade? Is it like lemonade—something good to eat?"

"Don't be silly," growled Jackie. "A serenade is a sort of concert you give anybody when you are glad they have come home again after a long time away. Uncle Wiggily has been visiting the Wogglejigs, you know. He got home Monday and I thought it would be nice if we would serenade him at his hollow stump bungalow to-night."

"How do you do it?" Peetie wanted to know.

"We'll sit on our hind legs beneath Uncle Wiggily's window and sing for him," said Jackie.

"I can't sing very good—tra lala la la—can you?" asked Peetie, trying his voice.

"That isn't bad," said Jackie. "You sing better than I do. But if we get Tommie Kat to help I think we can make a fine serenade for Uncle Wiggily."

"Then let's do it!" whined Peetie. "He'll like it. We've never given anybody a serenade, but there must always be a first time."

That evening just as the moon was coming up, Jackie and Peetie scurried across the fields toward the hollow stump bungalow where Uncle Wiggily lived. On the way the doggie boys stopped for Tommie Kat who had promised to go with them.

"We'll sing real loud and it will be a fine serenade!" mewed Tommie as he came out with his tail held up in the air over his back like a fishing pole.

"We ought to have some kind of music, like a banjo or a piano," said Jackie when they were ready to sing beneath Uncle Wiggily's window, "but I guess if we sing loud it will be all right."

Taking their places, the two doggie boys and the pussy cat chap opened their mouths real wide. Jackie whined, Peetie yelped and Tommie mewed. Oh, it was loud and strange! Queer noises those three little animal boys made.

"Wuff! Wuff! Ki! Yi! Mew! Mew!" sounded on the night air.

All of a sudden a window in the bungalow was raised and Uncle Wiggily stuck out his head.

"What's the matter down there?" called the rabbit gentleman.

"Nothing at all is the matter," answered Jackie.

"Why are you making so much noise then?" asked Mr. Longears.

"We aren't making any noise," barked Peetie.

"We're singing you a serenade," mewed Tommie Kat. "Don't you like it?"

"We'll sing you a lot more if you wait a minute," added Peetie.

"Oh, no! Don't!" begged Uncle Wiggily. "I liked what you did a lot—a whole lot. But I don't believe I can stand any more just now. Have you anything to make music with?" he asked.

"No, but we wish we had," barked Jackie.

"Wait, I'll bring you down a rubber band," offered Uncle Wiggily. Pretty soon he came hopping out of his bungalow with a long, strechy, elastic rubber band. When he held one end in his teeth and the other end in his paw, making the rubber band very long, it gave out tinkly musical sounds as the bunny plucked it with his other paw.

"This is my rubber band," he chuckled. "Now come on—let's all sing together. We'll serenade my wife and Nurse Jane." So the bunny gentleman, the two dogs and the pussy cat sang a concert while Uncle Wiggily played the rubber band.

Then, all of a sudden, along came the Wolf.

"Oh, ho!" he growled. "I'll help at this serenade! I'll sing away deep down in my throat!"

"Thank you, we have music enough," said Uncle Wiggily, who well knew that after he had sung the Wolf would want to eat. So the bunny snapped the rubber elastic band hard on the Wolf's nose, making the bad chap sing another tune, and away he ran as fast as he could go.

"It was a fine serenade you gave me, boys!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily, when everything was again peaceful and quiet. "It was enough to last a whole year. And here are some pennies for lollypops." So the dog and pussy cat boys went home happy and Mr. Longears went to bed.

WOMEN DOCTORS TOO MANY

England has too many women doctors, according to medical authorities there. A single advertisement for one produced 18 applicants for the two positions of senior and junior medical officials at a children's hospital in London, the salaries being only $600 and $500 a year. A similar advertisement for the post of house physician at the General Hospital in Sutherland attracted only 12 male applicants and 38 women, all of whom had held hospital positions for periods of from two to 50 months. All women but one were University graduates, 23 had English qualifications and 21 Scottish. Of every three men and women medical graduates in Ireland, it is estimated that two must emigrate to find fields for their activities. In Scotland the proportion is higher. Many of them come to America.

SURPRISE PIE

Southerners bake a delicious "surprise pie" by using up scraps of chicken, veal, pork or any other meat, covering with gravy and white sauce and baking with upper crust.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Fringe of dull gold beads ornaments this black satin frock which has a deep V neckline, edged with dull gold beading.

The old type of swaying silk fringe that was much admired some years ago may have gone more or less out of fashion. But when one type of fringe makes its exit another makes its entrance—for in truth there seems to be no end to the possibilities of fringe.

The first fringe was no doubt just the frayed edges of woven materials, and Chanel of Paris has made use of fringe of this sort in some of her new clothes shown for autumn. This sort of fringe may be effectively produced on the edge of silk or woolen materials.

Bead fringe of short or medium lengths has been used for evening frocks worn last spring and summer and these short fringes are a favorite means of introducing the gleam of beads on crepe or chiffon frocks.

The prediction was made a month or more ago that the fringed shawl was going out of favor. To be sure, some of the newest shawls are made with applied hems of contrasting materials instead of fringe, but the fringed shawl is as popular as ever.

Frequently the fringe on the new shawls is multicolored, the various strands of the fringe matching the embroidery or printed design of the shawl.

When you go to buy fringe by the yard for the first time you may be surprised to find out how expensive it is. Then if you are patient and have need of economy as well as of the fringe, you may decide to make it yourself. Knotted fringe of heavy rope silk may be made at home without difficulty, and it is entirely possible to make beaded fringe of the sort seen on some of the new evening frocks.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1927

Sinister stars are supposed to dominate today, according to astrology.

Early in the morning women should push all their domestic and business interests.

Weddings before noon should be fairly lucky, although the marriages may not be altogether prosperous.

This is read as a configuration under which deceptions are easily practiced. It is not an auspicious time to take any chances.

In love as well as business men and women today may be entirely too trusting. Caution should rule.

Under this direction of the stars both sexes may be much inclined toward unwarranted self-esteem.

Egotism may be even more prevalent than usual and for this reason many persons unfit for public service will seek political office.

There is a threatening sign for aviation, which is read as indicating necessary changes in ambitious plans.

The seers call attention to the inactivity of independent thinkers who will criticise without working seriously for reforms.

Again astrologers prognosticate for the Christmas trade an unusual volume of sales, despite gloomy predictions.

December is to be a month of important events to the government of Great Britain, it is forecast.

One of the prophecies of astrologers promises for the public lower rates for theatre tickets.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of new and strong friendships in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will prosper in conservative business or professional connections. They should avoid speculation in every form.

PORRIDGE 730 TIMES A YEAR

Protesting against too liberal allowances of porridge and sleep, 174 male inmatesof the poorhouse near Govan, Ireland, struck and walked in a procession five miles to the Govan council chamber to air their grievances. The men carried banners, one of which bore the words, "Inmates of Govan Poorhouse get porridge 730 times a year." One speaker told the council that he had been inside Barlinnie prison, not for a criminal offense, and found that the food there was far superior to that in the poorhouse. The inmates had to be in bed in summer time at 8 o'clock, while prisoners had till 9. Conditions in the poorhouse were worse than those meted out to murderers and other criminals in prison, he declared. The Council agreed to appoint a special committee to inquire into the allegations.

BULBS DISTRIBUTED TO STIRLING PEOPLE

Horticultural Society Receives Annual Shipment—Stirling News.

STIRLING, Oct. 11.—The Horticultural Society received their annual supply of bulbs last week, over 3,200 in number. On Tuesday afternoon a committee of the society distributed them to those who had ordered or were entitled on their membership ticket or as winners at the recent flower show at the fair.

A sewing meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Bailey, Henry street. Two beautiful comforters were made. Lunch was served and a pleasant time was enjoyed by the twenty-six ladies present.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the old Town Hall on Thursday evening. Mrs. Meiklejohn, the President, presided. After routine business the matter of holding an entertainment on Hallowe'en was discussed, and it was decided to have a concert and sale of home-made cooking. The Reeve of the village, Mr. Thomas Montgomery, was present and addressed the meeting regarding the Institute appointing a representative on the Board of Management of the new Community Hall. Mrs Clinton McGee was appointed for the position. He also asked that a member be chosen to confer with ladies of other organizations regarding the disposal of the peonies given by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales. For this purpose Mrs. E. T. Ward was the choice of the meeting. The following program was then presented: A piano solo by Miss Thelma Green; a very interesting paper on master musicians by Mrs. H. Jackson; a solo, "Lassie o' Mine," by Mrs. J. G. Butler; a reading by Mrs. David Burkitt, entitled "Three Kinds of Members."

A successful sale was held last Saturday of all the household effects of the late Mrs. McManus. The house and lot was also offered for sale, but the reserved price was not reached, so there was no sale. Mr. H. Wallace was the auctioneer.

FRENCH INCOME TAX SHOWS INCREASE

During the last five years French income-tax returns have shown a rapid and continuous increase.

According to official figures received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its French Information Service, these amounted to 4,245,710,800 francs in 1923; 5,434,339,200 in 1924; 5,632,638,100 in 1925; 6,710,883,200 in 1926, and on July 31, 1927, taxforms had already been sent out for 7,932,143,500 francs, subdivided as follows:

Real estate	1,012,207
Land	500,917
Commercial and industrial profits	3,666,809
Agricultural profits	236,938
Salaries	530,219
Professions	132,380
General income tax	1,851,958
Notification tax	718

It is certain that the yield during 1927 will exceed eight billion francs.

The total amount of revenue collected by the French Treasury from January 1 to July 31, 1927, according to the "Journal Officiel," shows a surplus over budgetary estimates for the first seven months of 1,012,442,600 francs. This is derived principally from the following sources: Turn-over tax surplus, almost 700,000,000 francs; transferable securities tax, 578,468,000 francs; customs returns, 128,451,000 francs; indirect taxes, 37,434,000 francs more than provided for in the budget.

On the other hand, the following items fell below budgetary estimates: Tax for sale of business concerns, 108 millions less; that for transfer of real estate, 347.5 millions; foreigners' identity cards, 178.5 millions; railroads' tax, 63.5 millions; export ta (practically suspended by the decree of January 4, 1927), 179 millions less; the tax on salt, 20 millions; that on sugar, 29.5 millions, and that on matches, nearly eight million francs less than budgetary estimates.

Reports Show Prosperous Year For Lawn Bowlers

PETERBOROUGH LAWN BOWLERS HOLD BANQUET

J. H. Sedgwick, President for Past Three Years, is Again Elected.

PRIZES GIVEN

Reports Year Brought to Close Best in History of Club.

More than 50 members of the Peterborough Lawn Bowlers' Association were present at the annual banquet held last night in the Paragon. J. H. Sedgwick, the President for the past three years, was again elected President by acclamation.

The year that was brought to a close by the banquet last night has been the best in the history of the club. The treasury has a handsome surplus, never before have the Peterborough lawn bowlers brought so many trophies to this city, and it was during the year that the rink skipped by George Cairns was the only one of those from Central Ontario to defeat the visiting English bowlers.

Prizes were presented to the winning skips and their rinks, and the club expressed its gratitude to the Executive of 1927 for the way in which it had made the season such a success by electing it by acclamation for 1928.

Treasurer's Report.

The Treasurer had one of the best reports in the history of the Bowling Club. Starting the year with a balance of $4.60, the Treasurer was able to report a balance of $90.76. The largest item in this account was $720 for membership fees.

The report of the Tournament Committee was another one of the fine ones read. Twenty-seven rinks entered into the tournament. The prizes were well divided, about half of them going out of town. The total receipts of the tournament was $245.11 and the expenditure was $166.60, leaving a balance of $78.51.

President Sedgwick, in calling for nominations for the new officers, said the rink competitions during the year were the very best. He paid tribute to Skip George Cairns and his rink, composed of Oke, Bacon and Fitzpatrick. At Cobourg and Lindsay this rink carried off the first prize for the second year in succession. At Oshawa and Port Hope they also carried off valuable prizes. During the summer many other outside competitions were entered into in which the Peterborough rinks were always very successful. In the games in Oshawa with the British bowlers the rink skipped by George Cairns was the only winning Canadian rink on the Oshawa greens on the afternoon of that competition.

The following were the officers who were elected for the season of 1928:

Hon. President—D. H. Moore.
President—J. H. Sedgwick.
Vice-President—Herb Martin.
Secretary-Treasurer—Charles Seymour.
Auditor—J. Mayneord.
Executive—T. O. Donaldson, Harold Freeman, G. Coleman.
Open tournament—J. T. Braund.
Greens Committee—M. Chenhall, J. H. Sedgwick, F. Wise.
Committee re New Greens—Executive with power to add to their number.

D. H. Moore presented the prizes to the winning rinks of the season's tournaments. The rink which was skipped by J. Mayneord and composed of Messrs. Coleman, Taylor and Lowe, were given a handsome carving set.

T. C. Elliot presented a handsome silver plate to the runners-up—Bennet (skip), Howden, Dyer and Coleman.

To J. Mayneord and G. Sorensen, the winners of the doubles, the Clark Cup was presented by Harold Fox, and also a silver plate each.

C. Seymour made the presentation of silver decanters to R. Dyer and J. Fitzpatrick, the runners-up in the doubles tournament.

H. Freeman, the winner of the singles, was presented with a cup and a handsome carving set by Dr. Allen, and H. Martin presented a cup to J. Cullen, the runner-up in this contest.

Those present heartily endorsed votes of thanks to J. Card, the bowling green caretaker; C. Seymour, the President, and the press.

LACK OF SOUTHPAWS HANDICAPPED BUCS

Neither Team Displayed Its Real Batting Strength, Says Huggins.

(By Bill Slocum)

Miller Huggins told newspapermen in the Yankee clubhouse, within a few minutes after his club had won the highest honors in baseball, that they should not be too critical of Donie Bush or the Pirates.

"I think all will agree that my players deserved to win," said the Yankee manager, "but don't forget that the Pirates are a stronger ball club than they showed themselves in this series."

In a nearby room, where Bush and his Pirates were doing their best to shake off both baseball regalia and disappointment, Donnie Bush remarked:

"The Yankees won on their merits. They outplayed us and defeated us fairly. The better club won and we have no alibis to offer."

Two refreshing statements which tell much about the world series of 1927: The American League champions were the better ball club, and figured to defeat any club which might win the National League pennant this season.

True to Form

The Pirates, who qualified as opponents, were not as strong a ball club as Miller Huggins led to easy victory in the season's play, but the Pirates are, better than four straight losses might lead one to believe.

Neither club approached its hitting form of the regular season, but the Yankees were much nearer their normal than were the Pirates.

Looking over the statistics and then tossing the figures gently away it can be said that the American League champions outbatted, outscored, outslugged, outfielded, outwalked and outran their National League opponents.

From the time that Ray Kremer served his first pitch to Combs at Pittsburg last Wednesday until Miljus made his wild pitch in Saturday's game the Yankees trailed in exactly two innings. The score stood 1 to 0 against the Hugmen at the end of the first and second sessions of the second game. At no other time over a stretch of thirty-six innings did Pittsburgh kick any dust on the Yankees.

Lack of Southpaws

One glaring defect in the Pittsburg machine was the lack of cable left-hand pitching. It has been proved, through the most successful season that any club enjoyed in years, that the top section of the Yankee batting order is poison to right-handers. Combs, Koenig, Ruth and Gehrig all hit from the left-hand in that order, and the right-handers whom Bush tossed against them found that grade too steep.

That top quartet in the New York batting order delivered 24 of New York's 38 hits and scored 17 of New York's 23 runs. They made almost as many hits and scored six more runs than the entire Pittsburgh club counted.

Add to this clustered clouting the pitching which Hoyt, Pipgras, Pennock and Moore displayed through the series, and the steady defence of both infield and outfield, and it is easy to understand why the Pirates were scuttled in four straight.

Pirates Did Not Figure

Bush and his men caught the Yankees at their co-ordinate best and no club in world series history would figure to defeat them on the Yankees' good days. The Pirates at their best did not figure to win unless they caught the Hugmen below normal form.

One dropped ball in a glaring sun by an outfielder, a muff by a pitcher running to first base for a put-out, and a fumble by an infielder hurrying to make a double play, was the extent of the New York lapses on defence. The best anybody might expect to do against good pitching and that brand of fielding would be to tie it. You can't beat it.

WANT CLANCY.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The Montreal Star says yesterday it has learned from authoritative sources that Jack Adams, manager of the Detroit Cougars, of the National Hockey League, is attempting to spirit Frank "King" Clancy, stellar defenceman, away from the Ottawa Senators. Adams was a substitute with the Senators last season.

The Star continues, "Clancy, it appears, has not yet signed up with Ottawa this year and he is said to have expressed the desire to go to Detroit."

THERESA JOAN WINS HONORS

Thymon Nods to Judges First in Pageant Purse Sprint.

DEPUTY WINNER

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—W. Keating's Theresa Joan, ridden by Jockey O. Bourassa, was returned winner of the Jubilee Purse for three-year-olds at a mile at yesterday's feature at Thorncliffe Park. She took the lead after going a quarter of a mile and lasted long enough to win by half a length from O. F. Burkhart's Heartache. Mrs. S. Grattan's Sun Lynn was a bang up third. H. G. Bedwell's La Morte was a trailer all the way and could not reach the leaders.

Jockey J. Mann on La Morte ran into La Diva right after the finish and knocked Jockey A. Stiff out of the saddle. Mann was fined $50 for his recklessness.

L. Ribbe's Porridge, program favorite for the third race, developed a fever at noon yesterday and was excused by the stewards.

The contract on Stanley Bond, apprentice jockey, has been transferred to T. E. Keating by Dr. G. W. Morrison. Merry Minstrel and another horse have been turned over by Dr. Morrison to Mr. Keating.

The Thistledown stable's Deputy, with Jockey A. Abel up, proved an easy winner of the opening race. He broke from the outside, took the lead from Foregone at the turn, and won easily by three lengths. Foregone and Taudlane had a battle for second money, the Bedwell colt getting the decision by half a length. Seagram's Tetra Glass, the favorite, swerved to the inside in the stretch and finished outside the money.

T. W. Frost's Thymon, the favorite, captured the second race handily by two lengths from J. Gagliardo's Partake with the province bred Anushka from the J. C. Fletcher stable third, a length away, and a head in front of W. H. Wright's Royal Watch. Thymon laid behind the pacemaker, Moultrie, to the turn for home and then came on to a handy victory. Fred Schelk's Khaki Campbell, a well played good thing, ran away a mile with Jockey O. Bourassa before the race and trailed the field a long way back when the race began.

The B. B. stable won the fourth race with Hijo, who laid behind the pace of Fear Not and Rosita for half a mile and then went to the front. Abel kept riding hard in the stretch and finished four lengths in front of Senor who also made a strong finish. Prince Direct beat the tiring pacemakers to the wire for third money. Hijo was claimed for $1,200 by Mrs. A. Brisette, who had Byng Boy in the race.

J. Coffey's Horologe, the favorite, came from last place at the half mile pole to win the fifth race, going away by a length and a half from the B. B. stable's Miniator, who beat H. G. Bedwell's Forelark a length for second money. Forelark set the pace for a mile and only quit in the last sixteenth when there was a general closing up.

The Bethany church was prettily decorated with floral contributions on Sunday. At both afternoon and evening services, the choir ably assisted with music and solos were beautifully rendered by a guest from Trenton. Rev. D. R. Clare, who conducted the services took as text for his evening service: "Is my son, Absolem safe?" He dwelt upon the pressing temptations which the youth of today have to face and overcome. Among those which he menhtioned were: The habits common in novels and magazines, loose habits, accompanying dancing, drinking and smoking. His conclusion was in the form of an appeal to the older generation to save the modern youth.

A splendid crowd attended the Bethany anniversary services.

MADOC BOY IN RECORD JUMP

Sgt. T. E. D. Nickle of U. S. Marine Corps One of Nine Jumpers.

FROM SINGLE PLANE

MADOC, October 11. — The many friends of Sergt. T. E. D. Nickle, of Quantico, U.S.A., lately of Madoc, will no doubt be pleased to hear something of Ted's work during the past month in helping to establish a world's record for the greatest number of leaps from one plane. This was done at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, when in the brief space of eighteen seconds nine Navy and Marine Corps parachute jumpers leaped from a Navy airplane flying at a height of 1,500 feet over the station on September 23.

During a recent aeronautical exposition a record of six leaps was established. Seven jumps is said to be the world's record.

At 8.55 o'clock in the morning the nine jumpers, of whom Ted was one, stepped into the all-metal three-engine Ford transport plane. They were then whisked away into the air, and after climbing to a height of 1,500 feet, cruised about until three photographic planes could get within focus distance for picturing the experiment.

When the plane, manoeuvring, had coursed on a line with the last hangar over the airdrome, Lieut. Bowes, pilot, throttled his engine, and the first man stepepd out, followed by eight others in quick succession, and within the short period of eighteen seconds the transport was emptied of its jumpers.

The record-breakers presented an unusual picture in their descent. The parachutes at first formed an almost perfectly straight column against the blue sky. Then, one by one, as if an order had been given, they separated, some coming down with more celerity than the others. All the nine jumpers landed safely at Bolling Field, the greatest number of men ever to leap from a single plane while in flight.

The demonstration was made to prove the ease by which a passenger air transport plane can be emptied in a brief period of time in the event of an emergency.

Officials Deny Sale Of Pittsburgh Club

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Officials of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club last night reiterated emphatically their denial of reports that the team had been sold. Rumors that Barney Dreyfuss, Pirate owner, had disposed of the club, circulated in Pittsburgh last week. These reports were revived yesterday when The New York Evening World published a story reporting the sale of the club for $3,000,000 to Lew Dentz, former Pittsburgher, and now an Oklahoma oil operator, and James Crawford, retired Western League magnate.

CHAMPIONSHIP FAIR IS HELD AT ORONO

Winning Pupils From Various Fairs Show Their Produce.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 11.—An innovation this year, under the Department of Agriculture, was the championship school fair, held at Orono on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 4 and 5, in conjunction with the regular Orono Agricultural Fair.

Pupils eligible to compete were those who had won first or second prizes at the regular Rural School Fairs this season in grain and corn, potatoes, roots, vegetables, flowers, cooking (except white bread), sewing, manual training, nature collections and drawing (except map of township). The cooking showed had of course to be done a second time, and fresh vegetables prepared from the pupils' plots as well as potatoes, roots, and flowers. The other exhibits could be the same as those shown at the school fair in the various districts throughout the county.

Prize money was paid as follows: First 50 cents, and a ribbon; second 35 cents and a ribbon; third 25 cents, and a ribbon fourth 10 cents and a ribbon; fifth and sixth a ribbon. Entry of exhibits was free, and all school children were admitted free to the fair.

This initial attempt at a Championship School Fair proved such a success the Agricultural Representative for Durham County, who had the matter in charge, will probably make it an annual event at some chosen point in the county each fall.

WATCH YOUR CHILD'S SPINE

It is important in the first twelve or fourteen years of your child's life to see that he builds the foundation for a strong symmetrical body. If your child is flat-chested, he need no remain so if you will make him take the proper breathing exercises which will develop the diaphragm and educate his ribs to grow with more roundness to the chest. If he becomes stoop-shouldered, it is because of ack of proper breathing and also because his back muscles are not properly developed.

One form of spinal curvature is simply caused because all of the muscles of the spine are weak and the shoulders and arms, consequently, droop fo ward because the muscles are unable to hold them in place.

It does very little good to tell your child to throw his shoulders back. Soldiers in the army could never learn to do this unless they went through their exercise drills each day. When a young man joins the army, no matter how stoop-shouldered he may have been, within a few months his shoulders always straighten up. This is not due, in his case, to any special exercises which have been given him individual of the other soldiers. Every day he is put through a vigorous system of physical culture exercises, among which are those that will develop a strong back.

However, if your child is stoop-shouldered you can get very quick results by having him concentrate upon just certain exercises which wil be more effective than others in developing back muscles. All of the exercises will be helpful which may be taken while lying on the floor. Any book on physical culture will explain these exer i es and many of these books contain illustrations which make them more easily understood.

When a child's spine starts to grow sideways, he should at once be taken to a physician skilled in the giving of spinal treatments. In many cases, it will be found that the child i suffering from Pott's disease, or tuberculosis of the spine. In some cases, several vertebrae will be affected on one side in such a manner that parts of the bones literally crumble away from disease. A partial collapse will occur on that side of the vertebrae and the spine above and below this section will curve toward it.

Such disease of the spine can be entirely prevented if children are fed properly and given the right bone-building foods. In addition to this it is important that the child use a well-balanced diet, as from poor combinations of food, the body will develop an acidosis which robs the bones of their mineral elements.

If a bone disease in the spine has really started, it is a serious condition which must be handled very carefully and only by a physician who is competent in the treatment of such disorders. In these cases no strenuous exercises should be taken until the disease s arrested, after which various exercises for the ba k muscl s may be recommended.i

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE LAND MOST DEAR

There's greener grass on homeland hills,
And fairer girls on homeland streets,
A s weeter song from brooks and rills,
And kinder faces that one meets
I never knew
A sky as blue
As that that I'm accustomed to,
I've never met
A finer set
Of folks in all the wide world yet.

Some say that they know folks as fine,
Some say that they know lands as fair,
But their land's theirs and my land's mine,
And I live here and they live there.
Their land may be
As good to see
To them, but not as good to me;
Yet I don't blame
Them when they claim
That from some better land they came.

For, after all, what makes the skies
Like heaven when the day departs
Is not some color in our eyes
But something deeper in our hearts.
Where folks have wept,
And toiled, and slept,
And loved ones lost, and loved ones kept,
The homeland here,
The homefolks near,
Will always be the land most dear.

FIRE DAMAGES LARGE BUILDING

George Gardner's Home, on Farm Near Norwood, Partly Burned.

VOLUNTEERS SAVE IT.

NORWOOD, October 11. — A bad fire occurred about 7.15 on Monday morning at the residence of George Gardner, on the Dummer Road. Shortly after Mr. Gardner had started the morning fire, the fire broke out in the upstairs. The building, The building, which is quite a large frame one, was saved by the good work of the village chemical engine and volunteer fire fighters, although considerable damage was done to one part of it.

R. C. M. P. HOLDS NORTH FOR CANADA

of human beasts of prey who strive to trap her. Some of the plots which Rev. Mr. Chisholm and his staff have frustrated can be described truly as diabolical.

So the work of the force is spreading. From Ottawa it stretches out long arms that rarely miss their aim, and which protect, and instruct and direct. By special arrangement with the department of Customs and Inland Revenue, a number of members of the force have been appointed Customs and Excise enforcement officers, without salary, and are now working, in close co-operation with officers of the Customs Preventive Service, in checking the activities of smuggling rings operating between Canada and the United States. The great benefit to Canada and the United States, equally, of these border patrols of Mounted Police, was strongly brought out at the recent investigation into the administration of the Customs Department.

There is another long jump to another feature of R.C.M.P. work. Every year, at a certain season, Western Canada issues a general call to the East, for farm labor. The call is heard—indeed it is eagerly awaited, by thousands of young easterners. Railway companies made generous reductions in rates for those answering the call, and thousands travel west to the grain fields on special "harvesters' trains." They assemble at Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and other Eastern cities, and in a great conglomerate mob, make an invasion of the west.

The task of carrying these big train-loads of sometimes rather boisterous young men, is no sinecure, as any railway official will testify.

What more natural than that the R.C.M.P. should be asked for aid? This duty, looking after things on harvesters' trains, called for the employment of a considerable number of officers and men each year. Detachments from Toronto, Ottawa, Fort William, Winnipeg and Regina are annually ordered to join the trains. The services rendered were satisfactory to all concerned.

In this work, as, of course, in all other tasks which have fallen to the lot of the "Mounted," officers and men alike have covered themselves with glory. They have cared for the harvesters as well as for railway property and common orderliness in the towns where the specials stop for a short time and allow the harvesters to stretch their legs, and their necks. Police officers, using their usual tact, have been successful in practically eliminating from the occurrences of the ordinary harvester train journey, drinking and stone throwing, which were formerly common occurrences. On one such excursion R.C.M.P. men on duty with the train succeeded in arresting four youths who were concerned in a robbery and were hiding among the harvesters.

Watchful for the welfare of the men under their charge, R.C.M.P. officers, in 1925, reported that excessive rates were charged for meals at restaurants at some of the stations and towns where the trains stopped. This was instrumental in bringing about a standardization of rates, and special rates for the harvesters.

An incident on a harvesters' trip occurred in the town of Kenora, in 1925. The train reached the town so late that the station restaurant was closed. Between 75 and 100 harvesters rushed into the town itself to obtain food. As there was danger that some of them would be left behind, the constable in charge of the train went around the town rounding them up. He succeeded in herding the majority aboard the special before she steamed out, but the upshot of his hunt was that he, himself, and about a dozen men missed the train. Acting quickly, the constable had a following passenger train flagged, and placed his rear-guard on it. The special was overtaken and the lagging party transferred back to it.

The various duties R.C.M.P. officers are called on to do, seem to be innumerable, and cannot be dealt with, in anything more than a general way here. Mounted officers have, following these new trails that time and necessity have drawn for them, done everything from fighting in skirmishes with bank robbers on the border to opening the door for the Governor-General.

In this latter connection it is not generally known that the R.C.M.P. is wholly responsible for the protection of Government property at many points, principally in Ottawa, the capital. The number of places for which the force furnishes permanent guards, outside of Ottawa, includes the offices of the Assistant Receivers General at Victoria, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg and Toronto. Then, when large sums, particularly in Income Tax returns, are being amassed at offices in large cities under the direction of government departments, special guards are supplied. There are seventeen of these special guards annually. Measures also are taken to protect officers of the customs and postal services, from time to time, when they are in possession of public moneys, and when large money transfers are being made.

But it is at Ottawa that guards are the order of the day. There is one entire division, "A," the strength of which is made up of members of the old Dominion Police Force, now part of the R.C.M.P., which does the bulk of this work. The protection of government property in Ottawa is arduous and call for many men and much work. It is rarely, however, productive of those incidents which show the mounted men to best advantage, and give the writer material for his article or story. "A" Division, under command of Superintendent T. S. Belcher, has its headquarters in Ottawa, but is responsible for all the duties in Eastern Ontario and quite a slice of Quebec.

In the City of Ottawa guards are supplied annually to nearly thirty public buildings. This means that nearly 150 men are needed daily, and in addition a large number of government buildings are visited by patrols. The mounted officers act as door-guards, registrars of civil staffs, and messengers, on occasion. Heavy guards are stationed at places indicated by the Department of Finance. On special occasions, such as the opening of Parliament, big civic and federal festivals, special guards, the majority of them on horses, are supplied.

In Ottawa, also, the R.C.M.P. maintains an efficient fire department of its own. It has daily inspections of government offices and is so well trained that, of 24 fires in public buildings in 1925, for instance, with one exception, they were extinguished without the aid of the Ottawa Fire Department.

Buildings to be guarded by the R.C.M.P. in Ottawa, include Rideau Hall, at Rockcliffe, residence of His Excellency the Governor-General, the Mint, and all departmental buildings, from the Experimental Farm to the Department of Weights and Measures. The Houses of Commons are guarded by a special force called the H. of C. Protective Staff, and its members are largely ex-members of the R.C.M.P. or Dominion Police.

What will be seen that the "Mountie" is far from being the rough-rider of the plains that he is always pictured, and as, indeed, he was, until recently. On occasion the members of the force still ride the wilderness and forest trails, but their work has expanded, and become, if anything, a thousand times more difficult and complicated.

If there was space to spare one could dilate on their work among "moonshiners," of their clever detective work to discover the perpetrators of embezzlers of government funds and forgers on soldiers' pension checks, etc. Much could be written of their work in "peace-time" among the Indians in government reserves. How they aid forest wardens and game overseers; how they pay treaty to distant tribes, air miners in the back-blocks of the Dominion, keep track of settlers and foreigners on far-off farms, make surveys of rural areas to prevent truancy among school children, follow up infractions of food and health laws, trap counterfeiters and bank robbers, detain escaped convicts, parole bad men on pardon, record deeds and act as administrators for estates, catch horse thieves, take a census of wide prairie stretches—all these things are worthy of mention. But they need no recording here. The R.C.M.P. is leaving easily-legible prints in the sands of time, and their work is being fully recorded in the Book of Great Deeds.

standing at a small table.

The Singer Sewing Machine Company has a unique design in its interior arrangement, in a checkerboard effect done in grey and rose, with fringed edging and a huge rose-gowned doll as a central note. Here are latest models in sewing machines, with a demonstration of the work that may be done with them, in fine sewing.

The Pure Gold Manufacturing Company of Toronto, in a tastefully-decorated booth in navy and gold, with a sunray arrangement to the paper backing, shows many of its products, in quick dessert powders, puddings and True Fruit jellies, also an exhibit of chocolates.

The E. W. Gillett Company of Toronto, in a severely trim booth of black and yellow, with roof of black, yellow and white, shows Magic Baking Powder and Soda, with kindred manufactures, and demonstrates by cake samples, the efficacy of the baking powder.

The Hall Store has a handsome double section devoted to the exhibit of Wood's Lavender Line Underwear, in lingeries of all types, and Puritan Maid hose. This is attractively displayed against a rich background of golden brown, with velvet hangings, tall palms and tapestry pictures.

The Canada Starch Company of Toronto and Montreal, in a blue and yellow section, exhibits Benson's Prepared Corn, corn starch, syrups, potato flour, and mazola oil, with gifts of doughnuts, salad and mayonnaise dressing and French fried potatoes as a demonstration of the worth of their products.

Beekist honey, shown by T. H. Shield, of Peterborough, includes an exhibit of jars and cans of honey, with cases showing bees at work and of honey in sweet clover and alsike variety. This is done in blue, white and yellow.

A long rose-pink booth directly in front of the entrance forms the very attractive section devoted to the exhibit of radios, pianos, and Orthophonics by E. V. Warne. Rose walls, with an upper valance of rose edged with black, make an outstanding colour effect.

Radios Are Shown.

Aldous & Metcalfe show up-to-date models in radios and storage batteries, in a green and red booth, and the Miller-Powell Company house their machines of a distinctly utility type to the housewife in a very attractive setting of black and soft blue, with Hallowe'en notes in the witches and cats and lanterns which form the cut-out decorations, along with maple leaves and bowls of Franch marigolds. A locomotive washing machine in action, the swishing sea-green water giving it an odd effect of furious energy; Kelvinator refrigerators, and Moffat stoves are displayed to advantage degree of careful tuition in their

The Turnbull Store's exhibit is a double one, including a very attractive assortment of babies' playroom and bedroom equipment, in tiny beds, bathtubs of new type, called "Bathetts," high chairs and kiddie coops, also a miniature playground, fenced about. These are shown in a pure white interior hung with chintz, while the section directly adjoining, also in charge of the Turnbull Store, has Sani-Bilt Chesterfields of luxurious type shown in a living-room interior setting.

J. J. Duffus shows the Kolster radio in the newest models, in a blue and orange section, and the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, with Miss Scott as special demonstrator, has an egg cooking demonstration, also a candling of eggs by Mr. Webber, of the Departmental staff. This is a very attractive section, done in white and deep cream, in a small house effect, and was brought here for the purpose. Demonstrations of proper methods of cooking eggs, as well as of candling them, will be given throughout the week.

The Toronto Carpet Manufacturing Company, with the Canadian Department Stores, Limited, as local agents, show a very handsome range of the Barrymore line of rugs for living-room, hall and dining-room, in dignified patterns and colours.

Manual Training.

Across the way, at the head of the left aisle, near the Artillery section, is a particularly interesting demonstration of the skill of the youth of the city in the manual training classes supervised by Mr. A. F. Hagerman, whose pupils here show a great degree of careful tuition in in their handling of the various tools and the lathe provided for the purpose of demonstrating their dexterity in their art. The regular routine of the classroom, with an insight into lessons given in drawing, lettering, bench work in wood and lathe work, is demonstrated here, also several of the finished articles.

C. C. Wakefield & Company, of Toronto, in a green and red section, show Castrol oils, very attractively displayed, and the Peterborough Lumber Company, in a neighbouring booth, have Seaman-Kent floorings, using this material as a flooring for their own booth that has walls of red, white and blue. The Sherwin-Williams Paint Company of Montreal, with an exhibit sponsored by the Peterborough Hardware Company, have a full line of their products in a black and orange setting.

The large Heintzman Piano Company's section is very interesting, where musical instruments are displayed in handsome models of a Baby Grand and upright piano and a very beautiful example of ornamental music box in the McLagan phonograph in French walnut finish. A very fine living-room interior has been contrived at this booth, with blue-papered walls, rose window curtains and rugs. The Songs of Childhood, "We are Seven," composed by Miss Bertha Louise Tamblyn, with word settings by Mrs. Edith Groves, are sold here. One of these songs, "Goin' Fishin'," will be sung in the Pageant to be presented on Friday and Saturday in the theatre auditorium.

Display of Wool.

The Horn Brothers' Woollen Company of Lindsay have a very striking exhibit of wools, from the fleece from the sheep's back to the finished product, displayed on a revolving stand, where blankets of many textures and colors are displayed. The "tops, noils, worsteds, hoggs, alpacas, kemps and shoddys" of the wool trade which are only names to most people are illustrated here, also samples of wool from Turkey, Spain, India, Iceland, South Africa, New Zealand, the Argentine, and from Canada, in the boxes devoted to these samples. An interesting item is the display of sleeping-car rugs and the exhibit of yarns in many colors.

The Imperial Oil Company, Limited, with Mr. A. Blade in charge, has another interesting and instructive section that includes a miniature reproduction, in action, of an oil, complete with derrick, pipes and engine room. From the pipes comes a stream of real oil, and it is real oil also that flows heavily and smoothly as glass from the ever-flowing keg opposite. This immovable thick stream is fascinating in its glassy surface.

Government Demonstration.

A great deal of interest is manifested in the Governmental demonstration of canning and preserving methods which is given in a section directly at the head of the left aisle, main entrance. Here Miss Elliott is in charge, and demonstrates every afternoon and evening the right ways of preparing and putting up fruits and vegetables, in a very entertaining and educational fashion.

The ladies have their raffle booth in this corner, and another game is in progress, conducted, as in the case of the bingo and dart games in the Artillery section, by men of the Kiwanis Club. The Planters' Salted Peanut booth, with "Mr. Peanut" in attendance, in his wonderful outfit of yellow and black, forms the conclusion of the booths and the commencement at the left entrance.

The Brown Hardware Company, with I. Rattenbury in charge, shows a full line of the Canadian Paint Company's brushing lacquer and Sun varnish stains. Here a demonstration is given of the quick drying qualities of the Rogers' lacquer, and every evening a chair finished in this way during the interval, is given away to the lucky holder of the winning ticket, bestowed without charge at the booth.

Refreshments.

For those who look for refreshment, light or otherwise, various groups of Kiwanis ladies are maintaining booths. At the right entrance and in the Artillery section are sections devoted to the sale of hot dogs, hot coffee and ice-cream, which had a record sale yesterday. Mrs. Mark Bredin and Mrs. Herbert Gilgour are in charge of these sections, and Mrs. Walter Oke is convenor of the tea and supper room in the upper eastern gallery, where hot dinner may be enjoyed, with afternoon tea in the earlier hours. Decorations here are in orange paper and flowers.

Another amusement centre is the fortune-telling booth, where ladies in gipsy costumes tell the future, by the hand, the tea cup, or the cards. Mrs. F. C. Neal is in charge, and was assisted yesterday by Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. W. H. Dicken, Mrs. J. A. Dewart, and Mrs. F. C. Weber.

Yesterday afternoon, at the supper hour, St. Peter's High School Orchestra played from the west balcony, their tuneful music arousing many appreciative comments.

Owing to the lack of space, the ladies were compelled to relinquish their programme of bridge parties throughout the week.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

IMPORTED FRENCH STAGE EQUIPMENT "IN MONKEY TALKS."

The mass of French stage equipment seen in Fox Films production of Rene Fauchois' sensational stage mystery drama "The Monkey Talks," the current attraction at the Regent Theatre, was sent to the Fox Hollywood Studio by studio executives who journeyed abroad for the purpose of gathering authentic properties.

Long before Director Raoul Walsh started actual camera work on the production carloads of this equipment came to the Fox Studio in Hollywood.

Pinrails, stage lights, drops, banisters, rope, stage effects, pails, brooms mops, squeegees and hundreds of other small stage accessories pertinent to the French theatre were included in the shipment.

Olive Borden whose spectacular rise to stellar positions among screen stars has been really phenomenal, is cast in the role of Olivette. Don Alvarado plays the leading male role in support. A strong cast of well known stage and screen favorites, including Jane Winton, Raymond Hitchcock, Malcolm Waite and August Tollaire, appear in feature roles, while Jacques Lerner, the creator of the original Parisian role of "The Talking Monkey" has the same part in the screen version.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"NELSON."

One of the massive pictures which British producers seem to delight in and which they handle in a manner distinctively their own, is the feature production entitled "Nelson," showing at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week. It is an interesting study of the life of the mighty commander and educational in its delineation of his struggle for the Empire, on the high seas. Numerous engagements between battle ships are shown, with the one-eyed Admiral dominating the scene. It is an epic of the British navy, woven about the figure of one of the most vivid and dramatic personalities in the pages of British history. Mr. Cedric Hardwicke in the title role has a very fine characterization, and also a good supporting cast.

A succession of thrilling naval incidents leads up to the mighty struggle of Trafalgar, and the subsequent death of the victor. Three old vessels of the British Admiralty were used in the filming.

Nelson's trials, as depicted in the picture, with an unsympathetic wife and the consolation he received from the frail and beautiful Lady Hamilton, are depicted also, giving a human touch to the mighty scenes of battle and strife.

With the picture are the Johnston Sisters, "Vera" and "Val," in an offering that combines some interesting renditions in music, song and dance.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A Japanese scientist has invented a method of getting three fleeces a year from one sheep. He injects a certain fluid into the veins of the animal ever two days, and this makes the wool grow at a most amazing pace. He confidently asserts that by his method, the wool grows as much in about two months as it would ordinarily would in an entire year.

The first four young ladies sold over $1,200.00 worth of bonds, showing an increase of over $100.00 over the first four of last year.

Miss McKone fell a little short of the record made by Miss Outram last year. Miss McKone's record is one to be proud, of though, as she wasn't supported by a church as Miss Outram was a year ago.

Miss Collins holds the record for "the early bird," having sold two bonds at 2.30 a.m.

Congratulations are due to the nineteen contestants, all of them were working entirely to help Kiwanis in Peterborough. Some of the prize winners are turning their cash over to their church organizations.

Miss McKone is reported to have said that $10.00 of her cash prize was going to be given to each shelter and the balance to the Canadian Girls in Training, a church organization. Good for you, Arleigh.

Mrs. Wood's cash prize will likely find a home in a Sunday School class in Knox Church. Mrs. Wood should be a Kiwanian Queen. How about it, Hy?

Miss Eakins worked hard. She and Mrs. Hope are two ladies who deserve the praise of all Kiwanians, and are to be congratulated for their effort purely to help Kiwanis.

The several other young ladies are to be congratulated for their efforts. Some of them sold tickets at country fairs, villages—any place the Bond Selling Committee asked them to go. Kiwanians are proud of your efforts, and hope another year you will be with us again.

The Produced-in-Canada Exhibition has success guaranteed with $1,887.00 worth of strip tickets sold, or in other words a paid admission of 13,209 tickets.

The Chairman of the Bond Selling Committee wishes to say that the Exhibitors this year have spent $50 for every $10 spent last year in making their exhibits attractive.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE.

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is the meteor of the tennis universe. A poetical, queerly spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. She has grown up with tennis balls. Her mother died sewing them for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary becomes acquainted with Wally Mason, a young reporter. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married; but Mary disbelieves in love. Wally tells her he loves her. She, troubled, says she does not love him.

He spoke only once before reaching home. A home in which, incidentally, there hung an unwonted air of excitement

"I want you to know, Mary, that this love I am offering you is yours until you tell me definitely that you don't want it. I shall not kiss you again, either, until you ask me to. But both kisses and love are yours, sweet. Forever. Whenever you feel the urge for either—"

"I—" said Mary faintly.

He placed his hand over her mouth, gently. "Don't say it. You don't know what you mean now. You're just a sweet little kid who has made a path for herself to tread, and no knowledge of either yourself or the world has gone into the making. Cheerio, sweet. I'll be around." He helped her out, and stood with head uncovered until the screen door slammed behind her, and wondered vaguely what was up. The windows of the cottage all gleamed yellow with light, and the shadows of figures moved against the light, blotting it out. He drove off. "Some neighborhood gathering, probably," he thought, and then his being, including all his thoughts, reverted to the person of Mary and the feel of her elastic young body against his own.

"Rather a shock, Mary," Mr. Tomlinson said.

CHAPTER IV

Young Robert flung himself upon his sister as she entered. Young Robert's face was grimy where the tears had coursed and where his hands had tried to erase them. It was difficult to imagine Lancelot weeping no matter what the adversity. But then, Lancelot had had no such shock to contend with. Robert had tried pummeling the officers (there had been two of them) with his hard young fists, in lieu of a lance, and strangely enough, the blows had glanced off the blue uniforms. He had kicked then. Kicked them with his heels as being so much more effective than the soft toes of his sneakers, but that had been worthless. One of the policemen had then glanced down and pushed away the small red head. A gentle push, that had, nevertheless, thrown Robert against the wall opposite. But he had risen and returned, as Lancelot would have done. As indeed, he had done times without number when the armored foe had proved very nearly invincible. And had always won out. Lancelot the brave. Therefore, Robert, too, returned. A frenzied little boy with tears wagging their dizzy way down his cheeks, and ears the color of his hair. But it had done no good. They had taken David away, after muttering that it was against their duty—they could wait no longer for Mary. Then David kissed young Robert, tasting the flavor of his tears, and told him that now he was the only one left to take care of Mary, and had gone off between the blue coats, with Mrs. Tomlinson shouting after them that she would certainly speak to the Mayor about this shameful affair. Mrs. Tomlinson then held young Robert close to her thin breast, and it had felt good. Very dimly mother had returned to the boy, with the gentle strokes of Mrs. Tomlinson's hand on his hair, and his sobs had ceased. Then they waited up for Mary, Mrs. Tomlinson holding Robert, and Mr. Tomlinson making soft plurps in the bowl of his pipe as he cuddled that. Freddie Tomlinson and Margaret each stood guard at a window, being anxious to be the first to tell the others of Mary's arrival. Between the various pairs of feet and around them stalked Patch, vaguely disturbed. Once she had tried drawing her paw coyly down the length of Robert's brown stocking, anticipating a response of some sort, and there had been none. Which bothered her intensely, and was the reason she stalked, with tail curled high.

When Mary was seen drawing up to the curb, the two Tomlinsons raced to their mother and whispered, "Here she is." Somehow they feared to disturb the calamitous atmosphere of the room, that hung heavy above their young heads. Had they spoken above a whisper they felt that mutterings and growls would descend upon them, reminiscent of the storm that had just passed. Then Mary had entered with the little rush that was characteristic of her, pulling her close hat off as she came, and Robert had scrambled off Mrs. Tomlinson's lap to throw himself upon her.

"Mary," he sobbed, with great hiccoughs, to his shame. He thought he had forced them down, deeply. "Mary, they've taken Dave away to the p'lice station because he had a whiskey bottle and I told them it wasn't nothing but tea for his supper and they took Dave away anyway." He then held Mary tightly about the waist and placed his head against her, and sobbed and sobbed, with one sneakered foot curled about the ankle of the other and rubbing up and down, endlessly.

Mary's arms tightened about the boy automatically. Her mind didn't do that, however. Her mind was still. It was as if a rock had been thrown at a living thing, and killed its pulse. That was the numbness of her mind. Then, when wounded and struggling it forced its way above the heaviness of the fogs that encumbered it, it had revived sufficiently to pulsate painfully. She felt it in her head and in her heart and where Robert's hands encisped her so tightly in back. She struggled up above the waters that had enswirled her.

"Bobbie—hush." To Mrs. Tomlinson she said, "Please—what has happened?" Whereat that lady gazed long at Mary, endeavored to speak twice, and fled from the house, trying to escape before the tears fell from the eyes that swam with them. Freddie Tomlinson and Margaret stood like little automatons at their father's side, though Mrs. Tomlinson had clutched at them to follow her as she passed. It now remained for Mr. Tomlinson to inform Mary of the happenings of the afternoon, which it was strangely difficult to do. He removed his pipe from his mouth and knocked it slowly against the table, feeling Mary's eyes upon him, and then said, "Well, Mary." To the little Tomlinsons he said, "You two had better go," which they did, Freddie pushing Margaret before him through the screen door, and Margaret very loath.

"Well, Mary." He turned to her, stuffing his pipe into his coat pocket.

"Please tell me, Mr. Tomlinson." It seemed as if all of Mary had concentrated in her eyes, as though her body had melted into the atmosphere, which, being a practical man, Mr. Tomlinson realized was, of course, ridiculous.

"Rather a shock, Mary." Mr. Tomlinson said.

"Yes? Yes? Please. What is it?"

He paused. It was proving extremely difficult. "You know the Grahams, Mary?"

"Yes. Yes. Yes." How long would he roll the morsel about under his tongue, and relish it? Which wasn't quite sporting of Mary, for he alone knew the weight of his news.

"Well—Arthur Graham and his fiancee were out in his car. Davie was driving his truck. Davie claims, which is the truth of course, and you and I know it—Davie says he couldn't help crashing into Graham's car if he wanted to save the boy—a boy had run out into the street in front of the truck, Mary. Well—he crashed, all right!" Mr. Tomlinson turned and walked to the window. He snapped the shade, and it rolled up with a jerk. Outside was the screen of the hedge that surrounded the house. The breeze weaving through it caused it to tremble a bit. Mr. Tomlinson kept the blankness of his back toward Mary. Kept it there until she asked, "Is that all?" She asked it twice, for her voice made a little rasping sound when first she had tried to speak, and she found that she couldn't, after all. The second time, Mr. Tomlinson turned from the window. He had carefully drawn the shade before doing so. The curtains had caught. Mr. Tomlinson released them with a carefulness that became him oddly. Mary repressed the wild desire to laugh at Mr. Tomlinson stretching on his toes, to free the curtains. He then turned and came to where she stood with young Robert clutching her convulsively.

TRENCH WARFARE WAS NOT NEW WHEN IT WAS FIRST USED IN THE WORLD WAR, BUT DURING THE GREAT CONFLICT IT DEVELOPED IN SUCH A MANNER AS TO CHANGE MILITARY SCIENCE AND PROLONG THE WAR.

THE GERMANS SET THE PACE BY DIGGING IN AT METZ OR MORHANGE WHILE AWAITING THE FRENCH ADVANCE OF AUGUST 20, 1914. IN THE FIRST YEARS OF THE WAR GERMAN TRENCHES WERE BUILT FOR PERMANENCE AND SURPASSED THE ALLIED INTRENCHMENTS IN LUXURIOUSNESS.

REV. DR. MORLEY VISITS TRINITY

Dramatic Reader and Preacher Delights Large Audiences.

POWERFUL SPEAKER.

Special services of a very interesting and unique character were held in Trinity United Church on Sunday and Monday last under the auspices of the Sunday School.

Rev. Dr. George E. Morley of Toronto, dramatic reader and orator, was the guest speaker for the occasion.

Dr. Morley captivated his audience by his splendid personality and the rare ability that characterized his work as a dramatic reader and pulpit orator.

His Sunday morning sermon was based upon the greatness of man in his person and his task. It was a masterly effort, couched in graceful and dignified language, and presented with all the skill of a master, proficient in platform work. With telling effects he held the attention of the splendid congregation while he drew many word pictures, interspersed with poetic quotations on the achievement of man in the work of literature, art, statesmanship and religion. The present-day task was presented as a challenge to the congregation to live their lives in the quiet and in the solitude that they may hear the voice of God, and gather inspiration to meet the duties and help solve the problems of the hour.

The evening service revealed the distinguished visitor in his role as a dramatic reader. To a congregation that nearly filled the spacious auditorium of the church, for over forty-five minutes he told the story of Henry Van Dyke's masterpiece, "The Lost Word." The congregation was carried throughout the story held in tense rapture, while the speaker unfolded this most winsome story, and thus awakened within the consciousness of many an ardent desire to be true to Him, Who is the giver of all good things.

The choir augmented the service with selections most appropriate for the occasion.

On Monday evening another splendid audience gathered, when the artist gave a varied programme of humorous and dramatic readings which greatly delighted the most appreciative audience.

Mr. Morley's humor captivated the audience, while his reading of Canadian poetry by Drummond and Service revealed the skill of a master, who with rare insight, gave splendid interpretations of several numbers from the pen of our own Canadian men. His heavier numbers greatly delighted the more cultured people in the audience.

Mr. H. B. Gates, superintendent of the Sunday School, presided, and musical numbers were presented by Mrs. W. Hohner, Mrs. G. F. Liddle, Miss Alma Blanchard, and Mr. Maurice Park. Miss Mabel Clarry opened the evening programme with an organ solo, and acted as accompanist for the soloists.

Mr. Morley will find a very warm welcome on his next appearance to Peterborough congregations and week night audiences.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acid overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water.

LIGHTNING BURNS TELEHONE POLE

Severe Electrical Storm Passes Over Douro on Sunday.

DOURO, October 11. — Quite a severe electrical storm passed over on Sunday evening, at about 6.30 One crash of thunder seemed very close, a telephone pole at Frederick Walsh's corner being struck and burned ,throwing Line 8 out of order. Most people on the circuit saw a flash and heard a loud crash from the telephone. One lady standing near the telephone received a slight shock.

KIWANIS FAIR NOTES.

With such an impressive name to the holder of the booth on the right hand of the Kiwanis Club, as it were, this should be a successful week for the society.

Some wag took the time and trouble to place a whisky bottle on the table around which the Fathers of Confederation are grouped. It was removed in haste by a scandalized guardian of the waxwork dummies.

On Thursday, Confederation Day, the Kiwanis Club will act as hosts and admit free all the residents of the city and district who were here at Confederation time.

Don't forget the many exhibits of interest, the weaving by habitant weavers, the batik making, the permanent waving showing, the lacquering at the Brown Hardware booth, the pottern modelling from the Technical School in Toronto, the demonstrations in painting by Miss Mamie L. McCarthy, the egg candling and cooking, and the preserving and canning exhibit by Governmental experts.

FARMER BEATS TWO ROBBERS

Throws One of Attackers Out Through Window of House.

COMPANION FLEES.

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press).—A free-for-all fight was precipitated when two would-be robbers broke into the home of George Topping, on the Fourth East Concession of York Township, Sunday night and attacked Topping's son-in-law, Edward Ahren. Ahren, alone in the house except for a baby, battled the two, and after a sharp struggle for a few minutes, routed the invaders by throwing one of them through a window. The other immediately turned tail and both made good their escape. Police are searching for them.

BISHOPS DEPLORE BARNES' SERMON

Characterized By One As "Uncalled-for Attack on Christian Truths."

LONDON, Oct. 11 (United Press). The Bishop of London and Bishop of Southwark have lost no time in publicly deploring the sermon of Bishop Barnes which caused such a sensation last week.

The Bishop of Southwark Sunday lodged "my deliberate and emphatic protest against Dr. Barnes' assertion that the sacramental belief of cultured men and women of today are not far from those of the cultured Hindoo."

The Bishop of London says: "London repudiates these uncalled for attacks on the great Christian truths." He further declared that Dr. Barnes' sermon has caused very great pain to thousands of church people.

RAILWAY MEN HONOR FRIEND

S. D. Haskill Receives Presentation From Members of Two Staffs.

RECENTLY MARRIED.

The members of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railway staffs were in complete accord, and with a single mind, when last night in the freight offices of the Canadian National Railway they presented S. D. Haskill, car checker, with a beautiful percolator and electric heater as a tangible recognition of his recent entrance into the ranks of the benedicts.

Alpine MacNab, agent of the Canadian National, read the address which accompanied the gifts, while J. W. Anderson, agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, made the presentation. Mr. Anderson also presented Mr. and Mrs. Haskill with an oven which contained cigarettes and chocolates.

"Cy," as he is known to all and sundry, is one of the most popular members of the railroad fraternity in the city, his only failing being a well known propensity towards radios of every shape and kind.

At a later stage he was presented with a super radio manufactured especially for the occasion by H. Dodds and C. C. Smith. The radio was unique and outstanding in construction by reason of the material that went into its construction. Complete, even to a loud speaker, which wouldn't speak, and a flower pot, filled with earth to receive the "ground," it supplied intoxicating music from a gramaphone situated in a neighboring office, adding a festive air to the occasion.

In thanking the boys for their good wishes Mr. Haskill assured them of his appreciation of the spirit of comradeship that he has always experienced, and voiced a sincere wish that this state would still continue.

The following addresses were read:

Dear Mr. Haskill: It was a mighty shock to your railway associates and friends when the news came through that you had decided to join the grand army of benedicts. But that very excellent young archer, Cupid, seldom allows us to dodge him for long once he gets out on his trail. So we who are benedicts acclaim you as a brother, and those of us who still travel the lonesome trail, just naturally feel envious of your good fortune, while we cling to the hope that somewhere, somehow, some day, come one may consent to make us happy too.

So a few of your office associates have gathered here this evening to wish you and your good wife happiness and prosperity as you face life's journey together. In our business relations we have found you fair and square at all times and a good sport.

We trust that even if you will now have wood to cut, the lawn to mow, and the rugs to beat, that you will still find time to play ball.

As a tangible evidence of our good will we are going to ask your acceptance from us of this coffee percolater and electric heater, and hope that around these you may spend many happy hours in the years of wedded bliss that lie before you.

Signed on behalf of your railway associates and friends.

A. MacNab, agent. Canadian National allways, J. W. Anderson, Can. Pac. Railway.

Marriage is like a railway sign. You see a pretty girl; you stop, you look, and after marriage you sit and listen.

Dear Cy: During the past few years we have noted from your frequent explosions that you have made numerous unsuccessful attempts to assemble a complete and up-to-date radio set.

In your latest successful hook-up, it was felt by your radio friends that now was the opportune time to offer a little practical sympathy. You are finished as a baseball player, and from practical experience we are convinced that your midnight frolics with the hockey team will only be a memory and that you will now, more than ever before, need something in the way of music to console you while thinking of the good old days gone by. We cannot let this unique occasion pass without offering you something tangible by way of relief; It was therefore unanimously agreed that nothing else would do but present you with a complete radio set, designed and built by well known experts, it being the only one of its kind and probably the greatest invention ever attemtped.

After so many years of ever pleasant friendship nothing could be too good for you, and the builders assure us that squeals, squaks, howls, grunts and static have been entirely eliminated. We have therefore great pleasure in asking your acceptance of this beautiful and unique example of modern radio engineering, feeling that it will be of great assistance in your present distress; many happy hours you will be able to wile away listening to the most sublime melodies, both local and long-distance calls being remarkably clear.

You will be too full of joy just now to do any broadcasting so we will sign off by wishing you many little joys during the coming years.

Signed on behalf of the designer and builder. C. C. Smith, Engineer, H. Dodds, Builder.

There has been an exceptionally good entry list of fine cats both from owners in the city and from out of town.

The judging will start on Wednesday evening, but in the meantime the public is invited to see the fine list of entries and will no doubt appreciate what a good cat really is.

KIWANIS CLUB HORSE PARADE GREAT SUCCESS

Many Freak Displays Offered To Spectators Lining the Curb.

MOUNTED RIDERS.

Good Turnout of Commercial Delivery Wagons Seen in Procession.

Frank Dawson's Horse Parade for the Kiwanis Club formed up along Murray street at 4.15 yesterday afternoon, and from a novelty standpoint it was a great success. The freak displays offered were nothing, if not unique, and the throngs of jostling spectators lining the curb were kept in constant merriment, particularly the children.

The Rangers' Band led the procession, followed by seven mounted riders, the two Misses Parsons, Misses White and Denne, Mr. R. H. Parsons, Dr. Middleton and Miss Kelly with her tiny black pony and cart. Next was a Gypsy caravan led by Mr. McIntosh in full cowboy regalia, even to the ancient muzzle-loading revolver, followed by a large black wagon, and a white horse drawing an ancient white wicker baby-carriage, complete, even to the infant, National grocers, Fitzgerald's coal and wood carts, loaded with youngsters, H. B. Taylor wagons, and the famous Dugan and Scates outfit, as one said, guaranteed to draw a laugh in any show.

Mr. and Mrs.

Starting from the beginning, the horse was a small shaggy-coated bay; it was hitched to a two-wheeled gig, which had nothing but the essentials, an axle holding the wheels together, and shafts holding the vehicle to its horse-power, upon which a stand, like that of a butcher's cart was fastened, and the rather seedy couple belonging to the outfit managed to cling to their precarious perches. Their habiliments were almost indescribable. The "Mrs." (in saner moments Mr. Scates) was clad in a black and white checked gingham dress, surmounted by a prehistoric hat, and over all was cast the somber reflection of a dilapidated black almost ribless, umbrella. The man of the affair was dressed in what may have been, at one time, a dress suit, wearing a bowler, "crush style", and his nose was very red, whether inflamed from the proximity of the "corn cob" was a matter of conjecture.

Commercial Wagons.

Then came the Allin Ice vans, Peterborough Fuel and Transfer, a lumber wagon, Campbell's Dairy, Parker's Cleaners and Dyers, Moncrief's Dairy, Sanitary Ice Supply, a farm wagon containing children attired as the "proverbial hick", and others in buggies and carriages of different types. George Graham drove his span, accompanied by Art Blade, followed by another span, and then the Planters Peanut truck came, scattering packages of peanuts to those along the road-side, for which there was a wild scramble, preceding the Peterborough Milk outfits, F. D. Clark, Stock's Bread, J. T. Braund, Ocean Blend tea, more buggies, and W. H. Hamilton's grocery wagon.

Anyone seeing the parade would have all doubts dispelled as to the amount of horse-power in the city, and if it was the object of those in chareg to prove the contention that Peterborough is not a one-horse town, they must be congratulated on the success of the verdict returned by the spectators, that it certainly was the best parade of horses they had ever seen.

MEIGHEN EXPLAINS PREMIER'S POINT

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—The Right. Hon. Arthur Meighen has sent an explanation to Premier Taschereau of Quebec, of his reiteration at the Winnipeg convention of remarks credited to Premier Taschereau, which the latter had denied shortly after the report was published. Mr. Meighen states he was out of Canada after the speech at Hamilton and did not see Mr. Taschereau's denial.

A CANDIDATE.

HON SIR HENRY DRAYTON,
One of the Candidates for the Leadership of the Conservative Party.

A. O. DAWSON IS RE-ELECTED

Chosen President of Canadian Woollens in Meeting Held Here.

POSITION BETTER.

The eighth annual meeting of the shareholders of Canadian Woollens, Limited, was held at the head office of the company, McDonnel Street, Peterboro, yesterday. The following board of directors was again unanimously elected:

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

A. O. Dawson, President.
W. K. George, 1st Vice-President and Chairman of the Board.

LIBERALS HOPE TO MAKE GAINS

Preparing For Comeback at Next General Election.

SHOW GREAT ACTIVITY.

LONDON, Oct. 21. (United Press). —The Liberals are preparing to stage a dramatic come-back at the next election, according to Liberal headquarters, and recent events, they assert, have given them the greatest hopes for a spectacular revival. In spite of the sneers of the Tories and of Mr. Joynson-Hicks' prediction that the next election will see the extinction of the Liberal party, they believe they will capture many seats, both from Labor and the Tories.

Filled with such optimism, Liberal speakers throughout the country are explaining their agriculture and industrial policy and are holding up Lloyd Geoorge as the model statesman. Sir Herbert Samuel now intends contesting a seat in the next election, probably in Lancashire, and everywhere throughout the country there is the greatest Liberal activity.

The Liberal program includes a return to Free Trade, the reorganization of industry and, particularly mining, also the encouragement of small holdings in agriculture and efficiency in marketing products. The Liberals believe there is a definite turn towards the policy founded on Liberal principles.

LEADERSIP IS MAIN SUBJECT THIS MORNING

Resolutions Are Being Taken Up To Clear Way For Election.

TEN BALLOTS ISSUED.

Each Vote Expected To Take About 40 Minutes—Closing To-morrow.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—The question of the leadership of the Conservative party dominated all else as the national convention resumed at ten-thirty this morning. Resolutions were taken up so as to clear the decks for the balloting late this afternoon. Natural resources was the subject of the first resolution considered.

Each delegate will be given a ballot book of ten ballots and it is expected each ballot will consume about forty minutes. All six candidates were on the ground early today.

Many delegates will depart this evening, and the completion of the convention is assured by to-morrow evening.

The resolution on the St. Lawrence Canal read:

"Whereas, the improvement of the Welland Canal system by the Canadian people is nearing completion, this convention is of the opinion that the St. Lawrence Canal system, as an all-Canadian project, should be developed in the national interest, and when conditions warrant. In such an undertaking the sovereign rights of the respective provinces in the development of power shall be protected."

Many Resolutions.

Resolution after resolution swept through the convention. There was no discussion. A resolution was read but the mover and seconder made no speeches. The gavel fell and the resolution was declared closed.

This was the procedure by which the convention adopted resolutions on legislation for ex-service men; a Pacific Coast outlet for the Peace River district; the use of Canadian ports; St. Lawrence Canals; freight rates on grain; inter-provincial highways, and completion of the Hudson Bay Railway. Senator Beaubein remarked concerning the last, that it was "in line with our policy for many years," and there were laughing cries of "No."

A resolution taken up later urged the restoration to Western Canada of natural resources, free from restrictions.

Later an amendment was moved to the inter-provincial highways resolution, urging instead a hard surface trans-Canada highway.

The original resolution, favoring federal aid for road construction by the provinces, carried, the arrendment being defeated. The resolution on imperial relations presented to the convention stressed the party's devotion to British traditions and the policy of a united Canada.

Defends Bilingualism.

Armand Lavergne of Quebec, in defence of bilingualism, dwelt upon the importance of provincial autonomy Speaking to the natural resources resolution he appealed for fair treatment for minorities. "We must live together in Canada in complete harmony and work together in the building of the greatest democracy in the world," he said.

Dr. J. Edwards of Frontenac declared the English language and the Union Jack must be recognized as distinguishing parts of Canada's nationhood. He stressed that British Columbia and other provinces had secured natural resources, and western provinces must have theirs if treatment was to be fair.

"If," continued Dr. Edwards, "you vote against this resolution, you vote that Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan were not entitled to come into the confederation on the same terms as British Columbia and Prince Edward Island. Who in this audience, with a fair viewpoint, is prepared to say that these three Provinces should not receive the same consideration as British Columbia and Prince Edward Island?"

Other resolutions urged the establishment of a Federal Mineralogical Department to prosecute scientific research in the development of the mining industry, full development of the Canadian fisheries ,the development of agriculture by promoting greater interest in this basic industry, and by co-operation with different agencies, and finally, pledging the party to continuance of the basic party policy of promoting everything making for the prosperity, peace, and contentment of the citizens, irrespective of boundaries and religions.

MANY FINE CATS ARE ON DISPLAY AT ARMOURIES

Royal Canadian Cat Club Members Have Many Entries.

80 CATS IN SHOW.

All Varieties Shown From Blue-Blooded Foreigners to Home Products.

Peterborough's first Cat Show opened yesterday afternoon at the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition at the Armories ,and the popularity of the innovation may be judged by the number of people, approximately five hundred, who attended during the afternoon and evening.

The Royal Canadian Cat Club is supporting the show very enthusiastically. Most of the out of town entries are made by members of this organization, who came from Toronto and Hamilton and Ottawa, bringing their prize cats, some contributing seven and eight animals to the exhibition, which has a total of eighty entries, considered exceptionally good for the first show of the kind, put on with very little preliminary preparation. An energetic committee headed by W. S. Merrell is in charge of arrangements, and the cats appear to be quite comfortable in the downstair quarters provided for them, with neat little wire cages and plenty of admiring onlookers. The judge, A. E. Field-Marshal, of Beamsville, commenced his duties this morning.

A collection of Blue Persians, shown by Mrs A. G. Crysdale of Toronto, whose husband is vice- president of the Royal Canadian Cat Club is very interesting. The Blues are worth $50 each and a silver specimen that is very pretty is priced at $35. Here are the Duke and Duchess of Henley, and their progeny, Blue Peter and Blue John, playful kittens with wide amber-rimmed eyes, also King Le Byram of Henley, and the silver pussy, Nancy, Duchess of Argyle. These are all registered English cats.

"Beauty," whose funny face is rather ugly, belying the name probably bestowed on him in babyhood, is a light cream short-haired Persian whose coat and its color makes him valuable and brought him the many prize ribbons that encircle his cage.

Siamese Live in Luxury.

There is a quartette of distinct novelties in the Royal Sacred Siamese cats, the only ones of their kind in Canada, outside of British Columbia, in a wonderfully ornate cage whose furnishings include an embroidered cushion-top carpet, two metallic vases and gold silk curtains. The mother, Lanfine Isma ,christened "George" as an affectionate nickname, has the dog-like look, the pointed, shrewd ears and the black-splashed face of the Siamese cat of this breed, with a dove-tinted coat and curious slanting Oriental eyes. The kink in its tail is another characteristic of this breed ,which comes sometimes with the "lucky squint" that distinguishes one of her kittens, "Kinkapoo." The father of the trio of little pussies that companion the mother was Prince Favo of Cleveland Champion Siamese Cat. They are mild, odd-looking felines, the mother wearing a tiny dog collar and running on a lead when out of the cage. She is worth $1,000, and her kittens are priced at $75.00 each. They were imported direct from Siam by their owner, Mrs. E. E. Stroud, of Toronto, who is showing these cats from her Lanfine Kennels ,also a number of tawny Persians, with a strong prize-winner in "Boo Babe," which took first prize in the United States shows, and "Tootsie," a be-ribboned cat of solid red Persian variety. Lanfine Wishea, the kitten Bricktop, and Lanfine Gingerbread Boy Second are also shown in this collection. "Bricktop" is a great friend of the aristocratic Siamese "George," who looks at the tawny kitten with much affection.

Miss Daisy Clanfield of the "Queen City Catteries" in Toronto, has black Persians, among them "Royal Rex," considered the best out of thirty-eight entries in his class at a recent Buffalo show, four years old and valued at $500. This cat has three ribbons of the Rahman Memorial Trophy of the Royal Canadian Cat Club. If he wins here, he will capture the trophy with the fourth requisite ribbon.

Along with him is a jealous-minded little cat that loves to be fussed over, and who hails from Kansas City. He is "Kowally Canuck" and is called "Buster" for short. Then there is Champion Winsome Lady (Black-Baby"), "Ravenwing" (Stubby') and "Boots."

Mr. James of Lisgar Street, Toronto, has a short-haired silver tabby that sat demurely quiet in its cage yesterday, sleepily unmindful of passers-by, and Mr. E. W. Simmons of Hamilton shows "Slattery," the oldest cat in the show, nine years of age. It is white and tortoiseshell in color and is dubbed a "calico" cat.

Mrs. A. Southwick of Toronto has "Princess Patricia," a lovely cat with

FAIR PATRONAGE CONTINUES GOOD

Armories Well Filled During Afternoon and Evening.

CAT SHOW ATTRACTS 500.

Yesterday was "Transportation Day" at the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition. There was a good attendance of over three thousand people at the Armories last evening, with excellent patronage of the various attractions. The tea-room, where a hot meal is also served at the supper hour, had its quota for a very good meal, nicely served, and the various refreshment booths did a rushing business, as well as the dart and bingo games and the dance hall. The auditorium was crowded for both shows, the audience packing it to capacity for a very fine programme, under direction of Mr. E. V. Morphet, with Messrs. H. Lush and A. Blade assisting in the sale of programs between shows. The Peterborough Rangers Band provided the outdoor musical entertainment.

Another item of strong interest in the day's entertainment was the Cat Show, the first of its kind held in the city, with an attendance yesterday of half a thousand people, and a splendid showing of prize cats from the city and from out of town. The demonstrations at the various booths were also well patronized, the varied nature of these exhibitions of ability and skill giving their patrons plenty of educational interest and entertainment.

The dance hall, where the "Melody Kings" provide the music with their tuneful orchestra, was also well patronized, but the crowd seemed to be greatly interested in the stage performance in the auditorium, where the double programme included a one-act play, "One Night in a Medical College," presented by the Dramatic Society of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum; a Spanish Dance by Senorita Provita Vasquez; a Fashion Show by the Richard Hall Store, and a vocal solo by Mr. Harold Snelgrove.

The play was well presented under the direction of Mr. T. LeBlanc, and was a spooky affair with an appropriate setting. Those taking part were: John Roche (as Scalpel); A. J. LeBlanc and John Holland (as two Midnight Intruders); John Madden (Corpse on Plank) John Gainey (Corpse in Bag), Hilary Archambault (Slabsides), and Miss Minnie Allen (as the Housekeeper).

With Mrs. G. Evans at the piano, and Mr. A. Robinson playing the violin obbligato, the tenor solo numbers of Mr. Harold Snelgrove received much applause, the singer's sweet, rich voice being particularly adapted to the well-chosen song and its encore, "Just Like a Butterfly" and "I'd Build a World in the Heart of a Rose."

Senorita Provita Vasquez, the talented young dancer from Lockport, New York, who is a special attraction on the programmes at the Fair this week, gave another exhibition of her skill, in a lithe, graceful Spanish dance, wearing a black mantilla caught by a rose and white gown. Using the castanets, Senorita Vasquez gave a Spanish dance to the music of "La Paloma," with the orchestra providing the accompaniment for the first performance. A repeated encore brought a repetition of the brilliant number.

The Fashion Show presented by the Richard Hall Store, with accompanying piano music played by Mrs. Evans, was very well done, and was introduced in a few brief sentences by Mr. C. Saunders of the Hall Store staff. The furs worn with the gowns, including a number of lovely silver, brown and red fox and opossum scarfs, were from the showrooms of the Barrie Company, Limited. The models were Mrs. Ida Lynn Clark, Mrs. N. Graham, Miss K. O'Keefe, Miss A. Janeway, and Miss F. Allison.

Six Men Accept Nomination For Party Leadership

Rogers, Guthrie, Cahan, Bennett, Manion, and Drayton Agree to Let Names Go Before Conservative Convention This Evening.

SEVEN OTHERS ARE NOMINATED, BUT REFUSE TO STAY IN RUNNING.

Candidates With Proposers and Seconders Address Delegates and Receive Good Hearing—Tommy Church Is Only Interrupter of Proceedings.

AMPHITHEATRE, WINNIPEG, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press). —Six candidates have accepted nomination for leadership of the Conservative party. Their fate will be decided this afternoon. They are:

HON. ROBERT ROGERS (Manitoba), proposed by W. J. Tupper, K.C., Winnipeg, seconded by Louis Cousineau, Hull, Que.

HON. HUGH GUTHRIE (Ontario), proposed by Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, Saskatoon; seconded by C. W. Bell, Hamilton, Ont.

C. H. CAHAN (Quebec), proposed by Leslie G. Bell, Montreal; seconded by Hon Andrew Fauteaux, Montreal, Que.

SIR HENRY DRAYTON (Ontario), proposed by Charles Duquette ex-Mayor of Montreal; seconded by F. W. Turnbull, Regina.

HON. R. B. BENNETT (Alberta), proposed by L. T. D. Tilley, St. John, N.B.; seconded by A. A. McGillivray, K.C., Calgary.

HON. R. J. MANION (Ontario), proposed by Dr. K. M. Robb, Algoma, Ont.; seconded by Wilfred J. Haney, Sarnia, Ont.

Seven others were nominated but they declined to stand. They were:

Sir George Perley, Quebec; Hon. H. H. Stevens, British Columbia; Col. J. A. Currie, Ontario; Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, New Brunswick; Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Ontario; Hon. Howard Ferguson, Ontario; Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Nova Scotia.

When the convention resumed its sittings last night the auditorium presented a scene such as had not been witnessed since proceedings began. Every seat was filled, every gallery was packed to the ceiling, cheering and singing as though it were a general election.

Proceedings opened with the final report of the Credentials Committee which showed a total voting strength of 1,601 delegates. There were instructions in both French and English how ballot papers were to be procured. Quebec delegates sang "Alouette." Chairman Rhodes called for nominations for leadership.

The nominations had all to be in writing, and some little time passed before the six who had accepted nomination were finally announced to the convention. As he steped close to the microphone sheet in hand Chairman Rhodes pleaded that there should be no cheering as he read the names. But from time to time cheers broke out, interrupting his reading.

Then came an unexpected proceeding.

Candidates with their proposers and seconders were to address the convention but in what order? To solve the problem the six names written on slips of paper were placed in a hat, and the winner had the right, with his mover and seconder, to speak first.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie won the draw. After his mover and seconder, Mr. Guthrie took the floor and made a strong plea for national unity.

When Mr. Cahan's turn came to address the convention, T. L. Church, Toronto, N.E., sharply interrupted the proceedings. Mr. Church was seated in the rear of the hall, and he rose to ask if Mr. Cahan favored Mr. Meighen's Hamilton speech. The question gave rise to shouts and confusion .Chairman Rhodes ruled the question out of order.

"Questions cannot be allowed," he declared.

Mr. Church heard the ruling from a loud speaker in a side gallery.

"You are not a delegate," he said warmly, turning in the direction whence the ruling had come. Mr. Church tried to put the question again but again the ruling went against him.

Speech followed speech. As the six candidates rose in turn they were in turn cheered by their supporters, but as midnight passed there were still speeches to come ;the crowd in the public galleries thinned. Hon. Dr. Manion spoke last and the convention adjourned.

Hon. Mr. Guthrie Nominated.

"We have come to a period in this great convention which in most respects is the most important period," Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, M. P. P., Saskatoon, declared in proposing the nomination of Hon .Hugh Guthrie "To-night and to-morrow we will have to come to a decision as to whom will guide the destinies of the great Conservative party, which has made such a valuable contribution

VISITING FAIR.

He's here! Who's here? Why, Pigskin Peters, of course!

The doughty Birdseye Centre athlete arrived in Peterborough this morning, derby and all, looking as if the rain did not bother him at all. His only worry was that the rain might keep some of the people away from the Produced in Canada Fair, which he characterized as the best indoor exhibition it has been his fortune to attend. He needn't worry, though. With such an attraction as Pigskin Peters, added to those already in the Armories, there should be a record crowd there even if the weather man sends along a blizzard.

Here's a tip for the girls. The young ladies of The Examiner are already acting on it. Pigskin likes pretty girls. (What man doesn't?) He also likes ice cream. So buy a cone, or a brick, or a gallon, powder your nose and get there early, and you have a chance. He says he has a good job.

By the way, he gave away Dr. Craig. The Doctor, you know, poses as a University of Toronto man, a dental graduate. Pigskin says, "I know Doc Craig. He stopped at our place when he was going to school." You know what that means. The Doctor learned to pull teeth in Birdseye Centre, not Toronto.

To-night Pigskin is going to tell why he lost the Marathon swim. Like Jack Dempsey, he says he "has never squaked yet," but he thinks the public has a right to know what happened during the race.

Well, we must go to see Pigskin again.

Killed Her Husband Because of Jealousy

FAIRBURY, Neb., Oct. 12.— (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Alice Harvey, 46, yesterday confessed to Country Attorney Arthur J. Benny that she slew her husband, J. E. Harvey last Wednesday because of jealously and fear that "another woman would get him." She was charged with murder. Mrs. Harvey signed a written confession, Denny said.

Harvey's body was found by neighbors Wednesday morning after his widow's screams had attracted their attention.

MANY RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED AS TORY CONVENTION CLEARS DECKS IN FIGHT FOR PARTY LEADERSHIP

Favor Appointment of Permanent Tariff Commission "With Teeth In It."

DISCUSS IMMIGRATION.

Approve of Principles Set Forth in Peace Treaty of 1919.

AMPHITHEATRE, Winnipeg, Oct. 12. Canadian Press. — The Conservative convention yesterday afternoon cleared decks for the fight for leadership. Throughout the day resolution after resolution came from committee.

There were adopted resolutions approving of a federal scheme for old age pensions; for assistance by the Dominion if necessary, to enable Canadian to compete with imported coal, for social legislation along the lines of the labor clauses of the peace treaty; for the appointment of a permanent tariff commission, 'with teeth in it,' to use the phrase of Hon. H. H. Stevens. And on the question of tariff preferences the convention further expressed the view that "While strong effort should be directed towards the establishment of a system of preferential tariffs throughout the empire, no preference should be given at the expense of the Canadian farmer or workman, and all such preferences should be conditional upon the use of Canadian ports."

These resolutions all went through without amendment although Col. R. H. Mullins, of Marquette, Man., would have liked the tariff resolution to include a provision for placing farm implements on the free list.

Oriental Immigration.

Oriental immigration brought a sharp difference of opinion. The resolution on immigration, as it came down from the resolutions committee included a clause of two words providing for "Oriental exclusion." Sir George Foster thought the phrase discourteous, and moved that the resolution be referred back to committee. J. T. Haig of Winnipeg, followed with an amendment that for the words "Oriental exclusion" should be substituted the words "exclusion of such races as are not capable of assimilation. Sir George then withdrew his motion to refer back. There was some objection to the Haig amendment, and Mr. Haig withdrew it. This left the main resolution without amendment, and the chairman was about to submit it in this form when Sir Geo. Foster rose and asked that the original motion to refer back be allowed to stand. He had he said withdrawn it because he thought the Haig amendment would go before the convention.

Sir George's amendment to refer was then put before the meeting and declared carried on a standing vote. Thus the question of Oriental exclusion will again come before the resolutions committee.

Resolutions Introduced.

Amphitheatre, Winnipeg, Man., Oct 12. — The resolution committee of the Conservative convention yesterday submitted the following resolutions on natural resources:

"Whereas the natural resources of the country are an asset of paramount importance to the progress of the nation, a heritage to be used for the general benefit of the people and with due regard to the interests of succeeding generations;

"Therefore the Liberal-Conservative party declares itself in favor of a policy that will encouarge the development of the country's national resources so that the maximum benefit will accrue to the people of the Dominion as a whole."

Forest Protection.

A second resolution reads:

"Whereas in her forests Canada possesses enormous wealth.

"And whereas there is reason to believe that Canada's forests are being all too rapidly depleted;

"Now, therefore the Liberal-Conservative party hereby declares itself strongly in favor of a national policy of forest protection and reforestration, and believes it to be the duty of the Federal Government to assist and co-operate in this regard with those provinces of the Dominion that are entrusted with the care of their forests."

A third resolution on natural resources provides:

"The Liberal-Conservative party in Canada feeling very strongly the needs for the protection and development of the natural resources of this Dominion by the most up-to-date and scientific methods, places itself on record as being in favor of encouraging to the utmost the scientific research as to the best methods of protecting, conserving and developing our vast natural resources."

The convention returned to the resolutions committee for consolidation the three resolutions submitted on natural resources.

Old Age Pension.

A resolution to the effect that the present Federal old age pensions law is inadequate and unworkable, and

Labor Favors Sale Of Wholesome Beer

LOS ANGELES, Calif., October 12 (Associated Press).—The American Federation of Labor convention went on record yesterday as favoring modification of the Volstead Act to permit the sale of wholesome beer.

The action was taken in the adoption of a resolutions committee report which favored concurrence in the executive council's recommendation for such liberalizing of the prohibition law.

A deafening roar of "ayes" was the response of the delegates to the call for a vote. This brought the comment from Federation President William Green that he wished the Labor men would vote "as loud and strong" on other resoluations. A burst of hearty applause was the rejoinder of the delegates.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Man. Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—A weather map which gave no immediate hope for resumption of threshing operations in the Canadian West, combined with increased demand on the part of exporters, imparted a buoyant tone to the Winnipeg grain market yesterday.

A flurry of buying by shorts and houses with seaboard connection sent prices up from 3-8 to -½ at the close.

Oats finishted 3-8 to 7-8c. higher, barley ½ to 1c. up, flax 1 to 1 3-8c. higher and rye 5-8 to 7-8c. advance.

EXTRA HAZARD IN MOTORING

Use of Side Curtains On Open Cars Blocks Drivers' View.

SEVERAL ACCIDENTS.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 12.—A warning to motorists to use increased caution particularly at this season of the year when inclement weather invites the use of side curtains on open automobiles, is expressed by operating officials of the Canadian National Railways who emphasize this by pointing to several accidents reported during the past few days in which motorists have driven into the side of standing or moving trains at public crossings.

In the past three days four accidents have been reported in which motorists crashed into trains on public crossings either while the train was standing on the crossing or passing over it. In one case the vision of one motorist was blinded by heavy rain fall, but in the others the weather was clear. Five persons were injured.

In these accidents and all of the automobiles more or less damaged by the impacts. In all but one case the crossings were protected with either electric bell or watchman but the drivers stated that they had observed the warnings and had not noticed the trains until it was too late to avoid the crash. The placing of side curtains on open cars at this season of the year increases the accident hazard, Canadian National officials state, and for this reason they urge motorists to use every care in approaching railway crossings in order to avoid needless damage and loss of life.

EARL CARROLL ASKS FREEDOM

Files Application For Release On Parole From Federal Penitentiary.

SERVED FOUR MONTHS.

NEW YORK Oct. 12 (United Press) —Earl Carroll yesterday filed application for release on parole from the Federal penitentiary. Warden John W. Snook said the Parole Board would consider Carroll's application with 50 others at its next scheduled meeting.

"When that will be I cannot say" the warden said.

The New York theatrical producer became eligible for parole on October 8, after serving four months of a year's term for perjury in connection with his "bathtub party" trial.

STEWED SQUIRRELS ENTERTAIN POLICE

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12. — A few hours after police had dumped twenty barrels of mash into a ravine in a park here they were called to see the result of their work. They found about a dozen squirrels, hilariously drunk. The little animals tried to crow like roosters, walk on their front legs and do the Black Bottom. They did everything but bite the street cars and talk back to the cops.

DAUGTER BORN TO ASTRID AND CROWN PRINCE

First Grandchild To King and Queen of Belgium.

CHRISTENED JOSEPHINE.

Messages of Congratulation Pouring in From All Over the World.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 12.—(A. P.)—The hearts of all good and loyal Belgians were gladdened yesterday when a little daughter was born to Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium and Princess Astrid, niece of the King of Sweden.

Everybody would have been happier if it had been a boy, for a male child would have been in direct line to ascend the throne, whereas the little princess can never rule this kingdom, for the royal succession is restricted to the male line.

The first born to the crown prince and his Swedish bride weighed seven pounds.

Yesterday afternoon she was christened Josephine Charlotte Ingeberg Margaret Elizabeth Astrid. Last night all of Belgium was drinking her health and from all over the world messages were pouring in to Brussels from Kings, Presidents and many others of low as well as high estate. They brought congratulations to the parents and also to King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, who have now achieved the status of grandparents.

Doing Well.

A bulletin signed by Doctors Spiess and Le Boeuf stated that both mother and child were doing well last evening.

The princess was born at 8 a.m. A little later the booming of 21 guns broke the news to the populace. In a few minutes flags began to flutter and by afternoon the Belgian and Swedish colors brightened every street in the capital.

A report spread quickly that Princess Astrid had a crisis of fear when informed that the child was not a son but Crown Prince Leopold who had been pacing the corridor, like prospective fathers of all degree, entered her room and tenderly embraced her.

Put in Same Cradle.

The tiny princess was put in the same cradle used for the children of the present king. The cradle is Alsatian design, richly embroidered and lace-covered and has rubber-tired wheels. It had been optimistically outfitted in lingerie of pink—the color for boys—that of a girl being blue. For the formal registration service yesterday afternoon, the cradle was wheeled into the hall by Crown Prince Leopold and Princess Ingeberg, wife of Prince Charles of Sweden. The baby gave an energetic display of its vocal powers.

There were two separate ceremonies besides the christening at Bellevue Palace. Burgomaster Max presided at the first, which was the official registration of the child's name and that of her parents in the books of the city. All the ministers and high officials of state came to the second ceremony, which consisted of the inscribing of the princess' name in the national register.

Those who had expected that the birth of an heir would bring amnesty for some prisoners pining behind the bars in Belgium were disappointed, for none was granted.

WELLAND CANAL TONNAGE HIGHER

Passes Million Ton Mark in September For Second Time This Year.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—For the second month this year traffic through the Welland canal rose above the million ton mark in September. Traffic aggregated 1,090,647, an increase of a third of a million tons over the same month of last year. The big increase was in wheat. Rye and corn also increased substantially.

NECK BROKEN, WALKS.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12.—William M. North, broke his neck in a fall and doctors despaired of his life. But he didn't die, so they told him that he might walk again if he spent a year or more in a plaster cast. But three weeks of hospital life was enough for North, so he got up and went home, where he smashed the plaster cast. He's still alive, and walking.

Since the State Clothing Syndicate announced that it would pay fifty cents for every cat skin to be used in making cheap fur coats a war has been waged on the cats in Leningrad, Russia.

Hoover and Smith Will Bear Standards

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts said here yesterday that he looked for Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith to bear the standards of the Republican and Democratic parties, respectively, in the presidential election of 1928.

Senator Walsh characterized President Coolidge's unwillingness to break the third term precedent as a "commendable act of statesmanship and patriotism."

Several Buildings Along Atlantic City Boardwalk Destroyed By Fire Last Night

OCEAN CITY, N.J., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Fire, starting on the boardwalk last night swept through the hotel and cottage district between 7th and 9th Streets and as far back as Wesley Avenue before it was brought under control.

Several hotels and cafes were destroyed, among them the Normandie Hotel at 9th and Wesley Avenue, and the Arcadia Cafe, at 9th and the Boardwalk. Three blocks of the Boardwalk between 7th and 10th were burned.

Fanned by a high wind, the flames which started at 9th Street and the Boardwalk, spread quickly and were soon beyond control of the local fire department. Urgent requests for aid were sent to Atlantic City, Margate, Wildwood and other nearby resorts, but before they could respond the wind shifted and the flames leaped back towards the centre of the city.

Approximately eight square blocks were reported to have been swept by the blaze before the outside fire departments swung into action.

GIRL STARTS ATLANTIC HOP

Hopes To Be First Woman To Cross Ocean in Aeroplane.

RADIO ABOARD.

ROOSEVELT Field, N.Y., October 12 (Associated Press). — A woman yesterday placed her life in the balance in an attempt to be the first of her sex to cross the Atlantic Ocean in an aeroplane.

Ruth Elder, 23-year-old Lakeland, Fla., aviatrix, was the woman. Dressed as if for a game of golf, she hopped off yesterday with her pilot and townsman, George Haldeman, in the Stinson-Detroiter "American Girl." The hop-off was made at 5.04 p.m. Their destination is LeBourget Field, Paris, France, where Col. Charles A. Linbergh concluded his famous trans-oceanic flight.

The "American Girl" took the air gracefully after speeding down the runway for about 2,000 feet.

Miss Elder, also known as Mrs. Lyle Womas, waved good-bye to the few spectators from a cockpit window. She carried with her a tiny Bible, given by her mother, a Chinese ring, and a toy cat, all of which she considered of equal value in bringing good luck.

For rations on their 3,600 mile air journey Miss Elder and Haldeman each carried three turkey and three Swiss cheese sandwiches, a flask of bouillon, and three flasks of coffee. Caffeine tablets were carried in case of drowsiness.

Carries Radio.

The plane carried 520 gallons of gasoline, 20 gallons of oil, and a radio sending outfit capable of flashing messages about 75 miles. Their course was to be 1,244 miles due east, thence in a north-easterly direction, following the ship lanes, to the English Channel. The fuel supply was sufficient to carry them 4,400 miles. The radio call is WPAG. The plane is expected to do 100 miles an hour.

Ahead of the fliers was some unfavourable weather. While most of their journey, according to weather forecasters, will be good, there is a stretch of fog, an area of about 700 miles, in mid-ocean. Some stormy weather also was to be met, Haldeman said.

In case of a forced landing at sea, each was equipped with a rubber life suit, with gear for covering the head. A pocket in the front of each suit carried a breath condenser to provide water to drink, and a sealed cannister of emergency rations. They had no rubber life raft, Miss Elder considering the rafts without value. Vary lights, a vary pistol, and navigation flares also were carried.

Part of the navigation equipment was three compasses, and an earth inductor,a magnetic and an aperiodic. The usual charts were carried.

Backers Present.

Two of the backers of the flight, H. E. Cornell and T. H. McArdle, both Wheeling W. Va., business men, saw the take-off.

As Miss Elder was saying good-bye to friends, Mrs. Haldeman, a native of Salisbury, N.C., sat in an automobile nearby. "I am thrilled to see George hop off," Mrs. Haldeman said. "It's a big chance for him."

Miss Elder was very nervous. "I'm very happy," she said, jumping up and down in her excitement. "It's the greatest day of my life."

Haldeman was a grim, determined man as he clambered into the cockpit. "I'll do it," he said, almost fiercely.

Miss Elder will alternate with Haldeman in piloting the plane. She is a licensed pilot, having passed her examinations recently.

ST. LOUIS, Senegal, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Diodonne Coste and Lieut. Lebrix completed the first stage of the Paris-Buenos Aires flight when they landed here today. WEDDING BELLS.

CARLOW—HOULIHAN.

DOWNEYVILLE, Oct. 12.—Tuesday, Sept. 27, at nine a.m., St. Luke's Church at Downeyville was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Mary Catharine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Houlihan, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Michael Raymond, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carlow, of Indian River. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Galvin, assisted by Rev. Fr. James McGuire, of Douro. The church was artistically decorated with pink and white asters, dahlias and gladiolas.

The wedding music was played by Miss Loretto Harrington. As the bride entered the church with her father she presented a picture of loveliness in an imported French gown of beaded peach crepe romaine, with silver shoes and hose. She carried a sheaf of Ophelia roses, lily-of-the-valley and maiden hair fern. Her only ornament was a white gold bracelet set with sapphires and brilliants, the gift of the groom.

The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Marguerite, of Toronto, wearing a beautiful gown of sleeping beauty Nile georgette, trimmed with French flowered pastels, and wore a picture hat of sand georgette, carrying a bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair fern. She also wore the gift of the groom, a white gold bar pin set with sapphires. The groom was ably assisted by his brother, Alex. During the signing of the register Mrs. Patrick Perdue sang, "Ave Marie."

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride where some fifty guests were present. The reception room was tastefully decorated with pink and white dahlias and asters.

In the afternoon the happy couple left by motor amid showers of confetti on their honeymoon to Niagara and Detroit. The bride travelled in a tailored dress of blonde charmaline, with hat and shoes to match, and coat of black satin, trimmed with grey squirrel. On their return they will reside at Indian River.

Some of the guests from a distance were: Rev. J. McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. F. English, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carlow, Miss Annabel and Messrs. Eddie and George Carlow, Mr. and Mrs. V. Moher and Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Healey, all of Douro.

The gifts received by the young couple testified to the high esteem in which they were held, including substantial cheques from Rev. T. J. O'Brien, Calgary, cousin of the bride; Mr. Edward Carlow, father of the groom, and Mr. F. F. Fitzpatrick, of New York.

Pancakes for Supper!

Oh, Boy!

"T'se in Town, Honey."

Here they come from play. Appetites sharpened by the brisk autumn air. Eager to eat. What's for supper? Pancakes! Aunt Jemima's! Oh, Boy!

Every plate comes back for more Aunt Jemima pancakes. Golden-brown—light, enticing. Served with butter and brown sugar, or syrup, or garnished with bacon or fresh sausage. Nothing just like these delicious food-morsels.

Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is made with an old recipe—now the most famous recipe in the world. The ingredients are so deftly mixed as to make certain of light, easily digested pancakes, with the real pancake flavor everyone loves.

Simple to make, because Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is ready-mixed. To one part of the flour add an equal part of milk, stir to a smooth batter, and pour on a moderately hot griddle or waffle iron.* If milk isn't handy water will do. Small pancakes are easiest to cook.

Get Aunt Jemima prepared Pancake Flour from your grocer today. It's economical; no waste—for you use only what you need.

*Note: Use a thick, cast iron or aluminum griddle when making pancakes as a thin frying pan of steel conducts the heat too rapidly for the best results. Cook with a moderate rather than a hot fire.

Some people prefer the Buckwheat flavor

Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour is the Pancake Flour with Buckwheat Flour added. Nothing more pleasing than the appetising buckwheat aroma and the delightful buckwheat flavor. No other buckwheat pancakes can be so light. Keep both kinds on hand and have variety.

BROKEN NECK PROVES FATAL

Toronto Man Dies As Result of Fall from Waggon.

THIRD CASE THIS FALL.

TORONTO, October 12. — Injured when he was thrown from his wagon recently William Snell, aged 60, of 29 Salisbury Avenue, a civic employee, died in the general hospital yesterday of a broken neck. The body was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held by Chief Coroner Crawford.

The mishap occurred on the Don roadway, north of the Bloor street viaduct. Snell was thrown to the pavement by a sudden jolt of the wagon and landed on his head. From the time of his admission to the hospital little hope was held for Snell's recovery.

This is the third accident of this type to be treated at the general hospital since last July and the first patient to die. The two others suffering from such injury are Irving Hoffman, a young medical student, who fractured his spinal column while diving in shallow water at Bronte during the summer, and David Anderson, 541 Eastern Avenue who suffered three separate fractures of the spine ,received while diving.Hoffman is now at home with hopes of a complete recovery, but Anderson is still confined to the hospital.

Hospital officials state that this is the first time in the history of the institution that three patients with this type of injury have been treated within the short space of three months.

LIGHTNING ARTIST REMAINS FAVORITE

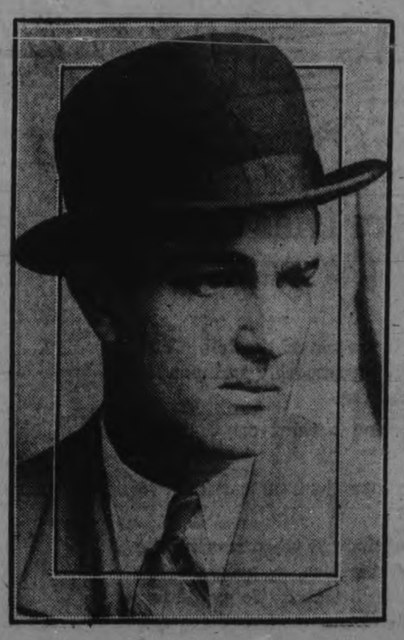
Little Change Over Early Quotations For Cesarewitch Handicap.

NEWMARKET, England, October 12 (Canadian Press Cable). — Latest betting odds on the great fall turf classic, the Cesarewitch Handicap, at 2¼ miles, to be run here to-day, show little change over the early quotations. Lightning Artist, the colt owned by W. M. G. Singer, remains the favourite at 7 to 1 against, while Masked Ruler has moved up to split second choice with Eagle's Pride, both of which are 9½ to 1 against. Other betting odds are: Saint Raynard 10 to 1, Bois Josselyn 100 to 6, Greek Idol 18 to 1, Ladousiriere 30 to 1, Adieu, Burlington, Arcade, Try Try Again, and Bamboula 25 to 1, Holie and Castlederg 28 to 1, Steel Point 30 to 1, Realm Park 33 to 1, Duvet, Buckfast, Ballynahinch, Whicorb, and Morocco Bound 40 to 1, Border Minstrel, Nevermore, and Lulworthcove 50 to 1, Giovanni, Spectroscope, Alacrity, San Vincente and Paris Flight, 6 6to 1, Samphirescond, Walinson, and Duet 100 to 1

Additional scratches are Bessborough and Sound Asleep.

The latest list of probable starters and their jockeys shows Weston scheduled to ride Burlington Arcade, instead of Garcia. Jockey Alford will have the mount on Spectroscope, while S. Wragg will ride Nevermore, and A. Wragg has the mount on Ladousiriere. Jockeys have not yet been chosen for Greek Idol and Jackson.

COLD WEATHER HATS—SNAPPY AS THE AUTUMN AIR!



Slightly larger than last year is the new derby; its crown is as high but the brim is wider.

A plain pearl gray model, softer in outline than the taped brim. It looks best on full faces.

Popular for sport wear is this natty snap-brim tan with high, double-dented crown.

This pearl gray is accentuated by a lighter brim tape; brim and crown are generous.

BY CURTIS WOOD

For NEA Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—When a man walks into a hat shop, stands in front of a mirror, and selects a top piece he somehow fails to realize he is buying the keystone of his ensemble.

A man's reputation for being well dressed begins and ends with his hat. It can make him or break him.

There are so many places to go wrong. The shape of a hat can ruin the outlines of the best skull ever seen in a phrenologist's office. The material can conflict with his suiting. The color can jar his complexion. The crown can be too high and give him a top-heavy, under-the-breakfast appearance. The brim can be too wide and give his face a peaked and futile expression. The brim can be too small and there remains that comic character outline of a dried up peanut resting on the old bean.

Sometimes Tragic!

So many times it is not even funny. It is tragic. A gentleman will select his suits, his shirts and his shoes with the best of care. He will insist on class, good taste and a synchronization of colors but when it comes to a hat, the real article to set off the whole combination, he falls down on the job.

A prominent Fifth Avenue hatter gave this writer the following hints for his article on hats:

"Too many men buy hats too small for them.

"In case of doubt select the darker color.

Try It With Your Coat.

"Don't try a hat on wearing merely your suit when you are seen oftener in a top-coat or overcoat.

"Try to change the angle at which you wear it.

"A jaunty angle gives 100 per cent more life than an even keel.

"Everybody cannot wear a derby—or a cap.

"A light hat will often set off a dark suit nicely but the reverse is not necessarily true.

"If you have a slightly receding forehead and chin try a snap brim.

"Last year's style of wearing a small, flat derby with a high raccoon coat or bulky overcoat is out.

"And last of all—a man cannot look well in a hat unless he walks with his chin up."

Browns and Grays.

There, it seems to me, is a lot of excellent advice. This fall and winter will find browns and grays the most popular shades in felt hats.

One well-known haberdasher on the Avenue featured a window full of fawns and another window full of tans. The little Alpine feather, we noticed, is quite passe. Snap brims with a double dent in the crown is the sportiest and most popular model at this time. It is particularly in demand for football games, although the new derby, slightly larger than last season's, is selling well.

The derby is worn mostly with fur coats, chinchilla overcoats or black box Chesterfield top coats.

A new model of the gray felt with the taped brim in light gray is here. It has a high crown with a faint crease and a slightly wider brim. This model looks particularly well on men with full faces, large chins and wide cheekbones. It is also the best hat for men with bulky shoulders. The fat type should avoid, as much as possible, the derby and the snap brim.

The same model with the roll brim and plain black band is also in demand. The 1926 flair for light blues, lavenders, purple and other freak shades is over. They went the way of the little red feathers that dotted the Easter parades last Spring.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1927.

MRS. FALLIS HONOURED.

Peterborough was brought into the full glare of the spotlight during the second day of the Winnipeg convention through the eloquence of Mrs. Howard Fallis, the Peterborough woman who is one of the delegates-at-large from the Province of Ontario.

To Mrs. Fallis fell the splendid distinction of being chosen to address the convention on behalf of the women delegates, and thus of the hundreds of thousands of Conservative women throughout the Dominion.

Those who have heard her speak know that Mrs. Fallis was in every way qualified to carry out her important part of the programme in a most effective manner, and it is therefore not surprising to note that press despatches declare that she was cheered repeatedly at the conclusion of her fine effort.

Women are to play an increasingly important role in the political development of this country, and Mrs. Fallis, through the ease and eloquence with which she discussed some of the issues before the great convention, has given proof that the influence of the fair sex is already beginning to be felt.

She is to be congratulated upon the fine tribute paid to her ability in her selection as spokesman for the Conservative women of the Dominion.

MR. MEIGHEN'S DEFENCE.

However eloquent may have been Right Honourable Arthur Meighen's explanation of his famous Hamilton speech, and however effective his personal appeal to the emotion of the convention delegates, there seems no doubt in the mind of political strategists that the former Conservative leader was as guilty, in introducing such a matter before the Winnipeg gathering, of bad judgment as he was in ever making the Hamilton declaration in the first place.

Mr. Meighen's eloquence and debating ability were perhaps never more effectively demonstrated than in his convention speech on Monday, but eloquent as were his words, they will not serve to convince the majority of the people of this country that should another war threaten to involve Canada the question of the Dominion's participation should be decided at a general election.

The Examiner does not believe that the spirit of Canada finds expression in a policy of that nature.

If the shadow of a great war were to fall over this land again and Canada's active participation on behalf of a righteous cause became necessary, the Canadian people would repudiate the principle that the turmoil of a political campaign would have to intervene before the country's full strength could be mustered.

When it is a question of bullets and bayonets there is no time for ballots.

WE'RE NOT DOING TOO BADLY.

According to Manager Watters of the Canadian National Exhibition, Peterborough suffers from lack of advertising.

The more public—of the right kind, of course—a city secures the better, but somehow it does not seem that Peterborough has much to complain of in this respect.

Peterborough canoes are known the world over—in fact, in many sections are craft of the type built here are known as Peterborough no matter where they may have been made.

The products of Peterborough's factories, cereals, alarm clocks, electrical equipment, dairy supplies, etc., carry the name of the city to all parts of the globe.

The Lift Lock has made Peterborough famous the Continent over.

The prowess of hockey and baseball clubs have given the city a widespread reputation as a sporting centre.

The Canadian Air Services Company is putting us on the aerial map.

In short, while Mr. Watters may have been too busy over marathon swims and other Exhibition features to notice it, the name of Peterborough is becoming fairly well known as that of a live city that offers all the advantages and few of the drawbacks of the big centres, that makes a lot of the things the world needs a little better than they are made elsewhere, that gives a man a chance to live comfortably and raise a family under favourable conditions, and that is, in fact, one of the finest spots in this great country to call home.

THIS WEEK'S CAMPAIGN.

Peterborough maintains a Fire Department at a steadily increasing cost to protect the homes and property of its citizens against fire.

Such protection is necessary; it pays to have an efficient and well-equipped force of fire fighters, and while we sometimes grumble at the expenditure involved, we know that in the long run it is false economy to spoil the ship for a little tar.

We accept it as inevitable that we should have effective means of handling fires.

But somehow it is difficult to make people realize that it is much easier to prevent fires than to extinguish them.

This is Fire Prevention Week, and because The Examiner sees the need of an awakening on the part of the public to the fact that we are unnecessarily paying an annual loss of many millions of dollars, considerable space is being given to a discussion of some of the important angles of this question.

The space is not given begrudingly, albeit it sometimes seems as if such campaigns are merely beating themselves to death against the indifference of the public.

The people are callous to the needless loss of an appalling sum of money through fires that could be prevented, and unless it sinks into their minds that whether a fire takes place in Prince Rupert or in Halifax a portion of the bill has to be paid by everybody in the country, the present appeal will not be any more successful than others to the same effect.

Few bachelors who get into a tight place can think up an excuse quickly.—Brandon Sun.

THE MARITIMES COME BACK.

A near miracle seems to have happened in the Maritimes. Whether it is due to the Duncan report, or to a new state of mind, or just plain hard work, or to some mysterious psychological reason, we do not know; but it has happened, anyway. Two years ago the lower Provinces were in a bad way. Halifax resembled a graveyard, and St. John was worse. Everywhere people were pessimistic; nearly all were railing against Confederation; some were talking secession. The land was in a slump.

Today everything is different. The Maritime Merchant, for example, gives these illustrations of improved conditions:

1. An increase of 30 per cent. in coal production for the first nine months of this year over that of the corresponding period of 1926.
2. An increase of 100 per cent. in this year's tourist traffic as compared with last year's traffic.
3. An increase of $15000,000 in savings and trust deposits in three years.
4. An increase of $1,388,000 in insurance premiums during the same period.
5. Twelve gold mine companies operating, whereas there was not one two years ago.
6. The incorporation of 94 joint stock companies in Nova Scotia, with an aggregate capital of $15,800,000, since the beginning of the present year.

These figures speak for themselves. The tale they tell is one of increased production, revived business activity, and resurgent prosperity, such as the Maritimes have not known in decades. It is good news, a splendid thing, for the whole of Canada.—Ottawa Journal.

TRIBUTE TO CANADA.

What has come over Mr. Hearst and his publications? That is a question which Britishers and especially Canadians are asking themselves as a result of the changed attitude of the great Hearst newspapers toward Canada and England. The welcome extended by these papers to the Prince of Wales on his recent visit to America was scarcely exceeded in its enthusiastic nature by any Canadian publication. Nor the occasion of the opening of the peace bridge at Niagara has provoked another expression of good-will and even admiration for Canada, its Premier and all things Canadian. The editorial which appeared in The New York Evening Journal is well worth reproduction and is given herewith:

"Every American is interested in Canada, great, powerful, growing country north of us. In Canada we have a good neighbor, peaceful, friendly, full of ambition, a first-class peacemaker, something every individual and every nation needs.

"The other day the peace bridge uniting Canada and the United States was opened. The Prince of Wales and our Vice-President Dawes were among others that attended the opening and helped to celebrate Canada's Diamond Jubilee.

"It interests Americans to know that the beautiful bridge uniting two countries in good-will, confidence and permanent peace cost to build less than half the amount that it costs to build a battleship.

"We print here today for the information of Americans a picture of Mr. Mackenzie King, Canada's Prime Minister.

"You will admit that our solid neighbor on the north has a solid man at the head of its government.

"The British king-emperor sends over somebody to represent him and the British Government. But this is the real man. The Canadians govern themselves, under absolute home rule. England controls them against their will no more than England controls us against our will.

"If anything, thanks to our pro-British snobs and feeble-minded statesmen, Great Britain in some cases influences and controls us more than Great Britain ever controls Canada.

"The Canadians have a great country, prosperous, energetic, vast in territory and resources. We want nothing from each other except good-will and friendship. Each nation hopes that the other will grow and rejoices in its neighbor's progress.

"If the nations of Europe could live side by side, as Canada and the United States live, this would be a different world.

"The difference between America and Europe is realized when you consider that France and Great Britain are not yet willing to permit construction of a tunnel under the channel to connect England with France, do away with the rough, unpleasant passage and shorten the trip from London to Paris. Europe's nations are afraid to trust each other, and for good reasons. Our friendship with Canada and our confidence in our neighbor, are among our most important national assets."

This is a somewhat remarkable tribute to Canada and its Prime Minister. The Journal has a circulation of more than 700,000 copies per day, and, in addition, the same editorial was published in all the other Hearst newspapers. Utterances of this character deserve the highest commendation, and are calculated to promote a better understanding between the peoples of Canada and the United States. In addition to the editorial, a picture of the Prime Minister was published and, also, a picture of the peace bridge at Fort Erie and Buffalo. The good relations between Canada and the United States are an outstanding example of what can be attained by the removal of suspicion and mistrust. The defenses along the frontier of 3,000 miles between Canada and United States are stronger and more inviolable than those between the countries of Europe where powerful fortresses and fortifications have been erected.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Anyway, the Conservative convention will not go down in history as a cut-and-dried affair.

That Hamilton speech seems to be causing as much trouble as it did just after it was made.

By reducing Canada's fire loss every person in the Dominion will benefit financially. That is one angle of fire prevention that should appeal to the common sense of the whole community.

And just last week someone predicted that Mr. Meighen was going to be one of Premier Ferguson's lieutenants.

Fire Prevention Week finds Peterborough's Aldermen more concerned with keeping the Fire Department from increasing than they are over reducing the fire loss.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here yesterday was again of an indifferent character and business was dull.

The domestic trade was also inactive but the tone of the market was steady and prices were unchanged.

A feature of the local flour trade was the easier feeling that developed for Winter wheat grades and prices were reduced ten cents per barrel. This was attributed to the increased offerings from Ontario millers and the somewhat limited demand here.

The movement of Spring wheat flour for both local and export account was quiet, but the undertone was firm.

The millfeed trade continued active and firm. The inquiry for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but values were steady.

The demand from foreign buyers for Canadian baled hay was again good and some further business was done. Sales were made to London at 102s 6d per ton, which is the highest price so far this season. The local trade was moderate and prices were firm.

An easier feeling developed in the butter market and prices were reduced ¼c to ½c per pound, which was attributed to the small demand from local and outside buyers. The receipts were 162 packages.

A steadier feeling prevailed in the local cheese situation owing to the continued improved demand from foreign buyers and the fact that more business was done on spot. The receipts were 10,070 cases.

A fairly good trade was done in eggs and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 2,237 cases.

The season for potatoes has opened up and shipments from the interior are coming forward well; there being 80 to 85 cars on the track here yesterday. Owing to the mild weather, buyers are not operating very freely and the market is quiet. Car lots of New Brunswick Green Mountains are offered at $1.30 to $1.35 per bag; Cobblers at $1.20 to $1.25 per bag, and Quebec White stock at $1.00 to $1.15 per bag, ex-track.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—Increased official estimates of 1927 grain production in United States led to active selling yesterday and to a decided general drop in price. Corn values went to the lowest level yet this season, about 30 cents a bushel under recent top figures. Wheat closed unsettled, 1⅛ to 1⅜ net lower; corn 2⅛ to 2⅛ down; oats 1 to 1½ off, and provisions unchanged to 32 cents decline.

Rallies failed to hold well in the wheat market and the finish was within 5-8c of the day's bottom prices. Little notice was taken of the fact that the Canadian government crop report appeared bullish. Outweighing everything else was knowledge that the new Washington figures on domestic spring wheat yield this season were materially in excess of last month's forecast, whereas a reduction had been expected. Clearing weather in Canada and suspicious crop news from Argentine contributed somewhat also to the downward course of the market.

On the break in wheat prices, export buying of 500,000 bushels was announced, largely domestic, both hard winter and spring wheat. Winnipeg messages said export trade there was slow, but comment here was that not much of Canada's business with Europe is being made known at any time. In this connection talk was current that Manitoba wheat shipment from the Pacific Coast is 10 cents a bushel cheaper than from the Atlantic. Canadian farmers marketed 1,676,000 bushels of wheat Monday, compared with 2,785,000 bushels last year.

In addition to the bearish government crop report on corn, a leading private crop expert was out with a summary suggesting that with favorable weather the final official corn estimate may show as much or more corn than last year. Oats reflected sympathy with corn, as well as the bearish influence of the government report.

Provisions likewise were responsive to corn weakness.

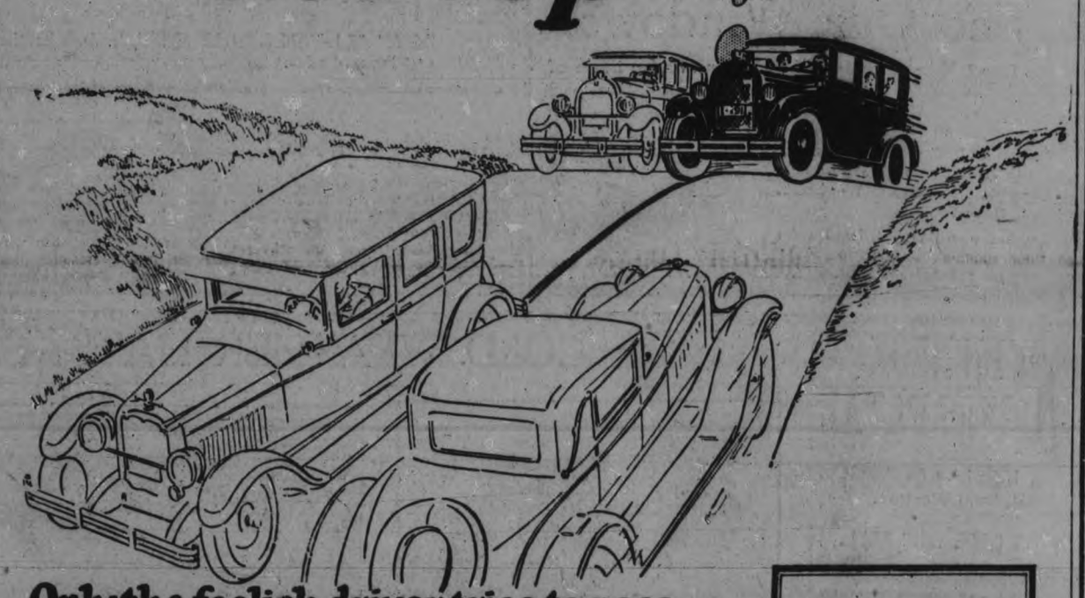
Will he get over the top?



Only the foolish driver tries to pass when he cannot see the road ahead

The car ahead slows down near the top of the hill. The motor of the second car is working smoothly and powerfully. The driver turns out to pass.

And then in the opposite direction a third car appears. A crash!

Probably fatal injuries. Perhaps just a car or two mashed up.

It is reckless driving to pass another car when nearing the top of a hill, on curves, at intersections, or at any other place where the road ahead cannot be seen. To gain a few seconds, to save trouble slowing down or changing gears, you risk your own life and the lives of others.

The Highway Safety Committee is making a concerted effort in which local bodies throughout the Province are energetically co-operating. We hope the examples and lessons of this campaign will take permanent hold of the consciousness of motor drivers and pedestrians using the highways. It is the duty of each person to learn that accidents are preventable and how to prevent them.

We must save lives.

Your Pledge of Support

If you believe in care, courtesy and obedience to the law on the highway, put this sticker on your windshield:

I'm for Care and Courtesy Are You?

Your filling station or garage will give you one. Let it be your badge of support.

Thus it will be known that you are among the great majority of motor drivers who are law-abiding, and as decent citizens on the highways as everywhere else.

AMERICAN GIRL SEEN OVER SEA

Reported About 400 Miles From New York Late Last Night.

PARIS ON LOOKOUT.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—The air force at Lebourge is on the look-out for the arrival of the American Girl with Miss Ruth Elder and Capt. Haldman on board. The first report of the plane over the ocean was a message from the steamer American Banker that an airplane had been seen at 10.33 last night in latitude 41, longitude 66. This was estimated at 400 miles east of New York, so the plane was apparently on schedule. They expected to reach Paris at 7 a.m. to-morrow, Eastern Standard time.

Weather conditions, perhaps the most unfavorable of any encountered by trans-Atlantic fliers this season, are being faced by the American Girl, the United States' weather bureau says. The storm and fog area centres about 700 miles west of France.

GROWN IN CANADA.

The blankets and rugs on exhibition this week in the Armouries are made from wools grown in this district. The Horn Bros. Woollen Co., Lindsay, use all Canadian-grown wools in their finer class of blankets. "Grown on sheep that thrive in the snow" is a slogan they use in advertising. "It is the strongest, silkiest, best wearing wool," says Mr Horn, and blankets made from these wools will not shrink if properly washed.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

Sable skins without the heads are used to make this smart new fur scarf.

The only sort of fur scarf that is smarter this season than fox is sable. This does not mean sable-dyed hare or sable-dyed red fox or dyed baum marten, but real sable, which is and long has been the most precious of all furs. In the eyes of an expert, imitation sable is never really satisfactory.

Even the small sable scarf is an expensive proposition, still I am sure that if I suddenly found myself possessed of a really large dress allowance, one of the first things I should do would be to buy a rather small, unostentatious sable scarf.

But with just the usual amount of money to spend on clothes, a good fox scarf is eminently satisfactory, and there is a swagger sort of smartness that can be obtained from a large-fine fox scarf that all the sable in the world cannot impart.

Almost every variety of fox is fashionable at present. There are red foxes left "au naturel" that are distinctive and youthful. These are sometimes given the aspect of blue or silver fox and sometimes "pointed" quite effectlike something else seems to me as absurd as to dye one's own red hair black or brown. Silver fox, with its white-tipped, thick, bushy tail is of all foxes the most valuable. Gray fox with a black-tipped silvery tail and reddish shadings on the side is most attractive when left with its natural markings.

DOROTHY LOGAN SETS NEW RECORD

Set New Time For the English Channel Swim, 14 Hours 10 Minutes.

FOLKESTONE, England, October 12 (Associated Press). — The English Channel swimming record for women, held by Gertrude Ederle at 14 hours 31 minutes, yesterday fell before Dorothy Cochrane Logan, London physician and "mystery" swimmer, who scrambled ashore here yesterday morning, 13 hours 10 minutes after taking off from Cape Gris-Nez.

The time of her take-off from the coast of France was given as 7.40 o'clock on Monday evening, while her arrival on the English shore was at 8.50 o'clock yesterday morning. As she walked ashore at Folkestone yesterday morning, in the midst of a din of sirens and welcoming shouts, she collapsed and was taken to Hythe where she had been in training.

Dr. Logan, who swims under the name "Mona McClellan," made the swim on her fifth attempt, her take-off at this late date of the Channel season being inspired by word that Miss Mercedes Gleitz, London typist, had conquered the Channel a few days ago after six failures.

Third Mark.

Although Dr. Logan's time was placed at 1 hour 21 minutes better that than set by Gertrude Ederle when the latter became the first woman to cross the Channel, her time was poorer than the Channel record set by the Frenchman, George Michel, who made the crossing in 11 hours 5 minutes, and the second place mark set by the German, Ernst Vierkoetter, who crossed in 12 hours 43 minutes.

Dr. Logan's unadvertised moonlight swim was made under the same blanket of mystery which has marked her previous swimming, and none but her attendants were aware of her attempt until the weary but determined woman neared her goal, the fourth woman to make the famous crossing.

She found the Channel water tranquil, but achingly cold. She used a back stroke most of the way. Almost in sight of success, she wished to leave the water, believing further effort was useless, but her trainer, Horane Carey, a bus driver, insisted that she continue.

SAINT and SINNER

If marriage as an institution had to exist, if sweethearts, ardently in love, had to be converted into that queer race known as husbands and wives, then she would much prefer, if given a choice in some other incarnation, to be the husband, Faith reflected, as she sat, nervous and tense, beside Bob in an excellent orchestra seat of the Columbia Theater. Somehow it was degrading to be a wife so much in love with a husband that his smile or his frown meant heaven or hell to her. It was not fair for one human being's happiness to be so bound up in another person. If God or biology decreed that every human being must be essentially alone, never really seeing the soul of another, never really getting inside of another person's heart of mind, then why, in the name of mercy, did not that same force, whatever it was, also make each human being self-sufficient?

She tortured herself with these futile questions as a peroxided heroine warbled shrilly, with a Brooklyn accent, of eternal love for the pudgy tenor, who reiterated his vows endlessly in a saccharine phrase: "I love you, Sweet, o-o-only YOU-HOO-OO!"

So she had said—and meant it. She would always love only Bob. And so Bob had said, in a voice far more thrilling than that pudgy tenor's. But had he meant it? Did a man ever mean it, and go on and on meaning it?

And all the time, as her poor, harried mind milled these questions, Faith's brown eyes were fixed prayerfully upon Bob's face. In the semi-dark of the theater he seemed not to notice, seemed intent only upon the silly musical comedy. If they were not married he would notice, would tease her about not being able to see the stage because she could not tear her eyes from his beloved face. He would reach for her hand, cuddle it warmly in his, stroke her wrist with tingling fingers, lean forward every few minutes to whisper a comment or a compliment or a love-word. But now— He stared at the stage moodily, making no effort to pretend enjoyment. He was a husband, out with his wife. Husbands do not have to pretend to be amused when they are not—

During intermissions he excused himself abruptly to smoke cigarets in the lobby. She awaited his return tensely, her tear-filled eyes fixed unseeingly on the program booklet, every nerve straining toward him, needing him, fearing his return. In the third act he laughed aloud twice at some antic of the comedian, a "gentleman drunk," and she was so grateful to the comedian for having made her husband laugh out naturally, spontaneously, that she yearned for flowers to toss upon the stage.

When the show was over, Faith felt personally responsible for its tawdriness, its failure to win Bob out of his black mood. She trotted along beside him to the side street where the car was parked, desperately trying to make conversation:

"I thought the comedian was rather good, didn't you, dear? Did you ever see such limber legs?" And, "Did you notice that woman in front of us? I thought she'd go into hysterics." And, "For the longest time I couldn't tell whether that person two rows ahead of us was a boy or a girl. Did you ever see such a mannish-looking girl? I don't like these mannish hair-cuts, do you, darling?"

And as she rattled on nervously, unable to control the impulse to tack that fatal question on the end of each sentence. She hated herself for being so miserable, for caring so much whether he was nice to her or not. But all the time she loved him so frantically that she felt that her heart was crying itself to death in her breast.

Uncle Wiggily
By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MUD SLIDE

Not far from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, near the edge of a pond and really built in the water, were some queer houses made of sticks and mud with the roof rounded like a dome. In these water houses lived Mr. and Mrs. Flat Tail, the beavers, with Toodle and Noodle, the beaver boys, about whom I have told you some stories.

One day Uncle Wiggily happened to think that he had not seen Toodle and Noodle since the long school vacation started. So the rabbit gentleman said to himself:

"I will hop over and see Toodle and Noodle. I may get an adventure that way and I must have an adventure every day."

Mr. Longears was sliding down a long hill.

So off through the woods hopped the rabbit gentleman toward the beaver pond and the beaver dam. For the beavers, in order to make a shallow stream deep enough for their houses, had built across it a dam of sticks, mud and grass clumps which held back the water.

Walking along the top of the hill, below which the beaver colony had built the water houses, Uncle Wiggily heard a voice calling him:

"Hello! Come on down!"

Now the rabbit gentleman was thinking so much about the adventure he hoped to have that he jumped in surprise when he heard the voice and all of a sudden he felt his feet slipping from beneath him and the next he knew Mr. Longears was sliding down a long, narrow hill that was slimy with mud and water. No ice or snow-covered slide was any more slippery than this one of mud and Uncle Wiggily found himself coasting straight toward the pond of water in which the mud slide ended.

"Oh, my goodness! I'm going to get a ducking!" gasped the rabbit.

"Oh, I didn't mean for you to come down that way, Uncle Wiggily!" shouted a voice, and Mr. Longears had a glimpse of Toodle Flat Tail, the beaver boy, with his brother Noodle, standing near the bottom of the mud slide, flipping their broad tails.

"And I didn't mean to come down this way," exclaimed the rabbit. "My foot slipped on your slide—I didn't know it was here. Oh, stop me, somebody, before I go plop into the water!"

"We'll save you, Uncle Wiggily!" offered Toodle and Noodle, getting ready to grab the rabbit as he slid past them just before he might slide into the pond. And then their father and mother came out of one of the mud and stick houses and helped Toodle and Noodle save Mr. Longears. They caught him just in time.

"That was a narrow escape," gasped the rabbit when he had caught his breath. "I didn't know, or at least I had forgotten, that you beavers have fun on mud slides in summer as other animals may do in winter on hills of ice and snow." He looked up the slippery hill down which he had coasted. It was of smooth, slimy clay which had been made wet by beavers climbing on it with their fur dripping water.

"We didn't exactly make that mud slide for fun," explained Mr. Flat Tail. "Though Toodle and Noodle have been coasting on it, which makes it so wet and slippery now. But that slide is for us to get our food in for winter."

Mr. Flat Tail explained that he and the other beavers lived on tree bark in winter. The beavers, with their broad, sharp teeth, gnaw down whole trees. These they cut up into short lengths. But it would be too hard work to drag these pieces of trees from away far off in the forest to the houses in the pond.

"So we make a mud slide on top of the hill," said Mr. Flat Tail. "We drag the pieces to the top of the hill and push them down on the clay mud which is made slippery with water."

"I'll say it was slippery!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily.

"And Toodle and I have lots of fun on the mudslide," said Noodle. "Our cousins, the otters, make mud slides, just for coasting, since they don't need to slide bark logs down to eat. They live on different food."

"Then the beaver mud slide is for work and play, too," said Uncle Wiggily. And just then, all of a sudden, up at the top of the hill appeared the Bob Cat who had been sneaking through the woods behind the rabbit, trying to catch him. A moment later, not knowing the beaver slide was there, the Bob Cat stepped on it.

"Whizz! Whoop!" down he shot as fast as a greased pig, trying to dig his claws in the wet clay to stop himself. But it was of no use. Into the pond at the bottom of the slide he plopped, for none of the beavers offered to help him.

"You ow wow!" howled the dripping Bob Cat as he scrambled out on the other side of the pond and slunk away. "More Uncle Wiggily tricks!"

However the mud slide was not exactly a trick of the rabbit gentleman though it helped him escape the Bob Cat.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1927

Except in the early morning hours this is a fortunate day in planetary government, according to astrology.

The rule is supposed to stimulate business and professional ambition.

There is a promising sign for inventions and the promise of new marvels in mechanism.

Aviation is to be made safer by means of novel appliances for airships, astrologers foretell.

New laws for sky pilots are to occupy the attention of state legislatures and congress, the seers foretell.

All who seek to liquidate indebtedness under this direction of the stars should benefit greatly, astrologers declare.

Banks and bankers continue under a rule of the stars making for tremendous increase in power, political as well as financial.

According to a recent horoscope the next President of the United States will come from the west.

Religious prejudices will be widely awakened in the next few months, the stars indicate.

Again astrologers comment on the fact that the position of Mars is most threatening to Japan.

Newspapers continue under a sway making for great financial profits as well as bitter political fights.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that is satisfactory in financial matters.

Children born on this day may be intense in nature and keen in mind. The subjects of this sign are usually positive in character.

towards building up this great Dominion."

Dr. Anderson regretted that Right Hon. Arthur Meighen had not seen fit to allow his name to stand for nomination for the leadership. "However," he pursued, "it is for us to look among the aspirants and see in whom can best be placed confidence to lead the party in the years to come."

Real problems faced the country that must be solved, and these problems were capable of solution only by the Conservative party. Canada possessed unlimited natural wealth. She was a large country with a small population. It was regrettable that more action towards her development had not taken place within the last few years.

Dr. Anderson recalled that when Mr. Meighen resigned last fall, Mr. Guthrie had been selected as temporary leader. It was for the delegates and the Conservative members of Parliament to decide whether Mr. Guthrie could be trusted with the great work that lay ahead.

"In my judgment," said Dr. Anderson, "I feel that the safety and surety of the party, coupled with the responsibility, might well be placed upon the shoulders of Mr. Guthrie." For that reason he had pleasure in proposing his nomination.

C. W. Bell, M.P. for Hamilton, Ont., seconded the nomination of Hon. Hugh Guthrie.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie said that after such compliments it was difficult for him to know what to say. He was aware he did not merit these compliments but if the convention saw fit to entrust him with the leadership of the Conservative party to-morrow he would give the best that was in him to the party and to the Conservative cause.

Leslie G. Bell, St. Antoine, Montreal, mover of C. H. Cahan, said that the people of Quebec looked back to the old days to the fathers of the Conservative party and to the fathers of the Dominion of Canada. Quebec had in those days given strong support to the party.

In C. H. Cahan, said Mr. Bell, we have a man who is able to unite all sections of the Conservative party.

The seconder of Mr. Cahan's nomination was Hon. Andre Fauteaux, a former member in the administration of Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Speaking in French, Hon. Andrew Fauteaux, Montreal, in seconding the nomination of Mr. Cahan, declared that he was proud to recall the glorious past of the party. Conservatives had every reason to feel confident of the future. Mr. Fauteaux paid tribute to Sir Robert Borden, who, in the hour of crisis, had performed his duty to the last minute.

"The Conservative party has been guided by great statesmen and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen was perhaps the greatest," said Mr. Fauteaux amid cheers.

Mr. Cahan's Appeal

"I am not making a personal appeal on my own behalf," declared Mr. Cahan. "We must sink our prejudices and ambitions and be wholly guided by the supreme desire to advance the interests of the Dominion and the great party to which we belong."

The economic independence of any section, group or class within the Dominoin was an unrealizable dream. The people of Canada, the speaker maintained, must stand or fall together.

Hon. Robert Rogers Proposed.

W. J. Tupper, K.C., of Winnipeg, in proposing the name of Hon. Robert Rogers, stated that his candidate enjoyed a vast experience in the Federal and Provincial field. Mr. Tupper laid it down as a general principle that a man's record of achievement was a guarantee of future accomplishment. He pointed out that Mr. Rogers was born in the County of Argenteuil, Quebec, and had come to Manitoba when twenty-one years of age. Mr. Rogers had since devoted himself to the upbuilding of this country, and was conversant with the problems of the East and the West.

Louis Cousineau, Hull, Que., speaking in French, declared that in seconding the nomination of Mr. Rogers he felt that by this candidate's election "Quebec would be represented by one of its own, because Mr. Rogers lived there for many years."

Hon. Robert Rogers' first words were in French. The Quebec delegation organized a special demonstration on his behalf.

The Conservative party, Mr. Rogers said, had during its whole existence in this Dominion been inseparably connected with every forward policy placed before the public.

"That is the reason why I have never swerved in loyalty to the party and the reason why I will continue as a member of the party as long as I live."

Sir Henry Drayton.

The candidature of Sir Henry Drayton was brought forward by former Mayor Charles Duquette, of Montreal, Mr. Duquette speaking in French. He paid tribute to Sir Henry and stated that he was one of the out standing men in Canadian public life.

F. W. Turnbull, Regina, declared that Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, had stated that the Conservative party "had neither policy nor leader." Conservatives would be able to take care of both these matters, he said.

Sir Henry Drayton declared the policy of the Conservative party should be directed towards one end—the greatest opportunity for the greatest good.

Hon. L. P. Tilley, St. John, moved the nomination of Hon. R. B. Bennett.

"I submit the name of Hon. R. Bedford Bennett," declared Mr. Tilley. "I believe," he continued, amid applause, "that, in Mr. Bennett, we have a winner."

A. A. McGillivray, Calgary, who seconded, declared that Mr. Bennett was "the most outstanding figure in Western Canada to-day, interested in the development of this country."

Hon. R. B. Bennett declared that he counted himself "most fortunate" in having an old classmate like Mr. Tilley and a friend suggest his name for leadership at the convention. "It is a great honor to have him suggest my name—a great honor to have the suggestion come from one of my friends."

In moving the candidature of Hon. R. J. Manion, Dr. J. M. Robb referred at length to Dr. Manion's career in medicine in the army and in the public service of Canada. W. S. Haney of Sarnia seconded the nomination making a plea for national unity.

Dr. Manion's Address.

Dr. Manion said that in the ten years during which he has represented Fort William he had not experienced such a feeling of embarrassment as came to him when he faced the convention. He stated that when he came to Winnipeg he had not intended to permit his name to go before the convention and had not asked any of the delegates to support him. He had been approached to allow his name to go before the convention after his arrival here. He was not appearing in any spirit of conceit and was praying that whoever was selected would prove capable of leading the party to victory at the next election.

He outlined the achievements and aims of the party and urged the convention to choose its leader carefully, "but having chosen him, close up your ranks and follow him," he declared.

Girl Poses As Man; Smokes Black Cigars

RAWLINS, Wyo., Oct. 12.—(United Press).—Nellie G. Garess, who posed as a man while working as a health office jaboratory specialist, has been sentenced to jail for sixty days for issuing prescriptions without a license.

The girl's first act on leaving the court rooms was to produce a long, black cigar. Lighting it, she went off to her cell in a trail of smoke and without showing the least concern over her predicament.

Dr. Garess had successfully impersonated a man for some time in Hannah, Wyo., and had been living there with a pretty brunette who passed as the doctor's wife.

The girl was fully qualified for her work, it was said. When she appeared in court Monday she was dressed in a man's riding habit.

LABOR LEADERS ASK FUNDS FOR MOSCOW VISIT

Wish To Go To Help Celebrate Tenth Anniversary of Revolution.

AROUSES DISCUSSION.

Proves Vote Against Communists Merely a Blind, Declares Daily Mail.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(United Press) Over the signatures of several well known labor leaders an appeal has been issued today for funds to enable 50 British Labor delegates to go to Moscow next month to assist in the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. Naturally this is arousing a great deal of sharp discussion. After the recent action of the Labor party and Trades Union Congress in openly disavowing the Reds and repudiating any suspicion of Russian control it is regarded as remarkable that a national labor committee should endeavor to secure funds for such a purpose and in particular that it should operate from the communist party offices with William Paul, a noted Communist leader, as secretary.

Among the names endorsing the appeal for funds are R. B. Walker, former chairman of the Trades Union Congress, W. H. Hutchinson, former chairman of the Labor party, A. J. Cook, Ben Tillett, A. Fenner Brockway, political secretary of the Independent Labor party, and Tom Mann, who is an avowed communist.

In discussing the situation The Daily Mail calls the recent throwing over of the Communists by the official labor organization "merely a move designed to deceive the public for electioneering purposes."

The recent action, The Daily Mail declares, exposes the Trade Unions Congress farce.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—In face of adverse weather reports from the Western Provinces, the wheat market experienced a morning of heavy liquidation, and at the close quotations ranged from 1½ to 2c lower with October registering the heaviest decline. October closed at $1.37¼; November at $1.35½; December, $1.30½; and May, $1.34¼.

A market factor yesterday was the resale in Winnipeg of wheat options covered by contracts that were cancelled by Old Country and Continental firms. Liquidation of the October future was heavy throughout the day.

There was a good demand for the top grades of cash wheat, but light offerings hampered trade. The lower grades were not wanted. A fair demand was reported for barley and yre ,while flax and oats were inactive.

DOURO TOWNSHIP CORN CROPS GOOD

Potato Crop is Disappointing, and High Prices Are Predicted.

DOURO, Oct. 12.—Many local farmers are cutting corn, which is a good crop. Early in the season the prospect for a crop was poor, but later the corn made wonderful growth.

Potatoes are being dug in local gardens. In most cases the crop is disappointing, the yield being small and in some cases the tubers are quite small. Many farmers report extensive rot in their crop. This everyday part of the menu will likely be high priced this winter, though an occasional farmer reports an average yield.

Splendid progress is being made with fall ploughing.

Messrs. Coughlin and White, P. Doherty and son and Edward and J. Payne are steadily working away at threshing operations, but it will be some time before all the threshing is done.

Sale Well Attended.

The sale of farm stock and implements on the farm of Kenneth Cavanagh on Wednesday last was well attended, and very good prices were realized. A good team of light farm horses sold for $260; a small driving horse, $45; cows sold for from $58 to $65; a brood sow, $30; shoats, $8.50; hens, 80c; and machinery also sold well. Mr. Cavanagh has sold his farm to Mr. Stanley Farley, and with his mother will reside in Peterborough.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

ZION UNITED CHURCH.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 12. — Zion Church observed its anniversary occasion on Sunday, Rev. H. W. Foley, B.D., of Frazerville, preaching both afternoon and evening.

The church was fittingly decorated with autumn leaves and flowers, and the choir from the United Church, Millbrook, furnished the music, Miss Estelle Hetherington presiding at the organ. The selections at night included an anthem, "Sun of My Soul," and a solo, "No Room in the Inn," by Mr. H. J. Anderson. The service at Millbrook was withdrawn because of the Zion anniversary, thus giving a number the opportunity of attending the special gathering at night.

Rev. Mr. Foley chose at his theme in the evening, "Mending Lives," basing his remarks upon the occasion when Jesus came upon his disciples mending their nets, and referred to His power to cleanse and re-make the whole life.

A personal experience of the joy and peace that come from yielding to Christ was strongly urged by the speaker as he developed his subject; the futility of trying to live without Him was pointed out; the inadequacy of human striving to make the life pure, and the absolute need of a Saviour, with the fullness of the "abundant life" which He came to make possible, were earnestly brought home.

The special thank-offering was for the purposes of the church, and though, unfortunately, the rain just at the church hour lessened the attendance, the services were inspirational in character, and the spirit of worship was strongly marked.

Rev. Dr. S. W. Dean, of Toronto, is the special preacher for the anniversary services at the Millbrook United Church on Sunday, October 16, this completing these occasions for the circuit.

The Long Look

ONE of life's greatest problems was solved when business men carried over into domestic life the "long look"—the practice of looking and planning ahead, which has proven the secret of every successful business enterprise.

The college days ahead, clearing off the mortgage on the home, comforts for the sunset years of life—all can be planned with definite assurance of happy consummation.

Such is the great contribution of modern life insurance! And London Life policies on the "reduced premium" idea are built for the purse of the average family man.

For example, a man age 30 can purchase $10,000 life insurance on the famous Jubilee plan for $3.52 a week (payable annually) and subject to reduction by dividends. Your premiums when reduced by dividends could never total the amount of this policy; yet all the while the cash value is steadily mounting and the protection is always there. Ask any of our representatives for particulars.

MANY FINE CATS, ETC.

amber eyes glowing in a dark face, and Mrs. A. P. Quinton of Hamilton has Blue Persians of very affectionate disposition, with their fluffy hair framing mild faces. Here is "Bo Peep," who was the best kitten in the 1926 Canadian National Exhibition Show in Toronto and was second in her class at the Toronto show this year. She is mother of the four kittens that came with her, and her brother is "Tinker Tom," a large cat exhibited by Miss Kathryn Martin of Rubidge Street, who also shows "Toots," called an A.O.C. ("Any Other Color") Persian.

A brown Tabby has a prominent place, also a real tortoiseshell cat whose blazed face shows the distinguishing two-color formation of this type, and there are three cunning Red Tabby kittens that look out at the world with serious small green eyes.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kirch of Toronto, the former president of the Royal Canadian Cat Club, has a showing of half a dozen cats, among them the huge "Red Top" of Kenwood, a saucy gentleman with a large head and face. His mate, "Margaret" of Kenwood, is a purring, ingratiating lady with a tawny red coat.

Peterborough Entries

One of the loveliest cats in the show, with a long-haired body and large mild liquid eyes gazing enquiringly at the patrons, ensconced on a large pink cushion, is "Dinty," owned by Miss Berenice Spofford. Another local exhibitor is Mrs. J. J. Turner, who brought her cat, a large tortoiseshell, last night. Miss Berenice Garside of Rubidge Street, also has an entry in "Peter," and Mrs. J. Henry of Sherbrooke Street, showing "Jiggs" both fine big, furry felines.

Mrs. Whiteside and Mrs. Wiseman of Toronto show pure white Persians with blueish eyes and pink-lined ears; the cat owned by the latter having the dignified name of "Sir Talisman," while Mrs. Hirsch of Toronto has a tortoiseshell, a brown tabby "Daisy," and a cream Persian kitten called by the attractive name of "Miss Peaches."

The prize list will appear in tomorrow's issue of The Examiner.

FAIR PATRONAGE

The showing was comprised of afternoon gowns and coats, with suitable hats, from the show rooms of the Richard Hall Store ,and opened with the presentation of a lovely gown of soft Brown crepe and a black model using transparent sleeves, from the shoulders and pleated skirt. A midnight blue gown with a high collar and red shoulder flower, and small blue hat.

An apricot gown was developed in georgette and a dull periwinkly blue top on another dress had a skirt of a darker shade. The coats worn later with these gowns were in browns, Chanel reds and black, with fox, opposum and grey wolf collars and cuffs. A number of fabric coats with glossy surfaces and varied colors were much admired.

An extremely effective model in an afternoon gown was of black crepe with embroidered motifs heavily worked in rose and gold, making the low waist line, and finished with rounded edges. An inset of rose and gold appeared on the skirt and ribbons of the two colors fell from the neck at the back.

Sage green and yellow appeared in two of the models and a lovely gown was of the new Blue Du Roi, with pleated skirt and separate jacket top, worn over a white foundation that showed some heavy gold silk embroidery.

This evening the programme includes a one act play by the Young People's Society of St. Paul's church, the Spanish dance by Senorita Vasquez, solos by Miss Greta LeBarr, a musical "Harmonica" contest, and a Fashion Show presented by the Canadian Departmental Stores, Limited.

The Baby Show will be a big attraction to-morrow afternoon, and in the evening the Shooting Gallery and Bowling Alley open.

MRS. GRAYSON PREPARES PLANE

Hopes To Take Off To-night on Flight to Copenhagen.

OLD ORCHARD, October 12 (Canadian Press). — Spurred on by the take-off of the American Girl, Mrs. Frances Grayson to-day was directing her men in preparing the big Sikorsky plane for the hop-off on a flight to Denmark, which is fixed for five o'cloc kto-night. Hot soup and coffee were placed in the ship's thermos bottles, and sandwiches were placed aboard, along with the fuel that is expected to take it to Copenhagen.

NEW YORK, October 12 (Canadian Press).—Well on their way to Paris, if no unreported mishap had befallen them, Ruth Elder and George Haldeman were flying through sunny skies to-day over ocean waters never yet crossed in an airplane by a woman. The last report since they took off at 5.04 last night was when they were sighted at 10.45 last night by the steamer American Banker. After that the night and morning passed without further word of their progress. The steamer reported clear weather and favorable winds when the plane was sighted about four hundred miles out on the Atlantic. A severe storm area, however, looms on their path and they might strike it about eight o'clock to-night.

ARNOTT REFUSES OFFER FROM PROS.

Former Belleville Player Turns Down Windsor Hockey Contract.

Arnott will again be at centre position for the Preston Riversides in the senior O.H.A. this coming season. Arnott has been much sought after by several managers of the Canadian pro. league clubs and other professional bodies.

But Arnott gave his final decision yesterday morning when he stated to a manager of one of the teams in the Canadian pro. league that there was nothing doing.

Arnott said that he had played amateur hockey all his life and intended to stick with the Riversides, and no offers, no matter how large, would tempt him to desert the Preston club.

Manager Herb Mitchell of the Windsor Hornets, has paid several visits to Preston lately, endeavoring to get Arnott to put his signature to a Windsor contract, but his efforts have been fruitless.

JUDGMENT GIVEN FOR DUFFUS GARAGE

Patrick Carroll Ordered To Pay $3,066 For New Car.

The Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly at the fall assizes of the County of Peterborough, gave judgment this morning against Patrick Carrol for the sum of $3,066. This amount was claimed by the J. J. Duffus Ltd. on the sale of a Willys-Knight sedan in June to Mr. Carrol.

R. R. Hall, K.C., and W. H. Reid acted for the defendant and the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for J. J. Duffus Ltd.

During the month of June Mr. Carrol purchased a Willys-Knight sedan from the J. J. Duffus Ltd. for $3,050 plus his old Studebaker car. Mr. Carrol kept the car most of one day, using it in his taxi business, and then the following day he returned it to the Duffus garage and took his old car out again. No agreement was ever signed ,but Mr. Carrol had promised W. J. Hickey, the salesman, to settle up the morning after the car was delivered. Mr. Carrol claimed he had told Mr. Hickey he must get his wife's consent.

Many witnesses were called by the prosecution, who gave evidence that Carrol at one time or another had said that he had bought this new car, although no agreement had been signed between the two defendants and W. J. Hickey salesman for the J. J. Duffus Ltd. who was making the sale. Mr. Hickey claimed on the night the car was delivered he and Carrol shook hands. He left the new car with Carrol and he took Carrol's Studebaker, which was being turned in. Carrol also promised to give a cheque in the morning.

The evidence for the defense was that Carrol had not closed the deal on the night the car was delivered, but that he had said he would have to get his wife's consent before he could accept the car. Mr. Hickey said that this was never mentioned.

Mr. Gordon in addressing his Lordship, claimed that Carrol had accepted the car and on that view it was his intention to settle up for the car the next morning.

Mr. Hall made an able address to His Lordship for his client. As no agreement had been signed Mr. Hall hardly thought Mr. Hickey would consider the deal closed. Since then Mr. Hall said there had been no offer to give back the car by the J. J. Duffus Ltw. He considered it an attempt by a high powered salesman to force a poor man into a deal in which he could not finance.

His Lordship in giving judgment said the chief item in the charge was $3,050, the difference in price between a Willys-Knight sedan and a Studebaker car owned by the defendant. His Lordship was of the opinion that as Carol had seen his wife and if she did not want him to buy the car, why did he use it in his business the night of the purchase and the next morning.

"I can certainly see what a handicap it will be for the defendant to pay for this car. He has had a desire to have a car better than he could afford. I believe that there was a sufficient agreement under the statute to make it binding, hence the defendant must pay $3,050 with interest of 5 per cent. from the 30th of June, 1927."

To this is also added $16 for license, the costs of the court, and the interest on a further item of $1,290, which was claimed for storage and use of the Studebaker car by Mr. Carrol.

CONFEDERATION DAY.

Will Be Observed at Produced-in-Canada Fair To-morrow.

Of course no one needs to be reminded that this is the Diamond Jubilee of Canada's Confederation. With that thought in mind, the exhibit depicting the Fathers of Confederation, kindly loaned by the T. Eaton Company, to be seen at the Kiwanis Exhibition, is of especial interest.

Thursday is Confederation Day at the Exhibition, and on that day all residents of the city who were living in Peterboro in the year 1867 will be admitted to the Exhibition free of charge.

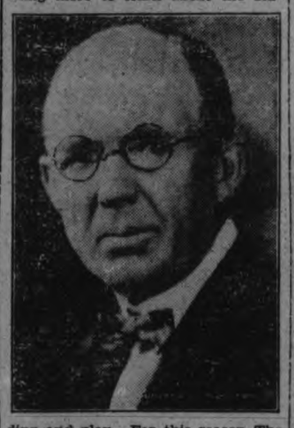
It will be interesting to note how many of the old residents of the city there are who will be able to take advantage of this opportunity. Confederation day means much in the annals of Canada, and in this year of. Diamond Jubilee the thought should be uppermost in the minds of every Canadian citizen.

The exhibit mentioned above will be of especial interest to the older ones, who may perhaps remember the names of those depicted.

BRIDGE EXPERT.

Do you play bridge? If so, you will enjoy the new series of auction bridge lessons by Wynne Ferguson which will appear exclusively in The Examiner beginning soon. There will be thirty-six articles or lessons and they will be written so that the beginners at bridge will be able to understand them. At the end of each article there will be a problem which Mr. Ferguson will answer with the following article.

Bridge has become the leading entertainment and amusement in the homes of Canadians and unlike many other games there is always something more to learn about the bidding and play. For this reason The Examiner has secured the services of Mr. Ferguson who is an acknowledged authority on bridge. Mr. Ferguson has appeared in the Radio Auction Bridge games which have been broadcast through the leading Canadian and United States stations. He also will participate in one of the radio bridge games this winter.



The associates of Mr. Ferguson are widely known bridge players and experts. His intimate friends have always exerted every effort to improve the game. Therefore Mr. Ferguson is in a position to know everything that is new and no change of importance can occur without his knowledge.

Readers of The Examiner will receive the benefit of Mr. Ferguson's expert opinion.

Watch for the first article which will appear soon and every week there after for thirty-six instalments.

CRIMINAL CASE IS BEING HEARD

Dummer Man Charged With Serious Offence Against Child.

William Hill of the Township of Dummer came up for trial this morning before the Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly on charge of committing a serious offence against a girl 12 years old. J. A. O'Brien is acting for the defence and W. H. Williams, K.C., of Pembroke is prosecuting.

In choosing the jury, the defence challenged seven men. At the noon-time luncheon only the evidence of the little girl had been heard. The trial is being held in camera with all witnesses excluded.

The act is supposed to have been committed in Centre Dummer on Sunday, September 18th, at about eight o'clock in the evening on a lonely road.

The jury is composed of seven farmers, a clerk, a merchant, a teamster, a plumber, and a carpenter; the members being J. T. Edwards, W. J. Brooks, E. P. Jackson, R. G. Northcott, Ralph Cuthbertson, Harry Bell, Samuel Brooks, Roy Brown, M. M. O'Connor Harry Fitzgerald, Bert Padget, and Ralph Drummond.

On petition from Mr. Williams, His Lordship excluded the public from the trial. His Lordship, in doing so, said it was a case which to the interests of all concerned would be better held in camera especially as the girl concerned was but a child.

The first witness called by the Crown was the little girl against whom the offence was said to have been committed. In a soft but clear voice she answered the questions asked of her by the Crown Prosecutor, Mr. Williams. She gave her age as twelve years and said she lived in Centre Dummer with her parents. She was able to identify the man in the prisoner's box as William Hill, who, she said, was not her husband. She had known him for eleven months.

On Sunday, September 18th, she was left alone with her younger brother and sister, when her parents looked after their Sunday duties. In the afternoon she went to a neighbor's for butter. out as the lady was not home she returned early in the evening for the butter and on the way home she was attacked by William Hill.

The little girl's scream was heard by three young people who were at the farm house where she had been for the butter. They immediately came up the road with a lantern and when the prisoner saw the light he ran into the bushes. Witness was taken home by the three young people where she stayed that night and the next night until her father came for her.

On cross-examination by Mr. O'Brien, witness said she had been left alone from Thursday with her small sister and brother. She described the clothes worn by the accused and said he had a short whisker and moustache.

Evidence was also given by witness that it was her older sister who is involved in a similar case with Davis Hill, a brother of William Hill. It would take her twenty minutes to walk from her home to where she was to get the butter. Witness was also asked about boys coming around her home, but she said they never came around unless invited by her mother.

The trial is proceeding.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Johnson Praises Lou as Great Example For Youth of To-day.

CHICAGO ,Ills., October 12 (Associated Press). — "Larruping Lou" Gehrig, first baseman with the world champion Yankees, last night was proclaimed the most valuable player in the American League for the 1927 season.

Selection of Gehrig, who gave Babe Ruth a sizzling battle for home run honours and finished with a total of 47, more than any other player in baseball history, with the exception of the Bambino himself, was made by a committee of baseball writers, comprising the cities of the League. All but one of the first choice votes were given to Gehrig, who won the coveted honours with 56 points out of a possible 64.

Gehrig's nearest competitors for the honours were Harry Heilmann, Detroit outfielder and 1927 batting champion of the American League, and Ted Lyons, star pitcher with the Chicago White Sox. Heilmann had 35 points while 34 went to Lyons.

The only dissenting vote was cast for Tony Lazzeri, as the most valuable player to the Yankees, while all the others chose "Columbia Lou." Twenty-five players were named in this year's competition.

President Ban Johnson, of the American League, in announcing the results of the balloting, praised Gehrig as a great example for the youth of to-day . Gehrig causes umpires no troubles, President Johnson said, tends strictly to business, and has always given his club his best efforts.

Gehrig, finishing third in the batting list of leading American League hitters ,closed the season with the honour of driving in more runs than any other player in the League.

In 154 games Gehrig was at bat 584 times. He made 218 hits for a total of 427 bases. These included 52 doubles, 18 triples, and his 47 homers. He drove in 175 runs, averaging better than a run a game. Gehrig is regarded as a "natural" ball player.

He is a fine steady fielder, but his terrific hitting was the important thing in his favour in compiling the vote of the committee in his favour.

Gehrig's name in the American League's hall of fame adds to the list which began with Ty Cobb in 1911. Ruth was the choice in 1923, Walter Johnson in 1924, Robert Peckinpaugh in 1925, and George Burns in 1926.

ARGONAUTS TRAIN FOR THE SENATORS

Mungovan Leaves Squad and Decides to Enter Queens.

"Who's next?"

Such is the battle cry of the Argonaut senior football team.

The little band of players who practise down at the Maple Leaf Stadium every night were out in full force again.

Coaches Jack O'Connor and Frank Knight lost little time in getting down to business as they, as well as the players, realize the heavy task ahead of them. That task, of course, is to defeat Ottawa Senators here on Saturday.

Inspired by their success in holding the Dominion champions to a 10-all tie, and their more recent doings of beating Queen's 6-2, the players went at it with a zip that was noticeable last night.

The Scullers lost their pivot man, young Mungovan. The player decided to attend Queen's University, and left yesterday for the home of the Presbyterians. His departure will be felt, and Alex. Parkes will now be the only man for the position.

Their Team.

Football followers who journey down to the Maple Leaf Stadium Saturday will be surprised at the strength of the Scullers. In addition to last year's team they have added "Pee Wee" Chantler, Frank Hutchison, Eddie McLennan, a former McGill boy; "Chic" Garvey, of Sarnia, and others. With these are the old reliables such as "Hank" Sinclair, Bill Miles, "Red" Wilson, and it is possible that "Jimmy" Douglas will be in condition for the game.

With these two stiff games under their belt and about three weeks of hard training the squad right now is in the pink. They run around the track several times every night and enter into the practice with a determination that will not be denied. They all realize what a task it will be to defeat Ottawa, but are confident that it can be done.

Ederle Willing To Try For New Channel Mark

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press). — Gertrude Ederle, the first woman to swim the English channel and whose time for the feat was lowered yesterday by Dr. Dorothy Logan, said last night that she is willing to try for a new channel mark.

"If the report is true," Miss Ederle said, "I wish to extend heartiest congratulations to Dr. Logan. I hope that some time in the future I will be able to give her the opportunity to break a new record."

Asked if she would attempt the swim next year, Miss Ederle said that it all depended upon circumstances."

SOFTBALL LEAGUE MATCHES STARTED

Keen Enthusiasm in Opening Games at Lakefield Rink.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 12.—The Rink Company's Softball League got away to a good start on Friday evening last, and while the attendance has been larger, the enthusiasm was keen.

The games for this week are:

Friday—Selwyn vs. Douro and High School vs. Cubs.

PUBLIC SCHOOL GAME IN SOCCER DRAWN

Prince of Wales and Queen Mary Boys Understand Scientific Code.

ONE GOAL EACH.

Another very interesting public school soccer game took place last evening at King Edward Park, when the Prince of Wales and Queen Mary battled to a one-goal each drawn match. During the encounter, Prince of Wales players deliberately handled the ball inside the dreaded area which gave the Queen Mary boys the chance to win the game, but both Ashquith and Gardner failed to convert the spot kick.

The winner of the A league meets the winner of the B league for the Alex. Kay trophy.

First Half.

Both teams indulged in long swinging passes in the opening exchanges that resulted in the respective full back men showing their abilities as defenders. Queen Mary opened up with raid after raid, the next few minutes, with the half-backs aiding the forwards in trying to convert the ball but failed by inches. On one of the bombardments, a Prince of Wales player handled to prevent a tally but Ashquith failed to score. Mid-field play continued with the boys showing a full understanding of the code, and some of them used their weight very freely. Half-time, no scoring.

Second Half.

On resuming, the boys lined up the same as in the previous half and set the ball a-rolling amidst great excitement. After ten minutes play, the Prince of Wales right wing combination outwitted the opposing defence, and "Frenchie," lying unmarked, carried the sphere right through, to finish with a right foot drive that the custodian could not stop. This setback to the Queen Mary boys resulted in their forwards taking a firmer hold of the game, to finish with the equalizer when Ashquith dribbled the ball through the defence and goalkeeper. On an even basis again, the boys set a faster pace than ever, with each goal going under a seige. One minute to go, Prince of Wales conceded a penalty kick that Gardner failed to win the game from the kick. Prince of Wales 1, Queen Mary 1.

LUCK WON TITLE SAYS MISS PAYSON

Gave Her Women's Golf Championship of Canada on Saturday.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Luck gave Miss Helen T. Payson the women's golf championship of Canada Saturday, she said yesterday upon returning to her home from Toronto.

The game just broke right for me, both in Philadelphia and Toronto, for the other entrants were very much better than I," she modestly stated in explaining her success in bringing to Portland the coveted Duchess of Connaught Gold cup. She gave all credit to the playing of her opponents and said it just happened that even her mistakes were in her favor.

"I have always loved golf", she declared, "because it is such a satisfying game, for it is one of the very few where you can watch your own improvement." She began playing eight years ago, when she was 17, but played only for fun until three years ago, when she began to take it seriously.

"I found that I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce. The best way that I knew was to walk and walk, so I did, and played golf at the same time, making about 10 miles a day. Before many months I had lost almost 20 pounds, but had improved my game correspondingly, and I was having a good time doing it."

QUEENS HAVE GOOD WORKOUT

Howard, Britton and Waugh Casualties in Yesterday's Practice.

READY FOR SATURDAY.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Capt. Cliff Howard, "Bubs" Britton, and Waugh were casualties in Queen's practice yesterday afternoon, the most strenuous workout the team has had all year. Howard hurt his ankle in a plunge, Britton twisted his ankle, and Waugh was hurt in the face. All three had to retire from the field, but it is expected they will be ready for Saturday's ouening gamhe for Queen's at McGill.

From three-thirty until darkness settled over the stadium, the players were driven hard by coach Carson. The fact that "Chubby" Dunne, former Ottawa star, is likely out of the game for the season has caused Carson to insert Kilgour, the 226 pound player, at middle, and while the recruit is raw and inexperienced, he is now being counted on as a regular, along with Howard.

Much attention was paid to tackling, Queen's weak point, while end runs were continually being pulled in order that this defect might be remedied. Injuries have caused Coach Carson to defer picking the team for Montreal until Thursday.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

CUYLER LIKELY TO BE SOLD

His "Own Statement Convicts Him," Says Manager of Pirates.

RECEIVED POOL SHARE.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—"Cuyler's own statement convicts him", Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said yesterday in commenting upon an article written by "Kiki" Cuyler in which he told why he had been held out of the Pirates lineup most of the 1927 season.

"I would have been foolish," Bush said, "to have used a player in the world series who acted the way Cuyler said he acted in his statement.

"I think the Cuyler statement is its own answer and requires no comment on my part."

Cuyler said he had disagreed with Manager Bush on a number of plays and that he had been fined and reprimanded for other plays.

Kiki Cuyler, whose difference with Manager Bush have kept him out of the line-up most of the season, was included among the 28 players who received full shares.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

that pension legislation should be the subject of Federal legislation only will be submitted to the Conservative convention this afternoon. The resolution reads:

"Whereas all needy aged persons, wherever resident in Canada, qualified by residence, have equal rights to old age pensions; and

"Whereas ,the present Federal pension law is inadequate and unworkable;

"Therefore be it resolved that pension legislation should be the subject of Federal legislation only."

Historic Fiscal Policy.

A resolution on the tariff which will be submitted to the convention, reads:

"This convention desires to record its feeling of pride in the growth, progress and prosperity of Canada, under the historic fiscal policy of the Liberal-Conservative party.

"It affirms its adherence to the principles of that policy in its declared objects of stimulating the development of the natural resources of the Dominion; preserving and enlarging the market for Canadian farm products; building up the industries of Canada, and thus creating employment for our workmen; promoting inter-provincial trade, and generally providing a diversified economic life which will be effectual in retaining Canada's sons and daughters within our own boundaries

Customs Tariff.

"This convention affirms the principle that from time to time as changing conditions require, the Customs tariff should be revised and its rates readjusted and through it brought into conformity with such conditions.

"In such revisions, regard should be had not only to the objects of fiscal policy herein enumerated, but to the welfare of the consumer, and it is desirable in the national interest that in such revisions the cost of living and the cost of the implements used in production of whatever nature, should be given special and attentive study, with a view to the reduction of such costs to the extent practicable.

Permanent Commission.

"This convention affirms the policy first introduced by the Liberal-Conservative Government in 1912, that with a view of having tariff rates under scientific investigation, a permanent tariff commission should be appointed, representative of the three great classes of Canadian industry — agriculture, labor and manufacturing — entrusted with the duty of studying tariff problems and making such recommendations to the Government as it deems in the public interest with reasons therefor. Should it find that unfair advantage is being taken of tariff duties it shall make recommendations to be given effect to by the Government for reducing or removing tariff schedules or imposing special duties of excise upon products in respect of which such advantage has been taken, and its reports, findings and reasons therefor shall be laid before Parliament and made known to the public.

"And this convention expresses the view that, while strong effort should be directed towards the establishment of a system of preferential tariffs throughout the Empire, no preference should be given at the expense of Canadian farmer or workman, and all such preference should be conditional upon the use of Canadian ports."

Resolution on Labor.

The resolution on Labor which will be submitted to the convention reads:

"Resolved, that this convention accept and adopt as a part of the platform of the Liberal-Conservative party, the terms of the Labor convention and general principles associated with it, which forms part of the treaty of peace of 1919.

"This convention and these principles, adopted as they were on motion of Canada's then Prime Minister, accepted and subscribed to by representatives of governments, of employers and of Labor from many countries of the world, form a fitting foundation upon which stability in industrial relations and progressive social legislation may securely rest.

Methods, Principles.

"The methods and principles as described in the treaty are:

"(1) The guiding principle above enunciated that Labor should not be regarded merely as a commodity or article of commerce.

"(2) The right of association for all lawful purposes by the employee as well as by the employers.

"(3) The payment to the employed of a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable state of life as this is understood in their time and country.

"(4) The adoption of an eight-hour day or a 48-hour week, as the standard to be aimed at where it has not already been obtained.

"(5) The adoption of a weekly rest day of at least 24 hours, which should include Sunday whenever practicable.

Child Labor.

"(6) The abolition of child labor and the imposition of such limitations on the labor of young persons as shall permit the continuation of their education and assure their proper physical development.

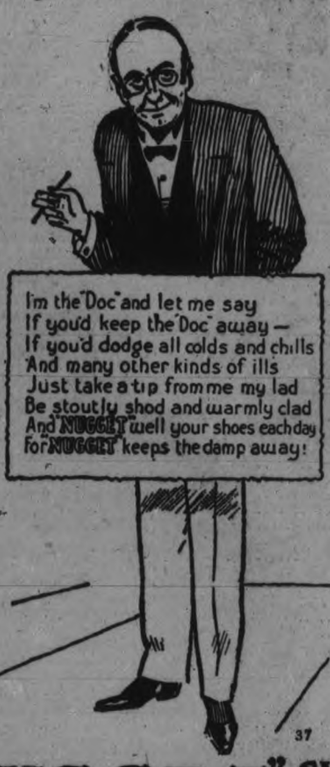
"(7) The principle that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value.

"(8) The standard set by law in each country with respect to the condition of labor should have due regard to the equitable economic treatment of all workers lawfully resident therein.

"(9) Each State should make provision for a system of inspection in which women should take part in order to ensure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the employees.

Social Justice.

"And be it further resolved:



37

"NUGGET" SHOE POLISH

"(1) That national peace and prosperity can be established only if based on social justice.

"(2) To promote industrial peace and human welfare is the duty of the State.

"To best accomplish this the following is adopted:

"(1) Encouragement of the production of goods within Canada by Canadian labor.

"(2) Conversion of our raw materials into finished goods at home rather than exporting them for manufacture abroad.

"(3) Encourage specially industries that afford reasonable continuity of employment.

Promote Co-operation.

"(4) That all possible aid be given capital and labor by encouraging both to promote co-operation, conciliation and arbitration methods in adjusting controversies between these two important factors in the country's industrial life.

"(5) By co-operation between Government, capital, and labor extend the scope and use of public employment service, thereby reducing labor turnover and giving unemployed workmen access to wider employment opportunities.

"(6) Encourage the prevention of employment of children under sixteen years of age.

Land Settlement.

"(7) Make available to Canadian citizens, and especially to returned soldiers, any offers of assistance for land settlement that are extended to prospective immigrants from other countries.

"(8) Consultation with representatives of both employers and employees on matters affecting them, and representation for both on Federal boards or commissions dealing with matters directly affecting their interests.

"(9) So far as is practicable, to support social legislation designed to conserve human life, health and temperance, to relieve distress during periods of unemployment, sickness and old age.

"(10) To encourage uniformity in labor laws throughout Canada and the wider spread of technical education both in industry and agriculture."

Free C.N.R. From Politics.

Another resolution will be placed before the convention as follows:

"That the Conservative party pledges itself to maintain the Canadian National Railways as a publicly-owned and operated utility."

The resolution further pledges the Conservative party:

"To make the directors of that railway non-partisan and free from political interference."

The full text is as follows:

"Whereas the Canadian Pacific Railway owes its existence to the courage and vision of Conservative statesmen.

"And whereas the amalgamation of the different units now comprising 'the Canadian National Railways' was achieved by the Conservative party:

"And whereas it is in the best interests of our country that both railway systems should remain separate and apart;

"Be it resolved therefore, that the Conservative party pledges itself to maintain the Canadian National Railways as a publicly owned and operated utility and to make the directorate of that railway non-partisan and free from political interference."

KING WANTED NEWS EARLY

Late King Edward Irritated When Not Told of Ministerial Resolutions.

DISLIKED LLOYD GEORGE.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press Cable).—In the late Sir Sidney Lee's life of King Edward, the second part of which is published today, there are many references to statesmen still living. Lloyd George is described as a thorn in Edward's side while throughout the work instances are given of the king's irritation when not informed at the earliest possible moment of important ministerial resolutions to be moved in Parliament.

The biography states Edward appreciated the legal qualities of Asquith but was never cordial with him.

Would Have Abdicated.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(United Press).—King Edward VII wanted to abdicate his throne toward the end of his reign and was persuaded to continue to rule only with greatest difficulty, his official biography disclosed today. "The King sometimes was depressed, lethargic and obsessed by most gloomy thoughts," the biography said. "Frequently he entertained the idea of abdicating and was dissuaded only with greatest difficulty."

The disclosure aroused particular interest because of gossip—not however credited—that the Prince of Wales was not over enthusiastic at the prospect of reigning. The biography contained letters of outspoken criticism by the late King in which not only statesmen but his own brother, the Duke of Connaught were named.

David Lloyd George, Winston Churchill, Lord Oxford—then Herbert H. Asquith—Reginald McKenna, former Chanchellor of the Exchequer, and Viscount Gladstone were among the men who incurred the royal displeasure.

TELLS OF FARMING IN THE DOMINION

Dr. J. H. Grisdale Discusses Canadian Agriculture With British Newspapermen.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press Cable).—Some amusing passages occurred between Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Canadian Deputy Minister of Agriculture ,and a considerable body of British newspapermen who were invited to meet him at Canada House yesterday.

To the first question asked him, "Does farming pay?" Mr. Grisdale delivered an optimistic account of this year's Canadian crops and cattle raising. His audience seemed surprised to hear that tobacco-growing was successfully followed in Canada, although as far as the British market for the weed was concerned Mr. Grisdale declared that the Britishers' tastes were hard to change.

"All this is very cheerful about Canada, but can you suggest any remedies for British agriculture," declared a pressman connected with a paper which has long been deploring the present state of the British farmer with a hardly-concealed desire thereby to "throw a monkey wrench" into Premier Stanley Baldwin's machinery.

"I could, but I had better not for your publication," replied Mr. Grisdale, whereon the pressman good-temperedly intimated it was scarcely worth while asking any more questions.

Milk Products

Mr. Grisdale then permitted his hearers to record his opinion on milk products handled in Canada by farmers' organizations who maintained their interest in the product until it reached the consumer. It was handled more expeditiously and, in the cities, more hygienically. The Canadian Minister declared that the little milk handcarts seen here would be considered a joke in Canada. Some of his audience assured him that delivery on a large scale was not unknown here. The small delivery was gradually being eliminated in London.

"Mighty gradually I should say," responded Mr. Grisdale, who asserted that delivery here was very much behind the method employed in Canada in the matter of speed.

One newspaperman reared in Devonshire (very few London newspapermen acknowledge the metropolis as their birthplace) was instantly on his feet to explain the speed with which Plymouth receives its morning milk. Another man from Norfolk rendered like testimony to the early-bird character of his native county.

Mr. Grisdale then proceeded to express his opinion that English and Scottish farmers employed an unnecessarily large number of men—anything from a third to a half too many. "I have also noticed here two men working one horse, whereas we should have one man working two horses." He admitted that British cattle were well fed but had seen a lot of stables of which he did not think very much.

"Our farmers are very hard up," suggested a representative of a newspaper which is despondent about the British agriculturist.

"Your beef is well fed and you do not market it so precipitately as we," admitted the Deputy Minister.

Exhibition Notes

FREE GAMES

At the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition to-night a free play will be given at all games at seven o'clock, President Jack Craig announced to-day. It will be necessary to be on hand early as many will wish to take advantage of this free chance at Bingo, Darts and the Wheels.

Many hundreds of votes have been turned in already on the best booth, and it is apparent that the race for the prize will be a close one.

A NOTABLE VISIT.

The visit of Pig Skin Peters to the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition to-night marks a red letter day in the history of the big fair. He must be seen to be appreciated.

Before playing Bingo call at the fortune telling tent and find how your luck is.

The dance proved just as popular as ever last night, with a real peppy orchestra. Another to-night in the south-west room, upstairs.

Chief Gimblett didn't have much luck last night, but he ran John Seels a close race in endurance. Sergeant Art Thomas wasn't far behind them.

THAT BINGO GAME.

For the benefit of those who have never played Bingo, the following instructions are given:

Every card has five rows of numbers up and across, with the word BINGO printed across the top. The caller-out picks little wooden cylinders at random from a container and calls out the letter that is printed on one side, and the number that is printed on the other. The players place a kernel of corn on the number under the letter called, if it is on their cards. The space in the middle is given free to start the card. When a player has five kernels of corn in a straight line across the card, or up and down, or diagonally from corner to corner, he shouts "Bingo." If the Bingo is found to be correct when checked back by assistants at the counter, a coupon is given the winner, entitling him to a prize.

When the numbers are drawn from the container by the caller-off they are placed on a master board, so that there can be no mistake.

When two or more players win on the same "Bingo," full prizes are given both.

Bingo is a fascinating game, absolutely square. No one can tell in what order the little cylinders will be drawn, so everyone has an equal chance.

To-night's show at the grand stand is just as good as any that have gone before, and is different. The hall was crowded at both shows last night, and those who wish to see to-night's programme should be well on time.

"The Fast Way to Health"

PRE-DISEASE CONDITIONS

We have heard so much about pre-war conditions that I feel the urge to call your attention to some pre-disease conditions, and thus assist you in preventing avoidable disease wars in your body. No acute disease comes on without due warning any more than war between countries starts without repeated warning of the impending disaster. As apparently sudden mobilizing of troops is the result of definite causes which could have been understood and avoided, so it is also true that the seemingly sudden upset of an acute disease is always understandable and preventable if studied in time. One does not instantly become sick with fever and chills, and the body is not abruptly thrown into the painful upheaval of an acute illness. Symptoms and warnings are constantly presenting themselves to you long before the actual condition of sickness shapes itself into a disorder which may be called by a special name. After the disease reaches the state where the symptoms of fever and pain are present, the diagnosis is indeed simple enough. You call in your doctor, and he can, after ascertaining your symptoms, give a name to the disorder.

It is far more important for you to study the pre-disease symptoms and thus prevent the actual sick spell. All acute diseases if allowed to develop are self-curative. However, the after-effects of these upsets leave the body battle-scarred and injured in ways that no amount of after-cure will remedy. While it is, of course, not wise to be on a constant lookout for trouble, it is also the height of folly to allow yourself to neglect to notice those plain pre-disease signs which always warn you of impending danger. If you feel sleepy after meals, perhaps you are eating more food than the body requires. Are you conscious of distress any place in the abdomen? Notice if this does not come from using too much food or food in improper combinations. Do you wake up more tired than when you went to bed? This is usually due to mental causes which tire you out more when sleeping than in waking hours. Chronic habits of destructive thinking are the principal causes of this waste of nerve force. Study all you can about psychology and the effect of the emotions upon the body for good or evil. Are you restless at night? This may be due to the same causes or to intestinal gas pressure against one of the vital organs. Does your heart beat hard enough for you to notice it while lying in bed? This is due to a stomach distended with too much food, or full of excessive gas. Do you require more than eight hours of sleep to refresh you? Sometimes this is because you have not taken enough physical exercise during the day. The laborer usually requires less sleep than the brain-worker who does not supplement his mental activity with sufficient vigorous physical exercise.

Study out the cause of these simple forerunners of disease and you will find it an interesting and profitable way to learn how to avoid the more serious consequences of acute disease.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Loretta P. writes: "I am fourteen years of age and have developed a "simple" goitre. Was advised by the school doctor to take a mixture of sodium iodine but obtained poor results from the two bottles I used. Now everyone suggests rubbing iodine on the outside of my throat. Do you think my diet has been the cause of this goitre?"

Answer: The cure of simple goitre is simple enough through dieting, without the use of any medicinal preparations. You get all the iodine you need in a well balanced diet, and it is much better for you in this organic form than the mineral iodine of drug preparations. Your goitre will quickly reduce in size if you will take a fast, using one kind of fruit on any one day and continuing with the fruit regimen until your thryoid is practically normal in size. Then follow the daily menus which I arrange for you in each Saturday's article, but leave out the starchy meals and substitute fruit.

Question: G. J. writes: "Am saving your articles and making a scrapbook of them, but I lost the one which appeared a few days ago about the way to use starchy foods. How can I get this article?"

Answer: Any article which has appeared in this column will be sent to you if you will name the article, and send your name and address.

Question: George H. writes: "I have soft corns between my little toes which pain me very much. One doctor told me to use steel supports for my arches and another told me I did not have fallen arches, but should put something between the toes to separate them. I will appreciate your advice."

Answer: Soak your feet in hot Epsom Salts water for 30 minutes at a time twice daily. After about 2 weeks the soft corns will separate from the toes and can be easily taken out. Continue the hot water treatment for about a week at least once a day, massaging the feet afterwards with coco butter. Develop your arches by walking pigeon-toed part of the time when taking your daily walks.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE ELDEST CHILD

The eldest child is more than child.
The eldest child is parent, too,
Upon the eldest life has piled
The burden that the parent knew.
The eldest child must tend and care,
The eldest child must give and share,
And, when the younger has appealed,
The eldest child must always yield.

The younger children know the ease
Of later years and better days;
The eldest knew the povertys
Of pioneers, the harder ways.
Denied the things that children crave,
The eldest child has had to save.
With sacrifice has helped to build
This house with joy and comfort filled.

So, when we pay our meed o f love
To gentle mother, toiling sire,
I hope it brings a memory of
Another heart that did not tire—
The more than daughter, more than son,
Of all their brood the eldest one,
A sister-mother that we knew,
A brother who was father, too.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

NEW SILLS FILM.

Molly O'Day, Stone, Lewis and Fawcett Support Star in "Hard-Boiled Haggerty."

"Hard-Boiled Haggerty", Milton Sills' latest starring picture, coming tomorrow to the Capitol Theatre, is particularly notable for the fact that it contains not only a powerful characterization for the star, but unusually strong and effective ones for many other story characters.

Milton Sills in "Hard Boiled Haggerty"

Molly O'Day plays opposite the star in the role of a French girl of mystery, with whom Haggerty falls in love. Much comedy, and a burden of tense drama as well as the romantice side of the picture falls upon this new, very capable and attractive little actress.

Arthr Stone, army "buddy" of the fighting flier hero, is both clown and dramatic figure, and Mitchell Lewis as an air service major has a big dramatic part as human and powerful as his "Poleon Doret" of "The Barrier", of his famous stage role of "Captain Flagg" in "What Price Glory."

George Fawcett appears in one of the strongest and most warmly human characterizations of his screen career, and Yola d'Avril, French dancing girl "find" of First National Pictures, producers of "Hard-Boiled Haggerty", has a splendid part as the cafe dancer.

The picture is filled with color, romance and thrilling action, with a liberal spicing of the best of comedy. Wid Gunning produced it for First National, Charles Brabin directed it, and Carey Wilson adapted the story from a magazine mystery tale by Elliott White Springs.

AT THE REGENT.

Malcolm Waite, who plays the role of Bergerin, villainous circus owner in Fox Films screen production of Rene Fauchois' world famous stage mystery play, "The Monkey Talks," now playing at the Regent Theatre, spent three years in Paris, following the great conflict and is thoroughly familiar with the character he portrays in the photoplay.

"Travelling circuses in France were always of great interest to me," said Waite, "because of the picturesque appearance of the conveyances. The circus wagons were hauled from one little village to another by slow mule power. As the procession would approach its next stand the circus owner would stop and literally cover everything with brilliant posters. This was practically the only method of advertising employed by such organizations."

Olive Borden plays the leading feminine role with Don Alvarado Jacques Lerner, Raymond Hitchcock, Jane Winton and August Tollaire are prominent in support.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died sewing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary becomes acquainted with Wally Mason, a young reporter. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married; but Mary disbelieves in love. Wally tells her he loves her. She, troubled, says she does not love him. Coming home, she learns David has been in an accident.

"Well Mary, it seems that Davie's crashing into that car killed Arthur Graham's fiancee."

Mr. Tomlinson had come quite close to her, prepared to catch her if she fell in a faint, which was what he expected of her because it was the way in which all womenfolk acted at the receipt of bad news. He put out a hand in readiness and then let it fall in some embarrassment. Young Robert's hold on Mary tightened, and he burrowed his head still deeper into its resting place. Mr. Tomlinson tiptoed to the door and shushed away Freddie, whose small round face was pressed against the screen. When he returned Mary was still standing as he had left her, and her gaze was fixed on nothing.

"We're sorry, Mary, Mrs. Tomlinson and I." He cleared his throat, and shot a glance at her. "We'll do everything we can—Mrs. Tomlinson's nephew has a friend who is secretary to the Mayor, and if that'll help—No use feelin' bad about it Mary. Its just one of those things that come like a bo' from the blue and hit you—" Mr. Tomlinson continued, very earnestly, a bit stutteringly, looking at the girl before him now and then, thinking that the flow of words would sooth her, and numb the hurt. As a matter of fact, although Mary continued to gaze at him, it was only because he was in her direct line of vision and it was too painful to bother changing her gaze. A very long time ago—aeons ago—it hurt to think back that far—some one else had mentioned that bolt from the blue. Some one—her mind groped mechanically for the details of the incident. It had been so long ago—there had been the rush of night on either side of a car—a little green car and Wally. It was a relief. It had been Wally, of course. He had said—what was it he had said? Again the pain of recalling. "Tell me, Mary—what would you do if the bolt from the blue came to you, and the road was dimmed for a while?" And she had answered cockily, "What would I do? What would I do? I'd leap the chasm, and go right merrily on!" But the chasm here was so wide. It was so tearing wide. To look down into its depths dizzied her. She realized that she couldn't leap it, that she lacked the will to leap it. And why bother at all? It was so restful on the side, with the peace that seeps through pain—

"They claim Davie was drunk while driving."

"Well Mary," Mr. Tomlinson patted her shoulder. "Well—I guess I'll be going. It's too late to do anything today, anyway. You go to bed and get some sleep, Mary, and tomorrow everything'll be brighter, you'll see."

"I want to know more," said Mary. She had struggled above the eddies of thought and pain and numbed feeling. "Please, Mr. Tomlinson, I must know more."

He gazed at her doubtfully. "I'm perfectly all right. It—it was rather staggering—at first, you understand?" She managed a smile, eager to let him see that she could bear whatever was coming. "But now—I must know everything, Mr. Tomlinson, please!"

"Well, Mary, there's not so much." He drew a chair up for her and young Robert, and seated himself opposite.

"Was it this young English society girl that Arthur Graham was going to marry?"

"The same one, Mary. The papers have had nothing else for a week. Yes. A princess or something, wasn't she?" doubtfully.

"I don't know. I didn't bother to read about it."

"Well—a princess or a duchess was what Mrs. Tomlinson said. I didn't bother to read about it either, Mary. But I guess you and I are the only ones that didn't." He sucked at his pipe. "Beautiful, too—Mrs. Tomlinson said. They were to be married in a week."

"It's — it's frightful," Mary choked.

"Well—it's the hand of God, Mary. They can't do a thing with Davie, though. Don't let that worry you. It was either that youngster or the car, and Davie thought he could avoid both. Fell——"

"You're sure, Mr. Tomlinson, that they can't do anything to Davie?" The sureness, the stolid comfort that emanated from masculinity. She longed to bathe in it.

"Well—they couldn't ordinarily, but they claim, Mary, they claim Davie was drunk while driving." Mr. Tomlinson gazed down into the bowl of his pipe, and then from it to Mary. A little glance that caught and held at his eyelids.

Drunk? She didn't understand. David drunk? But David didn't drink. How very funny. David didn't drink. She told it to Mr. Tomlinson, certain that he had erred some way in his speech.

"But, Mr. Tomlinson," eagerly, "David doesn't drink!" Somehow she felt that this was what had been wrong all this while. Now it would be cleared up.

"Yes. I know. But they don't know that, Mary. They found an empty whiskey bottle on him."

An empty whiskey bottle. But how—oh, how, on David? It couldn't be. And then young Robert spoke up in a small, grave voice. "Don't you remember, Mary? That's the bottle that had his tea in it, don't you remember?"

The whiskey flask they had used used for his hot tea until they could afford a thermos bottle! Of course she remembered it, and thought of the change in the little cream pitcher in the cupboard which was to have gone toward the sum necessary for the thermos bottle. But—but, how silly, how silly to suspect David of carrying in it anything but tea! How—how absurd. She laughed shakily, a bit bewildered.

"But how silly, Mr. Tomlinson," she told him. "How—how absurd. I—"

Mr. Tomlinson cleared his throat. "Well, Mary, that there's what they call circumstantial evidence." He looked grave.

Mary grew a bit wild at that. "But can't I do anything?" She put Robert from her lap, and came to stand before the little man, her hands clasping each other nervously, one hand pulling, pulling at the thumb of the other.

"Well Mary. That's just as I said. We can't do anything tonight. But tomorrow—just go to bed and rest up, and tomorrow I'll see what can be done. Just go to bed and rest up Mary, and don't let this bother you, and tomorrow we'll see what can be done." Mr. Tomlinson patted the girl's shoulder awkwardly, muttered "good night, Mary—now please—hm—please just rest up—" and was gone. He had shut the screen door carefully behind him, and she heard his footsteps down the stairs and across the walk, then silence.

Mary pushed the heavy fringe of hair from her forehead, and was vaguely surprised to find it wet. Young Robert came to her and said, "What are you going to do, Mary?" His little face was streaked and smudged, and his lashes tangled with wet. He knew, however, did Robert, that everything would be straightened out somehow, now that Mary was here.

"I don't know, Bob. I don't know what to do."

David in prison. David charged with murder. David in prison, behind iron bars. David white and wan with harrowing thoughts of the two whom he had left behind. David with visions of mother who had charged his small self with the care of the two younger than he. David racked by the avalanche that had suddenly slid down upon him, burying him head and shoulders, making it painful to breathe, to live—

"Mary?" Young Robert again, worried by the flowing moments, and anxious for his bulwark, his staunch ally in times of need, to rise and charge upon their common sorrow. This was a strangely white Mary. Where was the laugh and lilt of her gay young head, and the eagerness that acted as a buoy to keep her spirit and body afloat? She seemed strangely sunken, this Mary. Sodden, as if something alien had seeped through her veins and congealed into a mass that kept her earthbound.

COLOMBIA SENDS U. S. PLATINUM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The important part which Colombia, leading platinum producing country of the world plays in the domestic market, is indicated by figures from the Department of Commerce showing that practically the entire platinum production of Colombia is exported to the United States.

The United States is the greatest market in the world for platinum, importing in 1926 114,968 ounces, valued at $11,803,609. About one third of this came from Colombia.

While the exportation of platinum has been practically stationary during the past five years, a ministerial decree has opened up one of the largest concessions and the production during 1927 will exceed that of any previous year.

WEDDING BELLS.

SIMPSON—CROWE.

The marriage took place on Thursday, Sept. 29th at Alderville United Church Parsonage, of Miss Mary Alma Crowe, only daughter of Mr. Albert Crowe, and Mr. John Dulmage Simpson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simpson, both of Alderville. The Rev. Harold Wilding, B.A., officiated.

Not Corsets Now— Foundation Garments

A large number of ladies of the city attended the special showing of Gossard foundation garments shown at the J. C. Turnbull Company's store yesterday afternoon and evening, with the Gossard Company's expert, Mrs Lillian Gibbons, present with a trio of models to demonstrate and explain the various types of garments shown. The visit of Mrs. Gibbons, who has just returned from an extended visit to the fashion centres of Paris, brought here by the enterprise of the Turnbull Store, to give the ladies of the city a first-hand opportunity to hear of the latest ideas in garments of this type, was evidently much appreciated by those who listened to her yesterday afternoon and evening and an interesting display of various forms of these "foundation undergarments," a term which has supplanted the former term of "corset," as most of them are without the severe boning of the older garment, was made by three lady models of the large, medium, and slender figure type.

Whether this information will be received with acclaim or sorrow by the ladies of the city is problematical, but Mrs. Gibobns, in her talk yesterday, prophesied with great emphasis the return of the bust line that has faded into obscurity during past years, when the flat figure of the silhouette lady in the fashion pictures was the envy of all feminine desirers of modish lines. A distinct bust line of a gently modelled type is the newest idea, according to Mrs. Gibbons, and the Gossard garments are designed to meet this requirement.

A full line was shown of all the variations of "step-ins," which are lightly-boned small variations of the old corset, of "completes," which combine a brassiere and lower enveloping garment in one, and of "wrap arounds," which are just like their name, also a "negligee" belt, which is really a negligible affair of extreme scantiness, with a narrow belt holding wide elastic garters. These were developed in pink, in coutil and Swami cloth and elastic, the latter being strongly recommended by Mrs. Gibbons for general use. These were demonstrated in the attractive small theatre contrived on the third floor of the establishment, with curtained walls, stage decorated with floor lamps and ferns and background of velvet hangings.

Mrs. Gibbons spoke of the proper posture which should be practised by every woman, in an erect carriage and flattened abdomen ,also giving several beneficial exercises designed to correct fatty abdominal tissues and inert muscles.

Garments for house, evening and street wear were shown, the speaker emphasizing the difference necessary in choosing such apparel for various occasions, and the absolute necessity of proper under garments to preserve a svelte, graceful, smooth poise and free grace of the body, held and supported naturally.

With the garments were demonstrated also some lovely things in lingerie, including a hand-painted, knit silk Pullman robe, pyjamas ,and negligees, and smoking, or lounging, jackets, in solid and pale colours of two tones. A diagonal neckline in a peach nightgown trimmed with corn colour, was a new note, and a fussy set was of orchid silk with ruffles of cream lace. A dark lounging robe was effectively ornamented with gay encircled parrots.

Consultation by patrons with Mrs. Gibbons also went on yesterday afternoon and evening, and continued to-day.

WOMAN'S EYES BLACKENED AT COUNTY HOME

Superintendent Says He Used Fists When Aged Inmate Threatened Him.

SAYS SHE USED STICK.

Grand Jury Demands Investigation in Report at Assizes—Inquiry Begun.

That one of the aged women residents of the County House of Refuge had two black eyes and a scalp wound, inflicted on her by Superintendent John Mayes, was the discovery made by the Grand Jury on its investigation yesterday, and reported to the Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly at the Fall sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario. These injuries the superintendent admitted causing, saying that the woman had attacked him with a stick of firewood.

A full investigation of the circumstances is called for by the report, and the House of Refuge Board of the County Council visited the Home this afternoon to ascertain all the facts of the case.

The report follows:

"To His Lordship, the Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly:

"The members of the Grand Jury of the County of Peterborough, called to attend the sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario at Peterborough, commencing the eleventh day of October, 1927, beg respectfully to report to Your Lordship that we have now completed the duties devolving upon us.

"Two indictments for very serious offences were brought before the Grand Jury, and after hearing the evidence submitted, true bills were reported.

"We extend congratulations to Your Lordship that other than above stated no criminal cases are occupying the attention of this court. We desire at the same time to assure Your Lordship that this community is generally very free from crime; that law and order are not only well maintained, but we have pleasure in assuring Your Lordship that public opinion is behind the officials of the Crown, in the enforcement of the law enacted for the public welfare and protection.

Pursuant to your instructions with reference to the scope o four duties, we have inspected a number of institutions that are in receipt of public moneys. We visited Nicholls hospital and St .Joseph's hospital and are pleased to report that we found both these institutions in splendid order and we came away convinced that in these hospitals the sick and suffering are provided with every assistance, and we feel sure that the skill of the physician and surgeon, and the care and attention of those in charge of these institutions, with their willing bands of, nurses, are doing much to relieve the pain and distress of those who find themselves patients at these hospitals.

"At the gaol we found two women. One of them had with her her infant child, about one year old. We learned that the mother and child had been in gaol for upwards of ten months. Your jurors are not able to suggest a remedy, but they would be pleased if the authorities could find a more suitable place than the common gaol for the incarceration of the mother and her baby.

"We also found at the goal an insane Chinaman, who has been confined there since April last. We understand that the Grand Jury at the sittings of the General Sessions of the Peace in June also commented on this fact at that time. It seems clear to your jurors that the confinement of an insane man in the common gaol is from almost any standpoint a matter to be deplored, and we venture to express the hope that the authorities will soon find a way to relieve the goal officials of a care that should not be placed upon them, especially having regard to the ordinary gaol facilities.

"The cleanliness and tidiness we found existing in the gaol met with our full approval, and the gaoler, turnkey, and gaol matron are deserving of every commendation.

"The County Buildings were found in a clean and tidy condition, and speaking generally in a good state of repair. Your jurors, however, would call to the attention of the County authorities the desirability of

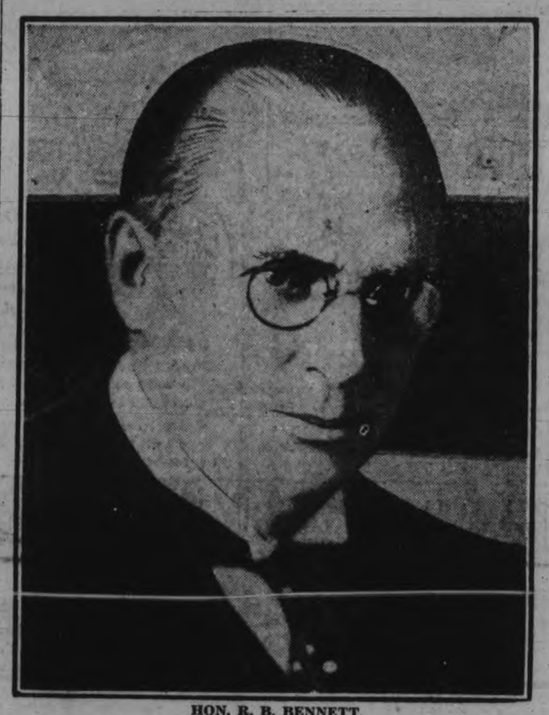
Bennett is Elected Upon Second Ballot At Tory Convention

Leads From Outset, With Guthrie Second, Cahan Third—Obtains Two More Votes Than Necessary For the Election.

MOTION TO MAKE ELECTION UNANIMOUS CARRIED BY MEMBERS OF CONVENTION

Before Concluding Final Business of Evening, Immigration Resolution Adopted As Originally Submitted Providing For "Oriental Exclusion."



HON. R. B. BENNETT,
Calgary millionaire, selected by the Conservative Convention at Winnipeg as the right man to lead the party into power at the Federal House.

AMPHITHEATRE, WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Hon. R. B. Bennett is the new leader of the Conservative party. On the second ballot, the Convention, late yesterday afternoon accorded him two more votes than the necessary one-half of all votes cast. The second ballot stood:

Bennett	780
Guthrie	320
Cahan	266
Manion	148
Rogers	37
Drayton	3
Total	1554

To secure election Mr. Bennett needed to have 778 votes; he actually secured 780.

Mr. Bennett led from the first ballot.

In this Mr. Bennett secured 594 votes or 249 more than Mr. Guthrie, who came second. But although well ahead, Mr. Bennett still needed 139 votes to secure the necessary majority of all votes cast. The second bulletin saw a swinging of votes towards Mr. Bennett. From 594 in the first ballot, he rose to 780 in the second. Hon. Hugh Guthrie dropped from 345 to 320; Hon. R. J. Manion from 170 to 148; C. H. Cahan from 310 to 266; Hon. Robert Rogers from 114 to 37; Sir Henry Drayton from 31 to 3.

Election Unanimous

When Mr. Bennett's victory was announced, delegates and spectators rose in wild applause. Hon. Hugh Guthrie moved that the election of Mr. Bennett be made unanimous; C. H. Cahan seconded it; Hon. R. J. Manion added his "third." The new leader, with much emotion, expressed his thanks and amid wild cheering, the motion carried.

The convention had still some routine business to transact. But delegates were in little mood for routine affairs. They shouted and sang and filed into a queue that stretched across the amphitheatre waiting to shake hands with Mr. Bennett and extend congratulations. Business finally ended, they rose and sang the National Anthem, the first National Conservative Convention was over, but the hand-shaking continued until into early evening hours.

Amphitheatre, Winnipeg, Man., Oct 13. Canadian Press. — Before the Conservative convention concluded its business, it adopted the immigration resolution as originally submitted. This provided for "Oriental exclusion."

On Tuesday the resolution was sent back to the drafting committee with instructions that the clause providing for the exclusion of Orientals be changed. The spokesman of the committee in reporting back to the convention yesterday declared that it had been unanimously agreed to re-submit the resolution without any alteration.

This announcement brought immediate protest from Sir George Foster, who originally moved the re-phrasing of the resolution. Canada, he said had a perfect right to exclude immigrants on the ground of physical unfitness and adaptability, but it was a serious thing he contended for the convention to place itself on record banning a large percentage of the human race. It would be a serious mistake and greatly injure Canada in the eyes of other nations.

Sir George moved an amendment, seconded by Sir James Aikins of Winnipeg, that the resolution be not accepted in the form as presented.

In support of the original resolution, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Vancouver, declared that if any alteration were made in the resolution, which gave the right for greater encouragement of Oriental immigration, it would mean placing British Columbia out of the realm of the Conservative party.

The resolution containing the Oriental exclusion clause was then passed by the convention by an overwhelming majority.

Brig.-General Ross, Kingston proposed a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee whose duties would be to see that the last resting place of Sir John A. Macdonald, first Premier of Canada, should be properly marked and permanently cared for. This resolution carried unanimously, as was another recommending the establishment of a permanent residence in Ottawa for the leader of the Conservative party.

WILLIAM H. HILL PASSES AWAY

Says Radio Never Take Place of Newspaper Broadcasting Probably Encourges Reading

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Radio never can take the place of the newspaper and broadcasting probably encourages newspaper reading, Guglielmo Marconi told The Evening World yesterday.

The leading authority on radio in the world seemed amused by the idea that the invention which he did so much to develop ever could harm the newspaper.

People listen in to radio reports of outstanding events, he pointed out, but then they buy a newspaper to find out more.

"The newspaper has this distinct advantage," he said: "It is a record. You cannot paste a radio announcement in a scrapbook; the newspaper puts the news down in black and white."

"Of course, the radio has its advantages, the inventor said. "A radio impulse can travel around the world in one-seventh of a second and news can be transmitted almost instantaneously." The newspaper cannot bring to the world the splendid musical programmes available through the radio, but the press, he feels, always will be the big power in the world for the expression of opinion by rulers and statesmen and for the big events of news.

TRANS-ATLANTIC WOMAN FLIER SAVED BY TANKER AT AZORES WHEN PLANE OIL LINE BREAKS

Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldemand Report By Wireless.

GREAT RELIEF.

Ship Is Not Due in Port Until Mid-November, Say Owners.

PARIS, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—The plane "American Girl," with Miss Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman, landed at sea beside the Dutch tanker Barendrecht with a broken oil line, she radioed the Paris office of the Associated Press to-day. The message was wirelessed from the Barendrecht to the steamship Bayano which relayed it to the wireless station at Devizes, England. It was as follows: "Landed by steamship Barendrecht with broken oil line. Both Haldeman and I O K.—Ruth Elder." The tanker is reported as leaving Valencia, Spain, on September 21 for Houston, Texas. The position of the tanker was not given in the message. The Radio Corporation of America announced it was informed by the steamer Olympic that the Dutch steamer Barendrecht had picked up the crew of the "American Girl" off the Azores.

Agents of the tanker Barendrecht at Houston, Texas, say the tanker is not due there until the middle of November. It was bound from Rotterdam and Valencia to Texas. It was likely, however, that it would put in at some port en route to Houston, agents said. A message from the Olympic received by the Radio Corporation said that the plane had been picked up off the Azores.

Home Town Rejoices.

LAKELAND, Florida, October 13 (Canadian Press).—This home town of Ruth Elder and Captain Haldeman was jubilant at the news of the fliers' safety, and plans for a celebration were begun. A mass meeting of citizens to-night will plan the welcome.

Families Relieved.

ANNISTON, Alabama, Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Sobs choked the voice of Mrs. J. O. Elder to-day as she gave thanks that no harm had befallen her adventurous daughter. The trans-Atlantic aviatorix family sat throughout the night, not daring to sleep. At New York, Mrs. Haldeman, wife of Ruth Elder's co-pilot, said: "I knew they would be all right." Backers of the flight also expressed the greatest relief and joy that the fliers were safe.

MANY SHIPS ON LOOKOUT FOR FLIERS WHO ARE SINCE FOUND

TAMPA, Fla., October 13 (Associated Press). — George Haldeman, co-pilot and navigator of the American Girl, now winging its way over the Atlantic with Ruth Elder, achieved recognition eight years ago for a feat now considered commonplace among aviators.

A late start from his home in Lakeland, 30 miles from here, put Haldeman over this city after dark. Unable to locate the field commonly used by fliers then, Haldeman made a forced landing in the race track of the local fair grounds, bringing his ship to earth without damage.

It was hailed by aviation journals and in flying circles as a "daring example of night flying." Haldeman's explanation that he had lost his way and was forced to land did not detract from the acclaim. It won for him the name of "Daredevil George."

A few weeks later Haldeman took his ship, a JN type Curtis biplane, across Tampa Bay, less than 10 miles

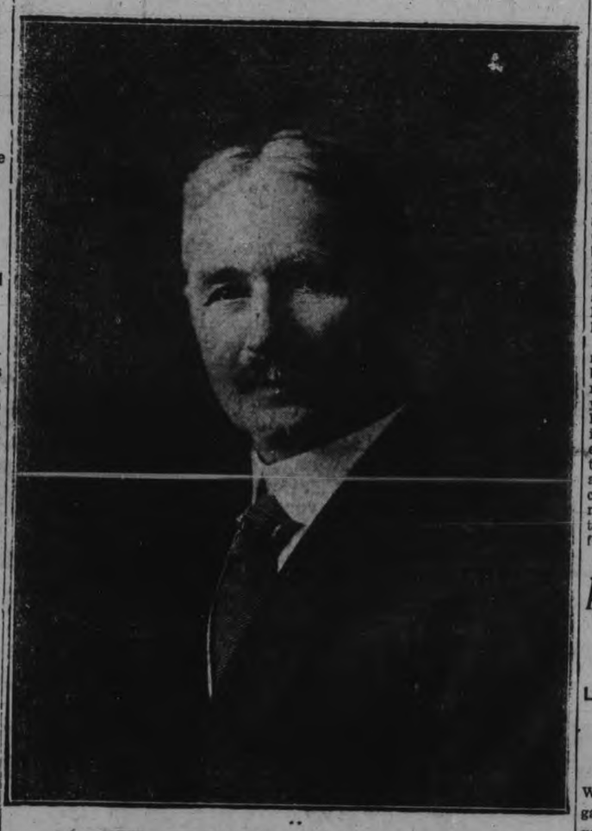
City Business Man Served Community Fifty-Four Years

Had Been Manager of Sun Life Assurance Co. in Central Ontario Since 1883—Previously Worked On Farm and Taught In School.

HELD MANY HONORABLE POSITIONS IN LIFE OF PETERBOROUGH CITY

Gave Service on the Board of Education, Nicholls Hospital Board, Public Library Board, Board of Water Commissioners, and Many Others.



William Henry Hill, 303 Brock Street, passed away last night after a considerable period of ill-health. His passing marks another break with the early days of Peterborough, and will be regretted by hundreds who have taken an active part in the city's business life during the past half century.

Mr. Hill was born at Inverness, Quebec, March 10, 1852, and after living there for eighteen years, he spent two years in Manitoba and one year in Jersey City. He came to Peterborough in September, 1873, and since that time has been outstandingly identified with the life of the town and city.

As a youth Mr. Hill worked on a farm for seven years; he taught school for seven years, and has been in the insurance business since 1882. He received his education at Inverness Academy and the Peterborough Collegiate Institute ,afterwards taking a certificate as a school teacher. He was a Presbyterian ,and for many years a member of St. Paul's Church, latterly serving as an elder of that church. At the installation of the new pipe organ in St. Paul's Church, Mr. Hill, as a memorial of his son Harold, killed overseas, donated the echo organ, a handsome addition to the church music.

Among the civic positions which he held at one time or another might be mentioned his service as honorary secretary of Nicholls Hospital Board, on which he served for more than twenty years; his thirty years' continuous service as a member of the local Board of Education, and as chairman of that Board; his twelve years' service as a member of the Board of Water Commissioners; his twenty years as a member of the Public Library Board; and his sixteen years as a member of the Horticultural Society. He was a Justice of the Peace, and a prominent Conservative.

Mr. Hill attended the Military School in 1871; was a Private in the 59th Megantic Infantry, and served in the Fenian Raid in 1870 at Point Levis, Quebec. He was afterward Captain in the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers for sixteen years. He took his Staff certificate in Toronto in 1901.

During the war period, Mr. Hill engaged actively in all patriotic campaigns and was a valued member of

STONEY LAKE MAN DROWNED

Body of Alec Lowe, of Glenwood, Found in Water Near Resort To-day.

MISSING SINCE SUNSET.

DOURO, October 13.— Alex. Lowe, proprietor of Glenwood, a summer resort on an island near Boschink Narrows, was drowned in Stoney Lake last night. His body was recovered about 3.30 to-day.

Fears were first raised by the discovery of his boat floating near the island early this morning. Mr. Lowe left Hamilton's Landing, on the Dummer shore of the lake, at sundown last night, with several parcels, to row to his hotel. The wind was blowing quite strongly at the time and it is thought that Mr. Lowe's heart, which had been troubling him all summer, gave out and he fell overboard. The parcels were in the boat, which was found floating right side up.

500 Persons Arrested On Conspiracy Charge

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Oct. 13 (Associated Press).—Five hundred persons are under arrest in Spain in connection with the recent discovery of a revolutionary conspiracy against the Primo De Rivera Government. The arrests centered in Madrid, Barcelona and Bilbao.

Several officers are numbered among the alleged conspirators.

At the same time preparations to call a general strike were halted by the police. The strike was alleged to have been hatched at Bilbao by followers of Indalecio Prieto, extreme Socialist leader.

BENNETT TAKES HELM TOWARD END OF MONTH

Inundated By Telegrams and Cables From All Parts.

NOTHING DEFINITE.

Will Devote Next Three Weeks To Settling Up Private Affairs.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—The new Conservative chieftain, the Hon. Richard Bedford Bennett, will probably take over the mantle of leadership toward the end of October. As yet, Mr. Bennett has made no arrangements to take up his residence in the Capital. He will likely leave Winnipeg late tonight. Definite arrangements in this regard are contingent on appointments to be made in the course of the day. At present, the probability is that Mr. Bennett will leave for Calgary direct.

Throughout the night and today telegrams and cables of congratulations from party followers, former classmates, legal associates and others poured in. From New Brunswick, where he was born, from Nova Scotia where he was educated, from Ontario and Quebec where he has business associations, from points farther West where he has practised law for years, and from British statesmen and leaders of the Bar in England, congratulatory messages have arrived.

Mr. Bennett will likely devote the next three weeks to arranging his business and legal affairs. He had no announcement to make today, as yesterday's speech is regarded by him as covering his views. It is definitely known that no speaking itinerary has so far been arranged for the new leaders. The party stalwarts are leaving the city as rapidly as they can make train and other arrangements. Some of those who arranged the convention, nowever, are resting for a few days.

AGENTS DESTROY RICH BOOZE CARGO

Liquor Valued at $600,000 Seized From Steamer Bulko.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—While representatives of "dry" organizations looked on, Federal agents yesterday destroyed the $600,000 liquor cargo of the steamer Bulko which was seized here last month with twelve members of the crew. The contraband, including 5,698 cases of wines and liquors, 190 barrels of rye and ten cases of "assorted goods" was burned on a lot in the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

As case after case of the cargo, which was termed by government chemists here, the finest liquor they had analyzed since the Volstead Act went into effect, was dumped on the fire, a large crowd gathered and deputy marshals were forced to charge the onlookers when they edged too near the "deadline."

A guard of the United States Attorney office, who was found with a bottle of Scotch whiskey in his hands was brought before Assistant United States Attorney Lanciano, who was among those supervising the work of destruction. The guard explained he was "borrowing" the liquor for a friend and was released after Lanciano warned him "not to be so dumb."

NORWOOD FAIR HAS DAMP DAY; EXHIBITS GOOD

Large Number of Animals of Fine Type Are Shown in Sheds.

RACES CALLED OFF.

Midway Pretty Well Rained Out—Judges Work Under Difficulty.

The fifty-ninth annual exhibition of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society at Norwood had a very wet reception yesterday when a miniature deluge descended from the clouds, continued to descend throughout the day, and swamped the grounds, much to the discomfiture of all concerned with the success of the fair. Those who took sufficient interest in the fair to attend yesterday kept well within the buildings or the shelter provided by the dripping awnings of the booths along the midway. There was no patronage for the plane-chairs and very little for the merry-go-round, while the only booths plying their trades were those equipped with awnings, and the fortune-teller, or palmist.

The cattle barns were fairly well filled. The sheds at the rear of the grounds harboured cattle, sheep, goats, hogs, and horses, and the judges stood around in the shelter of the barns or with a canopy of umbrellas hoisted above them, when they were forced out into the rain. There was also judging at the barns for cattle over to the west-end of the grounds, and the stalls along the road were all filled.

The horse races were, of course, called off, as the track was a sea of mud, and the area it enclosed was little better, for the ground used by the midway and the space for parking cars fairly oozed with mud at every step, and those who had had sufficient forethought to provide themselves with rubbers had great difficulty keeping them on their boots. A fairly strong gust of wind swept across the grounds occasionally, and many had the experience of having their umbrellas turned inside out.

Band Stays in Bus.

The Rangers Band of Peterborough provided music from the Comet bus, which was parked on the race track, near the midway, and blew their music out through the open doors and windows. In such close quarters the trombone player found his style rather cramped, but all did the best possible under the circumstances, and a fair result of close harmony was effected.

At the east entrance gate the Agricultural Department had their championship school fair tent, in which was exhibited the best from all the schools in the districts in which school fairs have been held by this Department. The exhibits were of a choice selection in every branch, art work, flowers, types of rope knots, collections of weeds, collections of leaves, needle work, knitting, products of household science and manual training classes, penmanship, vegetables, dolls' dresses, eggs, lunch boxes packed, fruit, grain, collections of injurious insects ,and collections of weed seeds. In one part of the large tent a platform was improvised and the public speaking champions of each district competed for the supremacy and premier honours before a large audience who came to seek shelter from the rain ,and stayed

RUSSELL SCOTT BORN IN MADOC

His Family Was Well Known in Hastings District at That Time.

GRANDFATHER AUCTIONEER.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 13.—Russell Scott, who hanged himself in a cell of the Chicago jail, was born in Madoc Village, in Hastings County, about 35 years ago, the son of Thomas Scott, who conducted the village barber shop at that time. The Scotts were well known in that neighborhood. The grandfather of Russell was an auctioneer, and also bought furs throughout the county. His son Thomas went to the United States for a time and returned with a wife and one son, Russell being born in this village a short time afterwards. The family remained for only about two years when they returned to the United States.

BRAVES STORMS OVER THE ATLANTIC

FATALLY INJURED.

QUEBEC, Que., October 13 (Canadian Press).—Jean Baptiste Belanger, 12, of L'Islet, Que., sustained fatal injuries when knocked down by an automobile. He died in Levis Hospital.

A 16-year-old youth, A. Rochefort of this city, who cut his hand while working in a tobacco factory at Levis, Que., died of blood poisoning yesterday.

In an attempt to be the first woman to make a transatlantic flight, and undismayed by the tragic fate of two other Amazons of the air, Miss Mildred Doran and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Ruth Elder of Lakeland, Florida, a 23-year-old southern beauty prize winner, took off from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, late on Tuesday afternoon in her plane, "American Girl," bound for Paris. During the 3,600-mile flight, Miss Elder, who possesses a pilot's license, was to take turns at the throttle with George Haldeman, her flying companion. The above photos show Miss Elder in three poses.

COMMITTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Simcoe Magistrate Sends Mrs. Talley To Trial on Poison Count.

TRIED IN SPRING.

SIMCOE, Ont., Oct. 13. — Canadian Press. — Mrs. Tessie Talley, 27, young widow of the late Emmett Talley of Delhi, who came to Canada with her husband from the Southern States back in 1921, wended her way under police escort last night to the local jail, where she will be confined during the long winter months until the Supreme Court is ready next spring to try her on a charge of murdering her husband on the night of July 31 last. After a long weary day in the police court during which the story of the events leading up to her husband's death on that fatal Sabbath night, allegedly from strychnine poisoning, was unfolded, Magistrate R. M. Gunton this afternoon rejected the plea of defence counsel for a possible acquittal, and heeded the plea of Crown Prosecutor for a full investigation by the courts.

"I find that there is sufficient evidence for further investigation and I cannot possibly pursue any other course than to commit the accused woman for trial at the next court having criminal jurisdiction, Magistrate Gunton declared.

Remains Calm.

Mrs. Talley bowed her head, and lowered her thick black eyelashes but only for a moment. She had no sooner heard the verdict of the court than she again assumed that air of apparent unconcern that has been characteristic of her since she first came into the limelight following the tragic death of her husband a few short weeks ago.

Less than half an hour after the magistrate had pronounced his decision she was sitting chatting laughingly with her lawyer, V. T. Foley of Chatham, and to all outward appearances she might have been merely one of the spectators in the crowded courtroom.

During the closing hours of the court session Mrs. Talley enjoyed a hearty laugh on more than one occasion when a particularly humorous aspect of the case was presented or some witness unwittingly made a remark that provoked a roar of laughter from the huge throng that jammed the courtroom.

Neighbors and friends testified of quarrels between the Talleys and Dr L. J. Rogers, provincial analyist declared that there was no poison in the liquor found in bottles in the Talley home. It was at first contended that Talley was poisoned by bootleg liquor.

HEINKEL PLANE D-1230 TO MAKE SECOND TRY AT ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Plane Forced To Descend at Brunsbuettel-Am-Elbe on First Lap.

RADIATOR LEAK.

Bad Wind Delays Hop-Off of Grayson Plane For Copenhagen.

Brunsbuettal-Au-Elbe, Germany, Oct. 13, — The Heinkel hydro-aeroplane D-1230, which yesterday began a flight on the first leg of a proposed journey to America, by way of the Azores, last night rested on the waters of the Elbe awaiting a new anchor before taking off again Thursday.

At 1.21 o'clock yesterday afternoon the hydro-aeroplane lifted itself out of the sunlit waters of the Bight of Warnemuende and took off on a southwesterly course in the direction of the English channel. Later in the afternoon the plane descended to the waters of the Elbe here, after a flight of approximately 130 miles.

The pilot, Horst Merz, the well-known Lufthansa navigator, said the descent was caused by a defective radiator. In the descent, however, the plane's anchor was lost in the Elbe. When the radiator was repaired it was decided that the plane would hop for Amsterdam to-day.

The loss of the anchor, an added complication, caused postponement of the take-off until Thursday. A new anchor is being brought from Warnemuende.

Besides Merz, the crew of the D-1230, are Fritz Rhade, mechanic and Wilhelm Beck ,pilot.

Delays Hop-off.

Old Orchard, Maine, Oct. 13 — A howling wind rapidly approaching gale proportions last night indefinitely held up the Sikorsky plane, the Dawn, in which Mrs. Frances W. Grayson and two male aviators had planned to hop off at five o'clock for Copenhagen.

The plane stood ready on the sand above the high water mark with tanks filled and motors pronounced perfect for the start although the high wind would have made a turn with the heavy ship precarious, its crew were prepared to leave if the storm grew no worse.

A final telephone consultation with the New York weather bureau showed, however, that conditions would grow rapidly worse, so that announcement was made that the flight would await better conditions.

Brice Goldborough, the navigator, after plotting weather reports from 11 ships at sea, with the aid of Pilot Wilmer Stultz, pointed out that 80 miles off shore the amphibian plane would meet a cross wind of 40 miles velocity which would reduce its speed by 20 miles an hour. This made the project impossible, he said.

FOUR KILLED IN TWISTER

Scores Injured Following Tornado Which Destroyed Village of Dell, Ark.

DAMAGE $100,000.

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 13. — (Associated Press).—Four persons are dead, 14 injured and more than a score of business buildings and dwellings in ruins last night, following a tornado which dipped into the northeastern tip of Mississippi County on Tuesday night and vented its fury in the village of Dell, 11 miles southeast of Blytheville. Total property damage was estimated last night at $100,000.

All of the dead and most of the injured were crushed under falling timbers of their homes. Two negroes were injured when the storm struck a suburb of Blytheville and several others were hurt on plantations between this city and Dell.

W. P. Winn, a Justice of the Peace at Dell, and his wife and Austin Hardin and his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. A. Hardin, were killed.

The injured include: John Hardin, husband of the woman killed, and three other members of the Hardin family, and six members of the family of J. T. Green.

Home Demolished.

The Hardin home, directly in the path of the storm, was demolished and the bodies of the two persons killed there were carried about 100 yards from the wreckage of the house.

A. Rittenberry, constable at Dell, described the storm as heralded with a terrifying roar. "I have been in storms before, but this one was the worst. At the end of Main Street, the greatest havoc was wrought, the sight which greeted rescuers was horrifying. The dead were lying among the debris and others—men, women and children—were crying for help. Small fires were burning, and where there had been substantial homes, only scrap heaps remained. We worked all night extricating the dead and injured from the tangled mass of wreckage."

CONVICTION APPEALED.

Cobourg Hotelman Gets Two Months For Beer Sale To Police.

PORT HOPE, Oct. 13.—Frank Lowe, of the Albion Hotel, Cobourg, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment upon conviction on a charge of selling liquor contrary to the Liquor Control Act of Ontario in Police Court before Magistrate W. H. Boyd on Monday. Through his counsel, J. A. O'Brien, of Peterborough, Lowe entered an appeal against conviction and was allowed his freedom on cash bail of $500.

The case against Lowe began in Police Court a week ago when three special Provincial Police officers testified that they visited the Albion Hotel on September 5 and secured a bottle of beer from Lowe, paying 40 cents for it. The case was adjourned in order that the prosecution might call the persons who delivered the bottle to the Provincial analyst for analysis.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We have opened an office at 183 Charlotte Street, where we will be pleased to meet our friends in Peterborough and discuss all matters pertaining to the Peterborough Brewing Company, Limited. The plans are now complete and the building will commence in the immediate future.

We are particularly pleased to announce that we have amongst our shareholders the most discriminating as well as the largest investors in the city of Peterborough and surrounding district. As a consequence, a large proportion of the profits from this valuable industry will remain in this district. While the demand in the U.S. for this investment is great, it is hoped by us that we will not be obliged to dispose of too large a proportion of this essentially Canadian industry to Foreign Capitalists. We therefore invite the citizens of Peterborough to call and discuss this issue at our office without entailing any obligation.

Thanking you for past and hoping for future co-operation,

Spectators have already lined up against the barbed wire barrier desirous of being on hand for the landing.

122 DRIVERS LOSE CARDS IN MONTH

On Conviction for Drunkenness or Reckless Driving, Says Registrar.

TORONTO, Oct. 13—Speaking over the radio as a member of the executive of the Highways Safety Committee, J. P. Bickell, Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Ontario, stated that 54 motor car drivers had their licenses suspended during September for being intoxicated while in charge of a car. In the same month 68 licenses were suspended because of reckless driving.

"A drunken driver," said Mr. Bickell, "is a potential murderer and need expect no leniency from those intrusted with the enforcement of the law.

"During the month of September there were 54 convictions registered in Ontario for this offence. The penalties imposed varied from seven to thirty days, and every driver had his license to operate and his motor vehicle permit suspended. They were not only prohibited from driving but their cars were tied up. Just in this connection let me point out that a man need not be hopelessly intoxicated to be convicted of this offence. A strong smell of liquor combined with an accident has, on more than one occasion, resulted in a gaol holiday. My advice to all motorists is: 'Don't drive after drinking.'

"Reckless driving is interpreted in the Act to mean—driving recklessly or negligently, or at a speed or in a manner dangerous to the public, having regard to all the circumstances. Under this heading might be included many bad practices but the most dangerous are—cutting out of, or into a line of traffic where there is not room, or where it is apt to cause a collision, and driving on the wrong side of the road in face of oncoming traffic.

"During the month of September for the offence of reckless driving there were sixty-eight motor vehicle permits suspended and the drivers of the vehicles were prohibited from driving any car for periods ranging from three days to two years."

TO ENCOURAGE YOUNG MEN

LONDON, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—Definite encouragement is offered the British youth to take up farming in Canada in the latest settlement scheme, which is one of the most constructive land settlement projects of modern times. The British and Canadian governments jointly propose to expend five million dollars in the next 10 years in recoverable advances to migrants s that they can set up their own farmo Of course, the prospective independent farmers must first prove their ability.

The outstanding feature of the new scheme is the emphasis placed on youth. The migrant who is under 20 years of age is probably going to be a better-adapted Canadian than the older man, already set in Old Country ways. The youth has the advantage of developing in the country which is his new land; he learns new ways naturally, and he has much less to unlearn than the older man. He is more enthusiastic. So under the new plan the Canadian government will loan money for purchase of farms only to migrants who were between the ages of 14 to 20 when they entered the Dominion, and who are not more than 25 at the time his loan is desired. When they reach 21 the boys, provided they have the necessary training and experience from working for wages on a Canadian farm, and providing they have saved up $500, will be eligible for a cash advance of not more than $2,500 for the purchase of a farm; and for stock and equipment. Settlement under this scheme will begin on April first of next year.

British boys can now go out to Canada, receive training in agricultural colleges there, be placed out as farm-workers to acquire practical experience and then, as the final and logical consummation be set up on farms of their own. The scheme's main feature is pointed out by the 'Times':—"It has for long been a favorite commonplace that the life is not a soft one, that men must be prepared to work hard and long who would win independence. But men have much more incentive to strenuous endeavour when their farms are their own, and the present plan will remove the bogy of the long years of waiting while saving wages which has daunted and finally deterred many young emigrants."

VALUE OF TREE IS SHOWN EARLY

Method Devised to Ascertain Qualities of Tiny Rubber Plants.

SAVES CULTIVATION

One of the most important results of a recently completed scientific rubber investigation, is that relating to the development of a method whereby the future qualities of a tree may be ascertained while the plant is in its infant stages, thus avoiding the necessity of waiting until the tree has reached the tappable age of about five years. According to advices transmitted to Bankers Trust Company of New York by its British Information Service, the London scientist who conducted the investigation expressed the opinion that bud-grafting and seed selection are of the utmost importance to the future of the rubber industry. It is believed that bud-grafting should be looked upon as an emergency measure to obtain good seeds without loss of time. Experiments were made to ascertain the best and most efficient method of planting and tapping.

As a result of further experiments it was found that when a tree is grown from seed an examination of the latex would show that a certain distinguishing particle in the latex of that tree would be identical with that found in the latex of the parent tree. As a result of this discovery it would be possible to tell exactly what would be the characteristics of the tree from the time it was six or seven months old. If it was known that it would have poor bark, or that a poor yield might be expected, the tree could be felled and thus none but the best would eventually be left and no time would be wasted on a tree which would be below average yield.

The report received by Bankers Trust Company states that the scientist is of the opinion that when the details of this investigation are published, the discoveries made will go far towards a better understanding of the unique properties of rubber in general.

TURKEY WORKS TO BE MODERN

Government Especially Active in Building Railway Lines.

NEW CONTRACTS LET

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 26 (CP).—Turkey is making great efforts to modernize herself. The Government, which for the past three years has shown almost feverish activity in the development of its railways, has just signed an agreement with a German firm for the construction of two new lines. One will be 200 miles and the other 130 miles long, double tracks, and work will commence this month. A Swedish firm is about to begin construction of a railway in Anatolia and a Belgian firm has in hand the construction of two other lines in Asia Minor. Work on these two lines will last for six years and will result in doubling Turkey's railway mileage.

The Turkish government is negotiating with American and Dutch firms and with French capitalists for the construction of additional railways and ports, and also for the electrification of several cities. It is also lending effective financial support to large Turkish industrial enterprises, and has itself invested substantial sums in these concerns. Turkey's merchant marine is also growing rapidly.

MOISTURE IN AIR IS AID TO HEALTH

Also Saves Fuel, Government Investigators Report.

The extreme importance of maintaining sufficient moisture in the indoor air during the heating season has never been fully realized in Canada. Of course, everyone knows in a general way, that the atmosphere of our houses is much too dry in the winter months, but very few realize the extent to which the condition affects our health and comfort, not to mention the increased consumption of fuel and destruction to house furnishings through cracking and shrinking.

Insulated houses without artificial means of humidification, are particularly liable to develop unhealthy living conditions in winter.

Humidity and Health.

The human nose performs all the duties of a well-ordered air conditioning plant in a threefold way, acting as a filter for dust and bacteria, heating the air which enters the lungs and humidifying it to 40 per cent. relative humidity. If hot, very dry air is breathed continuously, the nose is called on to furnish large amounts of moisture, resulting in the drying up of mucous membranes and nasal secretions and the subsequent irritation and swelling of the tender membranes of the throat and nose. This frequently causes headaches and dizziness and prepares a receptive field for disease germs.

The New York State Commission, in its investigation of ventilation conditions in the schools of the State, found that it was able to reduce the temperature in the school rooms from 78 degrees Fahrenheit to 68 degrees by the proper humidification of the air, with perfect maintenance of comfort. That is, the effective temperature was lowered ten degrees. The children's inclination to work was estimated to have increased 35 per cent. by the cooler atmosphere. In an industrial investigation this commission proved that excessive heat promotes fatigue. Subjects under test, working on piece-work, receiving a bonus for quantity of work in addition to flat rate, did 13 per cent. more work at 68 degrees than at 75 degrees.

Fuel Saving.

The excessively high temperature required for comfort in dry air, wastes considerable heat. Temperatures of 75 degrees to 80 degrees are common in houses with low humidity, whereas only 68 degrees Fahrenheit is necessary for comfort in a properly moistened atmosphere.

In houses, particularly those not insulated, the raising of the temperature from 70 degrees Fahrenheit to 80 degrees Fahrenheit is usually difficult and requires forcing of fires with a subsequent loss of efficiency in the burning of coal. Although the evaporation of water to produce proper humidification requires more heat, a considerable over-all fuel economy is effected owing to the lower temperature required for comfort.

Considerable controversy has arisen between various authorities on humidity conditions as to the actual amount of fuel saved in this way. Some investigators contend that very little saving is accomplished, while others maintain that economies amounting to 15 per cent are possible. The general consensus of opinion, according to an analysis by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior (Ottawa), whose engineers have made a study of this subject, is that a net saving of from 5 to 10 per cent. of fuel may be made in the average house by moistening the air to the proper degree. Householders with problems of this description on their hands would do well to get in touch with the above Service.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1927.

DODGING THE RUSH HOUR.

Several Ontario cities, in an effort to protect their children from the perils of heavy motor traffic, are experimenting with a change in school hours, commencing school at 8.45 am. and closing the morning session at 11.45 o'clock.

Through this expediment the children are in most cases enabled to reach home before the noon traffic rush is in full swing, and the change is expected to materially reduce the chances of accidents.

It may be necessary to adopt such a plan in the case of some of Peterborough's schools if there is not an improvement in traffic conditions in their vicinity.

Particularly is this true of the Central School, many of the pupils of which have to cross both Water and George streets at an hour when the traffic is at its peak.

As The Examiner has pointed out in previous articles, there is much fast driving on both these streets, and the plan that is being tried out elsewhere may have to be resorted to here unless the speeders are curbed.

Small children crossing these thoroughfares at the rush hour are in constant danger of disaster.

IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS.

Some of the resolutions adopted by the Conservative convention, pledging the party definitely to certain policies, were perhaps of as much importance as was the selection of a leader.

In the first place, the Conservative party is now pinned to a national full policy by which Federal aid will be given to facilitate the transportation of coal from the Maritime Provinces and from Alberta into Ontario and Quebec.

It is also on record as strongly favouring the establishment of a Federal system of old age pensions, the expense of which would be met by the Dominion instead of having half the cost of the scheme provided by the Provinces participating as is the case under the present system.

These two matters are of much general interest, and other resolutions passed by the convention were almost as significant.

The new leader of the party will have in the attitude displayed by the delegates toward these questions a chart that should prove of considerable service to him as he endeavours to pilot the Conservative ship into harbour.

THOSE FIGHT PICTURES.

The Ministerial Association of St. Thomas, in seeking to have the showing of moving pictures of the Tunney-Dempsey fight stopped, is tilting at wind-mills.

There is nothing particularly elevating in motion pictures of a prize fight, but at the same time there is nothing in such pictures to menace the morals of those who view them.

And when the majority of people have listened to a radio announcer describing the progress of the fight and have read the newspaper articles and studied the photographs published there-in, it does not seem that there is much ground to objecting to them looking at a film reproduction of what they have been listening to and reading about.

This particular film contains nothing that is demoralizing or degrading; there is little suggestion of brutality in the action of the fight, and from all appearances neither victor nor vanquished received any punishment nearly as severe as that inflicted on themselves by the swimmers who competed in the Canadian National Exhibition marathon.

If we had nothing more harmful than fight pictures to contend with we would be indeed in a happy condition.

THE SAFETY CAMPAIGN.

The Ontario Highway Committee has commenced its publicity campaign, seeking to save lives through an effort to teach both motorists and pedestrians that accidents are preventable and how to prevent them.

These striking advertisements are appearing in The Examiner, and we earnestly advise our readers to study them.

They are dealing with various factors that enter into highway accidents, and they offer the man at the wheel as well as the pedestrian something about which the record of traffic mishaps should force to do some serious thinking.

There are too many motorists who take a chance.

The Highway Safety Committee in its publicity is seeking to show such drivers the risks they run when they gamble with disaster.

The foolish driver who tries to pass another car near the top of a hill when he cannot see the road ahead is the subject of one of the effective advertisements of the series, and subsequent warnings will be given in other cases of reckless driving.

These advertisements are in the public interest, and they should be thoroughly read by everyone.

THE NEW LEADER.

Public opinion, throughout the Dominion is likely to endorse the action of the National Conservative convention in choosing Hon. R. B. Bennett, L.L.B., K.C., as Federal leader.

Undoubtedly the member for Calgary West was in many respects the outstanding candidate of the six aspirants whose names went before the delegates.

He came to the convention with the prestige of being the only member of his party to weather the political blizzard that buried his associates in the prairie provinces, with a fine record as a Parliamentarian, and an enviable reputation as a shrewd lawyer and capable man of business, and he displayed an ability as an orator and an impressive platform appearance that combined with his record to clinch the support of a gathering already favourably inclined toward him.

A Maritimer by birth, and educated in the East, he has been a resident of Calgary for thirty years, so that he brings to his responsible position an intimate knowledge of both Eastern conditions and Western problems.

He has the driving power, the energy and the enthusiasm that are essential to successful leadership and while he may not have the rapier-like debating ability of Arthur Meighen he has an eloquence of a torrential nature that he uses effectively and that is more likely to appeal to the average audience than is the cold steel-like logic of he former Conservative chieftain.

The first ballot in which Mr. Bennet secured 564 votes against five opponents showed his strength and all the other aspirants lost enough support on the second test to give him the coveted position in record time, considering the strength of his opposition.

Entering the next session of Parliament with the prestige of being the free choice of one of the greatest political gatherings in the history of this country. As the leader of his party Mr. Bennett will enter upon his responsible duties under most favourable auspices, and the eyes of all Canada will be upon him.

THE WAY OF TRANSGRESSORS.

The sordid death of Russell T. Scott by his own act in a prison cell in Chicago brings to its close a life that for lurid melodrama had but few equals in the crime records of America. Scott had been in turn, actor, financier and bootlegger, and ended his career as the condemned slayer of an innocent man. He had a certain amount of financial ability, and was reputed at one time to have been worth some millions of dollars. His end at the early age of 36 years should drive home the truth that crime in any shape or form does not pay, that the way of transgressors is hard and the wages of sin is death.

Convicted of murder three years ago, Scott had been saved from the gallows time and again by legal technicalities and pleas of insanity. Rather than face what appeared to be the final certainty of execution at the hands of the law, he took his own life, and all the spectacular incidents of his career which might impress the criminally minded can never overshadow his miserable and ignoble end. Whether he was sane or insane will never be known, and speculation is useless. His death robs crime of any glamour with which misguided youths may have invested it. All that was left to the prisoner in his lonely cell was such strength as he could pluck from despair, a mind haunted by the thought of past misdeeds, and an inconceivable remorse and bitterness against mankind that might well have toppled reason from her throne and driven the criminal to his last desperate act of self-destruction.

There is no glory in an end such as this when memory has engirdled the mind with trembling and horror at the remembrance of the crimes committed, and the wasted life that began with promise and ended in darkness and shame. The death of Scott has a message for criminals No matter what ephemeral success may seem to be theirs they should consider the end of the road they are travelling and be wise. Crime when it is conceived bringeth forth death.—The Globe.

THE PULPWOOD SUPPLY.

From time to time fears are expressed that, with the tremendous demands being made by foreign and home newspapers on the pulpwood resources of Ontario and other Provinces, the supply of this natural resource of the Dominion would rapidly become depleted. Had the Governments of the different Provinces not taken steps to prevent this, the fears would have been well founded. However, under the plan of reforestation as adopted by the Ontario Government this timber is replanted as it is taken off, thus assuring a continuous supply of pulpwood. Recently The New York Times acquired a vast area of forest in Northern Ontario, from which it will draw its supply of newsprint for all time to come. In a recent editorial The Sunday Times comments as follows upon the pulpwood supply the newspaper has acquired:

"The transmutation into pulp and then to newsprint may go forward even beyond the present demands without impairment of the supply which nature with an amazing industry is continuously manufacturing day and night, through the seasons and through the years, which correspond, roughly, with those of man's average life.

"So a tree suitable for newsprint may be said to serve its day and generation of human life and then in its own mortality make way for others of its kind that will serve the next in like manner. There need be no solicitude over the great annual consumption of pulpwood if only such a policy prevails as the Governments of Ontario and Quebec, notably, are following with regard to their forests."

It is an excellent policy that the Government is pursuing in this respect. The pulpwood supply of this and other Provinces will be of increasing value to the Dominion in the years that lie ahead. It is wisdom that will be fully justified to assure the perpetuation of that supply now.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Conservative convention established one record at least. It kept Tommy Church, M.P., almost completely subdued.

Mr. Meighen's swan song served to demonstrate that Canada possesses few more able or practised parliamentary debaters.

Speaking of advertising Peterborough, Mrs. Howard Pallis must be given credit for doing her bit at Winnipeg.

The Winnipeg convention passed a resolution on the tariff without even mentioning the word "Protection." That's another record.

The announcement is made that Henry Ford has secured a three million acre rubber concession in the Amazon Valley. But possibly that is stretched a bit.

An earthquake shock is reported from Rome. That is something even Mussolini cannot deal with.

The American Federation of Labour has gone on record in favour of the sale of beer. The Anti-Saloon leaders will probably reply, "Try and get it."

Three of the candidates for the Conservative leadership were able to speak to the convention in French. More of our English-speaking politicians should learn that language.

Mr. Ferguson knows now how a popular baseball pitcher feels when he hears the voice of the bleachers calling "Take him out."

Intuition isn't so impressive when you watch it functioning at a busy intersection.—San Francisco Chronicle.

ANOTHER HECTOR SMITH.

Dear Sir:

In a recent issue of your paper, in the police court proceedings, there was a Hector Smith arrested for being intoxicated in charge of a car, and as I am well known, through Monaghan township, also Peterboro, I would appreciate it very much if you would make it understood that it was not Hector Smith of Bewdley. I have a large number of friends and relatives that are subscribers of your paper and it leaves me in a very embarrassing position.

Hoping you will rectify it in the columns of both Daily and Weekly paper.

Thanking you in advance, I am,

Yours truly,

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., October 13 (Canadian Press). — There was no improvement in the demand from English importers for grain here yesterday, and the volume of business transacted was small.

The trade in coarse grains was also quiet and the undertone to the market was easy, but change in the prices was announced.

The spring wheat flour market was without any new feature to note, the prices being steady, with only a moderate amount of business passing for export and local account. The movement of winter wheat flour was small and prices were unchanged.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the weaker feeling that developed for shorts and prices were reduced $2.00 per ton. This was attributed to the liberal supplies available and the somewhat limited demand. Other feeds were unchanged. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and steady.

The inquiry from English importers for baled hay here continued good, but owing to the limited amount of ocean freight space available to some ports the volume of business was checked to some extent. The spot trade was fair and values were unchanged.

The egg market was moderately active and firm. The receipts were 963 cases.

Only a fair amount of business was done in potatoes owing to the fact that buyers in most cases are only taking sufficient quantities to meet actual wants on account of the mild weather. The tone of the market was steady, and prices were unchanged. Sales of car lots of New Brunswick Green Mountains were made at $1.30 to $1.35 per bag, Cobblers at $1.20 to $1.25 per bag, and Quebec White at $1.00 to $1.15 per bag, ex-track.

The demand for butter was confined to small lots, and the undertone was easy at the late decline noted. The receipts were 45 packages.

Owing to the lull in the demand from English importers for cheese yesterday and the weaker tone of cables, an easier feeling prevailed in the spot market and prices were reduced ¼c to ½c per pound. The receipts were 5,839 boxes.

THE CROOKED SALESMAN.

There are few crooked salesmen today. Most salesmen are commercially straight, for they know it pays.

A crooked salesman occasionally catches an unsuspecting little customer, but most of the big fish have two or three hooks in their mouths and are mighty careful about what they bite.

Big orders come with confidence. Repeat orders are the result of satisfactory service.

CRIME COLONIZED BY PRISON SYSTEM

Charge Made by Horatio Bottomley in Lecture in London.

LONDON, October 13—Horatio Bottomley, former member of Parliament, former editor of the influential John Bull and former convict, last night made his first public appearance as a ticket-of-leave man by giving a lecture to 3,000 enthusiastic adherents at Queen's Hall.

Bottomley was recently released from prison after serving five years of a seven years' sentence for defrauding investors who had contributed to his schemes. He was introduced to his audience by Major the Hon. Christopher Lowther, son and heir of Viscount Ullswater, former speaker of the House of Commons and himself a colleague of Bottomley in Parliament.

His prison experience was the subject of Bottomley's talk, and he read part of his "Ballad of Maidstone Gaol," a lengthy composition patterned after Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Gaol."

He forcefully asserted his innocence of the crime of which he was convicted and said this innocence would be proved before long. He also threatened suit against those who had libelled him while he was in jail and announced he would devote the rest of his life to working for prison reform. At the same time he intimated he hoped to be sent back to Parliament.

Letter from Foreman of Jury.

At the beginning of his lecture, for which admission was charged, he said he felt twenty years younger—he looked it—and a hundred years wiser. Then he roused the audience to a frenzy of enthusiasm by reading a letter from the foreman of the jury that convicted him, saying:

"Your sentence came as a great surprise to me and the other members of the jury, and in our opinion you had not intended to defraud anybody."

"That man," added Bottomley, "would have been here tonight but for being called abroad on business."

While the speaker was breathing defiance to those who had attacked him after his release, someone shouted, "Lady Astor."

"I am not here," explained Bottomley, "in the role of penitent sinner or of dreadful example.

"There is a cynical saying that the world is divided into two classes of people, "those who are in prison and those who ought to be. I would like to add two other classes, those who have been in prison and those who will be.

Colonizing Crime.

"Ninety per cent. of habitual criminals learned methods and habits of crime during their early days in prison. The present prison system is colonizing crime. Reform of the system is the most crying necessity in the social life of this country. To put a man in prison for five, ten or fifteen years is to dehumanize, to make him an animal, to unfit him for citizenship.

"No man, in any case, unless he is a desperado or absolute danger to the community, should serve more than ten years without being given a second chance to make good."

The audience was amused by the announcement that the Government had decided to levy an entertainment tax on the tickets to the lecture, on the ground that Bottomley's speech was not education. The speaker added that he had been warned the Government might send him back to serve the rest of his sentence if he revealed too much about prison conditions.

"The Government", he commented, "would rather give me a knighthood than send me back to prison."

BIG GAME SEASON IN ONTARIO EARLIER THIS YEAR

Announcement that the Ontario Government has authorized open season for deer and moose to commence earlier this year will be well received by sportsmen in general. South of the French and Mattawa Rivers, season this year for moose and deer will be from Nov. 1st to Nov. 30th—this is four days earlier and two weeks longer than has been the case for several years past. North and west of the French and Mattawa Rivers season opens Oct. 10 and closes Nov. 30.

Reports indicate that big game is plentiful this season in the great hunting districts located along the line of the Canadian Pacific and a heavy influx of sportsmen is anticipated. As in past season special train service for hunters is being arranged by the Canadian Pacific and printed leaflets giving full details will be available shortly from the Company's agents. Consult nearest Canadian Pacific agent regarding your hunting trip and ask him to place your name on file so that Hunters Pamphlet may be sent you immediately they are ready for distribution.

R.C.M.P. Holds North for Canada

"CRIMES WITH A CAPITAL 'C'"

The work of the R.C.M.P., among drug-peddlars, smugglers and bootleggers.

By F. W. Rowse.

Mr. and Mrs. Canada spin along the highways in early Spring, and see on all hands evidence of their glorious heritage. All's well with the world. Little do they realize that Canada, in common with other lands, has the seamy side of life, and a seamy side not to be lightly regarded.

Few realize that Canada is the home of a narcotic drug traffic as virulent as any raging in cosmopolitan Europe; that bootleggers find it a veritable paradise, and that smugglers find its defenceless borders much to their liking. But there are some who know—some whose business it is to know—and none know better than the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

If ever drugs, as agents of vice, become evils of the past in Canada; if bootleggers find it bad business to land their wares on Canadian shores, and smugglers shun its borders, much of the credit will be due to the R.C.M.P. Just how true this is, can hardly be explained. Those who have landed at Vancouver docks or spent any length of time in the criminal courts of Montreal, will testify to it.

By far the worst of these types of crime, is drug-peddling, and only those who have probed into the underworld can know how terrible a curse narcotic drugs have become to thousands and thousands of their fellow countrymen and women. Liquor, used to excess, is bad enough, but drugs don't have to be used to excess to bring degradation and horrors to the homes of their addicts, and to many thousands of innocent persons besides.

"Limehouse Nights," that classic of the underworld, was not written about Canadian conditions, but its pages might easily have been drawn from the life story of denizens of the Chinatowns and "red light" districts of Montreal or Vancouver. Not that the narcotic drug evil is restricted to those two cities, but it is found at its worst in them. One has come to associate the narcotic with the Orient. In many ways it is associated with the East, but its sinister influence has so spread around the world that it now embraces many more "whites" than men of yellow skin. The Chinee, of course, still loves his pipe of opium, but he knows how to use it. He is not a victim of the "weed" any more than the average pipe-smoker in western lands is an addict. Those who succumb to narcotics, (morphine, cocaine and heroin) and opium, which, incidentally is not a narcotic, are the poor devils who first smoked, "sniffed," or took injections of it, for "fun."

Where there is a consumer there will soon be a trader, is an axiom of ordinary business, and it applies in the illicit drug business as well. All strata of Canadian society has its quota, in varying proportion, of surreptitio u consumers of narcotics. To supply them with the deadly ingredient there has grown up a large organization of underworld characters, and some not usually classed with the underworld, who, mainly, obtain their supplies in the first place through underhand methods. These latter are the gentry for whom specially trained members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Force are constantly seeking, and often apprehending.

If any doubt the existence of a serious drug menace in Canadian life, they should read the report of Commissioner Cortlandt Starnes, head of the R.C.M.P., made to the government a year or so ago:—

"I regret to be obliged to state that, despite the efforts put forth, the use of these pernicious drugs is increasing instead of decreasing. Indeed our investigations have convinced me that the evil is greater than appears on the surface, and that a serious national menace has arisen."

Perhaps things have improved a little since that time, although only recently the Commissioner of R.C.M.P. reported to the authorities that "there has been some increase in the number of cases, due in part to the gradual rebuilding of our system in British Columbia." If further proof of the drug scourge were needed, it might also be found in the latest report available, 1925, of the work done by the narcotic squads of the R.C.M.P. The report, in brief, is as follows: Persons arrested, 450; prosecutions entered, 480; number convicted, 355; number sent to prison, 118; total terms imposed, 105 years, 6 months and 22 days; number fined, 248; amount of fines paid, $9,956.

Of these, it is noted, there were 168 whites, 280 Chinese and 2 colored persons. The amount of opium and narcotic seized and paraphernalia found in R.C.M.P. raids in the same year, is astounding. The annual list is given as follows: Opium, 26 lbs. 7 ozs. 443 grs.; opium seconds, 6 lbs. 15 ozs. and 131 grs.; heroin, 4 ozs. 309 grs.; cocaine, 48 ozs. 4 grs.; morphine, 33 ozs. 211 grs.; codeine, 63 grs.; atrophine sulphate, 360 grs. and the following pieces of drug-taking apparatus—17 opium pipes, 190 opium bowls, 127 opium lamps, 114 opium pipe stems, 148 opium needles, 42 hypodermic needles and syringes, etc.

And that is merely the articles seized. Many victims of the drug, of course, escaped the vigilance of even the R.C.M.P., and many hundreds of pounds of opium, and other drugs, undoubtedly, were used by the wretched consumers, notwithstanding.

In 1924 the R.C.M.P. wisely changed their tactics of dealing with the whole narcotic and opium traffic. The new policy aimed at the more important persons who are centres of the drug rings, and left the peddlers and outlying parts of the evil machines, as a rule, to the vigilance of local police officials. This, of course, meant fewer arrests, although it involved much labor, and many fruitless efforts were put forth on the part of the force, as the "higher-ups" became "wise" and more and more cautious.

An interesting Montreal case not long ago, in this connection, was the arrest and conviction of one Freyvogel, a broker, who was caught in the key operation of the whole traffic, the importation of drugs from Europe. Detection of this phase of the narcotic chain is most difficult, as can be imagined. An ingenious system of evasions, false descriptions of goods consigned across the ocean, misleading addresses—some of which do not even exist—and, in general, the use of all the jugglery known to the shadier side of the world of commerce, aids the smuggler of drugs, which are usually in small, easily concealed quantities.

In this case, however, a clue was obtained and a considerable snipment was seized. The importer received a heavy jail sentence. Much credit was due to the officers engaged on the investigation. They spent tedious hours watching huge loads of cargo for the suspected package and for the person who would claim it. Patience and tenacity, however, proved the men on this work were possessed of all the qualities that have made the R.C.M.P. justifiably famous.

Co-operation between the force and United States authorities has recently done much to check the shipping of drugs from Montreal to various American centres. A man who sent drugs through the mails was convicted and fined $1,000, in addition to be sentenced to a year in jail. Such stern action is expected to give check to the use of His Majesty's and Uncle Sam's mails in aid of the most deadly of all illicit trades.

A sad feature of the investigation of illegal sales of narcotics, has been the conviction of a number of medical men for prostituting their calling by dispensing narcotics for mere motives of gain. Many raids carried out in Eastern Canadian cities, particularly, are believed to have had a salutary effect on those inclined to indulge in this little side-line, however.

In Montreal, Ottawa, Hull, Oshawa, Plantagenet, and other cities in Quebec and Ontario, squads of plain-clothes members of the force have swooped down on money-making physicians and, in most cases, secured convictions and heavy sentences.

For this work, as, indeed, for most of the warfare against the drug peddler and trafficker, the R.C.M.P. have been forced to use "stool-pigeons" and have been the objects of much undue criticism on this account. Those who reflect will readily see the necessity for the use of outsiders in this important work. Members of the force, of course, are not of theose types easily to be mistaken for underworld characters. Months of preparation in drug cases, sometimes years, would not avail them results, unless they were able to come directly in touch with the traffickers, and, in one case at least, to engage in it themselves in the interests of public health and morality.

Commissioner Starnes, discussing the narcotic evil, and the part of his men in fighting it, said, "The work entails contact with peculiarly loathsome dregs of humanity; our men greatly dislike it, and it is undertaken only in accordance with duty, and because of the knowledge that, while unpleasant, it is a service to humanity."

The one recorded case in which R.C.M.P. men actually engaged in the drug traffic to get evidence against a person in high social estate, had international significance and is worth repeating here.

In 1924, striving to find the organizers and directors of a wide narcotic drug ring, with ramifications far beyond the borders of Canada, members of the R.C.M.P. detachment in Montreal discovered that much of the drugs sold by this ring, apparently came in ships from Spain. Staff-Sergeant Salt, who was, and still is, chief executive of the R.C.M.P. narcotic investigation work in the metropolis, unearthed further information which resulted in a commission to Sergeant Brown, a member of his staff, to go to Spain and obtain corroboration of it. With highly commendable skill, Sergeant Brown arrived in Spain as a young renegade from justice, and succeeded in obtaining the ear of the underworld of the country so thoroughly that, before long he was confident and friend of Ramon Tey de Torrents, a merchant respected by all, including the lower rungs of society.

Brown not only learned of Torrents' activities in the narcotic traffic, but succeeded in making the dealer believe that he, himself, was anxious to make some money in the business and had friends in Canada who would know what to do with drugs sent to them. Money changed hands, and drugs changed from the peninsula to trans-Atlantic ships. Montreal officers of the R.C.M.P. were, of course, kept in touch with happenings in far-off Spain.

Unfortunately internal trouble in Spain make the transaction nul. Liquor was sent instead of drugs. The shipment was met on arrival in Montreal by none other than the Spanish Consul to that city!

Once in the hands of the R.C.M.P., the distinguished consul was revealed as an unscrupulous servant of his country, who had made something of a fortune by aiding and abetting the drug and liquor traffic between the two countries. News of the revelation was flashed to Spain, and Mr. Torrents, also, became the guest of the authorities for a number of offenses. Both Torrents and the Consul received heavy jail sentences.

Sergeant Brown was able to be back in Montreal for their trial, and the sensational story of the arrest was told in the witness box. In speaking of the Spanish Consul case, Mr. F. B. Brais, assistant Crown Prosecutor at Montreal, under date of June 20, 1924, said: "In conclusion I wish to take the liberty to signalize the numerous comments which have been made around the Courthouse and elsewhere in Montreal, by judges, advocates and the public in general, relative to the manner in which this case has been made. The work of Staff-Sergeant Salt and Sergeant Brown has elicited numerous and unstinted words of praise and surprise and has brought, once more, to the eyes of the public, the value, resource and morale of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

"But, above all, I wish to signalize the careful and meticulous care given to the preparation of this case for the purpose of trial, the collection, tabulation and indexing of reports, notes, documentary evidence and exhibits. These arrests were preceded by almost a whole year of resourceful work and during this time the evidence adduced had been carefully and systematically compiled and indexed by Staff-Sergeant Salt, so that, when forced to proceed to enquete (preliminary hearing of the charge) two days after the arrest, it was possible for me to extract from the index and summary of the record, the exact evidence required and be ready to proceed within such a short delay. The value of this cannot be over-estimated. I have taken the liberty of making these comments as work of this nature is so rarely encountered that it seems impossible not to make some mention thereof."

Such high praise, coming from one in a position to judge the work of the R.C.M.P. as an expert in crime and the administration of justice, is only another honor won by the members of the force, already famous for their strength—mental and moral and physical.

There are many such cases of note in the annals of R.C.M.P. work, and there is no smudge on the blotter either in the west, north or east. Dirty as narcotic investigation work is, it has not yet sullied the hands of a single "mountie." In Vancouver, however, operations were paralyzed for a time by charges laid against members of the force and agents engaged in the narcotic work. This was in 1924. An investigation by a Royal Commission disproved the charges, but the occurrence necessitated the suspension of many cases and the publicity given to the men engaged in the work and their methods, further prejudiced the work.

Narcotic work by the R.C.M.P. is, of course, for the help of the Department of Health of the Federal Government, and it has frequently been admitted by high officials of that branch of the administration, that, but for the existence of the federal force, special squads of police or private detectives would have to be employed to help the municipal and provincial authorities in controlling the sale of drugs.

The closest check-up is always made on imported drugs, and, until a few years ago, the R.C.M.P. also had the work of inspecting the sale registers of wholesale and retail druggists and chemists. This resulted in many convictions and was a great check on the illicit traffic, particularly in the smaller cities and towns. A druggist whose monthly sale of narcotics was found to have increased considerably, was watched, and in several cases it was found that he was retailing small quantities of drugs to addicts, to the prostitution of his calling but a huge profit to himself. Only last year a druggist maintaining an elaborate store within stone's throw of the office of the Prime Minister of Canada, was trapped by officers of the R.C.M.P. special drug section at Ottawa, under the able direction of Staff Sergeant Cyrus Ramsay. Peddlars trading with persons at Union railway station nearby, were lured into the police net, and the cases were finally laid at the door of the druggist.

Now, however, the work of checking up on druggists' lists has reverted to the Health department, and the R.C.M.P. have been freed to more important duties among the big traffickers in drugs.

Huge fortunes have been made by those engaged in the drug traffic on this continent, and Canada, with its important ocean ports, and cosmopolitan cities, has had a fair share of their nefarious work. As a result of months of patient and skillful work, officers of the force in Vancouver a few years ago arrested a Chinaman in the act of smuggling a quantity of cocaine valued at several thousands of dollars from a ship which had just docked from the Orient. He pleaded guilty and was fined $500, a sum totally inadequate when it was found that he was one of the biggest sellers of narcotics in the Chinatown of Vancouver, and made more than $200,000 in this traffic alone in the year of his arrest.

A similar case was the recent seizure in Montreal of about $2,000 worth of cocaine which had been smuggled ashore from ships in the harbor. In addition to the actual value of the drugs seized, there was evidence, in the shape of 400 empty bottles which had contained drugs, and an extensive correspondence with places in widely-separated parts of the Dominion, that the police had stepped in between the plans of an important importing and distributing business, handling the dreadful drug. Other cases of equal importance are to be found in records of the R.C.M.P. and of the police departments of Montreal and Vancouver, who, too, do their utmost to stamp out the scourge. And if these are not enough, there are the tortured victims of the narcotic and opium on every street of Chinatown after the lights are turned on and the chips begin to rattle behind closed doors. From every house with shaded lights, where the tin-pan rattle of a broken-down piano, makes hideous the night on Cadieux or Lagauchetiere streets, Montreal, might be drawn at least one needle-marked, dirty addict in witness of the scourge. And still more poignantly, the slabs of the city morgue, the cots of the General Hospital, and the cells in the basement of police headquarters, have further evidence for the eyes of those who will not refuse to see.

Only now, after several years of fighting to instrument the Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act, have the federal, provincial and municipal authorities begun to make their mark on the drug-trafficker. By dint of painstaking investigation, the drug traffic has been almost entirely routed from the overland transportation facilities, the railways, on which it was profitably plied by colored porters and others of darker heart, and ocean vessels, too, are rarely found to carry flagrant offenders now.

The traffic has been forced out of the light—not that it was ever conducted very openly—and there are indications that the law may succeed in stamping it out almost entirely.

The Importance of the Commonplace

THE Northern Electric wire and cable reel is a familiar sight throughout Canada. To the casual observer it is a commonplace, yet it represents one phase of the romance of Nation building.

Shortly after Confederation, when Dr. Alexander Graham Bell was making his experiment for the transmission of speech by electricity, he had to use ordinary stovepipe wire for the first line from Brantford to Tutela Heights in Ontario.

Today a network of specially made wires and cables knits the provinces together. These wires and cables link outpost, farm house, village and city, and the voice of any section may be heard at will. The industrial, economic and social life of every part of Canada is co-ordinated for the benefit of the Nation. Your telephone gives you a place in this national forum.

Most of the wire and cable, telephone instruments and equipment required for Canada's million telephones are made by Canadians in Canadian workshops. Thus the Northern Electric Company, by developing and supplying this necessary equipment, contributes directly, as well as indirectly, to the industrial growth of Canada, and to the comfort, convenience and efficiency of Canadians and Canadian enterprise.

Antiseptically clean
FALSE TEETH
mean a sweet, comfortable, mouth

FRESH, sweet false teeth every day, accomplished without any laborious brushing—is the promise HYGEOL offers.

Its cleansing action (harmless to the teeth, themselves) removes all food particles, discolorations, odors, and that tenacious greasy film. It also completely sterilizes the false teeth.

This work is accomplished by leaving the teeth immersed for twenty minutes in a solution of one part HYGEOL to three parts water. This can be done most conveniently while dressing. At the end of that time, the teeth need only to be rinsed to complete the thorough cleansing.

If preferred, teeth can be left overnight in a weaker solution—one teaspoonful of HYGEOL to a glass of water. Results are equally good.

Wires Good Wishes To Hon. R. B. Bennett

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Among the first to telegraph congratulations to Hon. R. B. Bennett, who was selected by the National Convention yesterday afternoon to be leader of the Conservative party, was the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada and leader of the Liberal Government. The Prime Minister despatched the following wire last evening to Mr. Bennett at Winnipeg:

"I have just learned of your selection as leader of the Conservative party of Canada and desire to tender to you very hearty congratulations upon the confidence thus expressed in you by the members of your party and on the distinguished honor which they have conferred upon you."

The telegram bears the Prime Minister's signature.

Refreshments have a great deal to do with the success of the Hallowe'en Party. Needless to say that they must be tasty and at the same time satisfying. Here are two recipes that have been found right for such a party:

OMEMEE CHOIR IS BANQUETTED

Elders and Stewards of United Church Entertain Singers.

Y.P.U. MEETING.

OMEMEE, Oct. 13.—The Sunday School room of Trinity United Church presented an attractive appearance with its softly shaded lights and pretty floral decorations, on Friday evening, when the elders and stewards of the church gave a banquet to the members of the choir. Each member was privileged to bring a friend, and the merry laughter rang out as the guests, numbering about seventy-five, partook of a sumptuous repast. The color scheme was carried out in yellow, with cut flowers of the same shade adorning the tables. Rev. E. W. Rowland presided over the gathering, and during the course of the evening acted as song leader. The musical program included a male quartette by Messrs. T. J. Parsons, H. Lamb, F. G. Sandy and Rev. E. W Rowland, which met with such applause that an encore was necessary Mr. Rowland, who made a short speech, briefly outlined his appreciation and also that of the elders, for the splendid services the choir had rendered in the past.

The toast list opened with "The King and Country," proposed by Mr. David Weir, who dealt at length with the wonderful resources of Canada, the government, people, etc., and was responded to by Mr. Wilbert Moncrief, followed by the National Anthem.

The toast to the "Church," was given by Mr. S. T. Connell and responded to by Mr. Harry Lambe. The value of the church was related by both gentlemen. The church is a valuable asset to the community, and a depreciation in property would soon follow were the church to be removed. The old familiar hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," was heartily rendered.

The toast to the "Choir," was proposed by Mr. F. G. Sandy, who in an interesting speech, spoke of the effort which each member oftimes has to put forth and the responsibility that each should feel resting upon them. Mr. C. R. Corneil, a senior member of the choir, responded on behalf of the choir in an eloquent and humorous style.

Miss Lila Parsons, the present leader, then spoke a few words of appreciation to the hosts and their wives on behalf of the choir and proposed a toast to the elders and steawards. The choir then joined heartily in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Two interesting memory tests, which created much merriment, followed. While seated around the banquet table each guest repeated the name of a popular song, followed by "In My Little Short Skirt." The other was the packing of a trunk. Guest Number 1 commenced by saying, "I packed in my grandfather's trunk, a pair of ankle straps." The second speaker repeated this sentence, adding to it an article starting with the letter "B," and so on until the alphabet was complete. As the memory test grew, the assortment ranged from a kite and Oxo-cubs to an elephant and a lion, much to the amusement of the old as well as young.

The happy gathering dispersed after the singing of "Good-Night, Ladies," and the National Anthem.

Those in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sandy, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. D. Weir, Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Connell, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Connell, Mr. and Mrs. B. Pegue and children, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. R. Poast, Mr. and Mrs. W Moncrief, Mr. Alex. Lang, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Corneil, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Laidley, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. F. Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. H. McKee. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. L. Mahood, Mrs. C. L. Morcombe, Mrs. J. Shield, Mrs. Musgrove, Misses Winnifred Bradburn, Eva Race, Lillian Race, Florence Rutherford, Helen Rutherford, Reta Kennedy, Jessie Lamb, Mary Lowe, Elda Overholt, Mary Weir, Mary Faulkner, Elsie Day, Christina Connell, Edna Morcombe, Mamie Hickson, Doreen Morcombe, and Messrs. JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

Y. P. U. Meeting

The Young People's Union was favored with a visit from the Bethel group on Monday evening. The visitors furnished the program for the week-night meeting. Miss Belva Ruth occupied the chair, and after the opening hymn and a few pleasing remarks, called upon Mr. Harry Jackson to conduct the prayer service in which prayer was offered by the pastor and two other members and a responsive Scripture lesson taken from Psalm 23 and 1 Cor. 13. This was followed by the Epworth League Hymn.

Mr. Milton Sherin then excelled himself in the splendid topic, taking for his subject the words found in Judges 14, 6. Two splendid guitar selections were rendered by Mrs. Oswald Ruth, much to the pleasure of the gathering.

The Omemee League then took charge and after the business was transacted, which included the appointment of Miss Mary Weir as delegate to the convention at Oakwood and the Misses Mary Faulkner and Florence Rutherford as a committee to look after the snap debate for next week's meeting, two contests were indulged in, both of which provided plenty of entertainment. The serving of refreshments brought to a close a very pleasant evening.

MUNICIPAL WORK.

Interesting Magazine On Various Problems Issued in New York.

An opportunity has been given to The Examiner to examine a copy of a New York publication called "Public Works." It covers many perplexities and problems that come up in municipal work, the one issue covering a wide field of operations in sewer work, water, roads, building and many other public works. The articles are evidently written by thoroughly qualified men and have the weight that would be expected from a writer for a magazine of this kind. Mr. Sumner W. Hume is president, and J. T. Morris, secretary-treasurer, both of whom are known personally in Peterborough.

LEGION FINDS ASSETS GROWING

Question of Safe Keeping of Records, Etc., Comes Up at Meeting.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 12. — The local branch of the Canadian Legion met in their club-room in the Armories yesterday evening. The first business item of importance was the acceptance of one more application for membership. It is a noteworthy matter that at each meeting for some time past, at least one new application has been submitted for the approval of the branch. Last night it was the application of John Ferguson, which was accepted.

Unfinished business was the next item, and the presentation of the charter was again broached. It was explained that the Regent Theatre would be available any Sunday evening after two weeks' notice had been given. The president also advised the branch that the Brighton Legion was desirous of assisting the Campbellford branch as far as was within their power and that some of the trained singers and entertainers of that town would be only too pleased to assist in any way within their means. During the discussion the treasurer was authorized to forward a cheque to the Dominion Command for eleven applications accepted.

Mr. Pearson, Regimental bandmaster, was called from the bandroom to explain the procedure necessary for obtaining permission to take up a collection at a Sunday evening concert. After some discussion the matter was left over till the next meeting and a committee to act on the presentation function was organized: Major J. M. Bygott, Bandmaster Pearson, and Captain Hyland. Mr. Pearson explained that the band would meet again Friday evening and that he would bring the matter before them at that time. This would make it possible for him to give the Legion a definite statement at their next meeting.

The programme for the Armistice Day activities was also left over till the next meeting, as it was desirous that the Legion and the Regimental Band co-operate on the matter. The financial statement read by the acting secretary showed a decided increase in the assets of the Legion and was accepted as satisfactory. The chief item of correspondence was a letter from the Dominion Command containing a revision of price lists for poppies for Armistice Day. Since this was not a matter of urgent business, it was placed in abeyance till the next meeting.

Regarding the decoration of the memorial, it was brought to the attention of the Legion that only one side of the memorial was decorated while names appeared on two sides of the structure. Just what action would be taken to overcome this circumstance was not decided upon. It was generally considered that the mere fact that the memorial was decorated was sufficient. It did not seem necessary to decorate every face of the structure.

Regarding the actions and the property of the Legion, it was considered proper that a certain amount of privacy be observed. This matter was broached by Comrade Johnston, Regimental Sergeant-Major of the County Regiment. He suggested a strong box for the purpose. But his suggestion was thrown out by an amendment which won the approval of the meeting to make him responsible for the property of the association till such time as the bulk of their belongings made some extra provision necessary and advisable. He accepted readily.

Raffle tickets for a chesterfield suite and several other prizes to be awarded in Peterboro were placed at the disposal of the meeting and most of the tickets were taken for sale. Some were purchased by the members themselves who were to sell them. There are still some books left for any member who was not present and wishes to take part in the affair.

On motion of Morgan and Dutton, the secretary was instructed to convey the gratitude of the Legion to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stewart for their generous contribution of a picture of the regiment of which their son was a member overseas. The motion also included a similar expression to Mr. Cubbitt for a similar donation

As a final business matter, it was decided that the next meeting would be held on Tuesday evening, October 18, at eight o'clock, in their clubrooms. There is a great deal of important business to transact at this meeting, and it is especially requested that every member of the Legion or any returned soldier or member of His Majesty's forces during the Great or any other war in which Britain was engaged, attend and give his opinion of the matters transacted.

The Legion in Campbellford is steadily increasing in numbers. It is the official organization of the men who bore arms for the honor of Britain at any time during their careers. There is nothing to be gained by becoming a member of the organization save an official recognition of services and right for these services, and more important still, the old-time comradeship of the men who were comrades in the line.

TEACHERS ENJOY VISIT TO OTTAWA

Inspect Schools of Capital City and View Dominion Building.

As a variation from the usual routine the teachers of the Counties of Victoria and Peterborough, with those of the city, planned this year, a visit to the schools of the Capital instead of the annual conventions. Accordingly, an arrangement was made with the Canadian National Railways for special train accommodation. Starting from Lindsay, others joining en route, the greater number at Peterborough, about one hundred and fifty teachers from the three institutes sallied forth, on a most delightful and instructive expedition of observation and sight-seeing.

The special train reached Ottawa shortly after midnight on Wednesday and returned on Saturday arriving at Peterborough at 6.45. The intervening hours were fully occupied and were found all too short for the many interests and activities that crowded into them.

Two half days were spent in visits to some of the schools of the City of Ottawa, and teachers were loud in their praises of the work they observed as well as of the courtesy and kindness of the principals and teachers in so effectively making the visit both pleasant and profitable. A social gathering was held on the evening of Thursday at which the visiting teachers were the guests of the teachers of Ottawa. This proved to be one of the most enjoyable and profitable features of the outing.

Visits were made to the National Museum and the Parliament Buildings, including the House of Commons and the Senate chamber. The Mint and the Canadian Archives were also visited, and in addition opportunity was afforded of seeing the Experimental Farm and the Observatory, including the great te escope.

On Friday afternoon the teachers went in a body on a sight-seeing drive visiting many of the chief points of interest and of beauty in and about the city. This ended with a visit to Rideau Hall, the official residence of the Governor General of Canada. The Governor-General and Lady Willingdon were, unfortunately, absent, but the teachers were shown the utmost courtesy by those in charge and the house was literally thrown open to them.

All who went on the trip were outspoken in their appreciation of the provisions made for their convenience by the Teachers' Institute of the City of Ottawa, of the splendid train service furnished by the Canadian National Railways, and of the excellent accommodations at the Chateau Laurier.

It was through the good offices of E. A. Peck, M.P., and the Hon. G. N. Gordon that access was had to the Observatory, the Mint, the Archives and Rideau Hall. To these gentlemen, and to the officials everywhere, who were uniformly anxious to serve as well as oblige, the thanks of the teachers are due.

MISSIONARY GIVES ADDRESS ON AFRICA

Rev. J. E. Lloyd Speaker at George Street W.M.S. Meeting.

The W.M.S. of George Street United Church held their annual Thank-offering meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the new Board room, about 150 being present.

The president, Mrs. Coon, presided and in a few well chosen words, welcomed the visiting auxiliaries of the city. Mrs. Brown then took charge of the meeting. After the opening hymn, Miss McCamus read the Scripture lesson, followed by prayer by the Rev. Dr. Brown. Mrs. Liddle sang very sweetly, "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown," accompanied by Miss B. Elcome.

A brief address on the subject, "Thank-offering," was very suitably given by the pastor, the Rev. J. E. Todd. The offering was then received, followed by a consecration prayer by the Rev. Mr. Bamforth.

The special speaker of the day was then introduced, the Rev. J. E. Lloyd, returned missionary from Africa.

The speaker rather resents the calling of that country "Dark Africa." It should rather be "Sunny Africa," he said, and he proved that climatic conditions there were ideal. He told something of the splendid work accomplished in that field, especially in the Resident schools for the boys and girls. Mr. Lloyd emphasized the need of more women missionaries, thereby reaching the womenhood of these heathen lands.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker and others contributing to the program by Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Stinson. After the benediction, a half hour was spent socially. Mrs. S. A. Armstrong and Mrs. Harvey poured tea and a dainty lunch was served by Group D.

11 HOURS' WORK SAVES WOMAN

Firemen Use Ten Tanks of Oxygen in Reviving Her.

WAS BADLY GASSED

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Rose Young, 34 years old, will hold the long distance record for recovery from gas asphyxiation. A pan of boiling water smothered the gas blaze on the stove. Later neighbors found her apparently dead in the kitchen. Through eleven hours of seeming death firemen in squads battled under the direction of Dr. Ernest O. Larson. They used fifteen tanks of oxygen, and worked until 5.30 this morning. Life seemingly flickered out several times, and the firemen were about to give up. They were urged on by her husband, Martin Young.

Finally she revived and was sent to a hospital. From the evidence it was estimated that Mrs. Young had been exposed to the gas fumes at least one, and possibly two hours.

Lieutenant O'Connor of the pulmotor squad said today he had never heard of a case where more than ten tanks of oxygen were used and the patient revived.

Dr. Larson is anxious to get an outline of her experience while knocking at the door of death for eleven hours.

It is not generally known that the first observance of Memorial Day, or Decoration Day as it was first called, was due to Mrs. John A. Logan, wife of the famous Union commander. After observing the women of Richmond and Petersburg, Va., decorating the graves of Confederate dead with flowers and small flags, Mrs. Logan suggested to her husband that the custom should be followed by the Northern States. Thereupon Gen. Logan, as head of the G.A.R., issued a request for such observance and subsequently introduced a resolution in Congress to the same effect.

600 REBELS GAVE UP ARMS

Wounded Federals Tell of Battle With Revolutionists Under Gomez.

DRIVEN FROM TRENCHES.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 13. — A fragmentary account by participants in the recent battle between Federal troops and the revolutionary forces of General Arnulfo Gomez, was given yesterday by the first of the wounded federal troops to return to Mexico City.

The wounded men, although unable to give details of the fighting which the Mexican government declares brought an end to the revolt, said that the rebels, numbering 800 or 1000, had dug themselves in upon the mountainside near Ayuahualuiec, in the state of Vera Cruz. The forces of General Escobar ,numbering 3000, then attacked the trenches from the plains below

The federal troops advanced up the mountainside, the wounded believe, without using artillery, and the rebels met them with rifle and some machine gun fire. The battle which began shortly after midday, lasted five or six hours when the revolting troops abandoned their trenches and fled in the utmost disorder. Later some 600 surrendered.

The wounded men reaching Mexico City yesterday numbered 53, consisting of 46 men and 5 officers. All of them had comparatively slight wounds on their arms and legs. They were unable to state the number of rebel dead and wounded, but think that there were probably 150 casualties altogether. The federal casualties have not yet been announced but it is thought that some of the wounded have been taken to Jalapa and other points nearer the battlefield than Mexico City.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13.—Fair trade was reported in the grain market here yesterday, despite New York and Chicago markets being closed, but the tone was not strong and closing wheat quotations were ¼c to ⅞c lower. Otcober closed at $1.36⅛, November $1.35¾; December $1.30⅛, and May $1.34.

Some export business was worked, while local buying was reported at times. Future coarse grain markets were inactive.

Improved orders from exporters late in the session imparted a firm tone to the cash wheat market, and the top grades were in excellent demand. With the exception of an improved demand for low-grade barley, the cash coarse grains were inactive.

The entries in the contests and the exhibits being from many widely separated districts, were somewhat difficult to handle, and the success ot the enterprise reflects great credit upon the efficiency of Agricultural Representative J. B. Nelson and his competent staff of assistants.

Main Building Full.

In the main red brick building, on either side of the entrance, were scuvenir stands, doing a good business, while the interior was filled with exhibits of flowers, roots, vegetables, preserves, paintings, sketches, baking, and articles of domestic manufacture, chinaware, needle work, quilts, cushions, fruit, apiary products, knitting, wicker work, cabinet work, rugs, etc. In the rear the National Piano Company had a booth which provided musical entertainment for all those in the building, while in the gallery machine guns and rifles, souvenirs of the Great War, were exhibited. From the ceiling hung streamers of various colours.

The exhibits in the poultry building were numerous, and of a diverse selection, ranging from rabbits and guinea pigs to ducks, geese, and poultry.

OBITUARY.

MRS. I. D. BOGART.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 13.—At four o'clock yesterday afternoon one of Campbellford's oldest and most highly respected citizens was laid in her last resting place. The solemn procession which passed slowly through the rain-swept streets at that hour was the funeral procession of the late Rose May Rendle, widow of Irvine D. Bogart, M.D., who died in her eighty-seventh year. The service was at her late residence, corner of Bridge and Rear Streets, and was conducted by the Rev. James Grier, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, and the Rev. C. E. Clarke of Belleville, formerly rector of Christ Church, Campbellford. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. F. W. Wood, W. J. Armstrong, Fred Dinwoodie, Ad. Linton, D. W. Douglas, and Dr. O. C. Watson.

The late Mrs. Bogart is the last member of one of Campbellford's oldest and most highly respected families. Born in St. Johns, Newfoundland, she came to Campbellford as a girl of thirteen years, when, after the disastrous fire of 1853, her father decided to come to Canada. The voyage from St. Johns to Montreal required almost as much time as a round-the-world cruise would require to-day. Sailing vessels were the grey hounds of the deep at that period.

The settlement known then as the Patch was situated about half a mile south of the present townsite. Mr. Rendle, in his capacity of contractor and builder, was among the first to erect buildings in the town as it is to-day. Christ Church had but been begun when he arrived, and to him fell the lot of completing the erection. His daughter, the late Mrs. Bogart, was the first person to be confirmed. As nearly as can be estimated, her confirmation was in the year 1853 or 1854.

At the age of twenty, Rose Rendle became the bride of the late Dr. Bogart, who died in the year 1900. From the time of her arrival in the community, the late Mrs. Bogart has been recognized as one of the leaders in the society of the town. After her marriage she became a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and devoted a large portion of her time to church affairs. At various times she held the highest offices possible to be obtained in these societies. Not until comparatively recent years did she refrain from active life in the circles of the church and society.

Of the five children of Dr. and Mrs. Bogart only three remain: James Sawyer Bogart of Voicey, Idaho; Mrs. E. B. Burrell, Baltimore, Maryland, and Mrs. A. J. Jenkins of Campbellford.

With the passing of Mrs. Bogart, another link between the present modern town and the crude "Patch" of seventy years ago is severed. The citizens of the town mourn the loss of one of the foremost pioneers of the district. It was with the most sincere reverence that men, some of them aged and on the down hill side of life, stood with bared heads, the driving rain running in streams down their faces, as the stormy wind snatched the words of the burial service from the lips of the minister who pronounced the last benediction by the graveside.

MRS. WESLEY BRADY.

The funeral of the late Mary Gertrude Riddell, wife of Wesley Brady, took place yesterday afternoon from her late residence, Ranney street. The deceased was in her forty-seventh year and had been confined to her bed for the past five weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Brady were forced to give up their farm on the English Line on account of Mr. Brady's ill health, and for the past few years they have resided in Campbellford. Mrs. Brady was always a very active woman and a most capable housewife. Her cheerful disposition and genuine sincerity in everything with which she was connected, won for her a host of friends who now mourn her departure from their midst.

George Riddell, of Massachussets, motored here in order to attend the funeral, as did also another brother, Robert of Paris, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. George Keller, Michigan, were also able to attend. Mrs. Robert Riddell, mother of the deceased, who was visiting her daughter and son-in-law in Michigan, also made the journey by motor regardless of the state of her own health.

Besides her relatives, Mrs. Brady is mourned by her husband, Wesley Brady and her two daughters, Eva and Edna, both of whom are living at home.

The service at the house and at the grave was conducted by the Rev. James Grier, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian chudch. Messrs. J. P. Archer, Thos. Locke, Alex. MacDonald, Frank Mensie, D. A. Owen and John Wallace were pall bearers. The wonderful array of floral tributes bore silent testimony to the high regard in which the late Mrs. Brady was held by all those who were so fortunate as to know her.

Duvall of Indianapolis was yesterday sentenced in criminal court to serve 30 days in jail, fined $1,000 and disbarred from holding public office for four years for having violated the corrupt practises act in the 1926 political campaign.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound", you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents.

Don't get gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

BENNETT IS ELECTED

Active in Political Life

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct 13 (Canadian Press).—Since early manhood Mr. Bennett has been active in political life. In his early twenties he participated in the municipal politics of Chatham, New Brunswick, where he commenced the price of law after being admitted to the Bar of the province in 1893. It was in 1870 at Hopewell, New Brunswick, that Mr. Bennett was born. His father was of United Empire Loyalist descent. He taught school, read law and later attended Dalhousie University.

In 1897 Mr. Bennett went to Calgary and in the following year, at the age of twenty-eight he was elected to the Legislature of the Northwest Territories for the District of West Calgary, which he now represents in the House of Commons. He retained his seat until 1905, although he was defeated as a candidate for the Federal House in 1900. In 1905 he was defeated in Calgary for the Alberta Legislature, but was returned in 1909. Mr. Bennett entered the House of Commons in 1911 at the time of the general election, and in 1921 was taken into the reorganized Cabinet under Premier Meighen as Minister of Justice. He was defeated in 1921 but re-elected in 1925 and again in 1926. His important business interests are in the Province of Quebec. Mr. Bennett has the controlling interest in the E. B. Eddy Company of Hull, Quebec. He holds several important directorships including the Canadian Pacific Irrigation, Colonization Company and the Imperial Oil Company of Canada.

Mr. Bennett keeps his home in Calgary. He is unmarried and his sister, Miss Mildred Bennett resides with him. Mr. Bennett has said that his recreation is reading. His clubs are the Ranchman's and the Country of Calgary, and the Rideau and the Country of Ottawa.

Reads Like a Romance

The rise of the new Conservative leader from the compartive obscurility of his youth spent in a New Brunswick village to a middle-age which sees him, as he himself stated in accepting the leadership yesterday, a man of considerable wealth, wealth accumulated through capitalized opportunities on the great Western plains, reads like a romance and can be paralleled only by the brilliant success achieved by youth who read law with him in the same office and during the same years in Chatham, New Brunswick—Max Aitken, now Lord Beaverbroow. After his school hours in Chatham, Mr. Bennett as a young man studied hard at law and his assiduity attracted the attention of Dr. Weldon, who was dean of the Dalhousie Law School at Halifax, and also Federal Member for the County of Albert. Dean Weldon secured Mr. Bennett's appointment as librarian at the law school, and from this institution he graduated at the age of 23. Returning to Chatham he associated himself with the firm with which he had passed his years of study—that of L. J. Tweedie, who became Premier and eventually Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick.

In his youth and young manhood Mr. Bennett was an ardent church and temperance worker, and was also a political speaker of unusual force. It was from his mother that he inherited his political ambitions, and, as he himself said, his success. "All I am, all I ever expect to be, I owe to you, Mother," was what he wrote her when he became a member of the Dominion Government.

Went to Calgary

Dr. Weldon, following Mr. Bennett's graduation, again befriended the young man when, in 1897, he suggested "Dick" Bennett to Hon. James Lougheed who was looking for a wide-awake young man to share his work in Calgary. Senator Lougheed was then solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway. In the West, Mr. Bennett 's enterprises prospered, and he became known as a capable lawyer, an accomplished political speaker and a loyal Westerner.

Associated thus in an unusual way with the varied life of Canada, through his early life and his present educational interests in the Maritime Provinces (Mr. Bennett is a member of the Board of Governors of Dalhousie University and a director of The Dalhousie Quarterly Review, his important business connections in the Province of Quebec where he has the controlling interest in the E. B. Eddy Company of Hull, Que., his directorships in companies whose ramifications extend to other provinces and his present contacts in Western Canada where his home is, the new leader is broadly national. The positio nin which he finds himself as practical owner of the Eddy Company was a development of the friendships he made in his youth. In his early church work he had as helpers Jennie and Harry Shireff, and the friendship made then had an unusual and almost fable-like result. In 1894 Jennie Shireff married Ezra Butler Eddy of Ottawa, founder of the E. B. Eddy Company. Twelve years later, when Mr. Eddy died, he established a trust whereby at the end of ten years his widow inherited unconditionally five-eights of his estate. In 1921 Mrs. Eddy died and she also established a trust which was not to be broken for five years, appointing her brother Harry Shireff and Richard Bedford Bennett the friend of her youth, executors. She bequeathed 500 shares to Mr. Bennett and 1,008 to her brother. Harry Shirreff did not survive the trusteeship . He died in 1926, and bequeathed to his fellow-executor, Mr. Bennett. The new leader thus came into control of the company whose shares numbered 3,000.

Like Mr. Mackenzie King, whom he will face across the floor of the House of Commons, and who last evening sent him a telegram of congratulation on his selection as Conservative leader, Mr. Bennett is unmarried. He resides in Calgary and his sister, Miss Mildred Bennett resides with him. The Conservative leader has said that his recreation is reading—and in his native village of Hopewell no one can recall his ever taking part in any form of sports or athletics, his chief diversion being taken in the realm of books. He is a member of the Ranchman's Club of Calgary, and the Rideau and Country Clubs of Ottawa.

MUSIC JUDGES WELL PLEASED WITH SHOWING

Say Contests Develop Musical Talent Along Varied Lines.

QUALITY IS GOOD.

Contests At Armouries Are Keenly Contested With Many Entries.

One of the most interesting sections of the Kiwanis Exhibition Week was yesterday, "Music Day," when the main attraction was the demonstration held in the Recreation Room. A total of sixty five entries was posted with only three or four absentees.

The contest, in charge of Dr. J. J. Craig, was looked after in a special manner by Captain J. S. Adkinson, director of music at the Canadian National Exhibition, and the two adjudicators, W. H. Hewlett, Mus. Bac. head of the Hamilton Conservatory of Music, organist and choirmaster of Centenary Church, and conductor of Hamilton's "Elgar Choir," and Roy Fenwick, Mus. Bac., of Toronto University, Licentiate in Singing and Supervisor of Music in the Public Schools of Hamilton. Assisting during the morning and afternoon when the contesst were held were Mrs. J. F. Allan, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Miss L. Hurley and Miss Mabel Clarry.

The adjudicators were very enthusiastic over the quality of Peterborough's music, as exemplified in her adults and juniors alike They were extremely helpful in the remarks which accompanied and explained their decisions in every instance, being both amiable and authoritative in their judgments. "It is to be hoped that you will continue these contests" remarked Mr. Hewlitt. "They are a splendid thing in developing musical talent along varied lines and should be encouraged as much as possible."

There was a goodly number of entries in every class, in which gold and silver medals were awarded by the Kiwanis Clubs to the first and second prize winners respectively. These will be presented at the Grand concert arranged for Friday evening, along with the shield presented to the winning school class in the choral contest. The official accompanist for the competitions yesterday was Miss Mary Agnes Logan.

Marks in the contests were award. for quality of voice style, interpretation, phrasing, intonation, memorizing and facial expression, and the competitions were restricted to all non-professional students and musicians, none receiving more than one hundred dollars a year from musical services, being eligible.

There was a good attendance in the Recreation Room for all classes in the competition, which opened early yesterday morning and continued until nearly six o'clock last night.

An interesting phase of the contest (guaranteeing absolute impartiality to the winners) was the rule that made the contestants known to the adjudicators by number only.

Mr. Fenwick spoke in very complimentary terms of the work of the children's choir from the Queen Alexandra School, that formed the sole entry in the choral class. He said: "You have all the ear-marks of a real choir," going on to offer several slight criticisms. "A choir of children should sing with a flute-like, healthy, treble tone, breathy and floating," he told them, when describing the ideal type of junior choral music.

The prize-winners, according to the decision of the adjudicators, were as follows:

Class One, Test solo for Preparatory Piano, not exceeding 12 years of age, "Au Plaiter," by Douste, (3 entries), 1st, Graham Niven; 2nd, Henry G. Marsh.

Class Two, test solo for Junior Piano, not exceeding 16 years of age, Beethoven's Variations Number One on Original Themes (6 entries), 1st Russell G. Rowan; 2nd Irene Foster.

Class Three, Test Solo for Senior Piano (6 entries), Palmgren's "Valse Mignonne," 1st, Miss Viola White of Bailleboro; 2nd, Miss Gwen Donley.

Class Four, Test Solo for Junior Violin, Hayd's "Serenade," (5 entries) 1st, Stewart Dawson of Otonabee; 2nd Ralph Clarke.

Class Five, Test Solo for Senior Violin, Borowski's "Adoration," (6 entries), 1st, Stanley Northrop: 2nd, Miss Winnifred Evans, of Toronto, (formerly of Peterborough.)

Class Six, Test Solo for Boys' Solo, for Unchanged Voices, "He Shall Feed His Flock," from "The Messiah," (3 entries), 1st, A. V. Pink; 2nd, Roy Pitchford.

WOMAN'S EYES BLACKENED

redecorating the walls and ceiling of the court room, which have become very much blackened. The grand jury room is in need of immediate repair and redecorating, the ceiling especially calling for attention by reason of a leak which has caused the plaster to give way.

"We have inspected the recent addition to the Court House building, constructed for the purpose of providing accommodation for the Registry Office, and the office of the the Court, and the office of the County Crown Attorney. This new addition harmonizes with the older part of the main building, and is attractively constructed and well built.

"Your jurors, however, are impressed with the necessity for better ventilation in the Registry Office and in the office of the Clerk of the Court for the proper health of the officials, their office help, and that of the public. The accoustics in the chambers of the Clerk of the Court appear very defective, and should be remedied, as otherwise great inconvenience will be caused in connection with the performance by the Clerk o fthis official duties.

"At the House of Refuge we found sixteen men and nine women. So far as the buildings and grounds are concerned, we found everything in order, well kept, and in a satisfactory condition. We found, however, an aged woman inmate (probably 70 years of age) suffering from a cut on the top of her head and with two blackened eyes, and were informed by her that the superintendent of the home had inflicted these injuries upon her, and on questioning the superintendent we were given to understand that he had struck her with his fists when she had advanced to attack him with a stick of firewood. Your jurors are unable to satisfy their own minds that any circumstances could arise which would justify the use by the superintendent of his fists on an aged inmate. Your jurors desire to call attention to the necessity for a thorough and immediate investigation into the whole circumstances surrounding this unfortunate affair.

"Your jurors feel that the confidence of the community in our public institutions would be jeopardized unless satisfied that their aged poor, confined in these institutions, are properly protected and cared for.

"We desire to thank Your Lordship for the instructions given us at the commencement of this Court, and also desire to acknowledge the very great assistance given us by the learned Crown counsel, Mr. Williams.

Thomas Ruth, Foreman.

JURY CONSIDERING WILLIAM HILL CASE

Lawyers and Judges Address Jury On Case To-day.

The case of William Hill, of Dummer, who is charged with a serious offence against a twelve year old girl, was given to the jury at three o'clock this afternoon. J. M. O'Brien, who appeared for the defendant, made an able address to the jury this morning in behalf of his client, in which he pointed out many alleged discrepancies in the evidence of the Crown.

Crown Prosecutor Williams, in an address to the jury which lasted over an hour, sought to prove the defence's evidence as a well planned alibi which differed in many respects on technical points.

His Lordship the Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly, in giving the case to the jury, summed the evidence up in such a way, he said, that when they went to consider the case in the jury room they would find that he had expressed no opinion on his part. If there was a reasonable doubt on behalf of the prisoner, he told the jury, it was their duty not to convict.

The Crown during the afternoon called several witnesses that confirmed the evidence of the little girl as to her actions on Sunday, September 19. A local doctor gave evidence revealing that both the prisoner and the little girl were suffering from a disease.

Jury Locked Up.

For the first time in a number of years in the court of Peterborough has the jury been locked up at night. Last night two constables from the force of the City of Peterborough, guarded the men as they slept.

The Defence

Mr. O'Brien, for the defence, sought to establish an alibi for his witness, seeking to prove that he was at the home of Davis Hill during the night the offence was committed.

William Hill, the last witness called, gave damaging character evidence on himself under the gruelling cross-examination of Mr. Williams. Once, under the threat from His Lordship of being up for perjury, the witness told his story a little more fully. Witness identified a letter he wrote on September 23 to Magistrate O. A. Langley. This letter cast serious reflections on other residents of Centre Dummer. His Lordship questioned the defendant and another witness as to whether they had discussed the case. They both acknowledged to some degree they had been talking.

The witnesses for the defence each swore that William Hill on Sunday, September 19 in the afternoon between 3.30 and 4.30 took a team and horses to Russel Hill, and when he returned he spent the evening at Davis Hill's. They all swore he was clean shaved. They were not all of the same opinion as to the clothing he wore.

When the letter was produced, the defendant pleaded for mercy to His Lordship asking that no names be mentioned.

"Were you talking to the girl on Saturday?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"At the post office."

"And you wanted her to go for a drive in the buggy. Didn't you?"

"Not exactly. She was saying she wanted to go to Norwood."

"Did you ask her to go for a ride?"

"I don't know. I just can't say. I don't remember. If I did ask her I was only fooling."

Since the time the offence was committed the defendant's family have left Centre Dummer on account of their home being burned, witness told in cross-examination.

William Hill told of serving time twice at Kingston; two years for cattle stealing to which he said he pleaded guilty, and five years for cattle poisoning to which he pleaded not guilty, but went down, as he said, "because he had no jury."

Mrs. Davis Hill was the first witness called for the defence. She swore William Hill was absent from her home on Sept. only between 3.30 and 4.00. He was shaved clean on Saturday afternoon and on Sunday he did not have any noticeable whisker William Hill on his return helped Mrs. Hill milk the cows and after that he stayed in the house. The home of Davis Hill is about two miles from where the offence was committed. In cross examination the witness said he had been married five years and had only known William Hill for three years as up to that time he was at Kingston.

Mrs. Mae Hill, wife of Russell Hill, when called for the defense, on cross examination.

"What sort of a fellow is Bill Hill?"

"He is allright—all right as far as I am concerned."

Witness said she saw the prisoner on the Saturday before the alleged offence was committed and he was shaved.

Russell Hill, when called, said William Hill, in company with Fred Parks, went to his home on September 18th. His face was clean shaved. could not remember anything about other days in Septembre except the 18th. The parents of the little girl against whom the offence was committed, have since left Centre Dummer, because their home was burned. Witness was unable to say the exact colour of the coat, overalls, or cap of William Hill on the 18th of September, although he remembered he was shaved.

Mr. O'Brien, in his address to the jury, asked the jury not to consider entirely everything that happened on Sunday, September 19th, but to consider the many things that have happened since April, when Davis Hill was arrested. The head of the house left his home with his wife and left three mere children alone. On that Sunday, he said, "I maintain the defendant's evidence is not to be taken. In the preliminary hearing she told of taking butter home with her. Yesterday she said she had an apple. She said her young brother and sister were at home on that Sunday, but the evidence of the old gentleman was that they were at his home. There are many other contradictions. What about that four-inch beard?"

In closing, Mr. O'Brien made an eloquent plea to the jury to bring in an acquittal verdict for the prisoner.

Mr. Williams, in his address to the jury, asked them not to consider the terms the accused has served only insofar as these were contradictory evidence.

He criticized the defendant's counsel for the way the preliminary hearing had been conducted by him, especially in regard to the length of the moustache. "You will notice," he said, "how the witnesses for the defence describe the dress of William Hill on that Sunday; they all use the same expression.

"The defence all the way through tried to draw a red herring across the track. Gentlemen, what would have happened if William Hill had taken this girl for a drive on Saturday night? The defence would try to show to you that in the Township of Dummer this disease is prevalent. I don't believe it; I don't believe there is any section in Canada such as the defence would make this out to be. Why did he write that letter? He knew those persons them, and he wanted to condemn them, and he wanted ot condemn them in the eyes of the magistrate."

organizations such as the Patriotic Fund, Red Cross, Belgian Relief and Navy League, and to all war relief funds he contributed liberally. His son, Captain Harold F. Hill, was killed in the Battle of Vimy Ridge, April 9, 1917. He was Adjutant in the 38th Regiment, Ottawa.

Mr. Hill was a member of both Masonic and Oddfellow Societies, and was manager in Central Ontario for the Sun Life Assurance Company, since March, 1883 until his retirement five years ago. He was interested in rifle shooting and participated in contests at Ottawa and at Toronto. He had the outstanding distinction of winning the Fenian Raid Medal, a gift from a former Peterborough man living in New York, after a competition lasting for nineteen years, among the artillery, infantry and cavalry arms of service in this locality. Mr. Hill had to win this medal three times, two of them in succession.

Among those who have helped to build up Peterborough from its place as a small town to a large city, in the Dominion, the name of W. H. Hill will go down to history. He is survived by his wife, and three daughters: Amy A., wife of J. F. Strickland, Mrs. Frederick Hills, and Mrs. Alexander Fortye of Montreal.

The announcement of the time of interment will be made tomorrow.

FAIR CONCERT DRAWS WELL

Large Attendance at Both Performances at the Armouries.

MOUTH ORGAN CONTEST.

Owing to the inclement weather of afternoon and evening yesterday, the attendance at the Armouries fell to a low figure hovering somewhere about the fifteen hundred mark, but the patrons of the big Exhibition who braved the elements, seemed to be having a good time at the various amusement centres. The Music Contest was the big attraction during morning and afternoon, and the entertainment in the auditorium last evening had a capacity crowd for the first performance and a good attendance for the second show. A varied and very amusing programme was offered last night, the headliner perhaps being the Harmonica contest, in which Mrs. Moloney the "poor widow" appeared with "Pigskin" Peters running a close second in the attraction.

The one-act play presented in the contest which is going on all this week, was "The Stationery Express," given in a very creditable style by the Young People's Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. As these plays are given in connection with a contest, mention of the characters will suffice, as follows:

Adam Sands, as "Jonah Faretaker," Charles McLeish, as Percival St. George, Horace Hope as Jaxub Pretzelstein, Percy Butler as Hank Hayseed, Arnold Allan as Jimmy Kidder Hedley Vickers as Hi-String, Arthur McLeish as "Will I Hold Up," Miss Sadie Lockie and Herbert MacFee as Hezekiah Pumkin and Amanda Pumkin, Mary Greer as Marie Manhattan and Emma Lou Chenhall as Priscilla Beans. Others in the cast were Mary Sedgewick, Kathleen Isbister, Jessie Pattison, Henry Chenhall, Dion Snelgrove, Ken Campbell, George Butler and M. Turner. The play was produced under direction of Mrs. Walter Byers, with Mr. M. B. Chenhall at the piano Clifford Rusaw playing the violin and George Coleman the drums.

One of the amusing sections of both performances was the appearanec in person on the stage of "Pigskin" Peters, made famous by The Toronto Star, and a visitor to the Kiwanis Exhibition yesterday afternoon and evening. Introduced by E. V. Morphet, Mr. Peters, in his well-known get up of large red nose, bowler hat, green striped bathing suit, and negligent trousers over a Scotch knee effect, got a lot of applause and laughter for his explanation of his failure to achieve the victory in the recent big swim sponsored by the Canadian National Exhibition. To a sudden attack of mumps and the erratic actions of "Oswald" he attributed the failure, but promised to do better in the forthcoming Catalina Island event of the same type.

The "Harmonica" (common name, "mouth-organ") contest, open to the world, also proved a great source of amusement during the first show. There was some keen competition in this event, with the honors fairly evenly divided at the close between Robert W. Eggleton, Eric Brioux and the afore-mentioned "Mrs. Jennie Moloney" (alias A. J. Reynolds), who, in a chestnut wig, grey gown and white stockings, added much to the joy of life during her appearance on the stage. The final decision of the audience gave Mr. Brioux the first prize of three dollars and Mr. Eggleton the second award of two dollars, with Mrs. Moloney gracefully retiring as a contestant, as did also H. J. McCannan and C. S. Thompson, both of whom displayed much skill in their musical contributions to the harmonica contest. A surprising degree of ability in the use of the small instrument was manifested by each of the contestants, their selections having a wide range. Mr. Eggleton played the "Irish Washerwoman" and the "Intermezzo Sinfonico" from the "Cavalleria Rusticana"; Mr. Brioux's numbers included a rendition of "Home, Sweet Home"; Mr. McCannan played "The Campbells are Comin'" and a Schottische; Mr. C. S. Thompson gave an expert rendition of variations of "Annie Laurie," with piano accompaniment by Miss Laura Macfarlane, and "Mrs. Moloney" played, in a style all her own, "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Senorita Provita Vasquez, in Hawaiian costume, once again proved her skill in a South Sea Island dance, with a repetition in its encore, Mrs. G. Evans providing piano accompaniments, and Miss Greta LeBarr, in very fine voice, also accompanied by Mrs. Evans, sang "Roses of Picardy" and "Love Came Calling," her graceful, sweet-toned soprano solo receiving a rousing encore at each performance.

The presentation of prizes to the lucky winners of the recent bond-selling contest for the Exhibition was made by Mr. W. H. Dickin last evening, the first prize cheque of $100 and other cash awards being handed to those present: Miss Arleigh McKone, Miss Clothilde Collins and Miss Pearl Eakins. Mrs. H. Wood was not among the audience last evening, to receive her prize, the second on the list.

Owing to Mr. C. W. Lapp, floor manager for the Canadian Departmental Stores, Limited, being dissatisfied with accommodations provided for the Fashion Show of his store, this was not presented at the first performance last night. On reconsideration, it was given as a conclusion for the second show, Mr. Lapp announcing that his store would also provide a Fashion Show on the stage on Saturday evening of this week. Mrs. Evans played for the models, who were from the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., the Misses Mildred Morphet, Florence Adams, Violet Davidson and Maida Conner.

The Show presented last night included a display of sports suits, afternoon and evening gowns, hats and coats, all from the establishment of the Canadian Departmental Stores, Limited A soft blue knitted jersey suit opened the demonstration, with hat to match, and followed by a little smart two-piece suit of black with knick pleats, short coat and top of bright red crepe. A severe black afternoon gown had embroidered small cuffs and rounded collar and a satin-faced crepe was trimmed with reverse bands of self material and a square deep yoke of pale peach georgette. A lustrous black satin gown had a wide belt and deep cuffs of heavily embroidered blue and graduated jabots of pleated black and white trimmed the entire side front of another dress of crepe trimmed with its satin facing in wide bands.

A frock of dainty blue in a Venetian shade had long sleeves, a red velvet shoulder flower and brilliant large buckle as a girdle fastening. A soft brown outfit was exceedingly smart, ith bolero jacket over a tightly-swathed bodice ending in a two-toned girdle of soft rose and beige, with a ruffle below, a high collar made from a knotted scarf and a little hat in harmonizing tones.

A dignified black velvet frock was sleeveless and had an effective skirt arrangement of wide bands of transparent net over pink.

Coats accompanying these gowns were in blues, browns and blacks, with side flare draperies, diagonal bands of self trimming and standing and stole collars of fur. One odd blue model with dolman sleeves had collar and cuffs of grey wolf, and was worn with a blue and silver hat of close-fitting type, while a coat of sage green had a long collar from neck to hem, and cuffs, of grey astrachkan fur. A brown caracul coat with brown fox collar was another outstanding model.

The quartette of evening frocks that made the closing of the Fashion Revue included a yellow foundation for black lace which composed the entire gown, a pale green taffeta with bouffant net frills on the skirt and garland of pink French flowers on the side, a pure white frock with net frilly skirt also and huge white waist flower, and a lovely shell pink trimmed with black lace bands and front panel of cream lace.

The programme for to-night in the auditorium includes the one-act play, "Trapped," by the Keo Club of George Street United Church, Senorita Vasquez' Spanish dancer, a repetition of the Pageant, "Empire Builders," by the Y.W.C.A., a Fashion Show by the Frock Shop, and a Musical Contest for fiddlers over sixty-five years of age. The shooting gallery and bowling alley also open to-night.

To-morrow is Manufacturers' Day.

Dressing Rooms. 6

The Canadian Departmental Stores Ltd. beg to announce with regret that it was impossible to put on the Fashion Show during the first half of the performance owing to the dressing rooms being occupied. We were fully prepared for the occasion, but there were no facilities for the mannequins to change their dresses. However another show will be put on this Saturday evening at both performances.

With deep apology.

JUSTICE COMMENTS ON JURY'S REPORT

Mr. Justice Kelly, in dismissing the Grand Jury, thanked them for the way they had carried out their duties. "In the case of the aged woman at the House of Refuge, I should think, for both parties concerned, this matter should be immediately cleared up," he said.

"There is one statement in your report that I appreciate very much, when you say outside of the two cases of a serious nature that are before this Court, this county is free from crime, and that public opinion is behind the officers of the Crown in enforcing law and order. In the case of the mother in jail, no one can claim that she should not be there, but the child should be considered, and I think that is a matter for the proper authorities to consider. I have always felt that the jail was not the place for an insane person, for I always fear what might happen if that person were at large among the other prisoners."

Exhibition Notes

"Did you ever see a cow with a green eyebrow?" was an impromptu addition to Music Day at the Exhibition yesterday, when Messrs. Pigskin Peters, Art Blade and Curly Noyes sang the ditty in a trio for the crowd at the Armories at six o'clock.

At the fortune-telling booth yesterday, new additions to the ranks of the assistants were Mrs. C. L. Brewer and Miss Mamie Foote.

"Mrs. Planter" is the way some of the patrons of the Planter Peanut booth address the lady in charge.

"Nip," a peaceful-looking brown striped cat of local ownership, created a great sensation at the Cat Show yesterday morning. He escaped from his cage during the night and roosted on top of the steam pipes until discovered late yesterday morning, after a hue and cry had been raised over his disappearance.

"Pigskin" Peters proved a willing model for artistic attempts yesterday. The Misses Beryl Forward and Lucy McWilliams made some very life-like heads of him in clay at their booth yesterday afternoon, and he also posed for a charcoal sketch by Miss Mamie McCarthy. Among those who have posed for Miss McCarthy's charcoal sketches up to date are Colonel J. W. Miller, who recently celebrated his eighty-second birthday anniversary, Flight Student Clarke of the local Aviation School, Mr. A. J. Reynolds, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Mr. Robert Muir, caretaker at the Armories, Mrs. E. H. Wood, and Miss Mayme Montgomery.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

The smartness of gray for lingerie is shown in this set consisting of slip and step-ins of gray crepe de chine trimmed with gray lace and hand embroidery.

Few of us can make first-hand reports about what most smart women are wearing in the way of underthings! But I have been told by makers of smart lingerie that most women who can afford to be quite lavish in their expenditures wear lingerie to match their frocks. So when I see a very smartly dressed woman in gray, I just take it for granted that she is wearing lovely soft gray ninon, georgette or crepe de chine beneath.

Dainty gray underthings have been much in demand among well-dressed French women ever since the vogue for gray frocks and ensembles began—lovely soft things, cobwebby in color as well as in texture.

There is a sort of peace of mind that comes to the fastidious woman in knowing that all her raiment is in harmony. It is only the girl of superficial elegance who can wear nile green lingerie under a rose-colored frock and feel perfectly well satisfied—just because she knows that it doesn't show.

With frocks of dark brown, navy blue, deep green, deep red or black, one would hardly care to wear underthings that actually matched, though, to be sure, filmy black lingerie is frequently worn beneath black evening frocks. Beige tones are appropriate with brown, and gray with navy blue when stockings are of a gray tone. Flesh color may appropriately be worn with black or the deep red tones; and with the soft deep purples that are occasionally seen this season, orchid or mauve should be chosen.

Believe it or not—Mrs. John Ahl of Madison, Wis., lost her false teeth while in bathing at a lake resort. Some days later her husband, while fishing in the lake, pulled in a large bullhead and in the fish's stomach found the missing set of molars.

SAINT and SINNER

Faith and Bob found Aunt Hattie in the living room, sitting bolt upright in a straight-backed, uncomfortable chair, a work basket filled with many-colored silk stockings balanced on her bony old knees, her spectacled eyes frowning intently upon the stocking she was darning.

"Has Hope been good?" Faith asked, as she bent to kiss her aunt.

"Hasn't stirred all evening," Aunt Hattie replied almost resentfully. "Seems like I never see the baby that she ain't asleep. What do you feed her on—onion tea? Well, I hope you two children enjoyed your jaunt. Don't see why you don't get out more, Faith. You know I'm glad to come anytime."

"You're a dear, Aunt Hattie," Faith said warmly. "But you really mustn't strain your eyes darning Cherry's stockings. We all spoil her."

"Sixteen pairs!" Aunt Hattie snorted. "And every last one of 'em needing a needle and thread. You trot on to bed, Bob. Me and Faith wants to talk, and when an old maid and a wife get to pow-wowing, it ain't no place for a husband. Scoot!"

After Bob had "scooted," leaving Aunt Hattie smiling her wry, tight little smile because of the kiss he had given her, Faith sank wearily into a corner of the sofa, pillowing her head on a down-stuffed black satin cushion. She could feel her aunt's sharp eyes upon her, but with Bob out of the room she was powerless to keep up the pretense of being a beloved and happy wife. Her eyes closed, the thick fringe of her black lashes intensifying the pallor of her ivory-white cheeks.

"What's the matter with you?" Aunt Hattie demanded in a voice whose harshness did not disguise her anxiety and love. "You look to me like a wife who's come down with a spell of them 'my-husband-don't love-me-any-more' blues."

Faith's eyelids quivered, but she did not open her eyes. "I'm afraid you're right, Aunt Hattie."

"Old maids have a chance to do a lot of crowing, first and last," Aunt Hattie observed with apparent irrelevance. "Trouble with you, Faith, is that you never let Bob forget for a minute that you're crazy in love with him. It must be powerful wearing on a man to have to live up to a wife who just hangs on his words, trembles when he frowns, and weeps with delight when he smiles at her. Pity you can't take love and marriage with a sense of humor, but I reckon the Lord didn't have too much humor handy when he made wives."

"Marriage seems to be humorous to everyone but those who are married," Faith answered wearily, too accustomed to Aunt Hattie's aciduous tongue to be offended. "I suppose you would advise me to fall out of love with Bob so that he and I both could be more comfortable?"

"If you fell out of love with him you couldn't endure the sight of him," Aunt Hattie retorted wisely. "Nor he the sight of you. But if you could just let up a little on him, quit looking at him with dying-calf eyes."

"Aunt Hattie," Faith took the plunge desperately, "do you think Bob is still in love with Cherry? The way he looks at her! And he acts like a crazy person when she's out with another man, as she is tonight—"

"Guess he'll always have a little itch for Cherry, since he never got her," Aunt Hattie conceded with relentless honesty. "No use beating about the bush. It's your job to see that he never does get her—or what's more like it, that she never gets him."

Uncle Wiggily
By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S OLD HAT

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily hopped into his hollow stump bungalow one day wearing a new, shiny tall silk hat. It looked very well on him, too.

"Oh, my dear! How stylish you are!" exclaimed his wife. "But what are you going to do with your old hat?"

"Oh—er—something!" and Mr. Longears laughed as he twinkled his pink nose, for he was going to keep it a secret—I mean he was going to keep it a secret about his old hat, not his pink nose. My gracious! You couldn't keep your pink, twinkling nose a secret no matter what you did.

But the truth of the matter was Uncle Wiggily intended throwing his old hat away but he did not want his wife to know it, for she would make a fuss and say it should be saved, and that it was good for many years yet, and the like of that.

It happened that Mrs. Longears had bought the old, tall silk hat for her husband as a Christmas present years ago. Of course, then, the hat was new. But at best it was a queer shape, rather old-fashioned, and every time Uncle Wiggily wore it his friends, Mr. Twistytail, the pig, and Mrs. Whitewash, the polar bear, laughed at him.

"I'll get a new hat," said Uncle Wiggily, and he did. Then one day when his wife had gone to the moving pictures with Nurse Jane, Uncle Wiggily put his old hat on the front porch and kicked it as far away as he could. I mean he kicked his hat not the porch. You wouldn't have him kick the porch, I hope.

"There you go!" chuckled the rabbit gentlemen as his old hat sailed over into a clump of weeds. "I hope you never come back. I'm through with you. After this I'll wear my new hat."

So Uncle Wiggily went adventuring, proudly wearing his shining "topper," as tall hats are called in England, I believe. And a little while after that Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, scrabbling around in the weeds, found the rabbit gentleman's old hat.

"Oh, this is Uncle Wiggily's!" barked Peetie. "I wonder where he is?"

"Maybe the Wolf caught him and his hat is all that's left!" said Jackie.

"Oh, I guess it isn't as bad as that," whined Peetie. "Maybe the wind blew this hat of Uncle Wiggily's out of the window. We'll take it back and leave it on his porch."

This the little doggie boys did, and when Uncle Wiggily returned from his walk there was his old hat waiting for him.

"I thought I kicked you away!" cried the rabbit in surprise. "But you have come back. No hard feelings now, but I don't want you. Off you go!" and once more the rabbit gentleman kicked his hat over into another clump of weeds.

After getting himself a lunch of carrot shortcake with lettuce salad festooned on top, the rabbit gentleman set off for another adventure. And while he was gone Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the little pig boys, rooting around in the weeds, found the old hat as Jackie and Peetie had done.

"Oh, here's Uncle Wiggily's hat!" grunted Floppy.

"He must have lost it!" squealed Curly. "Let's leave it on his stoop and when he sees us next time he'll give us lollypops."

So the piggie boys put the hat back on the stoop, and when Uncle Wiggily returned again there it was almost as good as ever.

"Well, what do you know about that?" cried the rabbit in easy, conversational style. "I'll fix you this time!"

Swinging himself by his front paws on the porch rails, Uncle Wiggily turned himself around in a somersault and kicked the old hat so hard that it sailed far off in the weeds. And for several days after that Uncle Wiggily did not see his hat.

But it happened that Mrs. Cluck, the hen lady, and several other hen ladies, saw the old hat in the weeds.

"Oh, what a fine place to lay eggs!" cackled the hens. So they laid the old hat full of eggs, one after the other. Then Billie Wagtail, the goat boy, found the old hat full of eggs and said:

"Uncle Wiggily must have gone to the store to get some eggs in his hat. But he forgot and left them here. I'll take them and put them on his porch." So Billie carried the old hat full of eggs and put it on the bunny's porch, covering the eggs with a big burdock leaf so the sun would not bake them.

Not long after that Uncle Wiggily came out of his front door. The first thing he saw was his hat and the green leaf. He did not see the eggs, and so, knowing nothing about them, said to his old hat:

"I didn't kick you far enough, I guess. Well, here goes for a good, hard one!" With that he aimed, Oh, such a kick at the hat! And of course he smashed the eggs and the whites and yellows splattered all over the porch and all over the front windows and all over the rabbit gentleman himself.

"What happened?" cried his wife, rushing out.

"Don't ask me!" faintly answered the bunny. And that's the end of the story.

FEARLESS MEN VANISHING.

Human courage is of four distinct types, of which one is fast disappearing under education and industrial life. That is the conclusion of Dr. C. M. Wilson, of St. Mary's Hospital, London, based on his psychological studies of soldiers and of people in civil life. The vanishing variety, says Dr. Wilson in "Popular Science Monthly," is that of the person who actually feels no fear—rare in this age when there are so many things to be afraid of. Other types are of those who feel fear but hide it; those who show it but resolutely carry on; and, lastly, those who are so frightened that their fear is transformed into a reckless frenzy, like that of the small boy who whips the bully who goaded him to desperation.

Dr. Sylvia Chen, a native Chinese woman, who studied in Paris, returned to China to practice law and now she is a judge of the Supreme Court of Shanghai. She is China's first woman justice.

Claire Sheridan, the celebrated writer, has a 16-year-old daughter who has already started her literary career by writing a novel.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1927.

Astrologers read this as a day of evil sway among the planets, a time for avoiding all risks.

Clerks and all who belong to the white collar wage-earners are subject to conditions that promise a low advance in the scale of compensation.

The aged are warned of a winter of severe and changeable weather most menacing to health.

Under this direction of the stars entrance to a quarrel may be peculiarly unfortunate and for this reason poise and patience should be cultivated.

The rule is threatening to domestic happiness, since it is believed to encourage under-sensitiveness as well as unreasonable financial exactions.

It is not a favorable rule under which to seek employment, for it causes lack of confidence on the part of applicants.

Arrogance and unwise domination are supposed to be prevalent among persons holding important positions, when this configuration has power to affect the earth.

Women may be sadly disappointed in love affairs under this planetary government, which is believed to cause men to dodge domestic responsibility.

The sway increases the tendency toward divorce, which is to claim special attention in the coming year.

According to ancient lore this should be an auspicious day for employing girls in any occupation requiring physical endurance.

Saturn and Mars are in aspects presaging tremendous variations in the stock markets and losses through speculation.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year of puzzling experiences and they should avoid many temptations which will come.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly talented. There is likely to be no middle ground for them between supreme success and abject failure.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and others forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money is refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TEACHER TRAINING COURSE IS ENDED

Solemn Dedicatory Service Held in Regent Street Church.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 13. — The school under the auspices of the Township Branch of the Board of Religious Education, which was held last week under the direction of Rev. T. M. Wesley, closed on Friday evening with a solemn dedicatory service. This was most impressive and of great importance in its relation to the course of which it was a fitting close; perhaps it is more to the point to say beginning, as the close of the school merely marks another milestone of progress as those who took the courses are eager to go forward imparting their knowledge to others so that the benefits will be wide-spread.

The classes were held in the basement of the Regent street United Church, which was the largest and most central in location. Sixty six were enrolled in the classes, of which there were two, one dealing with the Principles of Teaching, under Mrs. Calhoun of Toronto, and the other on the "Teaching Value of the New Testament," under Rev. H. B. Herrington of Warsaw. Each course took ten hours, two hours a night for five nights. The examinations were optional. At the service on Friday night the credits were given for the course. There were 14 credits in Mrs. Calhoun's class and 6 in Mr. Herrington's.

There were pupils present from Regent street Knox, Warsaw, Cottesloe, Wesley and Bridgenorth United Churches, and from Lakefield Baptist church.

The play "I can't Afford it," will be put on in the Lakefield Memorial Hall on Monday ,October 17th, under the auspices of the choir of the Regent street United Church. The play comes well recommended and is given by the young people of Bethel United Church. Dummer.

HASTINGS Y.P.S.

Illustrated Lecture Given By Rev. Mr. Hie at Regular Meeting.

HASTINGS, Oct. 13.—The Young People of the United Church held their regular weekly meeting on Monday night. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the church on account of lantern slides being used to illustrate the lecture given by Rev. Mr. Hie.

The League opened with Hymn No. 56, after which all repeated the Lord's Prayer.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

The Scripture reading was given by Miss Catheline Simpson, after which Hymn No. 195 was sung.

Rev. Mr. Hie then gave a very interesting lecture, illustrated by the use of lantern slides, on "His Dominion."

"His Dominion" did not only represent the British Empire, with its many islands and lands scattered over the globe, but it represented also all Christian people. The lecture dealt with the people of South Africa, Eropeu, China, Japan, South America and North America. North America was shown, as it was when first discovered in 1492, up to the present date. The life of the first inhabitants was shown in contrast with the present Christianized life of to-day.

The lecture was followed by a pantomime, "Rock of Ages," by Miss Flora Metcalfe.

Hymn 337 was sung and Mr. Hie dismissed the meeting with prayer.

London Channel Swimmer Receives £1000 Prize

DOROTHY LOGAN WILL RECEIVE £1,000 PRIZE

Breaking Record Held By Gertrude Ederle in Channel Swim.

13 HOURS, 10 MINUTES.

Offered For First British Woman Lowering Previous Time Set.

LONDON, October 13 (Associated Press). — Dorothy Cochrane Logan, who on Tuesday swam the Channel, and Horace Carey, her trainer, swore affidavits yesterday regarding the swim ,and to-day Dr. Logan will receive a prize of £1,000 for breaking the record held by Gertrude Ederle, Carey declared in a statement last night.

The prize was offered by Lord Ridell, publisher of the News of the World ,to the first British woman lowering the time taken by Miss Ederle to cross the English Channel.

(Dr. Logan crossed the Channel in 13 hours 10 minutes. Miss Ederle took 14 hours 31 minutes.)

DECLARED AUTHENTIC.

PARIS, October 13 (Associated Press). — A despatch to Le Matin from Boulogne says that investigation has established that the swimming of the English Channel by Dorothy Cochrane Logan is perfectly authentic. Paris newspapers yesterday cast doubt on the performance.

The despatch to Le Matin says that Popieul ,a man from the Cape Griz-Nez semaphore, who was off duty, was taking a stroll on the cliffs and saw the British swimmer start. The light boat accompanying her was also seen by the Egyptian swimmer, Ishak Helmy ,a hotelkeeper, and the lighthouse keeper.

ARGOS HAVE PLENTY OF REAL CONFIDENCE

Double Blue Think They Can Take Measure of Ottawa.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—Plenty of confidence, ideal harmony and the willingness to work his head off, marked the practice of the Argos at the Maple Leaf stadium last night. They are certainly getting ready for Ottawa in real style. Dr. Frank Knight and his assistants are putting the lads through a real grueling every night and they are taking it smiling and then come back for more. They will be in tiptop shape when they meet the Rough Riders at the Maple Leaf park on Saturday and they are more than anxious to live up to the good things that have been said about them and trim last year's dominion champions. It is a task that cannot be taken lightly and they will have to be in there battling every minute to come out on top.

There is not much news coming from Ottawa but Dave McCann is driving them at a fast and furious pace. They have not yet recovered from the tie affair at the beginning of the season and they appear to be a bit afraid of the double blue. The Ottawa critics are also giving them a real roasting for being held to a tie by a bunch of untried youngsters and a few veterans. Maybe the Scullers are young in age, but every player has plenty of football ability.

BOOST PAYROLL OF THE YANKEES

Likely Club Treasury Will Be Obliged To Meet Increased Salary Demands.

GEHRIG GETS MORE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The payroll of the Yankees, now estimated to be between $250,000 and $300,000 annually, stands in a fair way of being still higher by the time Manager Huggins assembles his world's champions at the spring training camp.

Contracts for next season will not be issued for some time, but in view of the startling performances of some of the Yankees in the World's Series it is likely that the club treasury will be obliged to meet increased salary demands.

Babe Ruth's contract of $70,000 a year has two more seasons to run. The Bambino was asking $100,000 a year when he compromised with Col. Jacob Ruppert and accepted $210,000 for a three-year-term.

Lou Gehrig, voted the most valuable player in the American League, is certain to get a substantial salary boost, while Tony Lazzeri, Mark Koenig, George Pipgras and Earle Combs, younger stars who added considerably to their team worth durinw the 1927 campaign, also figure to increase their earnings.

Wilcy Moore, who asked for a $500 year increase in mid-season and received a raise of $2,500 probably will go up another step before he joins the team in 1928. It is understood that Wilcy Moore, who received $2,500 this season, asked for a raise of $500 and was offered a $2,500 increase on a 1928 contract.

Alkhine Wins 12th Game In Chess Play

BUENOS AIRES, October 13 (Associated Press). — Alexander Alekhine, the Russian challenger, last night won the twelfth game in his match for the world's chess championship with Jose R. Capablanca, the titleholder. The Russian has won three games and Capablanca two, the others being drawn.

Alekhine's victory was scored after he had made but one move in an adjourned game, and Capablanca resigned immediately.

This confirmed the views of the experts, who considered the champion irreparably lost.

The thirteenth game is scheduled to start to-night.

TWO GOOD GAMES IN LAKEFIELD RINK

Muskies and Bridgenorth Win From Cement and Business Men.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 13.—Muskies and Bridgenorth won their games in the rink company's softball series on Tuesday night, defeating the Cement Company team and the Business Men.

In the first game, the Muskies won by a rather one-sided score, 12-1, but the game was more keenly contested than this would indicate. The Cement team included a number of men who had never before played the game inside and was therefore handicapped. The teams:

In the second game one big inning counted for Bridgenorth, a new entry in the league. The score of this game was 8-3 and the snappy play of the summer resort boys made a good impression. The teams:

Bridgenorth—H. Dormer, p; A. White, c; H. Bradshaw, 1b; W. Shearer, 2b; C. Nicholls, 3b; A. Robinson, ss; G. Dormer, ss; L. Forsythe, lf; M. Wilson, rf.

Articles for a 4-weeks' tour were signed yesterday, and the Waner team will open Saturday at St. Louis.

They will play the saxophone, the ukulele and violin. A song and dance may be worked into the act.

FAMOUS SURGEON ALSO OPERATES ON GRIDIRON

(By Billy Evans.)

BOSTON, October 13. — One of Boston's leading surgeons five days of the week, one of football's greatest referees the rest of the time, and rated by many of the leading coaches the best of all football arbiters—that is the dual personality Dr. E. J. O'Brien lives during the ten weeks of the football season.

As a youngster, football was always a hobby with Eddie O'Brien, the name by which players, coaches, and football fans know the famous surgeon. It continued during his college days at Tufts. It has remained with him ever since.

For many years, the name "E. J. O'Brien, Tufts," has been carried in the summary of most of the outstanding grid games of the year as one of the officials. While Dr. O'Brien is usually selected as the referee, he is equally at home at any of the other positions.

In all probability, Eddie O'Brien (we will keep the atmosphere of the football field rather than the clinic, and thereby drop the prefix doctor for a time) is the only football official in the wide world who loses money when acting as one of the officials at a football game. How? Well, let me explain.

His football work makes it necessary that he give up Saturday and Sunday, and as a rule it is necessary that he depart for his destination on Friday evening. That means for two days each week he must turn over certain details of his work to other surgeons. Since his services as a specialist call for a fancy fee, it is easy to understand why it usually costs Eddie O'Brien plenty of money when he acts as the referee at Yale and Army, Dartmouth and Harvard, Princeton and Yale, Army and Navy, or any of the other big games. A stipend of $150 is top price for an official.

Why then, you ask, does Dr. E. J. O'Brien continue his football duties? To be truthful, it is largely in the interest of good health that he welcomes the arrival of the football season each fall. Football is Dr. O'Brien's relaxation as well as hobby. He not only loves the game, but fully realizes that for two days each week it makes him forget all about medicine, operations, hospitals and clinics. It is a fall tonic that steadies his nerve and better fits him for his surgical work.

"All work is not good, even for a doctor," explains Eddie O'Brien. "He must play like the rest of the mortals and to me the thrill of the gridiron and the problems that are being constantly put up to the officials provides a relaxation and rest that no vacation could hope to offer."

One look at Dr. O'Brien will readily convince you that he has the right system. He doesn't look within ten years of his age. He steps around the gridiron like a youngster and has a diplomatic and suave manner in handling any and all situations that seldom ruffle even the player or the coach of the team that is penalized. His wide experience, thorough knowledge of the rules and his tact in handling the most difficult problems make him perhaps the most-sought-after official in the country.

Many of the reforms in football that have helped to put the game on a higher plane originated with Dr. O'Brien. The fact that he is one of the three leading football officials who serve as the advisory board to the rules committee is a mute tribute to his standing as a judge of play. The other two members of the advisory committee are Walter Okeson and Walter Eckersall.

"How long are you going to keep at the refereeing game?" I recently asked Dr. O'Brien.

"Just as long as anybody is willing to have me officiate," was the rejoinder . "I love the game, its associations ,and its thrills."

"I am inclined to think you merely referee to keep in close touch with injuries that ultimately will require major operations," suggested Major Cavanaugh, Fordham coach, who happened to be present at the time.

Ban Johnson Quits Office Next Monday

CHICAGO, October 13 (Associated Press). — President Ban Johnson, of the American League, last night entered the stretch run of his career as a baseball power after serving the League 27 years.

The retiring president called a meeting of his board of directors for Chicago next Monday, when the affairs of the League will be presented to them preparatory to his surrendering office at that time. All the records and financial affairs have been checked and audited so as to present a complete record of transactions that have taken place since the one-time czar of organized baseball took up his duties in 1900.

INCREASE TRADE.

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 13 (Associated Press).—A measure which is expected to give great impetus to trade between Russia and Austria was decided upon by the Government yesterday. Fifteen million dollars will be appropriated to indemnify Austrian merchants trading with Russia against possible losses and to discount their bills.

South Atlantic League Umpire Works 3,231 Games In Succession Since 1905

ASHEVILLE, N.C., Oct. 13.—Everett "Deacon" Scott may hold the consecutive playing record of major league infielders, and Ray Schalk may have caught more major league games than any big league catcher, but in the South Atlantic Association there is a veteran umpire who lays claim to a record that cannot be disputed.

During his 22 years of service as an umpire, Ollie Anderson, chief of President Bramham's staff, has handled 3,231 games without missing a single assignment. Not once, during his twenty-two years on the diamond, has Ollie missed an opening day nor a closing day nor any day in between where his schedule sent him throughout the many different circuits he has officiated in.

To handle 3,231 games without missing is indeed a remarkable feat; one that even an umpire can feel proud of, for umpiring in the smaller minor leagues, such as Ollie has been in off and on during his long and honorable career, is not the easiest task imaginable. Minor league fans have a habit of mobbing an umpire now and then, putting him out of commission for days, weeks and even months.

Starting out in the misty year of 1905, Ollie announced the opening day batteries that season and has not missed a single scheduled game since. When the Sally League closes its 1927 pennant race, Anderson, if his luck holds forth, with only a few games left, will have handled 3,254 consecutive games without a blemish to mar his splendid record.

Votes Fifty Times For Her Candidate

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press). — At Montreal's last civic elections, one young lady voted fifty-one times in the same ward for the same aldermanic candidate. Recorder Amedee Geoffrion yesterday told the Union of Quebec Municipalities. He cited her as the awful example, proving the need for curbing telegraphers by having identification cards for voters, a project which some aldermen favour, and some do not.

Glasgow and its suburbs contain about half the total population of Scotland.

TRINITY CLUB OPENS SEASON

Holds Banquet in Reid Street Hall To Open Meetings.

Reid Street Hall was a mecca for a great throng of young people who had gathered for the third annual banquet of the Trinity Club of Trinity United church.

The hall was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, while the banqueting tables were lighted with yellow candles, while ferns and autumn leaves added a delightful color scheme to the well-laden tables. The luncheon was served by a bevy of young girls, members of the club.

After the supper, R. Cummings, B.A., acted as toastmaster, introducing the talent of the evening. Brief addresses were given by the president, Wilfrid Derry, and the pastor, Rev. D. Wren. Miss Dixon sang in good voice two solos, after which George Nichols, vice-president of the Tennis club presented the trophies for the season. Mr. Devy outlined to the members the programme for the year, while the pastor very briefly welcomed the young people to their fall campaign, and pledged again his sympathy and support to their year's work.

This club, which now enters upon its third year, is one of the live organizations of Trinity church. It has a membership of over seventy-five and meets regularly every week, with a threefold programme, of Faith, Fellowship and Fun. Last year they had addresses of many themes by various speakers in the city. They presented a play, a trip around the world, and many interesting features, which kept the interest alive right up to the closing meeting in the spring.

This year promises to be the best ever, under a competent execution, and with a well-balanced programme. Judging from the enthusiasm of last evening, they are away to a good start. Their aim is to be a contributing factor to the life and programme of the church, and the church in turn lends a very sympathetic support to the programme of the club.

The club resumes its weekly meeting on Tuesday evening of next week. When all young people not identified with any similar organization will be given a very cordial welcome to any or all o these services.

CITY CENSORSHIP BOARD PROPOSED

New York Council Considers Protest Made By Irish.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(United Press).—The fate of a city censorship amendment which would bar films ridiculing race or religion, rests with the committee of public welfare.

Submitted by Joseph. V. McKee, president of the board of aldermen, the action is the direct result of protests against certain films by the American Irish vigilance committee. If adopted the amendment will empower the license commissioner to cancel licenses of exhibitors showing pictures that are immoral, indecent or tend to ridicule, disparage or hold up to obloquy or contempt any race, creed or nationality or are calculated to arouse racial, national or religious prejudice."

Four films were named by protesting members of the Irish Society recently following riots in various theatres after showing of "The Callahans and the Murphys". Other were "Irish Hearts," "The Shamrockk and the Rose" and "The Garden of Allah."

EXERCISE AND TUBERCULOSIS.

I disagree emphatically with those "authorities" on tuberculosis who recommend stuffing with milk and eggs, and complete rest in bed. I do not think it is ever advisable to over-feed patients, whether they are suffering from anemia, obesity, or tuberculosis. Certainly, one who is as weak as a tubercular patient can hardly be expected to have the power to assimilate even as much food as the ordinary person.

Outside of the need for wholesome foods of the right quality, the most important thing for the tubercular patient is to gain strength. If there is any way this can be accomplished except through exercise, I do not know of it. However this exercise, as well all other good hings, must be taken in moderation.

The extreme, complete rest treatment is weakening on one hand, while violent exercise only adds to the enervation already existing. Too vigorous exercise would also be injurious to the lungs, themselves. A sensible plan of exercising can be adopted with increased movement and tensing of the muscles each day. The patient who has been in bed for several months should start with light exercises for the fingers and forearm muscles. Next, the legs should be exercised while lying on the back. Such easy exercises can be taken as raising and lowering the legs while stiff, or bringing the knees back and forth to the chest.

About once every hour while awake the patient should practise some tensing exercises. The knees and elbows should be slightly bent and the muscles all over the body tightened and relaxed alternately at about the rate of eighteen times a minute.

Gentle breathing exercises may also be taken with benefit. The breath should be slowly drawn in and out to cleanse the lungs of poisonous gases, but care must be used that the lungs are not collapsed or expanded to the greatest possible extreme.

Patient should get up and take short walks several times daily, at first just around the room, and finally out of doors, increasing the distance only a few steps each time. This will rapidly increase the patient's strength so he will soon be able to walk several miles daily.

No exercise should be taken at a time where there is much fever, but the exercises and walks used at other times in the day.

The tubercular patient needs strength, and the only way he can get is is by sensibly exercising.

Questions and Answers.

Question.—Mrs. V. H. L. writes: "Have catarrh very bad in the eyes, ears, nose and throat, also bothered with indigestion. Would like to try the orange diet if I thought it would benefit me, but I am so very thin now that I am afraid to try the diet for fear of losing more weight. Would it help any to eliminate starches and sugars instead of taking the orange diet, or what would you advise?"

Answer.—Do not be afraid of getting thinner on the orange juice fast, as it cannot hurt you in any way, but will surely bring rapid results in the cure of your catarrhal troubles. Afterward, leave out starches and sugars for a period of several months if you wish to entirely drain the system of all excess catarrhal mucus.

Question.—Office worker writes: "For a long time I have found it hard to get to sleep the night through. What could cause this?"

Answer.—The principal cause of insomnia is digestive trouble, such as excess fermentation of food which produces gas pressure against the heart or diaphragm. Even though you are not conscious of such pressure, it is sufficient to unconsciously irritate you and keep you from getting into a deep slumber.

NEW STOCK YARDS FOR SASKATOON

Dinner To H. P. Kennedy Marks Near Approach of Opening.

SASKATOON, Oct. 13.—The new union stockyards of Saskatoon which will open in about two weeks time, have already done much for industrial growth in the Hub city. This was brought out at a dinner, when it was anounced that no fewer than four packing plants, have shown a desire to locate here, it is confidently expected in board of trade circles that in 18 months there will be such an establishment operating in Saskatoon.

The dinner was given in honor of H. P. Kennedy, president of H. P. Kennedy, Limited, Edmonton Stock Yards, Limited, and other enterprises, together with J. L. Juhlin, managing director of the Edmonton and Saskatoon companies; Charles Bawckham, managing director of the Sterling Trust company, Toronto, and vice-president of the Edmonton and Saskatoon stockyards and A. W. Burrell, assistant manager of the Edmonton stockyards.

Among the guests were Mayor G. W. Norman, members of the executive of the board of trade, and others prominent in business and civic enterprises. Sheriff L. G. Calder occupied the chair.

In outlining the value of stockyards, Mr. Kennedy, who has made a life study of the business, pointed out that while such a utility assisted in the city development and agricultural expansion, he had promoted the scheme in this city because it was good business. Mr. Kennedy's venture in Edmonton, he said, had proved a success and he expected as great success to attend the operation of the local yards, inasmuch as Saskatoon has a wide area to draw from, being situated in a fertile country 400 miles from Edmonton and an equal distance from Winnipeg. Mr. Kennedy showed that the stockyards company was not in the business of buying and selling cattle but simply acting as a utility, where buyers and shippers could meet and transact their business. The revenue from the stockyards came from handling and feeding of stock while in the yards. Mr. Bawckham, financial representative, spoke briefly on the method of financing the new company. He showed that no so-called high pressure methods had been used and that the policy of the company would be a conservative one with a view to seeing that all investors were treated fairly and to insure prosperity for the company. Mr. Juhlin, who has had wide experience in the cattle markets of Canada and United States, spoke on "What a stockyard really is." He described the method of operation and the city growth which followed the successful operation of such a business.—Edmonton Journal.

WHEN THE WINDOW STICKS.

When you are trying to open a lower window sash which is badly stuck, remember that you can gain considerable help by making use of the window weights. Pull out both sash cords as far as possible, let go of them simultaneously and push up hard with both hands against the meeting rail of the lower sash. The jerk given by the falling weights will often start the most stubborn sash upward.—Popular Science Monthly.

R. C. M. P. HOLDS NORTH FOR CANADA

front of the enemies of Canadian society, are the rum-runners, bootleggers and plain smugglers, who besiege Canada from land and sea. On them, too, have the R.C.M.P. turned their talents, and with noteworthy effect.

Rum-running is considered more as an adventure than a crime by many, particularly when the injured country is not one's own, but it is lawlessness, at the best, and as such can have nothing in common with the minions of the law.

The R.C.M.P. has done some splendid work against those whose ambition it is to defeat the liquor enforcement officers on provincial and international boundaries. Much of this work, necessarily, has been done in Nova Scotia.

A case which is typical of this work is reported by Sergeant J. P. Blakeney, a detective sergeant engaged in special work in the Maritimes. Accompanied by Corporal W. A. Caldwell and Constable F. P. Fahie, the non-commissioned officer drove to La Have from Halifax one summer day in 1923, as a result of information received. By a clever ruse the officers succeeded in impersonating the purchasers of an illicit liquor cargo, which they knew was to be brought into harbor. On a very dark night the three, in a motorboat, went to sea to meet the suspected schooner carrying the liquor, and quieted the suspicions of the crew.

Sergeant Blakeney boarded the vessel and arranged to purchase certain quantities of whiskey, rum and gin. After a good deal of haggling over the method of payment, the crew of the ship began to deliver the contraband cargo. They opened the hatch and began to pass up the rum, which was contained in ten-gallon kegs. The first keg that was passed up, was handed by the men on deck over the rail to Corporal Caldwell and Constable Fahie, who were in the motorboat ready to receive it. The captain made no objection to this and the second keg was passed over in the same manner. The captain then shouted to Sergeant Blakeney to come down in his cabin and pay over the purchase money.

Sergeant Blakeney shouted, "All right, captain, but we are members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. I am a Customs and Excise officer and I am going to seize your ship and cargo and detain you and your crew on board." As had been arranged, Corporal Caldwell and Constable Fahie sprang on the deck of the Schooner at these words and took up commanding positions. For a few moments not a word was spoken. The R.C.M.P. men expected trouble, but none came. The captain and crew of eight on the vessel, received their usual warning and were shown the officers authority. They realized that discretion was, in this case, the better part of valor.

The seized cargo in the La Havre raid consisted of 1,700 gallons of rum, 190 cases of Scotch whisky and 35 cases of gin. An American was the master-mind behind the little expedition.

There are many such incidents in the daily work of the R.C.M.P. of today. Investigation of smuggling is a rather new activity for the force, but officers have acquitted themselves with distinction on every occasion.

Besides liquor and drugs, the federal force is actively engaged in trying to stem the tide of other illicitly transported goods on the international border. Some sensational incidents have occurred only recently to illustrate the extent and ramifications of this business.

The Customs Investigation, held in Ottawa last year by a Royal Commission, revealed, among other things, that there was a constant flow of smuggled goods across the border of Quebec and Vermont and New York State. Silk goods came north from United States territory, where much of it was the product of cheap prison labor. South went Quebec's priceless liquor, State manufactured and sold, but privately "transported."

One thing the Customs Inquiry also revealed, was that the only real effort made against this double traffic, was instituted by the R.C.M.P., when detachments of the force were placed on the border to assist the Quebec Liquor Commission Police and officers of the Department of Customs and Excise. How well they did their work, and how persons in high places exerted sufficient influence, on behalf of the breakers of the law, to have them withdrawn, is history and is contained in the interesting pages of the Customs Inquiry's report. It was said against the R.C.M.P. at that time that they were "damaging business on the border."

At the Niagara Falls frontier the smuggling of silk was a special pest to officials, until the R.C.M.P. stepped in to stop it. In the Prairie provinces the force also did yeoman work in detecting persons bringing automobiles into Canada without paying duty. Montreal, always to the forefront in matters of crime, on account of its proximity to the United States border, and its great mixed population was for some time the centre of an extensive automobile smuggling ring. The scheme of this ring was two-fold. One plan was to have automobiles "stolen" while in Montreal, and to collect heavy insurance on them. The "stolen" cars, to the number of several dozens, were traced by R.C.M.P. operatives to the St. Lawrence river. A veritable graveyard of cars was found in the river in the vicinity of Montreal. The unscrupulous owners had simply driven them over the bank to lose them.

The other plan was more complicated. Cars would be stolen in or around Montreal and brought to a big private garage in the city. There the serial numbers, both hidden and visible, would be obliterated, and new serial numbers cunningly welded on by machinery. Stolen cars were then further disguised by repainting and interchanging of bodies and chassis, until even their own owners would not recognize them.

The credit for the discovery of these plots and for stamping them out almost entirely, goes mainly to the R.C.M.P., as officers of the force on border patrols and in Montreal cooperated with a private agency formed by outraged merchants to fight these and other powerful enemies of trade.

Perhaps no work done by the R.C.M.P. has been more successful than that against counterfeiters, who, as many local police forces know to their sorrow, are "in a class by themselves." Exploits of the "mounties" on the trail of these ingenious individuals frequently read like stories from detective fiction, and records show they usually resulted in the arrest of those who failed to respect the law.

A large proportion of the work against counterfeiters has had to do with United States money—clever individuals looking to Canada's great open spaces as fitting places for such work, but overlooking the patrols that move from coast to coast on the heels of just such gentry. A case reported was that of two Quebec men who sought to manufacture ten dollar Federal Reserve bills. They formed an elaborate plot to carry out their work, and part of the process took place aboard a barge owned by one of them Before they could put any of their counterfeit product into circulation however, the all-seeing R.C.M.P. were on their trail. One man is now serving three and the other two years in jail.

In sentencing this couple, Mr. Justice Wilson, presiding in the Court of King's Bench in Montreal, had the following remarks to make. "At the moment when we are told Montreal is seeking a model police force, permit me to say that it is not necessary to go abroad; there is the Royal Canadian Mounted Police which, for some time, has been in our good city. Time and time again the court has had evidence of their excellent work.

"We have there a model police force which is comparable to Scotland Yard, or to the police organization of no matter what country. "Let note be taken of that and let efforts be made to imitate it."

This is only indicative of the liberal praise of their work given the R.C.M.P. on every hand. Perhaps the most typical expression of appreciation was that received from the Attorney-General of Nova Scotia after the force had done more than its duty for that province:

"I must thank you and your staff for the services you have rendered and compliment you on the success you have attained, which, after all, is only to be expected from a force with such glorious traditions behind it."

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Bond's Drug Store, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd., McDermid & Jury, Bert McLeod, C. M. Moncur sells lots of it.

FINGERPRINT RECORDS ON SKIN.

While treating a patient with a certain solution and ultra-violet rays, Dr. Maurice A. Aaronson, of Long Branch, N.J., was startled recently to see brown fingerprints appear all over the patient's back. They were the doctor's. Investigation showed he had accidentally found a new process for discovering and making as permanent as desired, fingerprints on a human body—a "find" which is said to be of importance in criminology.

The method, says "Popular Science Monthly," consists of brushing the suspected flesh with a solution whose composition is kept secret, and exposing the body to the ultra-violet rays from a small portable machine. The resulting brown prints are not removed by rubbing, and can only be scrubbed off.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died sewing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary becomes acquainted with Wally Mason, a young reporter. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married; but Mary disbelieves in love. Wally tells her he loves her. She, troubled, says she does not love him. Coming home, she learns David has killed a girl in an auto accident.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

The white face of Mary hurt young Robert. Her head had slipped into a corner of the high-backed chair, and her eyes were set on something straight ahead. Presently young Robert saw something limpid and round tremble in the corners of her eyes, then fall to her cheeks. They came with the precision of sentinels, did the tears, slowly, silently, two by two down the length of her cheeks, to fall wherever they would. Young Robert had never seen Mary cry. He howled, as small boys will at the something that is uncommon, weird, the something that carries with it a nameless terror. Young Robert howled, and flung himself headlong upon his sister where she sat, with head making a dizzying burst of color against the soberness of the high-backed chair.

CHAPTER V

The Grahams, as might be gathered from mention of the space they commanded in the daily press, were the elite. Not, understand, of the elite, but they were the elite. There was old B. Jasper Graham, who owned most of the town's real estate, as hard-headed and hard-hearted an old reprobate as had ever driven a close bargain; and Mollie Sumner Graham, a towering white haired grand dame who drove B. Jasper. Then, of course, there was Arthur, who drove them both with silken leashes, and if we must go on, there had been Bernice, Arthur's fiancee, who had driven him. A right merry merry-go-round, with Arthur, perhaps, crack driver. Not by virtue of his expert handling of the reins, but because of the fortuitious vantage ground in which fate had placed him. Arthur had been the center of what little affection there had simmered in the family and had learned at an early age to leap the shafts of love that radiated toward him, securing and holding the trench of the foe—the hearts of old B. Jasper and Mollie Graham. And, holding the trench, he directed their destinies with all the suavity and careless ease of a Napoleon, needing but to lift his forefinger to have his subjects about with fervor, "Vive L'Empereur!" Be it mentioned to the credit of Arthur that the air of obeisance which usually surrounds the potentate, did not go to his head. He had developed into a staid, sober young man, somewhat weary with the parade of the world—that section of it with which he came into contact by reason of his affluence—a weariness which he tried to abate by a somewhat belated, albeit sincere interest in what he called "the hard actualities." Bernice had formed part of that interest. Bernice had indeed been a "hard actuality." She was neither part nor parcel of England's nobility, despite the relish with which the press had pounced upon that part of her ancestry that had boasted of titled English blood. As a matter of fact she had been born in Vermont, though all of her schooling and most of her life had possessed the graciousness of an English background. Arthur Graham had been considered as good a means as any to re-establish the family purse upon its former plane of sleek and well-filled felicity, and thus their engagement. Bernice very graciously consented to be loved, and Arthur had enjoyed the role of servitor as something rare. Whether or not this congenial state would have continued had Bernice lived, is difficult to foretell. Mollie Graham had grumbled at the advent of this suave usurper of the throne and old B. Jasper had chuckled. He had termed Bernice "a high-geared filly" and had assured Arthur that she would spend his money well. "That, at least, will relieve me of one burden," Arthur had responded dryly. He had hoped for children with Bernice. Nice tow-headed youngsters with long legs and piping voices. Whether or not his hopes would have been realized—that, too, is difficult of foretelling.

"Can't you understand, mother, can't you at all?"

It was at this precipitous stage of events that David's meat truck had lumbered into view like a heavy-footed uncouth fate, and snatched Bernice from the silkiness of Arthur's limousine, and from his life, leaving him with a minor scratch or two. The newspapers had shrieked their headlines and Mollie Graham had sobbed heavily, demanding to know who was to send the news to England and why need she be thus cursed out of all the world of prospective mothers-in-law? Old B. Jasper stormed and flung high forefingers to heaven, claiming justice. Arthur? He had been left a bit more weary, a bit more dull of eye, and he took to a band of mourning for his left arm, which, incidentally, he wore with that careless grace with which he invested all his garments. His mother, fearful of what the neighbors would say, thought there was something not quite decent about the nonchalance with which he invested the crepe. She made no allowance for the nakedness of soul which would have been revealed to the salt gaze of the world had the cover of nonchalance been removed. Mollie Graham didn't make allowance for very much at any time. Heavy footed, heavy hearted, her efforts to squeeze her corpulence into the most fragile of apertures always resulted in chaos for those most intimately concerned, and her cry was that she always did her best and her duty as she saw it. "That's the trouble," old B. Jasper had snorted. "You're so darn near-sighted." At least Bernice saved Arthur from family scenes during the short period of her reign. She had always carried with her the air of royalty, and Mollie and B. Jasper had bent the knee, albeit with much groaning of hinges that hadn't been used since the first days of Jasper's real-estate triumphs in what then had been a raw young town at the edge of a sun-splashed river.

But now Bernice of the regal air was gone, and Arthur was considering leaving Garden City for New York and peace. Mollie wailed. "How can you have peace in New York, Arthur, that is understood to be the noisiest of cities? And how can you have the heart to go, with Bernice hardly cold in the ground and the trial so near? And how can you bear to leave your mother who has had more than her share of the world's trouble, heaven knows, what with one thing and another and Bernice gone and Jasper raising the skies to have that meat-packer sent to the chair, and oh, my heaven, what will my unhappy life be without you?"

"Mother—please don't get worked up again. Your heart."

"He tells me my heart," with dramatic fervor to the room at large. "He tells me my heart, then leaves me with it to pain like a stone in my breast!"

"Mother—please!" His teeth came together at that.

"Then tell me you won't go, my dear son."

"I've got to go, mother." And then, in hopes that she might savor a little of the painful recollections that every tree, every curbing in Garden City carried for him, he pleaded, "Can't you understand, mother, can't you at all?"

"I understand nothing, my dear boy, but that you wish to leave your mother. You wish to leave your mother, who has no one but you. You don't count your father, do you, Arthur? You know how he tortures my poor heart that has borne with him these many years—treads on it and tortures it——"

"Mother, please. I'll not go."

At that she wiped her eyes, and sighed. "Thank you, my darling. Thank you. Your poor mother thanks you. Then you will be here for the trial, and you will testify to send that meat-packer to the chair? I couldn't bear to think that he might get off free with my poor, beautiful Bernice hardly cold under ground."

"Don't worry, mother. He won't get off free."

She brightened. "Well, Arthur, certainly not, if you testify." A shudder wafted through the corpulence of her frame. "When I think how close you were to death, my darling!"

The third unconsumed cigarette was thrown into the grate. "I've told you repeatedly, mother, that Dave Sullivan was not to blame!"

WINNIPEG RECALLS FIRST LOCOMOTIVE

'Countess of Dufferin' Reached Then Struggling Village Fifty Years Ago.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13.—"In all probability, no single event in the history of Western Canada has a greater interest or significance than the arrival of the railway locomotive in Winnipeg on Oct. 9, 1877," said Alderman Dan McLean ,acting Mayor of Winnipeg, regarding the 50th anniversary of the coming of the Canadian Pacific railway engine No. 1, "The Countess of Dufferin." The Countess is "at home" to-day in the Sir William Whyte Park opposite the Canadian Pacific station here.

"Canadians as a whole do not pay enough attention to anniversaries," continued Alderman McLean, "or realize the importance of keeping before use the gallant days and deeds of passing generations. There are not many left in Winnipeg who saw the Countess when she arrived here over her watery right of way, 50 years ago. She then was the sign given a struggling village of the great days to come, and the people rejoiced accordingly. After a life of service, she stands in the Park surrounded by flowers and as she watches the people come and go her silent message to us is one of hope. Where she ran alone, today there are hundreds rushing in and out of Winnipeg. Her pulling strength of 900 tons was puny beside the modern engine which easily hauls 6,000 tons.

"The old Countess at rest is typical too of the spirit of romance and the lure of adventure, the two elements which served to open up this country. There are none of us, old or young, but will profit by a visit to the quiet park on this 50th anniversary to think back of the difficulties of the pioneer days when she was young." In this way, "the acting Mayor" emphasized, "we will gain courage to carry the burden of citizenship with the steady dignity in which the ancient iron horse pulled civilization into the great Canadian Northwest."

It took eight days for the news of the battle of Bunker Hill to reach New York—which was slow travel even for those days.

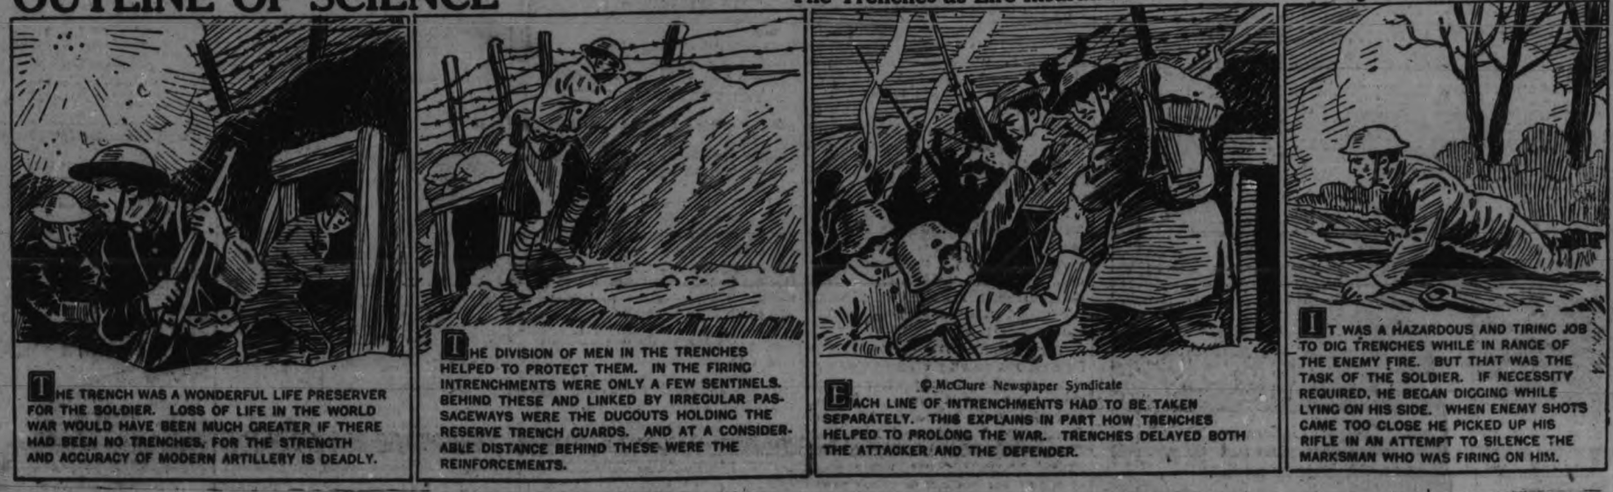
OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

CCCXVI—Science in the World War—LXIV. The Trenches as Life Insurance.

by MAX HAHN



THE TRENCH WAS A WONDERFUL LIFE PRESERVER FOR THE SOLDIER. LOSS OF LIFE IN THE WORLD WAR WOULD HAVE BEEN MUCH GREATER IF THERE HAD BEEN NO TRENCHES, FOR THE STRENGTH AND ACCURACY OF MODERN ARTILLERY IS DEADLY.

THE DIVISION OF MEN IN THE TRENCHES HELPED TO PROTECT THEM. IN THE FIRING INTRENCHMENTS WERE ONLY A FEW SENTINELS. BEHIND THESE AND LINKED BY IRREGULAR PASSAGEWAYS WERE THE DUGOUTS HOLDING THE RESERVE TRENCH GUARDS. AND AT A CONSIDERABLE DISTANCE BEHIND THESE WERE THE REINFORCEMENTS.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

EACH LINE OF INTRENCHMENTS HAD TO BE TAKEN SEPARATELY. THIS EXPLAINS IN PART HOW TRENCHES HELPED TO PROLONG THE WAR. TRENCHES DELAYED BOTH THE ATTACKER AND THE DEFENDER.

IT WAS A HAZARDOUS AND TIRING JOB TO DIG TRENCHES WHILE IN RANGE OF THE ENEMY FIRE. BUT THAT WAS THE TASK OF THE SOLDIER. IF NECESSITY REQUIRED, HE BEGAN DIGGING WHILE LYING ON HIS SIDE. WHEN ENEMY SHOTS CAME TOO CLOSE HE PICKED UP HIS RIFLE IN AN ATTEMPT TO SILENCE THE MARKSMAN WHO WAS FIRING ON HIM.

WEDDING BELLS.

UNDERHAYE—ROSE.

On Tuesday, Oct. 11th, at 10 a.m., St. Andrew's Manse was the scene of a very quiet but pretty wedding when Reta May Rose, the youngest daughter of Estella Rose and the late Jas. Rose, of Otonabee, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Willmott Grant Underhaye, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Undedhaye of London, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Gordon.

The bride presented a picture of loveliness in a gown of Flemish blue crepe and picture hat of black pan velvet and carried a sheaf of butterfly roses and Swansonia lillies.

The bride was assisted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Darrell Rose, wearing a gown of black silk velvet and hat to match and wore a corsage of butterfly roses and scabiosas.

The groom was assisted by Darrell Rose, brother of the bride.

After a buffet lunch at the home of the bride, the happy couple left by motor on their honeymoon to Niagara and London. The bride travelled in a gown of black satin faced Canton crepe, trimmed with shell pink, and navy coat of French Duvetyn, with platinum fox collar.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Underhaye will reside in the city.

HATTRICK—HAYES.

A pretty wedding took place at eight o'clock this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Marion Agnes, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes, Park street, became the bride of William Joseph Hattrick, of East Hampton, Long Island, New York, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hattrick, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. K. Corkery. The wedding music was played by Miss Hurley and Miss Ernestine McManus sang an "Ave Maria" during the progress of the Nuptial Mass. The members of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin, of which the bride was president, also sang.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Carl Hayes, wore an exquisite French gown of apricot chiffon, posed over a pale pink slip of silk crepe, with scalloped hem. The frock, made with very short sleeves and rounded neck, had a full skirt whose very deep hem was of peach-colored Spanish lace with pointed edge. The points of the lace extended up to the chiffon top of the skirt and also to the edge of the tiny yoke of chiffon which formed the neck line of the blouse portion, made entirely of the same lace and finished with a fagoted edging.

A wide girdle in two-toned riobons had a narrow fuchsia velvet centre for a bisque-colored grosgrain ribbon, and ended in a wide bow and streamer ends at the left side, reaching below the hem of the skirt, the lace hem reaching almost to the ankles, with the silk slip beneath knee length in front and longer at the back and sides

Carrying out the pastel-shaped effect of the costume was the large hat of peach velvet, its scalloped rim faced with black velvet and the upper and lower brims adorned at the right side with French flowers in pale tints of blue, apricot and orchid. A string of pearls, long white kid gloves, peach-colored silk hose and gold brocade slippers were worn. The bride's bouquet was of Columbia roses, lily of the valley and maidenhair fern.

The bride's sister, Miss Alice Hayes, acted as bridesmaid, wearing a lovely dress of yellow shot taffeta and white net. The skirt, following out the season's vogue for oddly effective draperies, was in bouffant style, with an upper portion, made very short, of the taffeta, over a longer skirt of white net, worn with a yellow silk slip. The taffeta section, scalloped and uneven, with picoted edge and rimmed with diamante trimming, was short enough to show a deep hem of the white net, which was trimmed at intervals with French flowers in yellow taffeta, studded with brilliants which also trimmed in a floral design the waistline at the left side and made a right shoulder knot. Little Victorian puff sleeves and a rounded yoke of the net topped the bodice, which was sleeveless and tight-fitting. With this was worn a large black velvet hat with velvet streamers and a flower of yellow velvet and silver leaves, also long white kid gloves, black patent leather slippers and yellow silk hose. The bridesmaid's bouquet was of premier roses and asparagus fern.

Mr. Earl Tansey of Toronto, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to the immediate family, Mr. and Mrs. Hattrick leaving later by motor for Port Hope, to take the train to Toronto en route to New York and Atlantic City. They will reside in East Hampton, Long Island.

The bride travelled in a gown of grey crepe romain, made with panels of knife pleating on the skirt and applique motifs embroidered in blue and silver. A coat of blue du Roi Velvellaine with side flare and trimming on collar and cuffs of grey wolf fur, a small hat of grey felt with soft blue coq feathers, grey kid gloves and bag and grey hose with black shoes, completed the costume.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid an encased pen and pencil and to the best man a tie pin.

GUNDY RELIEVED DURING INQUIRY

Windsor Magistrate Asks For Leave Until Situation is Cleared.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.— At his own request, Police Magistrate W. E. Gundy, of Windsor, has been temporarily relieved of his duties, pending an investigation of the administration of justice under his regime. This announcement was made by Hon. Charles McCrea, Acting Attorney-General, after he had had a personal interview with the magistrate.

"Police Magistrate Gundy," said the Minister, "requested the Government that, in view of the present situation in Windsor, in which his conduct as police magistrate and commissioner of police is adversely commented upon, he be granted temporary leave of absence. Mr. Gundy has also requested an investigation to clear the air. The Government is granting the leave requested, and will make full inquiry into this whole matter."

The magistrate's self-imposed suspension comes as the culmination of an agitation which has been going on in Windsor for several weeks past. During this time, both the law enforcement agencies and those entrusted with the administration of justice have come under fire from the local press. About two weeks ago, Chief Constable Daniel Thompson was suspended at his own request, after Ald. Clyde W. Curry had accused him of pocketing certain proceeds of a souvenir advertising programme of the convention of International Association of Police Chiefs, held in Windsor this year.

The agitation also took Gen. V. A. S. Williams, commissioner of provincial police, to Windsor on a special inspection tour, and his visit was followed by an increase in the staff of the police at that point and the creating of a special provincial police district in Essex County.

The stir reached its climax a few days ago, when the Border Cities Star, Windsor newspaper, bluntly demanded, in an editorial, that Magistrate Gundy resign both as magistrate and police commissioner.

Baptist Convention Votes to Expel Dissenters

LOCAL PASTOR DRAWS FIRE OF SHIELDS FORCES

Rev. W. S. Edgar Accused of Heresy at Baptist Convention.

UPHOLDS RESOLUTION.

Right To Bar Churches Out of Harmony Asserted By Convention.

TORONTO, October 14. — Cries of "Shame!" and "Rank Heresy' were parts of the verbal fusilade hurled by Dr. Shields' followers at Rev. W. S. Edgar when the latter yesterday afternoon criticized the extreme fundamentalist conception of the inspiration of the Scriptures.

Mr. Edgar's statements were made during his speech urging acceptance of the bill, which was finally approved, permitting the convention to ask churches which are out of harmony with its aims and objects to dissociate themselves from it entireiy.

Mr. Edgar maintained that the bill would simply give convention members "the right of being masters in their own house." "Some of those people say a vote for the bill was a vote against the infallible word of God, the Bible," he declared vigorously, "but which version of the Bible do they speak of? Is it the authorized version? No. Is it the revised version? No. We are forced back on the position that the original version is the only one that is infallible. But the earliest manuscripts of the Bible date back only to the fourth century. Therefore the book which they claim to be infallible is not now in existence."

This statement brought a torrid outburst of interruption from the Shields section of the convention.

"Rank heresy!" cried out several from the rear. "The Bible is infallible in matters of faith and conduct," went on Mr. Edgar after silence was restored "but there is great harm done in making exaggerated claims for it in other realms. The Bible is the work of God and man. There is the stamp of imperfection on man, and thus there is the stamp of imperfection on the Bible as we have it."

Interviewed last night, at the close of the meeting, Mr. Edgar branded as incorrect a report of his speech in a Toronto evening paper, which quoted him as saying that too much was made of the Bible. "We cannot make too much of the Bible," he affirmed. "My point was that it was a mistake to regard the Bible as a text book on such matters as science. That leads to error and doubt."

It is expected that the power conferred on the convention will be exercised to-day.

Believed Ileana Has Eloped With Officer

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—The New York Evening Post late yesterday printed a special dispatch from Bucharest declaring rumors were prevalent in the Rumania Capital that Princess Ileana had eloped with a young naval lieutenant, aide-de-camp to the late King Ferdinand, her father.

The Princess has been missing for two days from her usual haunts, the dispatch said, and is thought to be on the yacht in the Black Sea.

SEARCH FOR MAN MISSING AT SAULT

Feared Commercial Traveller Has Fallen From International Bridge.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 14.—The police of the two Soos are making a determined search for C. A. Luger, of Green Bay, Wis., traveller for the Congoleum Rug Company, who was last seen as he staggered on to the International Bridge Saturday night in an attempt to walk the bridge to the Michigan Soo. No alarm was felt until to-day, when it was discovered that a Soo taxi driver had taken Luger, in an intoxicated condition, to the bridge, and had seen him stagger over that portion of it spanning the ship canal. The taxi driver says he warned Luger that, in his condition, the trip was hazardous, but that the man kept on and vanished in the darkness

Saturday afternoon Luger left an auto, containing his samples and personal effects, parked on a Michigan Soo street, and came to this side. The auto has never been claimed and is now in the possession of the police. A search is being made below the rapids for Luger's body, with little hope of finding it. If the man fell from the bridge, the body is likely to be wedged among the rocks.

SIX YEAR TERM FOR M'DERMOTT

Mr. Justice McEvoy Jails Three and Releases Three in First Cases.

TWO TO BE SENTENCED.

BARRIE, October 14. — Three members of Beeton's notorious gang of cattle rustlers were given jail terms aggregating 11½ years and three others were released on suspended sentences in the High Court Assises here last night, by the first decisions handed down from the Bench by Mr. Justice McEvoy since his recent elevation.

Joe McDermott, described by His Lordship as the pivot of the cattle-stealing operations, was sentenced to six years in Portsmouth Penitentiary.

Edward Hickland, who pleaded guilty on five counts of stealing and receiving, was sentenced to three years.

Elwood Nevills, who pleaded guilty on three counts was sentenced to two years and six months.

Reginald Andrews, Harry Cannon and Alfred Hartley, all of whom had pleaded guilty on various charges of theft or receiving, were released on suspended sentence. His Lordship warning every one that he was liable to face the full penalty for his offences should he come before the court again. If however, His Lordship added, they kept to the straight and narrow path they would hear no more of the charges.

These judgments leave three more of the famous cattle rustling cases to be disposed of by the court.

Frank Skelly, the only one of the nine accused to fight the charge against him, was found guilty by a jury last night of stealing seven head of cattle from Dan O'Leary. A legal complication raised by defence counsel over the remarks of Special Prosecutor Col. Herbert Lennox, K. C., M.P., in his address to the jury, caused His Lordship to defer sentence in this case until to-day.

Sentence was also deferred until the same time on William Langley, the almost inarticulate witness, who turned Crown's evidence in the case against Skelly. The last of the remaining cases is that against Sam Nevilles, which was traversed to the December Sessions.

FIRE DESTROYS ELDER PLANE IN LANDING

Girl Flier Fails By 800 Miles of Reaching Her Goal.

325 MILES FROM AZORES.

Parisian Papers Put Out Special Editions Following Aviators' Rescue.

PARIS, October 14. — Canadian Press. — Ruth Elder failed by a scant 800 miles of accomplishing the feat of being the first woman to cross the Atlantic by aeroplane.

She and her co-pilot, Captain Geo. Haldeman, were forced down on the waters of the Atlantic by a broken oil pipe, and now are safe and sound aboard the Dutch tanker Barendrecht which rescued them.

Their plane, the American Girl, was estimated to have travelled 3000 miles along its 3800 mile journey.

The plane was destroyed by fire as the ship was attempting to salvage it, the ship reported. The Barendrecht is en route to the Azores where it expects to land the aviators Saturday morning. The ship gave its position as 43.34 north 21.39 west, about 325 miles north-northeast of the Azores.

The first news of the landing and rescue arrived here at 4.36 p.m. in a radio message Miss Elder sent to the Paris office of the Associated Press.

Most of Paris and almost all of Provincial France, however, went to bed last night thinking the aviator and her pilot lost, since it was announced by the officials until after 6 p.m., that they were safe. About that time Commandant Renvoise of LeBourget flying field received a message from Miss Elder. The last editions of all the Paris afternoon newspapers were on the streets at that time with their headlines reading the same as they had during the day: "No news of the American girl." Even the first edition of to-day's Petit Parisien and Le Matin carried the headlines: "Lost in Sea," and "No news of the American Girl."

Special Editions.

Last night after dinner when most good Parisians were home, some of the newspapers put forth special editions sold to late strollers and partakers of refreshments along the boulevards.

Expressions of relief were then heard everywhere and at the same time comment was almost universal: "She was mighty lucky to land by a steamship and be rescued."

Most of the news printed in Paris last night had been relayed back across the Atlantic from New York, where it had been sent by the Associated Press shortly before noon (E S T.) As far as direct word from the fliers is concerned there were only the identic messages sent by Miss Elder to the Associated Press and Commandant Renvoise. The message read as follows:

"Landed by S. S. Barendrecht with broken oil line. Both Haldeman and I Okay.—Ruth Elder."

"Too Happy To Speak."

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(A. P.)—Her eyes sparkling with tears she could not control, Mrs. Virginia Haldeman, wife of the pilot of the American Girl, was "almost too happy to speak" yesterday when she was told by The Associated Press that her husband and Ruth Elder had been rescued at sea after a broken oil line had forced down their plane.

Long hours without word from the fliers had plunged her into doubting despair, she confessed. She had been weeping through the night while she remained with close friends in her suite at a hotel, but the flash that told of the rescue brought "the happiest moment of all."

"I tried hard to sleep and not to worry last night," she siad, "but my mind kept going back to those two, flying through nobody knew what dangers in the yellow plane that I had seen so often I just lay there thinking, thinking and wondering when word would come — hoping against hope that nothing had happened to them.

"And then word did come." She almost sang the last words, "I'm so happy and so relieved, I'm thrilled."

The tears welled into her eyes again and coursed down her cheeks. It was only a moment, however, before she regained complete control of herself. Then wrapping a pink negligee more closely about her, she took a chart of the proposed course of the flight and pointed out the approximate spot where the plane had been forced down. Her sound knowledge of flying and weather conditions showed that she had followed her husband's course with the closest attention.

Mrs. Haldeman said her first act after making sure that the plane was safe, was to send a telegram to Billy, her four year old son, at Lakeland, Fla. Then there was another dispatched to her husband and Miss Elder on the Dutch steamer Barendrecht which rescued them.

Promoters of Flight Are Cashing In To-Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Cashing in manoeuvres to-day occupied the promoters of Ruth Elder's attempted flight to Paris. The backers of the adventure have sold the story of the flight to the highest bidder, while indications were that movie and vaudeville contracts involving thousands of dollars would be offered to the heroine. The fliers were instructed not to talk to anyone until they heard from the promoters, who have already arranged with a syndicate to sell the story

REFUGE BOARD INVESTIGATING

Management Committee of the County Council Took Matter Up On Tuesday.

VENTILATION ALTERED.

The following statement is given The Examiner to-day by E. M. Elliott Clerk of the County Council:

"The jury were quite within their province in reporting what they ascertained at the County House of Refuge but in order to assure the public that the Board of Management have not been lax in their duties I wish to draw their attention to the fact that an investigation of such alleged irregularities has been under way since Tuesday, the 11th inst. and the matter will be dealt with in accordance with the facts, when such has been thoroughly investigated."

Ventilation.

"With regard to ventilation in the new offices of the Registrar and Clerk of the Court, the Building Committee have ordered from Toronto all contrivances that appeared to be necessary to complete ventilation.

"The incumbents of such offices are aware of the action of the committee."

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST DUNCAN

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 14 (Canadian Press).—A charge of murder was laid against George Duncan, when he was arraigned today in Police Court after having been held for some weeks on a vagrancy charge. The charge was in connection with the death of his wife. Duncan pleaded not guilty and on request of Crown Attorney Charlton was remanded for a week without argument.

Reports Theft of Gun Only When He Needs It

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 14.—(United Press.)—"I want to hunt ducks, but somebody stole my gun," Jack Husy reported to the police.

Then he was asked "when it was stolen."

"On October 12, 1926," he replied.

"Why didn't you report it then," the desk sergeant asked.

"I didn't need it then," he replied.

PUNISHES DEPUTIES.

That the half-a-million word four-day speech, which Mustapha Kemal proposes to deliver before the Turkish Assembly at Angora, was inspired in part by a desire to punish that body for its talkativeness, was the confession made by the dictator in an interview recently. This is his latest picture

APPROVES BY HUGE MAJORITY BILL PASSED BY PARLIAMENT TO EXPEL DISTURBING ELEMENT

Delegates of Church Not in Harmony May Be Excluded.

RECEIVED IN SILENCE.

Taken After Six Hours' Debate During Which 24 Speeches Delivered.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—By a vote of 648 to 269, the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec at 4.30 yesterday afternoon voted approval of the bill passed on the last session of the Dominion Parliament of which the convention may, by a three-fifths vote of delegates, "declare that any church, the conduct or attitude of which in the opinion of said convention, is not in harmony and co-operation with the work and objects of said convention, shall cease to be entitled to send any delegates to such convention, and whereupon any and all delegates if any such church in attendance of such whereby shall cease to be delegates."

The vote was taken after six hours of debate, during which 24 speeches were delivered.

Received In Silence.

The result of the vote was received in silence, which was broken when Rev. Bowley Green, of Toronto, moved, secon ded by Dr. N. F. McCutcheon, of Montreal, a resolution declaring certain churches to be out of harmony with the convention.

When the vote was taken, the church was filled and many delegates stood in the aisles.

Thomas Urquhart requested a vote by ballot, but the chairman ruled that parliamentary practice of a standing vote would be followed. As the Yeas and Nays stood, they were counted in blocks by the scrutineers who then retired to check up their count. As the voting progressed, standing delegates who didn't wish to be counted had to squat down in the aisles.

Before Rev. H. F. Veale, chairman of the scrutineers, announced the vote the chairman had asked that the convention show good sportsmanship and that there be no demonstration, saying that the majority whoever they might be, held the minority in high regard. It was reported 900 delegates were present.

Before the scrutineers reported the chairman asked for a short session of prayer.

Rev. Bowley Green, of Toronto, moved:

"Whereas, an organized campaign that creates division and discord, and seriously interferes with the work for which this convention exists, has been carried on for some time among the churches of the convention.

"And, whereas such misrepresentations are made in this campaign as tend to destroy the confidence of our people in the boards regularly appointed by the convention and in our denominational leaders:

"And whereas an organization calling itself The Regular Baptist Missionary and Educational Society of Canada, has been formed, which carries on work in opposition to or in rivalry with the work of certain boards of the Convention, and thus diverts the support of our churches from our Convention Boards, while at the same time full status in this Convention is claimed for churches supporting that organization.

"Be it resolved, that in the opinion of this convention such churches as have, by resolution or otherwise, identified themselves with such campaign or support the aforesaid organization should therefore be considered as being not in harmony and co-operation with the work and objects of this convention."

The convention proceeded to debate this resolution.

Delegates from District.

Delegates from City and District Churches to the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, which opened Wednesday at Temple Baptist Church, Toronto, are as follows:

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, Dr. W. D. Scott and Mrs. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wearing, from Murray street church; Rev. J. L. Harton, Dr. G. Raymore Scott and Mrs. Alfred Scott from Park street Baptist church; Rev. W. E. Edgar and G. Willan Mann, from Gilmour Memorial church; Rev. William Spencer and Mrs. Spencer, from Lakefield church.

On account of a change in the constitution of the Convention, Selwyn Baptist Church, which in some former years was represented by proxy votes, has no delegates at the present meeting.

Replies to Welcome.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe was the only newcomer from the United States among a number of newly settled pastors in the Baptist ministry in the two provinces, who were formally welcomed Wednesday night by Rev. S. J. Farmer of Owen Sound on behalf of the Convention body.

To Mr. Sutcliffe fell the task of replying to the words of welcome—a task which he accomplished in a brief well-phrased speech which captivated the large audience.

New England Swept By Heavy Cloudburst

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 14 (A.P.).—What the weather bureau here described as "a little secondary disturbance" deposited 1.66 inches of rain in Boston within a few hours yesterday and sent the warm southwind to a velocity of 41 miles an hour, the highest point reached since last February. The storm caused considerable damage throughout New England.

One man was killed in Waterville, Me., being knocked to the street from a wagon by a falling electric light wire. Many other wires and limbs of trees were blown down in that city.

COMMUNISTS ATTACK LABOR

Plan To Discredit Leaders Who Worked Against Them.

FORCE RE-ADMISSION.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Lord Strathcona has been appointed Deputy Chairman of the Conservative Unionist organization, it is authoratively stated at Tory headquarters.

The Communists are determined to fight those Labor members who have been strongest in the opposition to any dealings with the Communists. This is revealed as a result of a secret session where orders were given "To specially concentrate on establishing a group of the leading party members, within Parliament, at the earliest opportunity. Immediate attention must be directed toward securing favorable constituencies and all the available resources of the party must be utilized to secure the success of Communist conditions."

The Communists avow they are going to "Get the most reactionary of these middle class and bureaucratic leaders repudiated by the organized workers in their constituencies," these leaders being men like Thomas and Henderson. Their ultimate object is to force the Labor Party to re-admit the Communists.

FLYING BOATS WELL EQUIPPED

Bunks, Pantries, Stoves and Awnings On British Seaplanes.

FOR FLIGHT TO EAST.

FELIXSTOWE, England, October 14 (United Press). — Four Southampton type Napier flying boats left to-day for Plymouth, where they plan to start on Monday in a 25,000 mile flight that will end in the Far East. The planes are equipped with folding bunks, pantries, and stoves. They will take with them canopies, ventilators, and awnings for use in the tropics.

FLIERS TO REACH AZORES TO-MORROW

Fought Storm For Eight Hours In Record Flight Over Water.

PARIS, October 14. Canadian Press. — Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman forced down in the plane American Girl, yesterday, were due to arrive at the Azores to-morrow, on the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, which picked them up as their plane was destroyed by fire in waters 600 miles from Europe. They had made the longest flight ever recorded over water, two thousand five hundred miles.

A further message indicated that they had fought the storm for eight hours, when they found themselves far to the south of their course. Then the oil feed pipe broke, and after sighting the Barendrecht, they came down alongside the steamer. The couple were picked up but as an effort was being made to put the plane on board it caught fire, and was quickly destroyed.

DELAYS HOP-OFF

ST. LOUIS, Senegal, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—Dieudonne Costes, because of continued bad weather last night, was forced to postpone his hop-off in the plane "Nungesser-Coli" until six a.m. today.

GRAYSON CREW PLAN HOP-OFF EARLY TO-DAY

Hope To Make Start if Tide and Weather Conditions Permit.

STAND FINAL TESTS.

Will Land Either at Valencia or Some Port of England.

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, Oct. 14.—(Associated Press).—After a day in which the elements did their best to spoil the projected flight to Copenhagen the crew of the Sikorsky plane, the Dawn, made fresh plans last night for a start at low tide this morning.

All seemed greatly pleased with the manner in which the amphibian came through its two-hour ordeal when an unusually high tide, augmented by strong south-westerly winds, tore at the ship and buffeted it with high rollers.

Mrs. Frances W. Grayson, the woman who now expects to be the first to set foot on European soil after a trans-Atlantic flight, especially in view of the fate of the 'American Girl,' said last night:

"We have gained fresh inspiration and added reliance by to-day's experience. Our Wright expert, T. Harold Kinkade, says the motors were untouched by the surf. The plane itself is unscarred, and we are certain no water reached our gasoline tanks.

"The only water in the plane was a little which came in around the cabin windows when the combers struck her. During those two hours the 'Dawn' showed how well she could ride the waves, even with her landing gear down. Of course, in a forced landing at sea the wheels would be retracted so that she would be even more easily managed.

Stop at Valencia.

"We have now no intention of attempting a non-stop flight to Copenhagen. We will land either at Valencia, Ireland, or some part of England. There we will refuel and get some rest before proceeding to our ultimate destination."

Yesterday afternoon the sun broke through the clouds for the first time since it rose yesterday. The wind moderated a bit. There was, however, a low thick haze close in shore. The possibility of a start at dusk was considered, but it finally was determined to wait for the morning tide.

The chief factor in this decision was the desire of Pilot Wilmer Stulz to have daylight during the first few hours in which he guides the heavily loaded plane and which he regards the most crucial of the flight. Added to this was the information received by Navigator Brice Goldsborough that a secondary storm probably would not blow itself out until nightfall, which would have made a take-off precarious.

The plane was given a rigid inspection after yesterday's storm, and all was in readiness for a start this morning between 7 and 9 o'clock, if the tide and weather conditions permit.

SERVICE STATION WILL BE RE-BUILT

Wreckage at Madoc Has Been Cleared—Electric Service Interrupted.

MADOC, October 14. — The work of clearing up the wreckage after the fire in Armstrong's Service Station was begun on Wednesday. Mr. Armstrong is looking forward to the re-building and re-furnishing of his service station . Help has been given by the men of the town, and as many hands make light work, a great deal of work has been accomplished which might have taken weeks to do otherwise.

The new Fire Hall is fast being rushed to completion. Work has been commenced on the second storey rooms, and is progressing rapidly.

Light Wires Burned.

The electric light service has been seriously interfered with on account of the cables burned by the fire on Sunday night.

On Wednesday evening part of the village was in darkness owing to the breakage of one of the high tension wires in the main part of the town.

Mrs. Burkitt, who was hurt in the automobile accident on Sunday night, is still seriously ill. Others are recovering, but James Golan had to have several stitches put in the wound on his leg.

Charlie Lewis, son of Mr. Russell Lewis, who was hurt at Moira Lake some time ago ,and had to have several stitches in a flesh wound in his leg, will soon be able to return to school again.

The W.M.S. sectional rally of the United Church, which was to have been held at Cooper on Tuesday, October 11, has been postponed on account of several cases of illness in that neighbourhood.

LITTLE GIRL HURT.

OMEMEE, Oct. 14.—Marion Fisher, the little ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fisher is in bed for a few days as the result of a fall on the pavement from a bicycle on which she was riding with Jean McGinness, who is a few years her senior. When they were turning the corner from a side street, a car, driven by Mr. Ralph James collided with them. Fortunately, for all no other damage resulted.

THREE SAILORS LOST IN STORM

Steamer Atinous Tells of Battle With Gale On Atlantic.

MOUNTAINOUS SEAS.

LONDON, October 14 (Associated Press).—A three-day battle with a furious gale on the Atlantic in which three members of the crew were lost overboard was described when the United States Shipping Board steamer Antinous arrived here yesterday. The surviving members of the crew reported they had been badly knocked out by the mountainous seas.

The three washed overboard were Boatswain Otto Rebhen a German; James Boykin, 24, of Pensacola, Fla.; and Eric Carlsson, a Swede. Tom Wilder, a seaman from California, was taken to a hospital with a broken leg, and Captain Stuart Duncan came ashore sick from strain.

After leaving Mobile on September 14, the Antinous encountered a gale on the seventh day out. The lumber cargo had been lashed down, but the violent pitching of the ship burst the bonds. Booms were smashed and part of the bridge washed away. A vast wave described as 200 feet high swept over the starboard side of the ship, carrying off three men. Despite the activities of the skipper and seamen, much of the cargo was lost.

CHURCH SOCIETIES MEET AT MADOC

Sunday School Teachers and W.M.S. Hold Successful Gatherings.

MADOC, Oct. 14.—A meeting of the Sunday School teachers and officers of Trinity United Church, Madoc, was held on Monday evening. After a very general discussion, it was decided that a class be organized to take up the Standary teachers' training course, and that others in this S. S. convention area be asked to join the class. The desirability of using a uniform memory course was discussed and was favorably accepted. Mrs. T. L. Nickle was appointed supervisor of this course, and supplies were sent for. The question of using pledge cards on Temperance Sunday was discussed and agreed to. With the opening of the New Year, the plan of using the Robert Rácke's diplomas will be introduced and carried out systematically.

The Y.P.S. of St. Peter's Church met on Tuesday evening for re-organization and to plan the work for the coming year.

A W.M.S. missionary tea was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. T. E. Burnside. A good attendance showed the increasing interest in these social evenings. Community singing was much enjoyed and a special treat was provided by the singing of the Misses Parker. Games, tea and a social good time ended a very pleasant evening.

The annual thank-offering meeting of W.M.S. was held in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon, with the President, Mrs. E. West, presiding. Mrs. Kanawin, of the Provincial Board of W.M.S., gave a splendid outline of the work in foreign fields, and impressed upon the members the urgent need to give of themselves to this great cause. Miss Danforth, of China, a former resident of Madoc, gave an interesting talk on the superstitions of the Chinese. A standing vote of thanks was tendered the speakers for their inspiring addresses. At the close of the meeting a life membership certificate was presented to Mrs. Marshall. The amount of the thank-offering was $101.40. A social half-hour was spent and a dainty lunch served.

Princess Irene of Greece Engaged To Prince Christian of Denmark

VIENNA, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—Princess Irene, twenty-three-year-old sister of former King George of Greece, is engaged to Prince Christian Schaumbourg Lippe of Denmark, the former King announced last night before he left here for Bucharest, Rumania.

Princess Irene, who is a tall, beautiful, blue-eyed blonde girl, telegraphed the news to her brother while travelling from Frankfort to Florence, where she and her finance, who is twenty-nine years old, will visit her mother, the former Queen Sophie of Greece.

Ex-King George said the two young people had been acquainted for many years. Prince Christian is a nephew of the King of Denmark.

Princess Irene was once reported engaged to the bachelor King Boris of Bulgaria, but when confronted with the news she declared she would never marry into any Balkan royal family because of the tragic experience of her sister, Princess Helen of Rumania, whose husband, Prince Carol, deserted her

MAKE FINAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR UNVEILING OF MEMORIAL

Dedicated To U. S. Citizens Who Died in Canadian Uniform.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Understood Canada Will Be Permitted To Send Detachment of Soldiers to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (Canadian Press).—Final arrangements for the unveiling of Canada's memorial to United States citizens who died in the uniform of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces during the World War have not been made, but it is understood that Canada will be permitted to bring to Washington a detachment of Canadian soldiery and that the United States will supply a similar guard of honor so that soldiers of the two nations will flank the cross of sacrifice when it is unveiled next Armistice Day and presented to the United States.

News that Premier King would personally attend has not reached Washington until yesterday, but the Canadian Press announced some weeks ago that the whole matter of the ceremonial would be left by Canada with Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, prepared to make Canada's ceremony the chief function of Armistice Day in the Memorial Arlington Cemetery, the shrine of United States naval and military heroes here.

Regular Militia.

So far as is known, Canada will send a guard of honor from the regular militia with a miltary band, probably the Highlanders band of Toronto. It is understood at the Canadian Legation here that Col. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, will especially represented the Canadian Government.

ANOTHER GIRL SWIMS CHANNEL

Ivy Gill Is Third This Month and Fifth Woman in History.

TAKES FIFTEEN HOURS.

DOVER, England, Oct. 14. — The third woman to swim the English Channel this month, Miss Ivy Gill, landed at Shakespeare Beach, near here, at 12.20 am. to-day. The 24 year-old girl, who is the fifth of her sex to accomplish the feat, started from Cape Gris-Nez, France, at 9.11 a.m. yesterday.

Her first words on touching the English shore were: "I can't stand." She was helped up the beach by her manager and trainer, and then taken to a Dover bath house for a hot bath.

For the first hour of her swim Miss Gill found the water to be calm, but the sea became rough. After three hours it was calm again, and conditions at the end were perfect.

Miss Gill used a trudgeon stroke all the wake, except for the three hours of rough water, when she combatted the waves with a breast stroke. During the last hour Fellows of Rotherham, her trainer, and himself a Channel-swimming aspirant, swam alongside, while the boatmen who helped Miss Gill announced that they are ready to sign affidavits on the authenticity of the swim.

Miss Gill has won many swimming prizes in the district from which she comes. She trained for the Channel in the millpond at Sheffield, where, she says, one stroke is as tiring as six in the sea. She works as a typist in a Sheffield office, and was married recently.

Dr. Dorothy Cochrane Logan, London "mystery swimmer," conquered the Channel this week, her time of 13 hours 10 minutes bettering the record of 14 hours 31 minutes held by Gertrude Ederle of New York, first woman to swim the Channel. A week previous Miss Mercedes Gleitz, London typist was credited with swimming the Channel. Mrs. Clemington Corson (Mlle. Glade) of New York, swam the Channel in 1926.

Newsies Reap Harvest With Final Editions

London, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—Newsboys reaped a harvest of pennies here yesterday when London afternoon papers, with their usual final editions on the street, issued extras announcing the rescue of the crew of "The American Girl" in large headlines.

The first news to reach here was Ruth Elder's own message sent by radio to The Associated Press in Paris and transmitted thence to Reuters, the British news agency, and rushed by them to the afternoon papers.

When the news was published that the fliers had come through safely, expressions of satisfaction were heard on all sides.

Bear Will Trouble Beehives No More

MARMORA, Oct. 14.—On Sunday last, John Vincent, a farmer residing in the Fourth Concession of Marmora township notified Sanford Lawrence, Marmora's noted hunter that a bear had been troubling bee hives on his property near Nobe's Rapids for the past week. So daring had Bruin become in his quest for sweeties that after robbing the hives, he had crashed through the window of an unoccupied house to get to some frames which he carried outside.

Accompanied by his brother-in-law, Will Darrah, Mr. Lawrence visited the scene of the depredations on Monday evening and carefully set an ordinary steel bear trap. Returning on Tuesday morning, he found a bear whose weight is estimated at 400 pounds, in the trap.

Mr. Lawrence, with his characteristic chuckle, states that this is the heaviest of the large number of bear victims, which in one fall numbered twelve, most of whom fell to his gun without being trapped. This same hunter will be remembered as having shot five wolves in rapid succession when back to the north of Marmora two years ago.

New Leader Pledges All Possessions To Service of People As Head of Party

"It has been said, and not improperly said, that I am a man of some wealth. It is true. It is absolutely true. But I got it by my untiring efforts in this great Western land to which I owe so much. And, what is more, I look on it as a solemn trust in my hands to enable me to serve my country without fear or regard for the future so far as that is concerned. And I count myself most fortunate the good Lord has been good enough to permit me to be in that state. For no man may serve you as he should if he has over his shoulder always the shadow of pecuniary obligations and liabilities. Therefore, you may meet that story by saying that such as I have I consecrate with myself to the service in which I am."—Hon. R. B. Bennett on accepting the leadership of the Conservative party.

Holding Tag Day in Lakefield and Havelock To-morrow.

Saturday, the 15th of October, is Tag Day in Havelock and Lakefield. The ladies of these places are giving a great deal of time and sacrificing their own interests on that day for the sake of the under-privileged child. The Society takes in all the county as well as the city, with this difference, that it costs a great deal more for the work in the county than the city by reason of the distance. No complaint from the county reaches the Superintendent that is not investigated. The Tag Day in Havelock and Lakefield in former years has been well supported, and it is the wish of the ladies in these places to make it even better. They therefore desire the support of every one to help them make it the best Tag Day ever held in Havelock and Lakefield. Be one of those to do it.

OBITUARY.

MARY ESTHER TUCKER.

APSLEY, Oct. 14.—The death occurred on Tuesday last after a brief illness of Mary Esther, wife of Melville Tucker, at the early age of 25 years. Besides her sorrowing husband and a little daughter about fourteen months old, she leaves behind two brothers, Harvey and Scott, and three sisters, Helen, Norah and Janet. The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon, service being held at the house, conducted by Rev. C. A. G. Spence. The deceased was laid to rest in the cemetery at Apsley beside her little five-weeks-old baby, who was buried only four days previously.

Mrs. Tucker was highly respected by everyone and her untimely death is a shock to the community.

WILLIAM A. MILNE.

BURNBRAE, Oct. 14.—Another of the pioneers of the community has gone to his reward in the passing of the late William A. Milne, who was called to the greater life on Monday, Oct. 10. The deceased, who was born on Lot 25, Concession 4, just east of Menie, over 78 years ago, of pioneer Scotch stock, was a man who had enjoyed remarkable good health and had gone about doing the every-day jobs on his small farm at Menie until just a few days prior to his death. A sudden attack of illness aggravated by a severe cold imposed a too heavy strain on the heart, and the end came suddenly as a great shock both to the members of the family and the neighbors.

The late Mr. Milne was a man of sterling Christian character, who always took a keen interest in the activities of the community and during his long life had made for himself a host of friends, who deeply mourn his passing.

In politics, a staunch Liberal, the deceased was an active and fair-minded worker in the interests of his nation and his party. In religious matters, a life long Presbyterian and a member of St. Andrew's Church. He was for forty-two years a member of its Session, for twenty-seven years Secretary-Treasurer of the congregation, and also for a time Superintendent of the Sabbath School. He will be sadly missed in the church life as he was indeed a pillar of the religious life of the community.

In view of the illness of Mrs. Milne, who has been confined to bed for nearly ten months, a short private funeral service was held at the home on Wednesday at 1 p.m., after which the interment was made in the family plot at Burnbrae Cemetery, with service afterward in the church, conducted by Rev. D. A. McKenzie and Rev. Hugh Shaw.

Mr. McKenzie took as his text the immortal words of Paul, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." He believed that this was the message the life of the departed would teach to those who were left behind.

Besides the sorrowing widow, there remains a family of three daughters and four sons—Mrs. Allan Hutcheon, Menie; Misses Alice and Eva, at home; Andrew, Menie; William, Burnbrae; Alexander, Menie, and Charles, Campbellford.

Messrs. Alex. Hume, A. T. Donald, James Ketcheson, George Ingram, William Rannie and James Stewart were those who bore the remains of their friend and neighbor to his last resting place in the beautiful Burnbrae Cemetery.

My life is like the summer rose
That opens to the morning sky,
But, ere the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground—to die!
Yet on the rose's humble bed
The sweetest dews of night are shed,
As if she wept the waste to see,—
But none shall weep a tear for me.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 14 (A.P.) —The engineer of a freight train on the Wrenthan branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was killed yesterday when the locomotive and one car left the tracks because of a washout and toppled over an embankment. The heavy rainstorm of the forenoon had undermined the tracks, railroad officials said.

Engineer Hugh Keenan of Providence, was pinned beneath his engine and crushed to death. His fireman, Robert Lilley of Providence, had several ribs broken.

The accident occurred one mile west of Hillside Station, between Adamsdale and North Attleboro. The train was bound from Cedar to Providence.

DEDICATES HIMSELF TO SERVE STATE, RENOUNCING BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL INTERESTS

Hon. R. B. Bennett's Notable Speech in Accepting Conservative Leadership.

FREE TO SERVE.

Must Give His Time and Talent to the Position He Has Won.

Hon. R. H. Bennett's notable speech in accepting the Conservative leadership was as follows:

"It is very difficult to find words with which to express my sentiments at this moment. I thank you for your more than generous support which is wholly unmerited, but I appreciate, I think, at this moment, more, that sense of responsibility which any man thus honored must always carry with him.

"I doubt if there are any who have not at one time or other in their lives attended a meeting, a gathering in a sacred religious edifice, and seen some man renounce many things, that he might assume a great responsibility to be consecrated for a life of service. No such gathering as that, of course, takes place at a meeting like this. Nevertheless, I feel that you have endeavored in your way to set me aside for service to my country through the Conservative party. (Applause).

"One night not long ago, I had a dream—and I don't believe particularly in dreams, because they usually represent bad digestion—but I thought that I was here in my dream, that I had been called upon to say something to this vast audience. And I am going to say to you now what that something was, for it became very real. They were the words of no human person: they were the words of the Man of Galilee: 'And whosoever of you will be the chiefest shall be servant of all.' I looked it up the next day because it stayed with me. 'Whosoever of you will be the chiefest shall be servant of all.' Men and women, you have honored me beyond my deserts, beyond any deserts that I ever may have. You have made me for the moment the chiefest among you, and, please God, I shall be the servant of all.

A Heavy Responsibility.

"It is no ordinary thing to have thrust upon you such responsibilities, and no man alone can discharge them. They are overwhelming. In this new democracy, I think, we too often treat our public men ill. We think the way of a politician is a simple thing, and there is nothing that he should not do, and we make criticisms of public men sometimes wholly unwarranted. But if democracy is to be a real thing, if it is to represent the will of the people as it should, if it is not to be supplanted—supplanted by the form of government that now exists in Italy—if the challenge of Italy to the democratic world is not a real challenge—then, men and women, each of you must assume leadership in his or her community to see to it that an educated and a qualified democracy determines the destinies of Canada. Without it we must fail, and this convention can only make possible the success of the party of which, for the moment, you have honored me in leadership if each of you, going to his or her home, will cary an earnest of the truth, and earnest of the faith that we have shown within ourselves—a firm believer in the principles that he have adopted in the resolutions we have passed. Then indeed this great Liberal-Conservative party will become an instrument for the good of Canada and for the advancement of the welfare of the people who call themselves Canadians. But, men and women, if we are content not to organize, if we are content that democracy shall find its own leaders, if we are content to believe that we will achieve our ends without effort, then indeed this great party will not have fulfilled its mission, I have only one word to say—a word of thanks to all of you who have done what you have done thisl day; a word, coupled with a deep and abiding sense of my own responsibilities, and the consecration of my time, for I must renounce all those things that I have held most dear in the life I have heretofore lived. No longer can the claims of my profession or my business be upon me.

Pledges His All.

"These I must put behind me, for I realize, as was said by Bacon, that the law is a jealous mistress. So political leadership is more than a jealous mistress, and a man may not serve two masters or mistresses. However, that being the fact, I realize that I must renounce these things, for thus far in my life-politics more or less have been an instrument; law and business have been my main vocations. You have determined for me that henceforth, so long as I have health and strength, I must dedicate my talents and my time, such qualities as I may have and the fortune that God has been good enough to give me to the interests of my country through the great party to which I am privileged to lead. It has been said, and not improperly said, that I am a man of some wealth. It is true. It is absolutely true. But I got it by my own untiring efforts in this great Western land to which I owe so much. And what is more, I look upon it as a solemn trust in my hands to enable me to serve my country without fear or regard for the future so far as that is concerned. And I thought myself most fortunate that the good Lord had been good enough to permit me to be in that happy state, for no man may serve you as he should if he has over his shoulder always the shadow of pecuniary obligations and liabilities. Therefore you may meet that story by saying that such as I have I concentrate with myself to the service in which I am.

Appeals for Action.

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, let me urge you only to one thing. A party is but an instrument to accomplish a purpose. All of us in this country—Canadins, Liberals and Conservatives and Progressives—have one object in view: the health, the happiness, the prosperity of the Canadian people. Measures of social justice, measures of fiscal reform, measures that will make for the interest and happiness of all the people who call themselves Canadians—all of us have this in view. And if I believe, as you believe, we have shown we believe, that in the Liberal-Conservative party we have an instrument better capable of accomplishing those things than any other instrument devised by the will of man in Canada, then let us see to it we organize in every hamlet, that we organize in every community, that wherever we can we carry the gospel of the faith that is within us, and yield ourselves willing witness to that faith, that we may bring about the end and result we have in view.

"I can ask nothing more, ladies and gentlemen, than that. And in the firm faith that you will be loyal to yourselves, and thus be loyal to me, that you will give me that unity of support, the strength of support, that unity of thought and of action without which no man can succeed. I accept at your hands the great trusts you have placed with me, and I shall endeavor to the best of my ability to discharge it so as to bring no discredit upon you or the great party to which we belong, and whose traditions we so greatly revere.

"Ladies and gentlemen, with that high purpose which I hope shall always guide me, I shall endeavor, as well as I may, to the extent of all the resources that have been placed at my disposal by a kind Providence, to serve the interests of my country, of this beloved Canada of ours, and of the party—that great instrument that we have—to forge for this country a great future, a great destiny."

"I will not detain you. It would be unfair for me to do so." (Cries of "Go on" greeted him, and he continued).

"Now, young men and women, the Great War left 50,000 dead in France and Flanders, deprived Canada of a priceless asset—the leaders. The leaders of today, they lie in France and Flanders. Where would this convention have been if they had been with us—those bright minds, those select minds, those pure minds that are not with us? What does that mean to you and me? It means that we old men must stretch ourselves a foot or two more in order that we may cover the gap that has been left, and that the younger men must accept responsibilities, younger and newer, to meet that gap. Oh, to be young again in this country. This land of opportunity, this land of destiny, this land where Conservative policies, if given effect, will provide jobs for Canadians and not for workmen in other lands.

Appeals to Young Manhood.

"Let us dedicate ourselves, young men and women, to the service of Canada, that we may make it what we would have it. That is the appeal to the younger men, and I hope I may be able in every part of this country, if I have my health and strength, to meet the young men of Canada from Cape Breton to the Yukon. I hope to see them and talk to them, to see their faces, to see the enthusiasm of youth, the bright and cheerful faces of men and women filled with hope and energy. These are the constituents to which we will appeal. These are the young men of promise, who demand that we shall give something that will make it possible as they grow to men's estate to find here a home for themselves. We must stop the movement out of this country of its most priceless asset. We must find work for men and women. And I am sure with that policy that you have adopted, it is possible.

"One word more, and I am through. Promise here and now as you walk out yonder doors that you will be missionaries for the great cause, missionaries for the great party to which we belong, missionaries for the greatest political convention ever held in the Dominion of Canada, and if you are missionaries your efforts will be crowned with success, and you will have in power at Ottawa a Goverment reflecting your convictions, your principles, your hopes and inspirations. Men and women, fellow Canadians, thank you."

PAGEANT COMING.

An outstanding event at the Produced-In-Canada Exhibition for Friday and Saturday will be the presentation of that beautiful Pageant direct from the Canadian National Exhibition entitled "New Canadians Arriving". This was a feature attraction given at various times in the Three Arts Room of the Institute wing of Women's Building during the Toronto Exhibition. Miss Ethel M. Chapman writing in the Ontario Farmer has this to say of this beautiful and educative spectacle. "A further kindness for which we have to thank the "Three Arts Committee" was an endeavor to show us something of new Canadians coming to our country from lands and peoples of whom most of us know very little. One of the Pageant, "New Canadians Arriving" showed Miss Canada, welcoming these newcomers who in turn offered their gifts in song and dance and handicraft. No Canadian-born Canadian could listen to the Italian girl singing her operatic airs, to the Polish boy violinist, to the Ukrainian orchestra and their winsome girl bending over her violin like a flower on a slender stem and coaxing out the story of the old Ukrainian exile or to the shy little Chinese, pretty beyond words, in her white silk jacket and trousers, playing Chinese tunes on a Chinese piano and singing little snatches of Chinese songs, without realizing something of what we have missed in not giving music a large place in the education and the pleasures of all Canadians, and of what our new countrymen have brought to us in their music and their crafts."

Exactly the same personnel which appeared in this attraction in Toronto will arrive in Peterborough tomorrow. The pageant will be presented in the grandstand performance on Friday and Saturday evenings under the personal direction of Miss Dickins, who was acclaimed at the Canadian National Exhibition for this outstanding production.

MEN IN PRISONS SHOULD PAY WAY

W. S. Hughes, Superintendent of Penitentiaries, Opposes Burden on Honest Men.

TORONTO, October 14. — "I do not believe in honest taxpavers footing the bill for men incarcerated in prison, who are able under supervision to contribute materially to their own upkeep and perhaps send something in addition to their families at home."

This statement reflecting the policy of the Dominion Government with respect to penitentiaries was made to the Kiwanis Club of Toronto, to W. S. Hughes, Superintendent of Penitentiaries for Canada.

Mr. Hughes outlined the change that had taken place in recent years in dealing with those who were serving sentences of two years or upward in Canada. The day of the stone-breaker had passed and to-day these inmates were serving as useful tasks largely in supplying materials for use by the Dominion Government. Mr. Hughes pointed out that even at the maximum so called prison labor did not compete with the product of trade unions.

The product of the penitentiaries in Canada supplied about one fifth of one per cent. of the requirements of the Dominion Government purchasing department. He also claimed that one could not tell a criminal by his looks, and that 92 per cent. of those who were released from the Canadian penitentiaries came out in a better physical condition than when they went in. Canadian penitentiaries had a splendid record for holding their clients and at the present time there was only one escaped man at large from any Canadian penitentiary.

The cost for police stations, jails, courts, etc., in Canada, totalled $1200 for every arrest made. This high cost made it necessary for the government to turn as much labor as possible into productive channels so that the objective of the present day official was to direct penitentiary labor for the use of the state.

ROSENEATH W.I. SENDS DELEGATE

Mrs. C. W. Varcoe Will Be Representative at the Convention.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 14.—The Woman's Institute was held in the Town Hall on Thursday afternoon and was extra well attended. Mrs. (Dr.) Hershey was hostess. The president, Mrs. Lottie Nichol, opened the meeting with the singing of the Maple Leaf. Letters were read from Mrs. Baxter, Mrs. W. P. Plant, and Mrs. Chub. The secretary was requested to write to Mrs. Deviney an invitation to be present at the November meeting at Mrs. George Ingham's.

Moved by Mrs. Robert Mouncey, seconded by Mrs. Jackson, that the Roseneath orchestra be granted the use of the piano free of charge, providing they take care of it.

Moved by Mrs. (Dr.) Hershey, seconded by Mrs. Clarence W. Varcoe, that a delegate be sent to the convention at Belleville. Carried.

drecht, which picked them up.

But that, she admitted, came after the first exciting moment at the news. When word first came, she said, she had leaped to embrace "everybody in the room.'

Husband Happy.

PANAMA, October 14 (Associated Press).—Lyle Womack, husband of Ruth Elder, pilot of the "American Girl," last night said that he had received a radiogram from the Dutch tanker Barendrecht:

"Picked up by the steamship Barendrecht, both safe, uninjured. Love, Ruth."

Womack, after an all-night vigil, appeared haggard and drawn but happy at the outcome of his wife's attempt to cross the Atlantic, although disappointed that she had failed. Womack radioed the ship in reply:

"With love, bravest girl in the world. Am anxiously awaiting your return."

He said that if it will speed their re-union, he will start immediately for New York, but he will await further word from his wife, who, he thinks, might travel direct to the Canal zone.

Although she has spent only a short time in the Zone after meeting Womack, she is popular here, especially among those interested in swimming.

Berlin Rejoices.

BERLIN, Oct. 14 (Associated Press) —The first news of the rescue of the crew of the "American Girl" was received here with rejoicing. The papers, however, took the adventure as a cue for renewed opposition to trans-Atlantic flying at this time of the year, under the caption, "These ocean flights." They enumerated past and present misfortunes and accidents as convincing reasons for "postponing such flights until next spring."

Prince Keeps Secret Of Football Practice

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 14th. (United Press).—Prince William of Sweden believes a secret should be kept. The prince attended a secret practice of the Notre Dame football team here yesterday and refused to tell anything of what had gone on in the field. It was secret he explained.

COCOANUT MACAROONS.

Melt 2 squares of chocolate and mix well with 1 can of Borden's Eagle Brand Milk. Add ½ pound shredded cocoanut, mix thoroughly, and add I teaspoonful vanilla. Drop on greased pan 1 teaspoonful at a time, about an inch apart. Bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned. This makes 30 macaroons. Omit chocolate for plain macaroons.

"RATHER DO WITHOUT A MILLION—"

Says Canadian going to England.

Before Mr. Michol, of Winnipeg, made a trip to Liverpool, England, he wrote inquiring if he could be sure of getting Kellogg's ALL-BRAN during his stay there. If not, he proposed to go as far as carrying enough with him to cover his entire trip.

If he had to choose between a million dollars and ALL-BRAN, Mr. Michol stated in his letter, he would "much rather do without the million." Like thousands of other Canadians, Mr. Michol realizes that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a necessity to health.

Many people do not know they have constipation, and accept fatigue and depression as a part of life until they try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN; then they, too, would rather "do without a million" than lose their new energy and keenness of enjoyment.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases that amount with each meal. Try delicious recipes on package.

Made in London, Canada, and sold at all dealers.

NOT WORTH THE CANDLE.

The attempt of Ruth Elder, American aviatrix, and Captain George Haldeman, her companion, to bridge the Atlantic by aeroplane has failed, like so many other gallant efforts, but, fortunately, the lives of the two flyers have not been sacrificed.

The pair were luckier than they perhaps had any right to expect in that when they were forced to dip into the sea because of a broken oil line they were close to a Dutch tanker.

They set out upon their perilous journey against the advice of many aviation experts, against the pressure of public opinion that condemned such flights as a foolhardy and needless risk of life, and against forecasts from the weather bureau that promised bad conditions for the passage.

For their temerity they might easily have paid with their lives, and while the public will rejoice that Miss Elder and her companion are safe, there will be a general hope that this narrow escape added to the long list of trans-oceanic flight casualties will service to convince other flyers that the game is not worth the candle.

THE HOUSE OF REFUGE CASE.

The Grand Jury at the fall sittings of the Supreme Court has justified its existence in reporting an assault on an aged woman inmate of the House of Refuge, and in demanding a speedy investigation into the circumstances surrounding the affair.

According to the jury's presentment, the superintendent of the institution admits that the two blackened eyes and the cut on the head from which this woman is suffering were inflicted by his fists, his explanation being that the victim of the assault had endeavoured to hit him with a stick of firewood.

The Grand Jury would have been derelict in its duty to the public if it had not requested a full inquiry into this unfortunate case.

As the report points out, "the confidence of the community in our public institutions would be jeopardized unless satisfied that the aged poor confined in these institutions are properly protected and cared for."

The House of Refuge Committee has done well to put on foot a speedy investigation into the whole affair.

Nothing else will satisfy a public shocked to hear that an aged inmate of one of our public institutions has been the victim of brutality such as was thought passed out in the days depicted by Dickens.

A COMMUNITY LOSS.

Peterborough has sustained another severe loss in the death of William Henry Hill, one of the city's best known residents and a citizen whose life had been full of useful service to the community of which he had been for so long a member.

For fifty-four years Mr. Hill's name was associated with the city's business, social and municipal life, and few men have given so unselfishly of their time and energy in assisting their fellow-citizens.

Thirty years Mr. Hill, formerly a school teacher himself and thus deeply interested in educational matters, served on the Board of Education, where his advice and judgment were held in high respect by his colleagues.

He devoted twelve years to the service of the public as a member of the Water Commission, afterwards the Utilities Commission; twenty years he served on the Public Library Board, and for more than that time was Honourary Secretary of the Nicholls' Hospital Board.

Nor did Mr. Hill fail to serve his country in a military capacity. He was a veteran of the Fenian Raid, and for many years was an officer in the Peterborough Rangers.

Not many citizens were better known or better liked, and his passing will be mourned by the community generally.

HE STARTS WELL.

Inasmuch as there is a very real service on behalf of the people of Canada to be done by a capable, energetic and able leader of the Opposition, the very high plane reached by Hon. R. B. Bennett in his speech accepting the leadership has been appreciated by the whole country.

In criticism of the new leader of the Conservative party it had frequently been said that Mr. Bennett was so much tied up with the "big interests" as to be unfitted for such a position.

That complaint Mr. Bennett wiped out in a few earnest, emphatic words that left no doubt as to where he stood

Henceforth the service that he may be able to give the people of Canada through the Conservative party is to engage all his attention, energy and ability.

His solemn dedication of himself to such a service, his renunciation of his business affiliations, and of his career as a lawyer, his decision to devote himself and his wealth to the service of the state, made a profound impression not only upon those who heard his unequivocal pledge but upon Canadians everywhere.

There was no doubt of his sincerity any more than there is any doubt of the extent of the personal sacrifice he is making.

"I must renounce all those things I have held most dear in the life I have heretofore lived," declared the new leader. "No longer can the claims of my profession or of my business be upon me. I realize that no man may serve two masters. Henceforth, so long as I have health and strength, I must dedicate my time and my talents to the service of my country through the medium of the great party I am privileged to lead. And that I propose to do."

Mr. Bennett starts well.

A FEW SIMPLE RULES.

The fact that this week has been designated by proclamation as Fire Prevention Week, together with the further fact that undeniably a large proportion of the fires which annually occur in this country, with loss of both life and property, are preventable as the result of negligence and carelessness, form the excuse which we have to offer for reproducing these simple and elementary rules for the prevention of fire which have been compiled by the Dominion Fire Commissioner at Ottawa:

"Don't allow children to play with matches.

"Don't leave everything to the landlord; inspect your own house from cellar to garret.

"Don't throw away lighted matches, cigars or cigarettes.

"Don't go into dark closets, bedrooms or cellars using matches or candles to light your way.

"Don't use coal oil, benzine or naphtha in lighting fires, or to quicken a slow fire—it may result in death.

"Don't use gasoline or benzine to clean clothing near an open flame, light or fire.

"Don't use alcohol lamps, especially if made of glass; they often break and the fluid is ignited at once.

"Don't fill any lamp with gasoline or coal oil while the lamp is lighted. Keep the burners of all oil lamps thoroughly clean.

"Don't fill oil lamps after dark or within fifteen feet of lights or fire.

"Don't put ashes in wooden boxes or barrels. Keep ashes away from boards.

"Don't use oils with a low flash point.

"Don't accumulate rubbish in premises, cellars or workshops. While awaiting removal keep such material in covered metal-lined receptacles."

MORE OR LESS DUTCH?

(From The Daily Despatch, Manchester.)

Canada is at present on the way to becoming a dump for all surplus foreign populations of the world. Her people are becoming less and less British, with the prospective result that she will, in time, be a British dominion only in name. Moreover, Canada is being every year more penetrated with American goods and American ideas. She will wake up some fine morning and find that, while nominally a dominion under the ancient Crown of England, she is culturally and economically an annex of the United States. These things have, no doubt, come under Mr. Baldwin's notice. We may hope that the result of his visit may be a check to this "continental" tendency and a determination to get into closer touch, economic and cultural, with the old home at this side of the Atlantic.

(From The North Mail, Newcastle.)

Canada was never more British in sentiment. Quite clearly her people, drawn so largely from our own midst, recognize the embarrassments of British finance today. They know that we dare not make chancy investments and they understand that prudence and not faintheartedness dictates our present cautious and even critical attitude toward even the most alluring prospects put before us. Sound Canadian enterprises will never woo British capital in vain. It is not in the interests of either Canada or Britain that rashly speculative ventures should be floated on British capital. It is probably true to say that British financiers are more alert to real opportunities within the Empire today than ever they have been in bygone days, but experience has taught us that temerity is advantageous to no one.

THE FALL FAIRS.

Much can be said for the fall fairs, but a tour of these events anywhere in Ontario also leaves plenty of room for criticism.

The real, bona-fide purpose of a fall fair is to advance the interests of agricultural pursuits; to encourage competition among farmers in the same township, and by exhibiting high quality stock and produce to give an impetus to better breeding and better field crops.

But the tendency of the modern fair is more and more to give the patrons an entertainment; to give them a good time, and to push the agricultural side of the fair into the background.

The biggest outlay of the average fall fair goes for the speed races. It never happens that the horses are all owned by farmers in the district in which the fair is held. There may be one or two, but most of them are entered by men from outside, who take their horses from fair to fair for the sake of the money.

Very few farmers raise or keep horses for speed races, so that in this respect the speed events do little or nothing to promote horse breeding in the township.

Apart from that, a speed race is invariably a monotonous affair, not worth giving the bulk of the prize money for. After about half a dozen false starts, the first heat of the series usually results in a procession which is repeated in the subsequent heats.

Softball games are sometimes introduced into the fairs for money prizes. Softball has only an incidental relation to rural development, and as such games may be seen any evening on a farm field, there seems no genuine reason for their existence at a fair except as part of the "good time."

Compared with the money spent on races, the prize money offered for live stock is trivial. It is so small that the wonder is that farmers risk taking their stock to the fairs at all.

Frequently the cattle, sheep and hogs are shoved into the far corner of the field to be out of the way of the people. The result is nobody bothers to go that far to look at them except the judges, the owners and a few friends.

A fair with twelve or fifteen cattle, two or three pens of sheep and two or three of hogs, is not fulfilling its function of promoting practical farming. There are thousands of cattle, sheep and hogs in every fair district, and a representation like that shows there is something lacking in the spirit of the district.

First things should come first. The agricultural aspect of the fairs is being overlooked in the desire to give the people a day's outing.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The real battle of the century is apparently being staged at the Baptist convention.

Magistrate Gundy, of Windsor, has asked for leave of absence until his conduct in office has been investigated. The Border Cities Star seems to be winning all along the line.

The announcement that there are to be two open days for shooting ring-necked pheasants will leave local sportsmen absolutely cold.

Sir Henry Drayton, named by more than one newspaper as a most likely contender for the Conservative leadership, got exactly three votes on the second ballot. Conventions are as uncertain as horse races or elections.

And now Canada has a bachelor Prime Minister and a bachelor leader of the Opposition. Good hunting, ladies.

As the small boy said, when asked what had been the text at church: "Many were cold, but few were frozen."—Toronto Telegram.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 14 (Canadian Press).—There was no improvement in the export trade in grain here yesterday. Montreal exporters stated that the demand for Manitoba wheat was practically nil owing to the fact that the pool was underselling them several cents per bushel both in the United Kingdom and the Continent. Some business was worked in barley and oats.

The trade in cash grain in the local market was also quiet, there being only sales of a few odd lots of Tough No. 3 Canadian Western barley to exporters at 8¾c per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, and Tough No. 4 at 8½c over, c.i.f., Montreal. The demand for car lots of oats was limited and prices were reduced one cent per bushel.

The demand from local and foreign buyers for Spring wheat grades of flour was of a limited character, but the undertone was firm. A moderate amount of business was worked in Winter wheat flour and prices were unchanged.

The trade in all lines of millfeed was fairly active and prices showed no further change. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and steady.

A fair volume of business was done in eggs and the tone of the market was steady. The receipts were 1,907 cases.

Prices for all grades of potatoes were well maintained under a moderate demand. Sales of New Brunswick Green Mountains in car lots were made at $1.30 to $1.35 per bag; Cobblers at $1.20 to $1.25 per bag, and Quebec White cstok at $1.00 to $1.15 per bag of 90 pounds, ex-track.

The butter market was dull and featureless. The receipts were 1,002 packages.

The undertone to the cheese market continued easy and demand was again quiet.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (Canadian Press).—With top grades of wheat scarce at Winnipeg, and reports that most wheat arriving there is of tough quality, wheat prices here advanced yesterday. Export business totalling about 1,000,000 bushels, chiefly United States Spring wheat was noted. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ⅝ to ⅞c net higher; corn finished 1⅛ to 1⅜ down; oats ¼ to ½c off, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 12 cents.

At first yesterday the Chicago wheat market averaged lower, chiefly as a result of advices that the weather in Canada was better for threshing and that larger supplies of wheat were looked for. Word of copious rains in Argentina tended also to favor the bear side. On the other hand further reduction of estimates of yield in Australia appeared probable. Moreover, the fact developed that Canadian farmers had marketed only 1,579,000 bushels of wheat yesterday, compared with 4,052,000 bushels a year ago.

Premiums obtainable yesterday for Red Winter wheat in Chicago a full cent higher at 7½c over December delivery, helped give strength to the wheat market as a whole in the late dealings. Gossip was current too that the major part of the Canadian crop will grade number 2 or under and that Number 3 is more or less of a drug on the market at present. Another bullish influence, toward the end of the day was announcement that the remaining Argentine exportable surplus as of October 1 had been officially estimated at 9,000,000 bushels less than last year.

All deliveries of corn touched a new low price record for the season. Bearish crop reports, especially from Iowa, attracted notice. Weather conditions were favorable and a government forecast said cattle feeding this winter is expected to be considerably less than last winter in the corn belt and in western states as well. Oats averaged lower, sympathizing with corn.

Most of the provision list was higher.

CHURCH CLOCK IS DEDICATED.

St. Peter's Presbyterian Congregation, Madoc, Erects Memorial to Pioneer Pastor.

FITTING CEREMONY.

MADOC, Oct. 14.—The ceremony of the dedication of the great clock of St. Peter's Presbyterian church, of Madoc, took place on Monday afternoon, Oct. 10th, beginning promptly at 3 o'clock. The pulpit was occupied by Rev. T. G. Stewart, Moderator of the Kingston Presbytery, Rev. Dr. McTavish, of Belleville, a former pastor and Rev. T. G. Marshal, pastor of St. Peter's.

Rev. Mr. Stewart presided and began the service with the Psalm, "I to the hills will lift mine eyes," followed by the reading of Psalms 84 and 90, and a wonderfully appropriate discourse from the text, "Are there not twelve hours in the day, John 11, 9 and spoke of the 12 hours shown by the clock, and the symbolism of the 12 letters in the name "Presbyterian"; twelve hours for work and worship, which all Presbyterians stand for.

A beautiful solo followed by a member of the choir, Mr. Gillespie, "How Beautiful Are Thy Dwelling Places, O Lord God of Hosts."

The choir, beautifully and uniformly robed in black Geneva gowns, then led the congregation in the singing of a hymn, "For All The Saints Who From Their Labors Rest," after which Rev. Mr. Marshall read greetings and congratulations from the session and congregations of St. Andrew's, of Stirling and St. Ann's of Huntingdon, also stating that a letter of regret had been received from Dr. Wishart of Toronto, son of Rev. D. Wishart, the pioneer pastor, that he must be unavoidably absent from this ceremony.

Rev. Mr. Marshall then spoke very fittingly of this pioneer preacher in whose memory the clock of St. Peter's is to be dedicated.

Rev. David Wishart came from Scotland on April 6, 1857, and labored long nd earnestly among the pioneer settlers in North Hasting. He organized not only the congregations of St. Peter's, but also those of St. Paul's, and St. Columbus' and also St. John's, of Huntingdon.

The first church on the present site was built in 1873. This was gutted by fire in 1895, but the walls, were left standing and the present church was rebuilt. It was owing to his executive ability that the church was designed to suit modern needs, and that the tower was built ready for a clock. He kept all church records with scrupulous care, long before Government records were demanded. He resigned in 1896 and went to his rest in 1898.

His wife, Maria Wishart was a wonderful helpmeet, accomplished and hardworking, and assisting in every enterprise.

The pioneer men and women who were organized to form these congregations were men and women who came to hew out a home in the wilderness. They were hardworking and unselfish, and with self-sacrificing zeal assisted in erecting a fitting place of worship for those who followed them. Then followed the unveiling of the dedicatory tablet of bronze.—

In loving memory of Rev. David Wishart and his wife,
Maria Wishart
and of the pioneers of the church, this clock is dedicated to the honor and glory of God.

Mr. Marshal called on one of these pioneers, sixty-four years a member of the church, Mrs. Ward, to come forward and unveil the tablet. He also spoke of the fact that another pioneer was present, Miss Ann Cross, who has been a member for sixty years, and the dedicatory prayer was offered.

Rev. Dr. McTavish was called on as a revered former pastor and spoke of David Wishart as a veteran in the ministerial ranks. He said the clock was peculiarly fitting as a memorial to Rev. Mr. Wishart as he, like the clock, was four-square, true and conspicuous.

He then gave a brief resume of the use of bells or clocks for the call to worship. He gave an account of an inscription on an old bell in the Old Land, or rather a free translation of the inscription—"Summon the people: summon the clergy: lament: put pestilence to flight: honor the feast of the sacrament of the holy communion."

The pioneers, he continued, had brawn as well as brains; they had faith, courage and confidence. The memorial will serve to remind all to live and act worthy of their life and works.

Mrs. McTavish read a poem written by herself specially for this occasion. It is addressed "To The Tower of St. Peter's." This poem will be printed and framed and hung in the church by the request of the Moderator and session.

The hymn, "O God of Bethel" followed, and then the beautiful, fair-haired little daughter (the first child to be born in the manse of St. Peter's church) of Rev. T. G. and Mrs. Marshal, was brought forward for holy baptism, which she received at the hands of the Moderator Rev. Mr. Stewart. She was presented with a silver mug and the baptismal hymn was sung.

The benediction was given by Rev. Dr. McTavish, and visitors, ministers and friends were invited by the ladies to a social cup of tea in the Sunday school rooms, and many enjoyed the reunion and the exchange of greetings.

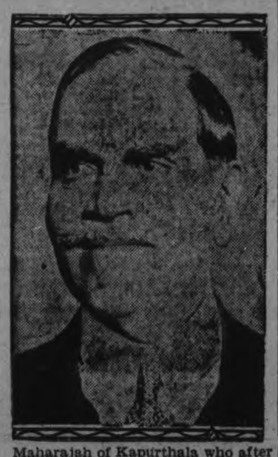
Violet, Duchess of Westminster, who was granted a divorce from the duke in 1925, was wed recently in London to the Hon. Frederick Heyworth Cripps, son of Lord Parmoor. The ceremony was performed in the Prince's Row registrar's office. Mr. Cripps is the third husband of the former duchess, who is the youngest daughter of Sir William Nelson, British ship owner. She was married to Lieut. G. R. F. Rowley of the Household Cavalry in 1914 when she was 22. Divorcing him six years later, she became the second wife of the Duke of Westminster.

Spoils Do Not Go To Victors Alone

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.— The World's Series players' melon, amounting to $339,440.67, the greatest in baseball history, was split up into 170 shares by Commissioner Landis last night when he mailed cheques to the conquering New York team and members of the teams which finished second, third and fourth in the American and National League races.

The defeated Pirates have not yet notified the Commissioner how they want their losers' end divided, with the result that he still is holding $111,843.39, the amount the Pittsburgers got for their disastrous series with the American League champions.

The Hugmen split $167,765.08 into 27 full shares of $5782.24. Miller Huggins, manager of the club, and Arthur Fletcher and Charley O'Leary, coaches, each received full shares along with the players. The travelling secretary, trainer and club attendants received cheques for portions of shares.



Maharajah of Kapurthala who after passing a part of his luxurious existence playing tennis in Paris and enjoying the rich shade of one of the most beautiful properties in the Bois de Boulogne, is going home to give a real party. The maharjah, said to be the third wealthiest prince of India, will leave Paris October 23 to celebrate in the Punjab with a house party that will make the Arabian Nights tales look insipid. The guests will number 2,000, and will include rulers and princes.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

STEVEN'S CHURCH, HOARDS

BURNBRAE, Oct. 12.—All the beauties of autumn-tinted foliage, bathed with bright October sunlight, provided a perfect setting for the morning service of the anniversary occasion at Stephen's United church, Hoards, on Sunday last when the Rev. J. J. Black of Barrie returned to minister once again to those who were his parishioners and friends in bygone days.

The genial Scotsman, who, for six years, served the congregations of St. Andrew's, Burnbrae and Rylstone, prior to June, 1924, when he removed to Orillia, was given ample proof of the affection of his former congregation and other friends when the Hoards church was filled to overflowing at both morning and evening services.

The Rev. "J. J." as he is affectionately called, by many of his chums has lost none of his old-time vigor in the pulpit and his sermons carried a message that will leave a profound impression on even the most disinterested of his listeners.

His morning address was "A church armed with a dream" and was based on two texts, Joel 2:28, "Your old men shall dream dreams" and 2 Maccabees, 15:11, "Thus he armed every one of them, not so much with defence of shields and spears, as with comfortable and good words: and besides that he told them a dream."

At the evening service Mr. Black presented a simple gospel message in a manner that thrilled and swayed the audience, causing each one to listen intently until the final appeal, "What will you do with Christ?" merged into a prayer of supplication for the souls of those longing to be saved. The sermon topic was "The part played by Pilate in the tragedy of the cross," taken from Matthew 27:22. "Pilate saith unto them 'What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ'?" Although the mob, the soldiers, Judas, the betrayer and others must bear some blame for the crucifixion of Christ, the chief offender was the governor, Pontius Pilate, who allowed Christ to be taken to the cross even when he was convinced of His innocence rather than that he, a Roman governor, should lose his position. In the modern life many people adopt the same attitude as Pilate, and the speaker pleaded with his audience not to follow this path, but rather the life of Christ and salvation.

In a wonderful way, also, the service of song added to the deep feeling of each occasion. Miss Conley, of Stirling, as soloist gave three splendid numbers, "Father in Heaven and Home Ties" at the morning service and "The Plains of Peace" in the evening. Two anthems by the choir were well received, in the morning, "I Will Praise Thee" and "My Father Watches Over Me." In the evening the choir rendered "My Prayer Is Heard," while a quintette, composed of Miss Jean Rannie, Mrs. J. Thompson, Rev. C. Daniel, Messrs. L. Rannie and A. Hutcheon sang "At Anchor."

Mrs. J. Thompson, Rev. C. Daniel, sang "At Anchor."

At the close of the evening service, Rev. Charles Daniel, pastor of the Seymour circuit, of which Stephen's church is a part, publicly thanked both Mr. Black and Miss Conley for their kindness in helping to make the event a success.

The offerings at both services were most generous, and the two hundred dollars asked for by the officials of the church was exceeded by over seventy dollars. So great was the crowd that the ushers were unable to get down the aisles and the collection plates had to be passed from hand to hand until the door was reached. A severe electric storm with rain and sleet, dispersed the large crowd assembled on the porch and lawn shortly after the service began, but most of them were back nothing daunted before the sermon was well under way.

The Hoards congregation, following its re-organization after Union in June, 1925, has grown by leaps and bounds. Then the band of workers which formed the nucleus of the congregation were strengthened by the majority of the Unionist group of St. Andrew's, Burnbrae. The former Presbyterian members were given a sincere welcome by their former Methodist friends and, under the banner of the United Church they have built up a congregation which every Sunday taxes the capacity of the church building. A fine Sunday school, Young People's League, Missionary Society and Ladies' Aid give a full line of active organizations, all functioning in perfect harmony and doing a real work for the community and the world at large.

The church building has been completely re-decorated inside during the past summer with a new arrangement of pulpit and choir loft and some changes in seating and gas lamps were installed. The outside of the church will be re-painted next year. This work was shared by the stewards and Ladies' Aid and is indeed a credit to them.

Realizing the need of more accommodations to meet the requirements of the younger and rising generation, the officials of the church plan in the near future to add to the size of the building and also to place an up-to-date basement under it. This is the immediate goal of this united congregation.

Rev. J. J. Black was accompanied on his motor trip from Barrie by his wife and two children, Harriet and Hugh, also his sister, Miss Betty Black, who came to Canada with him on his return from his trip to his old home in Scotland last summer. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Donald and Mrs. and Mrs. William Rannie during their stay here. The party left early Monday morning for the return trip to Barrie.

BOYS COLLIDE ONE IS BLINDED

Port Hope Lad Found Wandering On Street With Mind Blank.

GRADUALLY RECOVERING.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Oct. 13.—Blind and suffering from complete loss of memory, Floyd Abrams, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abrams, Ward street, Port Hope, was conveyed home on Tuesday forenoon by two other school boys, who found him aimlessly walking aroud unconscious of his surroundings.

The boy's memory gradually came back and he was able to give an account of what happened to him He stated that with other boys at the school he was rushing "for the lines" at the morning recess when he banged his head with great force against the head of another lad also running hard, after which all seemed a blank to him He could not see, nor had he any recollection of what had taken place after the accident, until he found himself at home.

The boy is slowly recovering his sight and the full use of his mental faculties.

DOURO H. N. S. IN PROCESSION

Township Well Represented in Diocesan Rally on Sunday.

DOURO NEWS

DOURO, October 14. — The local Holy Name Society was well represented at the big diocesan rally in Peterborough on Sunday. Some seventy-five members took part in the procession. After the boys of the city schools, Douro was next in line, with their splendid banner ,and with Rev. J. McGuire, curate, accompanying them. Marshal Arthur Carveth kept everything in order. Bannerbearers were William Towns, William Hayes, David Garvey, and John Sheehan.

First Communion.

On Sunday morning at the eight o'clock mass, the first Holy Communion of the children took place. There were thirteen boys and three girls in the class, which has been receiving instructions for the past month.

S.S. No. 4 was the winner of the large silver cup donated by Mr. P. G. Towns for the school winning the most points at the school fair . This school will hold the cup for the year The teacher, Miss Mary Tobin, and the pupils are being congratulated on their success, as the school is a comparatively small one. This school also won first in the parade. Miss Tobin is a live wire, and a worker, and has been very successful in S.S. No. 4, it being her first school.

S.S. No. 9, Mr. Joseph Walsh, teacher, was second, seven points below S.S. No. 4, the numbers being 210 and 203.

Miss Bridgie McMurray, of S.S. No. 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McMurray (west), won the Eaton Cup for the pupil winning the most points at the school fair. Her teacher is Miss Puffer, of Norwood, and both pupil and teacher are receiving congratulations on the splendid showing. Miss McMurray winning eleven prizes out of twelve entries.

Presentation Made.

An evening of enjoyment and good fellowship was spent on Monday when neighbours and relatives of Mrs. Mary Cavanagh met at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Forsythe, and presented Mrs. Cavanagh with an address and a purse prior to her removal to Peterborough. Mrs. Cavanagh has resided in the neighbourhood for over forty years, and has won the esteem and affection of all with whom she has come in contact. Owing to her failing health, Mrs. Cavanagh and her son Kenneth have been compelled to give up farming. Much regret is expressed by neighbours over the removal of one so genial, kindly and amiable as Mrs. Cavanagh. Almost eighty people gathered for the occasion, and a pleasant evening was spent in dancing, music, cards, etc. The following address was read by Mrs. William Forsythe, Mrs. Augustine Whibbs making the presentation:

Douro, October 10, 1927.

Dear Mrs. Cavanagh:

We, your friends and neighbours, have gathered here to spend a social evening with you before your departure for Peterborough, and to express our appreciation of your esteemed friendship which we have enjoyed so long. You have shared in our joys and sorrows for many years, and your home has been a bright spot in the community where we have spent many happy hours amidst the genial company of you and your family. Your friendly greeting has ever cast a ray of brightness over us ,and we shall miss you more than words can tell. Kenneth also has been a worthy citizen of our community, and we are happy to know that you are not going so far away as to deprive us of frequent visits from and with you. We ask you to accept this purse, not for its value, but as a token of remembrance, and we all join in wishing you many years of happiness in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the community:

Mrs. Augustine Whibbs.
Mrs. William Forsythe.
Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Cavanagh was deeply touched and in her behalf Mr. Augustine Whibbs thanked all present for their thoughtfulness and goodwill. Mrs Thomas Forsythe spoke a few words of aporeciation from the family for the kindness of the community to their mother.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

ELIJAH IN NABOTH'S VINEYARD

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 16: Elijah in Naboth's Vineyard—1 Kings 21:5-10, 16-20.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

Text: 1 Kings 21:5-10, 16-20.

But Jezebel his wife came to him, and said unto him, Why is thy spirit so sad, that thou eatest no bread?

And he said unto her, Because I spake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and said unto him, Give me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it: and he answered, I will not give thee my vineyard.

And Jezebel his wife said unto him, Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? arise, and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry: I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.

So she wrote letters in Ahab's name and sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters unto the elders and to the nobles that were in his city, dwelling with Naboth.

And she wrote in the letters, saying, Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people:

And set two men, sons of Belial, before him, to bear witness against him, saying, Thou didst blaspheme (curse) God and the king. And then carry him out, and stone him, that he may die.

And it came to pass, when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that Ahab rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

And the word of the Lord came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying,

Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, which is in Samaria: behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth, whither he is gone down to possess it.

And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the Lord, In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick thy blood, even thine.

And Ahab said to Elijah, Hast thou found me, O mine enemy? And he answered, I have found thee: because thou has sold thyself to work evil in the sight of the Lord.

One reason why the Bible has been so persistent and commanding in its interest is that in revealing truth for human life it has made itself profoundly true and strikingly vivid in its reflections of human experiences and conditions.

Every aspect of aspiration and emotion, of pain and sorrow, of glory and triumph, of sin and degradation, of sordidness and unselfishness, of conflict and strife, is somewhere represented in the pages of Scripture.

Here in our lesson is one of the world's conspicuous stories of covetousness and enmity. A Jezreelite named Naboth had a desirable vineyard which Ahab, the king, desired to have for his own. Ahab offered to buy it of Naboth or to give him another vineyard, but Naboth did not choose to sell.

Had Reason, Perhaps.

Possibly, Naboth had very good reason for not selling. It may have been an inheritance from his fathers. For sentimental or family reasons he may have had every justification for wishing to retain it. Apparently this was so, or money would have lured him to surrender. In any case, even if it were merely his individual obstinacy, the vineyard was his and he was under no obligation to sell it or give it up.

Ahab apparently was a weak king. He was greedy and covetous, but he lacked the aggressiveness to make his greed effective. Unfortunately back of Ahab was a vigorous and a designing queen, a woman whose name, Jezebel, has become a by-word in history, and who was not accustomed to giving up lightly her plans and desires.

She was a forerunner of those who regard themselves as privileged persons who think that the rest of the world exists for their pleasure and for their exploitations. She took the means of rousing Ahab that have always been so effective in stimulating weak and cowardly men to action. She taunted him with his weakness.

She asked him whether he really governed Israel or not, and her idea of governing was not ruling a people for their benefit and blessing, but exercising arbitrary will over them even for personal advantage.

However, Jezebel took no chances on Ahab's weakness. She took matters into her own hands. She conspired to have Naboth put under circumstances where by false witness his life would be forfeited. Nor did she refrain from making religion itself serve her own murderous ends. Her diabolical plan was carried out. Naboth was stoned and Ahab went down to take possession of the vineyard.

Grapes Are Sour.

But God's judgments are not destroyed by intrigue and murder. Though Naboth was dead, Ahab found no joy in the possession of the vineyard. When he went down to take possession he found Elijah there, a prophet courageous and plain-spoken, bold in accusing Ahab of his cowardly treachery.

The lesson presents to us in striking form those problems of Providence which have been a puzzle and a mystery throughout the ages. Why should the innocent man be permitted to suffer a violent death under the cruel and lustful intrigues of Jezebel? We do not know. There is no special sanctity that guides the lives of the innocent in a world like this in which we live.

Men have sometimes taught that there is, but the experiences of life deny the claim. God does not offer his children immunity from sorrow, suffering, and death. What He does offer them is the assurance that none of these things can separate them from Him. Jesus did not assure His disciples that they would not meet death.

He taught them rather to have no fear of those who could kill the body, and He assured His followers that the reality of the soul life could never be destroyed. This is the great mystery of God's love and power that must ever be set alongside the mystery of suffering and loss. The one taing that is sure is that we live in a moral and spiritual world where the judgments of God surely operate.

The wickedness of Jezebel and the cowardly acquiescence of Ahab are only temporary in their triumph. With sureness and certainty these workers of evil go down to defeat, and successive generations as they pursue this narrative are conscious only of the permanency of the victory of Elijah and the persistency of the judgments of God.

Magnesia Best For Your Indigestion

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals, with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

A recent addition has been made to the musical talent of the city in the arrival here to take up residence of Mrs. Anne Sutherland Dass, of 437 Stewart street Mrs. Dass, who is a native of Stratford, has lived for many years in Winnipeg, South America and Boston, spending ten years in the latter city, and at all times identifying herself with the musical life of each centre. Mrs. Dass is a dramatic soprano singer, making a specialty of Scottish songs. She appeared on several occasions with Jessie Maclachlan, Scotch Prima Donna, and was soloist for 'Ralph Connor" (Rev. Mr. Gordon) at his church, St. Steven's, in Winnipeg. In Boston, Mrs. Dass sang much in concerts and was Musical Director of the Boston Ruskin Club in 1915. She gave a concert tour of one hundred and fifty performances throughout Western Canada in 1909, appearing on occasion with Ruthven McDonald, Harold Jarvis and Donald McGregor. Dr. Ernest MacMillan, of Toronto, was at one time an accompanist of Mrs. Dass, also Mr. J. P. Murray. From many enthusiastic press notices, Mrs. Dass appears to have a repertoire of a varied type, ranging from songs of a national character to Italian and French operatic arias. In Stratford, a recent home of Mrs Dass, she was leader of the choir of the Presbyterian Church.

MOULDY WEATHER

Bread-boxes and cake-boxes can be kept sweeter in hot, damp weather that encourages mould, if they are lined with brown paper.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

A tweed coat of distinction shows brown and beige checks with a shaded brown and beige beaver collar.

The season's favorite wrap is the fur-collared tweed coat. This is the choice for everyday wear of that very important and influential group that we once spoke of as "flappers." It isn't really smart to speak of flappers at all any more and the flapperish flapper is a between fifteen and twenty who show the same independence and originality in matters of dress that characterized the flappers of a few seasons ago.

I said this fur-collared tweed coat was the favorite everyday wrap. Please note that the adjective "everyday," as applied to clothes, hasn't quite the significance that it once had. Once we had best clothes, and everyday clothes—with perhaps "second best" in between, and everyday clothes were quite apt to be last season's things that we wore to "save" our new, Sunday-go-to-meeting, best clothes. Now we realize that everyday clothes, just because they are everyday, are most important of all.

There are tweed coats in greens, blues and dark grays—but the mixed brown tweeds seem most popular with the younger women, and beaver or nutria is the chosen fur for the collar.

It seemed likely some months ago that cloth coats without fur would be popular for autumn and even winter. It was even suggested that separate fur collars might be worn with these furless coats. But that is not how things have actually worked out. Deep fur cuffs and bands of fur on the hem are seen on some of the more formal coats, but the popular tweed coat usually carries fur only on the collars.

SAINT and SINNER
By ANNE AUSTIN

"But, Aunt Hattie," Faith began, leaning forward tensely, her face as white as paper, her eyes two round ink blots upon it, "if Bob loves Cherry—oh, even a little bit!I don't want him! I can't bear always being second choice—"

"Fiddlesticks!" Aunt Hattie snorted, but she laid down Cherry's stocking that she was darning to pat Faith's tightly clasped hands. "If every wife suddenly decided to pick up and leave her husband because he'd been smitten with some other girl before he married her, there wouldn't be a married man in town who could lay hands on a wife. Cherry wasn't Bob's first choice, I'll bet my hat. The point is, you were his last choice, and that's the important thing, seems to me. He had his chance to marry Cherry and he passed it up—"

"No," Faith corrected her miserably. "No. Cherry refused him, although she had been engaged to him before she ran off with Albert Ettleson. The very night we brought her home from Darrow, after she'd found out just what Ettleson meant to do to her, Bob asked her again to marry him—in Dad's presence, and mine and Junior's. She refused him, not he her."

"Why don't you send Cherry packing, if you feel like this? No use crucifying yourself every day of your life, and putting temptation in your husband's way every day of his. My land, I can't see how any Lane has as little gumption as you! But I reckon you take after your mother's people some ways. They was always a wishy-washy, sappy bunch—"

"Please, Aunt Hattie!" Faith protested. "I love Cherry more than anyone except Bob. I can't explain why I love her so terribly, but I do. I think she fascinates me as much as she does—Bob and other men. Oh, I can understand so well how she does it—enslaves them, in spite of all her faults. She enslaves me. I'd rather die of the hurts she gives me than to strike back at her. And I love the baby. I feel as if Hope were my own child. Certainly I have been her mother rather than Cherry. I couldn't ask Cherry to leave, and take Hope—"

"You wouldn't have to worry about that!" Aunt Hattie snorted contemptuously. "She'd jump at the chance to let you go right on mothering Hope."

"That's not quite fair, Aunt Hattie," Faith insisted. "Cherry loves Hope, even if she isn't the conventional devoted mother. When the baby was kidnapped by Chris, she was out of her head with grief. But, oh, what's the use of talking? I know I'll never send her away, or even let her see that sometimes I wish I could be all alone with Bob. If only she weren't his stenographer, too! With him all day, every day, and evenings, too! Why, she has five times as much of my husband's thoughts and conversations and ambitions as I—his wife!"

"Then all I can say," contributed Aunt Hattie severely, "is that it's up to you to see that you're five times as entertaining and sweet and understanding as Cherry is. Well, I'm going to bed. And you'd better do the same, if you don't want to look like a limp dishrag in the morning."

"No," Faith shook her head stubbornly. "I'm going to wait up for Cherry. I want to meet this Bruce Patton of hers. Maybe—maybe he's the solution."

BISHOP VISITS GROVE SCHOOL

Speaks To Boys, Taking David's Victory Over Goliath as Subject.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 14.—On Saturday morning, the Right Reverend Sir John Taylor-Smith, D.D., K.C.B., C.V.O., late Chaplain-General of His Majesty's Forces, who was visiting Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Paterson in Peterboro paid a short visit to Rev. and Mrs. A. W. MacKenzie at "The Grove." Rev. J. Douglas Paterson accompanied the Bishop.

A short service was held in the school chapel at which the Bishop addressed the boys for a short time.

It was a memorable occasion, and as the golden October sun streamed into the chapel, the boys filed in to take their places; big boys and little boys, all alike in their clear-eyed interest in the occasion—types of Canadian boyhood growing up in wholesome surroundings and in tune with mother Nature.

The brief service was in charge of Rev. A. W. MacKenzie, Headmaster of the school. The Bishop took as his text part of the 50th verse of the seventeenth chapter of the First Book of Samuel—"So David prevailed."

The speaker drew a vivid picture of the Philistine army encamped on the hillside and across a valley through which ran a little stream. On the opposite hillside was the hosts of Israel, also encamped. The Philistines had sent out a giant as their champion, and each day the giant proudly paraded in his armour, challenging the Israelites to send a man to fight with him. The Philistines agreed that on the result of this single combat the whole decision should rest. Goliath, the giant, inspired such fear in the Israelites that none would go forth to meet him. At this time a shepherd boy, David, was keeping his father's flocks near Bethlehem and at his father's request he went to visit the army of Saul, King of Israel, in which his older brothers were serving. When he arrived his brothers made game of him, and were very scornful and by turning from them David gained his first victory, which was over himself. There is a moral there when temptation comes to one to turn from it and exercise self-control.

Then David went to see King Saul, who was amazed when he heard that David wished to challenge the giant and his ridicule was hard to bear, but David turned to him and faced him, bravely bearing his ridicule. Saul represents the world, and by turning to it and standing by our principles we gain a victory as did David, the second on that great day.

Then David, scorning the offer of armour and weapons ran lightly down the hill and from the brook he picked his bag. Goliath, clad in his armour, came walking out from the camp of the Philistines, accompanied by his armour-bearer and, at first saw no one to challenge him but his armour-bearer saw the boy, so Goliath raised the visor of his helmet to see who the lad was. He hailed David, who went forward and putting one of the smooth stones in his sling he aimed for Goliath's forehead which exposed by the raised visor, offered a splendid target. David, who told his foe that he had come in the name of the Lord of Hosts, conquered in that sacred Name and won the third victory in one day. David had been wont to amuse himself with his sling and his proficiency was useful in the time of need. "Play the game, boys," said the good Bishop, "no matter what it may be and it will help you if you are ever called upon to defend your country or serve her in any way. David won the victory over himself, by turning away from temptation; over Saul, who represents the world, by turning to him; and over Goliath, who represents the devil, by going forward in the Name of the Lord of Hosts, and in that name he conquered."

FLIGHT UNJUSTIFIED SAYS LONDON PRESS

Congratulate Fliers But Say Nothing Added To Science.

LONDON, October 14 (United Press). — London newspapers to-day congratulated Ruth Elder and George Haldeman on their escape, but were severely critical of their attempt to cross the Atlantic at this time of the year.

In an editorial captioned "Mad Enterprise," The Daily News said: "None can gainsay the adventurousness of Haldeman and Elder ,but the flight was altogether unjustified, considering the risks. Courting death in the Atlantic has added nothing to science."

"According to the best opinion of the flying profession," said The Times, "the Atlantic flight does not justify itself. The progress of aeronautics does not depend on such flights, but on trials and experiments of a wholly different kind."

It was estimated here that the monoplane, American Girl, came down at about 50 0miles north-east of the Azores or about 800 miles west of the wireless station and lighthouse at Ushant ,on the French coast near Erest. The American Girl was slightly south of her scheduled course to Paris.

Uncle Wiggily
By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JACKIE'S BONE.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Once upon a time Jackie Bow Wow, the little puppydog boy, found a fine bone with a hole in it. Of course the hole wasn't very fine. In fact it was rather a large hole, and Jackie would have been more pleased if the bone had been solid.

"But I'm thankful for what it is," he whined softly to himself, picking up the bone in his sharp teeth. "And as I'm not hungry now, I will bury the bone until I need it."

Digging a hole in the ground, not far from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, Jackie put the round, juicy bone, with a hole in it, down in the hole and began to scratch the dirt over it with his paws.

Before the doggie boy had done more than scatter a little dirt he heard his brother Peetie calling:

"Ho, Jackie! Ho, Jackie!"

"What's the matter?" barked Jackie, pricking up his ears.

"Come on play ball!" called the other puppy.

Then, leaving his bone only partly covered with dirt, Jackie ran to his brother and soon the two little chaps were having fine fun tossing a ball around the lots and over into the woods where they chased it gleefully.

After a time they became tired of playing ball and lay down upon the cool ground with their tongues hanging out of their mouths, panting in deep breaths. This is the way a dog cools himself. He does not perspire or sweat as boys and girls do when they run. The only way a dog can cool himself off is by opening his mouth and sticking out his tongue.

When they could breathe a little easier Jackie and Peetie ran to the brook, where they lapped up some cool water. But they did not drink cool water when they were too warm, nor should any one do that. Then Peetie softly whined:

"I'm hungry! I wish I had something to eat."

"I know where there is a fine, juicy bone with a hole in it," said Jackie.

"I'll give you a penny out of my bank if you will let me help you gnaw that bone," offered Peetie.

"Of course you can have some gnaws off my bone," politely offered Jackie. "And you don't need to give me a penny, either. Come on!"

So the two little puppies ran to where Jackie had buried his bone. Some dogs I know if they had found a bone with a hole in it would have given their brother the hole and kept the bone for themselves. But Jackie was not that kind of a dog.

"Where is this bone of yours?" asked Peetie when he had followed his brother for a little while.

"Over near Uncle Wiggily's bungalow," answered Jackie. "We'll soon be there." A little later they were within sight of the bunny gentleman's home, but, to their surprise, Jackie and Peetie saw the Bob Cat, with his silly, little, short, stumpy tail, sitting in front of Uncle Wiggily, growling.

"Well, you can't get away from me now!" the Bob Cat was saying. "Yesterday you threw water in my wife's face and splattered tooth paste of soap in my eyes. But now I've caught you!"

"Yes, it does look so," sadly sighed the bunny.

Just then the Bob Cat got up from where he was sitting on the ground and he ran toward the rabbit to nibble his ears. But as the bad chap did this Peetie barked:

"What has the Bob Cat on his silly little tail?"

Jackie gave one look and howled:

"He has my bone—my bone with a hole in it! The Bob Cat sat down in the hole, where I was burying my bone, and his tail stuck in the hole of the bone and he is going to take it away. Oh, Wow! Stop!"

Then Jackie and Peetie rushed up behind the Bob Cat, barking, snarling and yelping to get the bone with the hole off his tail. And when the Bob Cat heard the puppies barking behind him, not knowing what it was about, he thought it was the Police Dog after him.

"Oh, wow! Don't arrest me! I'll be good!" the Bob Cat howled. And away he ran, shaking his little tail so hard that the bone fell off, so Jackie and Peetie could take turns gnawing it.

"You and your bone saved my ears, Jackie," said the bunny as he thanked the puppies.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Good and evil planetary influences contend to-day, according to astrology.

The morning should be an auspicious time to undertake any sort of constructive enterprise.

There is a promising sign for those who would promote big projects, many of which will add to the world fame of the United States.

While good luck should attend planning and preparation for any sort of an undertaking it is wise to delay action until a more favorable rule of the stars.

This is a fortunate day for starting on long ocean voyages and they who make trips for business reasons should be especially lucky.

Under this planetary direction foresight should be keen and all who organize for concerted action in business should profit well.

Oil is still subject to the best possible influences of the making for new discoveries as well as added uses for varied products.

This is not a lucky day for obtaining loans from banks or for financing new projects.

Women should make the best of opportunities to prepare themselves or public service and they are assured of many new avenues of work for the general good.

Many fires may be expected from this date, astrologers warn, and insurance companies will sustain heavy losses.

In southern states a political movement of unusual character is prognosticated.

Much transcontinental travel is forecast for the coming winter which will draw many visitors westward.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of hard work and real prosperity, which will be fully earned.

Children born on this day should be clever with hands and brains. They succeed by devotion to business affairs. Girls are usually good housekeepers.

Wohl Critically Injured Testing Car As De Palma Sets Dirt Track Record

NEW YORK, Oct 14—Sam Wohl ,automobile race driver, was critically injured yesterday afternoon during a preliminary speed test at the races of the Richmond County Fair in Dongan Hills, S.I., when his Frontenac Special hit a rut at the east end of the track. Wohl was driving about seventy miles an hour.

The car turned over twice, righted itself and lurched into a fence. Wohl was unconscious when help reached him. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, West New Brighton, by Dr. William Bennett, who found that the racer had a probable fracture of the skull and was severely bruised on the face, arms and body.

Later in the day Ralph De Palma ,veteran race driver, at the wheel of a Miller Special, broke the record for the dirt track at the fair grounds by making a half-mile lap in 28 2-5 seconds.

Wohl's home is at 32 Roslyn Avenue, Sea Cliff, L. I. The race was held under the auspices of the Metropolitan Speedway Association and attracted a crowd of 4,000.

PIG TRAVELS WITH VALET

When Billy, the world's largest pig, traveled recently to an agricultural show in Johannesburg, he was accompanied by a valet specially appointed to keep him groomed and to arrange special accommodations on trains or boats. Billy weighs more than half a ton, is eight feet three inches long, and his snug-fitting belt measures six feet nine inches. He is insured for $25,000. He recently visited Australia, and has traveled 35,000 miles, although only 28 months old. Billy's daily menu consists of four cases of apples, eight or nine buckets of milk, two bushels of bran, 16 or 18 cabbages, and a few extra dishes. His food costs his owner, J. Gardiner, $10 a day.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel liks lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night! if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

WILLIAM HILL GETS EIGHT-YEAR TERM

Brother Davis Acquitted of Similar Serious Charge To-day.

William Hill, for the third time in his 42 years of life, heard a judge sentence him to Kingston Penitentiary. To-day at noon he was brought into the prisoner's box to hear the Honorable Mr. Justice Kelly pass sentence upon him for committing an indecent offence against a girl twelve years old, on Sunday, September 18th, on a lonely road in Centre Dummer.

His Lordship sentenced the prisoner to eight years in the Kingston penitentiary. His Lordship in passing sentence, said he had considered the physical condition of the prisoner. The prisoner took his sentence without wincing and when he was taken out of the box he shook hands with Provincial Constable Maker and mumbled something to him.

Hill was found guilty yesterday afternoon. The jury retired at three o'clock, and it was at twenty-four minutes past four that Constable Puffer announced to the Clerk of the court that the jury wished to enter.

As the jurors filed into their places in the grand jury box, William Hill, the prisoner, was brought into the court, and placed in the prisoner's box. He sat upright, looking steadfastly at Robert Northcott, foreman of the jury. Then Mr. Sherry, the Clerk of the Court, asked for the verdict, and the foreman's reply came —"We find the prisoner at the bar guilty." Hill lurched forward on the words guilty and then immediately settled back in the corner of the box.

His Lordship then in a very few words, dismissed the jury, thanking them for their services and telling them they would not be needed further at the sitting of the court.

The conviction was made possible through the untiring energies of Provincial Constable N. F. Maker, who assisted the Crown Prosecutor, Mr. Williams of Pembroke, at every stage during the trial. J. A. O'Brien, who appeared for the accused, had an uphill fight during the whole case.

At the trial a most horrible state of affairs in Centre Dummer was revealed. There was evidence produced of such a character that one would hardly believe possible in this fair Ontario. A libelous letter was produced which cast a reflection on residents of that district, and witnesses said a man's home had been burnt, and disease was said to be prevalent.

Davis Hill Acquitted.

After fifteen minutes' consideration of the evidence submitted, the jury found Davis Hill not guilty of a serious charge against a 14 year old girl of Centre Dummer. W. H. Williams, K.C., of Pembroke, prosecuted for the Crown and J. A. O'Brien acted for the defence.

The Crown failed to establish as strong a case against Davis Hill as they did in the William Hill case. The girl herself said that after the offense was alleged to have been committed she went with Mrs. Hill to Norwood and that Mrs. Hill visited her home on the following Sunday evening.

His Lordship Mr. Justice Kelly, in summing up the case, said that he could not see why the girl did not tell her mother sooner and why she had gone to Norwood with Mrs. Hill, when she claimed such a serious offence had been committed against her.

The jurymen were: William Lytle, Wellington Holcock, Charles Elmhurst, J. A. Mason, Archie Brault, J. A. Northey, Thomas Lansfield, Norman Stinson, Percy Fuller, W. W. Nicholls, Archie Paterson and W. J. Robinson.

Mr. O'Brien challenged twelve men before the jury was selected and the Crown asked them to stand aside.

Crown's Evidence.

The plaintiff herself, a girl fourteen years of age, was the first witness called by the Crown. In her evidence she accused Davis Hill, the defendant, of committing an offence against her on the afternoon of May 3 after she and Mrs. Hill had returned from Warsaw. Witness said Mrs. Hill was at the barn at the time and as soon as Mrs. Hill returned she told her. Mrs. Hill took her home that night and later in the evening the defendant went after his wife. Witness did not tell her mother until several days after. She told of Constable Maker coming out to investigate her actions and then she told him about Davis Hill.

During the week the offence was supposed to have been committed, the plaintiff went to Norwood with Mrs. Hill and then on Sunday Mrs. Hill suent the evening with the plaintiff.

Provincial Constable Maker, on being called, told of going to the plaintiff's home to investigate the actions of the girl as he had received complaints from Mrs. Russel Hill and Mrs. Davis Hill. Constable Maker said as a result of his investigation he arrestd Davis Hill and his wife, charging the latter with being an accomplice in the case.

Mrs Davis Hill was the first witness called for the defence. In her evidence she swore that on the day the offence was supposed to have been committed the girl went to Warsaw with her. When they returned the girl was never out of her sight. After supper witness took the girl home after her husband got the horse.

Witness told of going to Peterborough with Mrs. Mae Hill and complaining to Provincial Constable N. F. Maker of the actions of this girl with young boys in the community. Constable Maker investigated and as a result of his investigation Davis Hill was arresteod.

Mrs. Hill swore that on Sunday, May 8 while at the plaintiff's home she saw the plaintiff acting indecently with one of the boys of the community. On cross-examiantion she said she had said nothing to the girl but on the next day she and the girl's mother had had a quarrel over the girl's actions as told by Mrs. Hill.

One witness for the defence swore that the plaintiff had told her that she had to put the offence on somebody so she accused Davis Hill. In cross-examination this witness said the witness told her this in May, but she had kept it quiet up until three weeks ago, although her brother-in-law had been in jail and was let out on bail. Mr. Williams said this seemed rather queer, especially as she was a sister of Mrs. Hill.

Davis Hill in his evidence, denied the story of the complainant. In cross-examiantion he said he had served two terms at Kingston, one for cattle stealing and the other for cattle poisoning.

The defence this morning put High County Constable Pearson in the box. Mr. Pearson was asked if he had seen any Crown witnesses who had given evidence talking with those who had not. He said he had not, but that he had told two of the Crown witnesses, who later were called, to go away from the court chamber door and go into their anteroom.

AUTO EXHAUSTS MENACE HEALTH

Fumes in Cities Bad For Growing Children, Says Doctor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Carbon monoxide poisoning from automobile exhaust gas is cited as a potential factor in the ill-health of city children by Dr. J. C. Sinclair Battley of Detroit in a forthcoming issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

Carbon monoxide, a colorless, almost odorless, highly poisonous gas, is known to be present in high concentration in the exhaust of automobiles. Babies and young children are particularly susceptible to this form of poisoning, so that the constant exposure to the varying amounts present in the atmosphere of city streets bearing heavy traffic Dr. Battley considers a possible source of the poor health, failure to gain, lack of appetite, and non-resistance to infection frequently seen in city children.

"Children are exposed to a great deal of exhaust gas," he declares. "In apartments on main thoroughfares where traffic is heavy, children are subjected to a constant stream of diluted exhaust gas rising from the lower stories through the building for a considerable part of the day. The poisonous effect is difficult to estimate because of the multiplicity of factors involved, but prolonged observation may bring substantial proof.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

ROSENEATH UNITED.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 13.— Owing to the heavy rain on Sunday evening the congregation in the United church was not as large as usual. Those who failed to be present, missed hearing an excellent sermon by the Rev. M. R. Brown, using the phrase "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." The Rev. Mr. Brown, who is most original, brought the subject so clearly that his great lesson was easy to understand, even the little children could bring home the message of how to win a "pearl" of salvation.

The Roseneath anniversary services will be held on Thanksgiving Sunday, November 6, when the Rev. A. T. Black of the Metropolitan United Church, Toronto, will have charge of both services.

West End (Centenery) is having anniversary services on October 23rd followed by a fowl supper the following Tuesday evening. Fenella will hold anniversary services on Sunday, October 30th.

Baked beans, as most people know, is the favorite Saturday night dish with Bostonians. So it is not surprising to learn that on the Saturday after the reopening of a famous Boston hotel the first thing the chef did in the morning was to put on 120 quarts of beans.

MANY ENTRIES IN BABY SHOW

Seventy-eight Mothers of City and District Bring in Offspring.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

The Baby Show, which the chief attraction yesterday afternoon at the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition at the Armories, was well patronized, a total of seventy-eight mothers of the city and district bringing in their babies for judgment as to their good qualities and prize-winning points. There were ten entries in the list from out-of-town, principally from Lakefield, Warsaw and Indian River.

The final decision resulted as follows Class One, for babies from six to twelve months in age: 1st, Eldon C. Northey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Northey, R.R. No. 1, Lakefield; 2nd, Norman R. Kidd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Kidd, R.R. No. 3, Indian River; 3rd, Ruth McDougall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McDougall, 294 Dalhousie street; 4th, Lorene Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton, 214 Carlisle avenue. There were fifty-three entries in this class.

Class Two, with twenty-five entries, from twelve to eighteen months in age: 1st, Mureta Barbara Hull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson R. Hull, of Lakefield; 2nd, Alma Gladys Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hill, 71 McDonnel street; 3rd, Esther Donaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Donaldson, 560 Romaine street; 4th, Pauline ("Betty") Mantell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mantell, 21 Brown street.

The prizes were respectvely, $10, $5 and $3 as cash awards for the first three winners in each class, while the fourth prize in each section was a silk and woollen shawl. Contributors to the awards were E A. Peck, M.P., Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Messrs. J. I. Allen, G. A. Gillespie, W H. Bradburn, M.P.P., E. S. Martin, and R. R. Hall, K.C. The points on which the babies were judged were from the standpoint of: General healthful appearance, facial appearance, cleanliness, brightness and alertness, absence of blemishes, absence of ricket symptoms and condition of skin.

The Show was put on under direction of John I. Allen, convenor, assisted by a committee composed of Messrs. J. A. McKone, Rev. J. D. Paterson, G. R. Scott, F. C. Neal and E. H. Wood. A Moffat also assisted, and judging physicians were Dr. J. A. White of Lindsay, in charge, Dr. J. C. Smith and Dr. H. E. Moore of Lakefield, Dr. S. Y. Walsh of Keene, and Dr. H. G. Carleton, of Norwood. Nurses assisting with the examinations were Mrs. Frank Lynch, convenor, Miss Lillian Simons of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's staff, Miss O'Loghlin, Public Health nurse, Miss Laura O'Brien of St. Joseph's Hospital Training School, and the Misses W. Radey and C. Parker from the Nicholls Hospital staff. The Misses M. O'Brien and Shaughnessy distributed Public Health literature.

Many appreciative comments on the conducting of the Show were voiced by those who were in attendance, Dr. White speaking of its fine, business-like nature. The public, exclusive of mothers and children, were excluded, and each class was judged separately, the examinations going through with despatch. An opening of an attractive nature was formed by the appearance of the five judges on the platform of the Recreation Room, where the Show was held, with the nurses in smart white uniforms, behind them. Mr. John Allen and Dr. E. H. Wood addressed the mothers briefly, explaining the object of the Show, and later, vocal solos were contributed by Miss Florence Bejamin of Toronto, one of the exhibitors. A phonograph was loaned by the Heintzman Company.

The babies were very good during the somewhat trying ordeal to which they were subjected, without their leave. These "tight little bundles of wailing and flannel, perplexed by the newly-found fardel of life," as the old song puts it, were merry or peevish, according to their various characteristics, and their mothers had somewhat of the same appearance, as the doctors placed their infants at various places on the scale of judgment.

ENGINEERS GIVEN FIVE PER CENT RAISE

Railway Officials and Men's Representatives Reach Agreement.

MONTREAL ,Oct. 14. — A settlement of the wages dispute between the engineers and the Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, and Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Rys., was effected to-day when the men will receive an increase of five per cent. in their salaries. The decision affects seven thousand men employed on the railways and the increase is made retroactive to July 10. The conference which decided on the wage adjustment was attended by the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor R. H. Cobb Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, S. J. Hungerford, vice-president of the Canadian National, and Mr. Freeman of the, Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. The engineers originally demanded a fifteen per cent increase.

The greatest speed at which man has yet travelled is just over 278 miles an hour. This record was set up by Bonnett, the French aviator.

MANY ATTEND FAIR THURSDAY

Baby Show is Strong Drawing Card—Old People Guests.

PAGEANT REPEATED.

The turnstile at the Armouries registered a total of thirty-two hundred and six entries yesterday, with the largest attendance in the evening, when the various attractions were going at full speed. There was a good patronage of the tea and supper room, where the hot meals served satisfy the wants of the crowd.

Yesterday was Confederation Day, and several of the elderly people of the city, who have been here since Confederation year, were guests of the Kiwanis Club during the afternoon and evening.

The Baby Show, results of wh ch are given in another article, proved a strong drawing card in the afternoon, and the orchestra from St. Peter's High School, with the band of the Peterborough Rangers, contributed to the indoor and outdoor music of the afternoon and evening. Patronage of the dance hall, where the Melody Kings play nightly, was good yesterday, and there were two packed houses for the programme given in the grand stand hall.

The entertainment last night included a one-act play, the fourth in the contest series, entitled "Trapped," and presented by the Keo Club of George Street United Church, a Spanish dance by Senorita Provita Vasquez ,a repetition of the Pageant, "Empire Builders," given by the Y. W.C.A. on Monday evening, a musical contest for fiddlers over sixty-five years of age ,and a Fashion Show by the Frock Shoppe on Charlotte Street, managed by Miss Anna Gallegher.

The play was presented in very creditable style by young men members of the Keo Club, under the direction of Mr. Homer Borland. Those taking part were: Harold Baker as Waring, Homer Borland as Colton, Albert Hutchins as Sam Logan, Cecil Wasson as the Police Captain, and Russell Lewis as a plainclothesman.

The Spanish dance by Senorita Vasquez, with orchestral accompaniment by the Melody Kings, brought its usual round of applause and encore number, and the fiddlers' competition, although it had only one entry, was very interesting, with Mr. M. D. Sullivan, of Rural Route No. Ten, playing some old-time music in true fiddling style ,and receiving the five-dollar prize awarded by the directors.

The making of a "lucky programme" stunt was again a popular feature of both performances, superintended by Messrs. H. Lush and Art Blade, with boxes of chocolates as prizes.

The pageant, "Empire Builders," presented by the Y.W.C.A. on Monday evening, was another interesting feature of last night's entertainment, with a small choir of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park's pupils providing vocal accompaniment, and solo, "The Marsellaise," sung in brilliant voice in French by Mrs. H. F. Doig. Mrs. G. Evans and Miss Gwen Donley provided piano accompaniments for the pageant, in which principal roles were again taken by the four gentlemen who represented famous characters in Canadian history. Mr. J. E. Smith as General Wolfe ,Mr. J. John as Champlain, Mr. Roy Taylor as General Brock, and Mr. A. J. Reynolds as Jacques Cartier, also Miss Daisy Murray as Canada, Miss Geraldine Collins as an Indian Princess, and Miss Helen Lamb as France. Assisting with the costumes last night were Mr. H. Wightman and Miss Wood.

The Fashion Show put on by the Frock Shoppe ,with exclusive showing of Martha gowns from Toronto, demonstrated some of the most exquisite gowns displayed during the week . Miss Anna Gallegher, manager of the Frock Shoppe, was in charge, with models from the Peter Robinson Chapter, in Misses Florence Adams, Mildred Morphet, Violet Davidson, and Mrs. Homer Borland, all of whom were presented with bouquets of flowers by Miss Gallegher, at the conclusion of the show.

The lovely models shown elicited much appreciative comment from the audiences. They were mainly of the evening dress type, with a beautiful model in a frock of apricot taffeta, made in bouffant style, as were nearly all the models shown, with a tight-fitting bodice topped by a deep bertha of gold lace that fell to a point in the back and was outlined at the neck by French flowers. A black gown had a skirt of solid black and gold fringe, a soft green afternoon dress had a flowing cape ,and another gown of this type was developed in black transparent velvet, with long sleeves and slightly rolling small collar. Made severely plain, the attraction of this striking gown was in the lustrous fabric and the stunning design. An odd effect was achieved in another frock of sunset shade trimmed with silver lace whose front panel was of rose velvet.

Painted roses appeared on a light chestnut georgette and made the all-over design on a gown with three-toned girdle of rose, yellow ,and mauve ,while an overskirt in two enveloping portions with rounded hemline covered the slip of peach silk beneath a rose taffeta. Fuchsia brocade with ruffled black lace panniers, ostrich feathers in yellow and rose making the entire skirt of another frock, and a pale Nile green coat effect opening over a tight-fitting white satin foundation, were other stunning ideas. A Venetian blue georgette had a soft girdle of moss green velvet, and duchess blue was another lovely colour in a taffeta frock trimmed with silver lace.

An exquisite frock of outstanding beauty had a midnight blue transparent velvet bodice, with full skirt of silver lace hemmed with a wide band of pale blue. An odd combination in another was pale pink in the top and yellowish rose in the beruffled skirt.

Mrs. G. Evans played during the Fashion Show presentation.

Iron and Steel Move More Slowly This Year

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—In a summary of the iron, steel and machinery markets, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News makes the following comment this week:

While the movement of iron and steel in the metal-markets is not what might be expected of this time of year, signs of improvement appear, and the outlook for the fourth quarter is undoubtedly promising. Due to a moderate revival in industrial activity over the past few weeks, foundry melt is reported greater and finished steel demand is accelerated.

The Canadian National Railways has received 23 locomotives from the Montreal Locomotive Co., with the result that these plants have slackened the extremely active operation of their plants. One hundred and thirteen freight refrigerator cars have been comparatively quiet. The C.P.R. has built three snowplows at the Angus shops and has purchased a 200-ton wrecking crane.

The Newfoundland Railway has an appropriation of $250,000 for rolling stock, and will probably order one or two locomotives, two sleeping cars, and three-self-propelled cars. It will also probably build six or eight passenger cars. The Saskatoon Municipal Railway has ordered 60 gross tons of rails from the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. The Canadian National Railways has authorized the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. to roll a quantity of 100-lb. rails up to 20,000 tons, to be held for delivery until 1928. Work at the Nova Scotia mill is now proceeding on an Indian rail order.

W. C. Franz of the Algoma Steel Corporation reports the order condition considerably improved. After rolling 20,000 tons of rails in August and September, total orders on the books as of Oct. 1 aggregated $4,173,000 including 50,000 tons of rails booked for winter rolling for Canadian roads. Both coal and ore have been brought in to the Soo plant for winter operations and by the end of the lake shipping season, the corporation will have taken in approximately 770,000 tons of coal and 450,000 tons of ore, increases of 100,000 and 80,000 tons respectively.

Montreal reports that valve manufacturers are unusually busy. Construction in Montreal is well in advance of last year. Warehouses in the east say construction and pulp and paper fields have been very remunerative.

The Dominion's iron and steel trade with the United Kingdom and the United States is growing, according to the latest government report, which covers the 12 months ending Aug. 31. Imports of iron and its products in that period, from the United Kingdom, were $16,264,832, compared with $15,884,368 the previous year, while exports of the same materials amounted to $3,854,204, compared with $8,575,206 in the same period last year. With the United States, imports were $219,406,755 in the 12 months, compared with $186,515, while exports were $10,304,133 compared with $9,299,378.

Prices are practically unchanged, with the exception of old materials in the Montreal market where a reduction is reported, due to lack of movement of scrap.

Grain Prices Go Up For Many Reasons

CHICAGO, October 14 (Canadian Press).—Unexpected upturns in Liverpool quotations, bullish Australian crop reports, and more unwelcome rain in Canada gave an early lift today to wheat values here. Corn prices showed little change, despite heavy frost in parts of Iowa and Illinois. Opening 1-8c to ½c higher, wheat continued to point upward. Corn started unchanged to 1-8c advance, and later hardened a trifle more. Oats were firm. Provisions tended to sag.

Mine Trading Easier With Trend Upward

TORONTO, Oct. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Easing a little from yesterday's heavy trading, the market on the standard mining exchange was strong with transactions totalling a million shares for the morning session. Kirkland Lake made a net gain of 10 to 270 and Hilltop advanced 5 to 19. The greatest loss was noted in Amulet, which dropped sixteen to 534, although Area also was off two at 58 and Newbec down three at 109. Tough Oakes advanced 1¼ to 61¼, while Bidgood gained a point at 69. Laval Quebec eased ½ to 43½ and Barry Hollinger was off 1½ at 96½.

Exhibition Notes

The directors of the various attractions at the Fair have no qualms about procedure. A gentleman interested in the Baby Show yesterday wanted some music. The proprietor of a certain booth was not in sight when he needed him, so he simply helped himself to a phonograph, and, with the aid of another husky helper, carried it bodily upstairs.

In connection with the Baby Show there were some long faces in the ante-room later. "She didn't get a prize, and I told him how cute she was, and that she walked at ten months," one indignant mother explained to an equally indignant-looking father of a tiny morsel of humanity.

A great deal of interest is manifested in the various demonstrations, of an artistic and utilitarian nature. The educational demonstrations by Miss Elliott and Miss Cook, in charge respectively of the preserving and canning and the egg cooking and candling, are watched with much interest. There is always an interested audience for the weaving work done on looms in the Art Association exhibit, and demonstrated by Mrs. Stansfield of Toronto, Mrs. Kennett of this city and Madamoiselle Cimon and her sister, of Baie St. Paul, Quebec. The permanent waving work by Madame Merriam ,the batik and block printing at Mrs. Mather's section ,the lacquering at the Brown Hardware booth ,all have their quota.

The tiny black and white silhouettes by which Misses Beryl Foward and Lucy McWilliams, of Toronto, are helping to swell the funds of the Fair, have had hundreds of patrons during the past week ,and are very popular; and another centre for the crowd to gather and watch is the booth of Miss Mamie L. McCarthy, where charcoal sketches are made. Yesterday, sitters here were Rev. J. V. McAuley, of Ennismore, Mrs. Sifroy Goulet, Mrs. J. G. Livingstone, Mr. J. John, and Mr. F. H. Dawson.

New faces at the fortune-telling booth last night were Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. F. C. Weber and her guest, Mrs. H. O'Loghlin of Toronto, also Mrs. D. Drummond.

The comments made by some of the masculine section of the audience during the Fashion Show performances at the grand stand are amusing. The gentlemen have decided views. "I don't like that combination of colours at all," declared one man who surveyed a two-tone effect in rose last night. "They are killing the knees," was the somewhat cryptic comment of one man, who explained his idea by saying the frocks that are made longer in front than at the back are designed for the purpose of changing recent trend in Fashions which displayed knee-caps to the greatest possible number. A dress made with an odd velvet panel in the front also came in for severe criticism from a neighbouring masculine onlooker, who thought it was "entirely too spicy."

SALE OF WORK IS SUCCESSFUL

Ladies' Guild of St. George's Presents Good Programme Besides.

IN RYE'S PAVILION.

The Sale of Work put on in Rye's Pavilion this week under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild of St. George's Anglican Church, proved a very successful event. The decorations of the Pavilion served as an ideal background for the various booths, which were supervised as follows: Country Store, Mesdames Huxley and McWilliams; the W. A. Booth, Mesdames Brown and Brownlee; Home-made Cooking, Mesdames Wood and King; Home-made Candy, Mesdames W. Rew and Howarth; Ladies' Guild, Mesdames H. Monk, (president of the Guild); H. Rew, and J. L. Hughes. Refreshments were in charge of Mesdames Farthing, Masulch, Dorset and Cole,

A musical entertainment in the evening included the presentation of the plays, "The New Reporter," and "Box and Cox," by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church, also vocal solos by Mrs. W. Davies.

An expression of appreciation to the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church and a grateful acknowledgment of the kindness of Mr. Rye in loaning his Pavilion was voiced by Rev. J. L. Hughes and Mr. Charles Cole.

THE JEWEL HOME WARMER

Heats by Circulation instead of Radiation. Therefore all parts of the room are comfortably and evenly warmed. No huddling round the stove on a cold day. You can sit by the window and read in comfort. With the doors open the heat will flow freely through the adjoining rooms and upstairs.

The design of the HOME WARMER is new and most attractive.

Children can play around it in perfect safety.

The outer shell or casing on the HOME WARMER serves two purposes. It forces the circulation of air, and prevents direct contact with the hot stove. No scorched clothing when you brush against it.

World Distress! Why?

The Remedy

World conditions are rapidly reaching a crisis. The complete failure of Church and Government to find any solution to the world's problems is precipitating the day of settlement. Statesmen talk and plan; religious leaders preach and plead; politicians scheme; and the profiteers rejoice at the prospect of more gains from armament contracts.

Proposes to Force Sammy Mandell to Fight

FORFEIT TITLE FOR FAILURE TO DEFEND IT

Action Would Affect Mandell in Eighteen Different States.

ORDER ELIMINATIONS

Meeting Next Week to Discuss Affiliation With New York.

TORONTO, Ont., October 14. — Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill., who hold's the world's lightweight title, will find himself arbitrarily shorn of his title next week unless plans of the National Boxing Association are unexpectedly changed. It was learned yesterday that the National Boxing Association ,at its annual convention on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday in Toledo, planned to declare Mandell's title forfeited for his failure to defend it.

The action will affect Mandell in eighteen States which are affiliated with the National Boxing Association and in a total of twenty-four centres where legalized boxing is conducted with National Boxing Association affiliations. It is understood the National Boxing Association plans to nominate Sid Terris, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Phil McGraw, and Billy Wallace as the outstanding contenders for the title, and order eliminations to establish a recognized leader.

Mandell Fails to Defend.

Mandell won the title from Rocky Kansas on July 3, 1926, and has been practically idle since then in so far as championship bouts are concerned. He fought Phil McGraw in Detroit at the weight last July 16, and won a decision, but because of the leader's inactivity the class has lost the appeal it held for the public in the days when Benny Leonard led the class with such boys as Johnny Dundee, Charlie White ,Richie Mitchel, Lew Tendler, Rocky Kansas, Pal Moran, Willie Jackson, and others snapping at his heels.

Mandell's case is not the only one scheduled for consideration. The National Boxing Association will listen to a protest from Walk Miller, manager of Tiger Flowers, over the refusal of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, to give Flowers a promised return title match.

Plans for affiliation with New York's boxing authorities also are to be among the major matters before the convention.

Coast Heavy Signed.

Ralph Smith, Coast heavyweight, standing 6 feet 6 inches and weighing 225 pounds, will be a participant in one of the preliminaries at the Garden on November 18, when Jack Sharkey battles Tom Heeney in the feature. Smith was promised a match on Wednesday when he visited the Garden with Hughie McGloon, his manager, who is the other extreme in physical dimensions.

Bouts To-night.

Jack Delaney and Jack Renault on Wednesday were reported in excellent condition for their ten-round bout ,which will be the feature to-night in the Garden. The prospective rivals went through their closing paces of training yesterday, and from each camp came declarations of confidence over the result.

Joe Boynton, Garden box office head, reported an encouraging advance sale, and the indications pointed to a large crowd.

In the ten-round semi-final Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle negro lightweight, and Sammy Vogel, clever Harlem lad, will furnish the action. The first ten-round bout will be between Jack McAuliffe 2d and George LaRocco, heavyweights.

ONLY ONE GAME IN CHESS PLAY

Culle and Yates Adjourn Their Game for Second Time.

FOURTH ROUND TODAY

LONDON, October 14 (Associated Press). — Only one game was played yesterday in the International Chess Masters' tournament at the British Empire Club. Colle of Belgium and Yates of England adjourned their game a second time after 74 moves. he position in the game, which was unfinished from the first round, was considered favourable to Colle.

The fourth round will be played to-day.

RUGBY NOTES

Owing to the late organization and lack of funds the Oshawa Rugby team has been forced to discontinue and therefore will be unable to play the exhibition game with the Peterborough Junior O.R.F.U. team, which was planned for this Saturday. The team will probably hold a practice game tomorrow night and learn what is being done in regard to future games. Next Saturday is an open date and attempts will be made to secure a game with some other teams in the district.

Three Women Jockeys Ride In English Race

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 14. Three women jockeys were the sole riders yesterday in the 261st race for the historic Town Plate, established and endowed by Charles II.

In order not to clash with the regular race run on the famous heath, the Town Plate race, which is over a course of four miles, started early and resulted in a victory for Miss D. Saunders on her horse, Fair Toy. Miss Rickaby, riding Major Ratcliffe's Happy Greeting, was second and Miss Eileen Joel, on Walter Earl's Hogier, was third.

Miss Joel won last year when Miss Rickaby also captured second place.

PLAYERS' MELON LARGEST EVER

Commissioner Landis Dividing $339,440.67 Into 170 Shares.

CHICAGO, October 14 (Associated Press). — The World's Series players' melon, amounting to $339,440.67, the greatest in baseball history, was split up into 170 shares by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis last night when he mailed cheques to the conquering Yankees and the members of the teams which finished second, third ,and fourth in the American and National League races.

The defeated Pirates have not yet notified the Commissioner how they want their losers' end divided, with the result that he still is holding $111,843.39, the amount the Pittsburghers got for their disastrous series with the American League champions.

The Yankees split $167,765.08 into 27 full shares of $5,782.24. Miller Huggins, manager of the club, and Arthur Fletcher and Charley O'Leary, coaches, each received full shares along with the players. The travelling secretary, trainer, and club attendants received cheques for portions of shares.

DEMPSEY DENIES REPORT OF PEACE

Knows Nothing About Rumored Agreement With Kearns.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The report in New York that Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey will make up their quarrel was discredited by Dempsey here. The New York Daily News said Kearns was to receive a third of the former champion's future earnings. "I know nothing about it and wouldn't consider it for a minute", Dempsey said.

A special meeting of the local Soccer Association will be held in Chamber of Commerce Rooms on Monday evening, October 17th (not 24th as stated in error), when all players ordered off the field last Saturday are requested to appear.

On Monday afternoon at King Edward Park, the Prince of Wales School meets the Queen Mary's boys in the final league game of the schedule. If the Prince of Wales wins this game they are league winners; if the opposition wins, they will have to play a deciding match.

That Epsom should be chosen by the racing world as the scene of its greatest race is due to its natural features, which make it more than ordinarily suitable for race meetings, and to its easy accessibility from London. The Downs themselves are fine natural grandstands, capable of holding ten times the number of people ever assembled on them.

Jack Dempsey May Settle Differences

NEW YORK, October 14 (Associated Press). — Despite the assertion in Salt Lake City yesterday of Jack Dempsey that he "wouldn't consider" proposals for peace with his former manager, Jack Kearns, other developments indicated definite moves are under way to patch up the differences between the pair looking toward the eventual resumption of Dempsey's management by Kearns.

Kearns, here, authorized the announcement by his associate, Teddy Hayes, that he had agreed to indefinite postponement in Trenton, N.J., of an action to recover $333,333.33 from Dempsey, under the terms of their former contract. According to Hayes, Kearns went to Trenton yesterday with his lawyers to effect this postponement, but Arthur F. Driscoll, of counsel for Dempsey, declared he "knew nothing" of this or of any negotiations to settle the Kearns-Dempsey differences out of Court.

TAKES HIS GOLF SERIOUSLY

It's in the blood of Paul Von Elm, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Von Elm of Salt Lake City, to be a champion golfer.

His uncle is George Von Elm, former national amateur champion, his daddy has held several titles, and another uncle is now junior champion of Utah.

Paul takes his golf game seriously even now. Our photographer shows him practicing on the front lawn. He wants to play like Uncle "Gix" and Bobby Jones and he thinks he is good enough now to beat all comers his age!

If there's anything in blood, you'll hear of this Von Elm along about in 1942.

OFF-SEASON TALK

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 14.—The 1927-28 sessions of baseball's "Hot Stove League" may not develop as startling food for winter fans as last year but there are already a number of shifts in prospect to enliven the off-season.

The fate of Kiki Cuyler, Pirate outfield star, who warmed the bench during the world's series, has aroused especially keen speculation on the assumption that Pittsburgh, for reasons best known to its own officials, will not keep him another year.

Cincinnati and Brooklyn are most often mentioned as likely to get Cuyler, while Chicago fans have organized a "We-Want-Kiki-Cuyler" club to influence an effort by the Cubs to obtain the Pirate star. Baseball men, however, do not expect the Pirates to let Cuyler go to the Cubs, Giants or Cardinals and thus strengthen the three teams which gave Pittsburgh the hottest chase for this year's pennant.

Cincinnati, it is suggested, might trade George Kelly, first baseman, and a pitcher for Cuyler, since the illness of Joe Harris this season may prevent him from being a regular again for the Pirates next year. Brooklyn has an excellent collection of pitching talent, which might interest the Pirates in any talk of trade, but the Robins need such twirlers as Vance, Petty and Doak as badly as they do outfielders.

Among all the athletes and sportsmen who have snapped their fingers at Father Time the palm appears to belong to Bening Arnold, a noted lawn bowler of Bournemouth, England. The veteran, who is still active as a player, will celebrate his 103rd birthday anniversary on May 25.

COBB THROUGH WITH MACKMEN

Reported That Veteran Will Follow Zack Wheat Into Retirement.

REORGANIZE CLUBS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Connie Mack already has released Zack Wheat, veteran outfielder and former National league star, unconditionally, and there is a question whether Ty. Cobb will be back on the job for the Athletics in 1928.

The size of Cobb's salary, variously estimated at from $40,000 to $60,000 for 1927, is understood to be an item which may influence the Athletics against re-engaging the famous Georgian. Before the start of this season, Cobb declared he wanted to have one more good year and then retire. He accomplished this purpose, most observers agree, but whether Ty. really intends to put his spiked shoes away is something else. The game may still call him.

General re-organization of the St. Louis Browns and the Cleveland Indians is in prospect, with the latter club likely to change ownership. Phil Ball, Brown owner, announced some time ago a "house-cleaning" would be made and that even George Sisler, crack first besman, wasn't exempt from a shake-up. This prompted reports that Connie Mack might seek the former Michigan star. Jack McCallister is not expected to remain as Cleveland's manager another year. Tris Speaker, who is unlikely to wear a Washington uniform again, is talked of as McCallister's successor.

In the National League, Boston, Philadelphia and Brooklyn all are in the market for new material. It would not be surprising to see these figure in drastic shifts aimed at making them stronger contenders in 1928. The strength of the other five clubs in the senior circuit was pretty well established this season but the Giants still are looking for catchers and pitching strength.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

DEFINING DUTIES OF GRID OFFICIALS

Do Not Blame Referee for All Tough Decisions Made in Game.

By DR. E. J. O'BRIEN
Famous Football Referee

Most football fans do not realize that before a big game the referee has a great many details to look after.

The first is to see that the ball is one which is made according to the dimensions laid down in the rules. They state that the ball shall be made of leather, in which is a rubber bladder, and that this must be tightly inflated, and, when so, shall have the shape of a prolate spheroid. The circumference of the long axis shall be from 28 to 28½ inches, and the circumference of the short axis from 22½ to 23 inches.

Also, he must weigh the ball, which shall weigh not less than 14 or more than 15 ounces. He must also see that the field is a rectangular field, 360 feet in length, and 160 feet in width.

He must also see that the field is properly marked with white lines five yards apart and parallel to the goal lines. The goal line is established in the field of play 10 yards from and parallel to the end lines.

It seems to one who has specialized as a referee that the majority of spectators appear to be of the mind that the referee, and he alone, calls all fouls and inflicts all penalties. It might be well to get acquainted with what constitute the duties of the four main officials of a football game.

The referee has general oversight and control of the game, and is the sole authority for the score and the sole judge of the forfeitures of the game under the rules. His decision on all matters, not especially designated to other officials, shall be final. The main function of the referee is to see that the ball is properly put in play, and, except as otherwise provided, he shall be the sole judge of its position and progress.

The umpire is the judge of the conduct and position of the players. He is charged with seeing that the players wear only equipment as provided for in the rules. For instance, if a man has sharp metal cleats, or has hard metal or projecting shoulder pads, knee pads, etc., it is the duty of the umpire to see that this equipment is not worn. He is the man who calls most of the fouls committed by players, such as holding, pushing, pulling, tripping and the like. He reports the foul to the referee, who then proceeds to inflict the penalty.

The linesman is under the supervision of the referee and marks the distances gained or lost in the progress of the play. He is also charged with seeing that players are on-side when the ball is put in play, and is also to look out for the tripping of ends, encroachment on the neutral zone. This year, he is specially charged with the duty of looking for fouls committed by the offense on the so-called screen forward pass plays. He must also designate the spot where the ball or player went outside on his side of the field. He also has concurrent jurisdiction on the new rule relative to shift plays.

The field judge is a direct assistant to the referee and also keeps the time. He is supposed to assist the referee in decisions regarding the position of the ball when it is kicked up or passed down the field. He is also charged with the duties of calling infringement of certain rules, mostly concerning conduct of players down the field.

Having enumerated the many duties of the various officials, I trust I have made it clear that there are other judges of play besides the referee. However, to most football fans, because the referee is the man who parades up and down the field with the ball, he is held responsible for all the penalties that are inflicted.

Former Tiger Lands Berth With Griffmen

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 14. —The sale of John Stewart and Emory Rigney, infielders, to the Birmingham Club of the Southern Association, has been announced by president Griffith of the Washington American League team. Rigney formerly was a star shortstop with the Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox, having played six years in the major leagues.

Stewart was never able to win a regular berth with a major league club although he was given trials by the Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Brooklyn and Philadelphia National League teams.

The terms of the sale were not made public.

RUANE LEADS AT CHICAGO MEET

Comes From Behind to Capture $10,000 Feature Handicap.

INAUGURAL PROGRAMME

CHICAGO, October 14 (Associated Press). — Before a shivering crowd of 12,000 racing fans, J.B. Partridge's colt, Ruane, a son of Behave Yourself, came from behind to capture the $10,000 Chicago Day Handicap, the stake feature inaugurating the opening 16-day meeting of the American National Jockey Club at Arlington Heights yesterday afternoon.

The winner paid the surprising odds of $40.02 in the $2.00 mutuels, and despite a heavy track, ran the mile in 1.47 3-5. Devon paid $20.24 to finish second, while $3.34 was the show price on Mixup, the favourite.

Chicago's civic and society leaders turned out almost en masse to attend the inaugural programme on the new $2,000,000 track that H. D. Brown, the California sportsman, and his Chicago associate built . It was charity day, with the gate receipts going to children's charities.

CHIEF THOMPSON ASKED FOR BOOKS

Ordered By Commission To Hand Over Records of Drug Cases.

WINDSOR, Oct. 14.—The Windsor Police Commission yesterday directed Daniel Thompson, suspended Chief of Police, to turn over to a Civic Inquiry Committee records of all money paid out through him as rewards to informers in case of convictions under the Narcotic Drugs and Inland Revenue Acts.

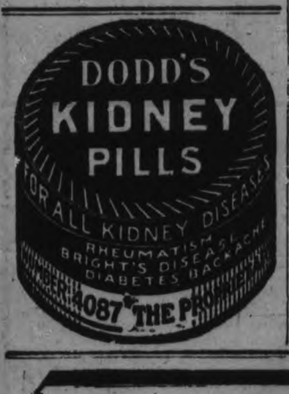
In ruling to this effect the Commission agreed to a request put in by Wilfred D. Roach, legal representative of the City Council, in the present police inquiry, and the Commission's action in this respect is regarded as a point in favor of the Council's move to oust the Chief, who is under suspension at his own request, facing charges lodged against him by Ald. Clyde W. Curry.

The Council has asked the Police Commission to discharge the Chief, but the Police Board declined to act hurriedly on this request, although a promise was given the Council that a reply to the resolution of the Council is to be ready Thursday.

During the Police Board's session Constable Simon Silver, who was suspended by Chief Thompson on a "neglect of duty" charge, was permanently discharged by the Commissioners, Judge J. J. Coughlin and Mayor C. E. Jackson. Magistrate W. E. Gundy, the third member of the Commission, is relieved of his duties for the time being at his own request, pending a Provincial probe into his department.

Both the Police Magistrate and Chief Thompson are under fire in connection with law enforcement operations on the part of the Windsor police.

Constable Silver did not make any of his reported "disclosures" at yesterday's meeting.



PHELAN CHARITY CUP GAME SATURDAY

Quaker Oats Meet the Thistle in Final Game at King Edward Park at 3 p.m.

On Saturday afternoon at King Edward (not October 22 as previously announced), the final of the Father Phelan Charity Cup will be played between the Quaker Oats and the Masseys. Kick-off at 3 o'clock.

The semi-final games resulted in the Quakers eliminating the De Laval aggregation that put up such an excellent battle against their opponents. In the case of the Thistle, they ousted the league champions, the Masseys, from the cup by the small margin of three to two.

Last year the executive of the association were able to hand over handsome sums of money to the charitable institutions in the city and it is left to the soccer fans to help the worthy object again on Saturday afternoon.

ENSURE A PLEASANT TRIP — TRAVEL "VANCOUVER EXPRESS."

From October 1st until the opening of the next tourist season, the "Vancouver Express" will have the distinction of being the most direct link between Toronto and Vancouver. Until May of 1928, when the superb "Trans-Canada" resumes service, the ever popular "Number Three" as she is more familiarly known, carries on alone.

The comfort and service found on this excellent transcontinental train have earned for it an enviable reputation with experienced travellers, in fact, many of her patrons use her services the year round, always occupying the same accommodation, as they would in a favorite hotel. They come to know the waiters and porters and look for them when they go aboard. There are more than a hundred men who do this, and it speaks well for the "Vancouver Express."

The Vancouver Express is Canadian Pacific and she leaves Toronto Union Station every evening at nine.

DOUBLE CAUSES TROUBLE

Little Maxie—otherwise known as Max Gottlieb, Green, Gorden, Goldman and soforth — spent over five months in jail because five witnesses had posititvely identified him as the confidence man who had been selling cut glass for diamonds in Hicksville and Hempstead, L.I. Maxie protested that he was innocent and had been going straight for ten years but the judge was about to impose upon him a life sentence on the ground that he was a fourth offender when the real culprit appeared and made a full confession which completely absolved Little Maxie. Witness admitted that it had all been a case of mistaken identity. How striking is the resemblance between Little Maxie and his double, Abe Schwartz, is shown by the above illustration. The most notable difference is that Little Maxie, seen on the left, is 5 feet 4 inches tall, while Abe Schwartz is only 5 feet 2

CURING FLATULENCE

In the last two articles I explained how heart trouble, asthma, and many other disorders can be caused by an excessive amount of stomach or intestinal gas. I pointed out the various causes which definitely increase flatulence. In pointing out a cure I will explain just how one is to proceed so as to remove any of the causes which may be responsible.

The first thing to do is to make a "taboo" list of foods; swear off on the following: Onions, garlic, chives, cabbage, turnips, and all condiments. The next step is to arrange a suitable diet to strictly adhere to for at least a month. During this dict it is best to eliminate starchy foods. Here is a good model to go by:

Breakfast: One or two eggs prepared in any manner except by frying. Three or four pieces of Melba toast. (Prepared by cutting white bread one-quarter of an inch thick, removing all crust, and toasting slowly in the oven until it is brown all the way through.) Small dish of stewed fruit, with no sugar added.

Lunch: Choice of any one kind of acid fruit, or any cooked and raw non-starchy vegetable not mentioned in the "forbidden" list above.

Dinner: The same kind of non-starchy vegetables, both cooked and raw and, in addition, about a quarter of a pound of lean meat, chicken, or fish. No desserts.

During the month on this restricted diet, it is a good plan to take an enema each day to clean the intestines and remove any offending bacteria. In this way, one can get rid of many toxins which would otherwise be retained if only ordinary bowel movements are depended upon. A one-quart enema taken daily will keep the bowels cleaned about two days in advance of what the intestines could do by normal peristalsis.

After a month of this regime, one can then try the addition of starchy meals, used in accordance with the rules of proper food combinations.

If this treatment has not proved completely effective, it may be necessary to take a short fruit fast and then return to the diet I have outlined. In any case, keep up the enemas as long as there is any distress from gas.

Keep reading these articles carefully each day, and learn about the best methods of preparing food, and how to use the right foods in perfect combinations that are not gas-forming.

Questions and Answers.

Question: K. K. writes: "When changing from high-heeled slippers into low-heeled ones I seem to have a cramp in my foot, and just before I get into the low-heeled slippers my foot seems to snap like when you try "finger-breaking." Can you tell me what this is, and what to do about it?"

Answer: The change from high-heeled slippers to low-heeled ones must be made gradually. The unnatural position of the foot in a high-heeled shoe changes the position of the bones of the foot, and it takes some time before they will return to their normal shape after such a shoe has been continually worn. The "cracking" is due to the bones or ligaments slipping into position.

Question: "Health Crank writes: "What's this about alfalfa—the common garden variety—being good for folks as well as cows? I attended a meeting of a Dental Convention recently and the speaker advocated the use of alfalfa. What think you?"

Answer: The addition of fresh alfalfa to a combination salad produces not only a pleasing taste, but the user is assured the benefit of much iron and many vitamins found in this vegetable. The fresh alfalfa is hard to get in certain localities, and the dried article is not very appetizing in its present "hay" form, is the reason it is not more commonly used. Chemists will someday work out a food made from alfalfa that will generalize its use—to the good of humanity!

Question: Lorraine K. asks: "Do you know of any good home treatment for goitre?"

Answer: A goitre is an enlargement of the thyroid gland, and is generally caused by congestion in this gland of morbid waste products. A fruit fast will eliminate such deposits and return the gland to practically its normal size. The diet after the cure should be free from all grain foods, and an acid fruit meal used at least once a day.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE OCEAN OF THE AIR

Men have gone down to seas in ships
And women watched upon the shore;
But now into a new sea slips
Some mother's son for evermore.
Once women watched for husbands' sails
And shuddered with the wintry gales;
Now to some hope some woman clings
And listens for the whirr of wings.

Some cloudland now envelops him,
Whom once a headland hid from view;
Some ocean vaster and more dim
Than any sea man ever knew.
Here is a darker mystery
Than any wave embroidered sea.
A deeper doubt when mortals fare
Into the ocean of the air.

And so it was, and so it will,
And so it has been from the first:
Men always look beyond the hill,
And men for new adventure thirst.
Yes, men are always finding things,
New seas for sails, new seas for wings;
Finding new joys in some new deep,
And giving hearts new cause to weep.

Car Climbs Over Gravel To Fall in Hydro Ditch

Climbing a pile of gravel about three feet high, an automobile driven by a lady, on Aylmer street to-day, finished its journey with its two front wheels resting in a trench which had been dug by Hydro employees who are working on the gas mains.

The lady declared she has been looking for a house number and failed to see the obstacle in time to prevent the mishap.

It was during the noon hour and the trench was unoccupied. No one was injured, and the auto after receiving the attentions of the wrecking crew, was able to proceed.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

MILTON SILLS IN "HARD BOILED HAGGERTY."

The veteran actor, Milton Sills, who made such a name for himself in late years in various productions of the silver sheet, is at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end, in "Hard Boiled Haggerty," one of the pictures in which he seems to delight, with action and romance and thrills in its filming.

In 1918, "somewhere in France," Haggerty engages in startling air flights, bringing down his German foes, and is decorated with a medal by Major Cotton. He meets and falls in love with a French demoiselle of mystery, in a part played excellently by Molly O'Day, but later, Cotton tells him stories about her, and he strikes his superior officer. At the ensuing court trial, the girl, to save Haggerty, defames herself, and, disgusted with himself and her, he goes away to fight harder than ever.

The finale has a peculiar twist, when Haggerty discovers that twin girls have been deceiving him. One is the good girl he loves, the other the bad one of the streets. It is a trick that is seldom encountered in the movies.

Arthur Stone, army "buddy" of the fighting hero, Mitchell Lewis as Major Cotton and Yola d'Avril, as the cafe dancing girl, have good parts. It is an entertaining picture with a novel ending and has plenty of romantic action in its dramatization.

The accompanying comedy and short reels are of the usual interesting type.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE.

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died sewing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married. David kills the fiancee of Arthur Graham in an auto accident. Graham's parents are bitter toward David. They intend to punish him to the fullest extent of the law.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"Your goodness of heart will be the undoing of you, Arthur. I've told you and told you. He was drunk."

"He was not drunk, mother."

"That whiskey bottle! How can you say so, Arthur?" reproachfully.

"He carried tea in that."

"Tea! I've heard that story before. You mustn't forget, darling, that I'm your mother and three times as well versed in the wickedness of this world, and that it would take more than a story as simple as that to convince me."

"Perhaps its very simpleness carries truth, mother."

"You astonish me, Arthur. How can you be so lenient with Bernice hardly cold under ground and that murderer claiming he drank tea!" Mollie shuddered at the brazen effrontery of the criminal.

What little light there had remained in Arthur's eyes was gone.

"I've told you repeatedly, mother, that two wrongs do not make a right. I feel as badly about Bernice's—death—as you do. Perhaps I might be permitted to venture

"What was it you answered when I asked you how you would take one of fate's knocks?"

that I feel—a bit worse—about it than you do—but the wearying fact remains. It was either the child or my car, and Sullivan preferred the uncertainty of my car to the sure death that would have come to the boy. He wasn't to blame, though it is bitter that Bernice, and not I, should have gone. Can't you see it, mother?"

"I see nothing but the fact that this bottle was found on his person, Arthur, and I also see my duty. Heaven knows I'm as soft-hearted as it is given to one who is a mother to be. And as for wishing that it might have been you rather than Bernice, how can you say so, my son?"

He made a gesture of futility.

"Very well, mother. Let us talk no more about it, please. I want you to know this, however. I shall not testify against the boy. Let father rant and pull down the heavens if he will. Either I testify for him or I leave for New York. One of the two." And he left her with pain spread thickly over her heart, or where she imagined her heart to be. He was to learn that mere mention of New York revived the pain in her heart, as he was also to learn the apathy that took the place of his former concern.

The trial was set for the seventeenth of the month, and the hours of the interim dragged like weights at Mary's heart, gathering pressure as more and more of them joined those of the past. Mary was lustreless these days, with the sheen gone from even her hair. The lids of her eyes seemed thick and heavy. Mary was walking the earth. Mary was muddy, tasting of the bitterness of life's dregs. Her feet, the feet that had leaped lightly into the blue, had become leaden. It was difficult doing anything at all, as it was difficult to accomplish those acts of life which were involuntary, such as breathing. Life was a weight. The very air pressed heavily upon one.

"Get her to practice her tennis with you, can't you, Bob?" said Wally, who reflected a bit of the wanness that was Mary's.

Young Robert's gaze was heavy with misery. "I can't. I can't do anything at all with my sister." Young Robert was selling papers these days. Serving his novitiate, as did the young knights before they were permitted the glory of the Round Table. What would be the glory of Robert? To see, perhaps, the lustre returned to the green eyes of Mary, and the easy grace of her slim sweet form outlined against the sky.

"Will you come riding with me, sweet? I've the car, and we can travel to the ends of the earth and forget for a little while." Thus Wally, his anxious gaze taking in the little figure that seemed to be diminishing with the passing of the days.

"I'd—rather not, Wally. You're a darling, nevertheless. Why don't you and Robert go?"

"Because I prefer that you and I go. Won't you come and let a little air into the starved frame that is yours?"

"Thank you, no. I'd rather not."

Mary's response to any suggestion which did not include the mention of David's name, nor an effort in his direction. "Thank you, no. I'd rather not."

"Mary." Wally's hands enclasped her arms and his keen blue-eyed gaze riveted to hers. "Look here, you little slacker. What was it you answered when I asked you how you would take one of fate's nasty knocks? What did you say?"

"I don't remember." She was so tired, and she did so wish he wouldn't bother, though he was so sweet——

"You do remember. Snap out of it. You said you'd leap the chasm and go right merrily on. What was that—a lot of hot air? Don't you mean anything you say?"

"Saying things—before you've been hurt—and doing them—after you're hurt—aren't one and the same, Wally."

So she had discovered that, had she, poor little kid. Wally groaned from the depths of his love for her and held her tightly against him. "You hurt me like all perdition when you talk that way, sweet." And then, fearing that in thought for the pain that was his he had been selfish, he finished, "But if it relieves you, go right ahead and don't mind me."

Mary couldn't see David. Not until after the trial. Wally had gone, though. Wally in his capacity as police reporter. He reported a cheerful David, one who hoped for the best and relayed that message to Mary telling her not to worry. Above all, not to worry, and that it would all turn out well. It was bound to, David insisted, circumstantial evidence to the contrary notwithstanding.

"That's what is so hopeless about the affair, you see, dear." Wally, wrinkling his brow and striding his lean length up and down the confines of the living room.

"There's no one to prove that David was not drunk. It seems this Graham fellow is going to testify for him, which should alleviate the sentence a bit. If David had had someone on the seat with him while driving— Who is this Graham, do you know, Mary? Some high son of a high son and all that rot, is that it?"

Mary explained the position of the Grahams in the town.

"Well, you see, all that piles on the agony. The Grahams being a first family, and all that. And the old man is clamoring for justice. That should help, too." Wally smiled grimly. "But this young Graham, he sounds rather decent, Mary. Sporting of him to go to the witness stand for David. Well——" He came to where Mary sat and kneeled to look into her eyes. "Cheerio, honey." He put her hands to his lips and cooled them with his kisses. "It won't be long now."

It wasn't very long now. Somehow the days dragged by, though the hours were loath. The day of Davie's trial. Mary wondered if she would be able to bear it? The tension, the knowledge of a cold duty which would hold the court room in its grip—the inexorable majesty of the law, grim, forbidding, with no thought of personalities.

"I shall come with you, Mary," Mrs. Tomlinson announced. "Father will stay home with the children. He was glad to do what he could for you, and if he couldn't do more than neglect the office for a day he said he'd do that with all his heart. That's what father thinks of you, Mary. And my boy Freddie—'Mother,' he says, 'mother, is Davie going to be home soon so that I can play tennis with Mary?' And I said, 'You'll play tennis with Mary the day after tomorrow, because Davie'll be home.' Mark my words, Mary dear, Davie'll be home."

Davie would be home! Home and Davie. How good, how good were the conjunction of words.

SHANSI FORCES LOSE HEAVILY NEAR PEKING

Scattered Bands Still in the Vicinity of Northern Capital.

BREAK UP RAIDS.

Northerners Make Concerted Attack Against Railway Junction of Chantow.

PEKING, China, October 15. — The main Shansi armies, which have been driving on Peking, have been crushed, but scattered bands are still in the field, some within twenty miles of Peking, with Northern forces close at their heels, a spokesman of the Northern Alliance stated yesterday.

This spokesman declared that the Northerners deliberately drew the main Shansi army of 800 000 men almost to Pactingfu, 85 miles southwest of Peking, and then sent the Northern army by way of Anshow toward Tiengehow, to cut off their retreat. Most of the Shansi force was forced to abandon the Peking-Hankow railway, and flee southwestward toward their native province of Shansi.

The latest message from Chang Hsuch-liang, son of Marshal Chan Tso-lin, stated that his troops are about to enter Chengtingfu, 70 miles south of Pastingfu, but contrary to previous reports the Shansi forces still hold the important railway junction of Chengtingfu. The Northern spokesman said that the fall of this latter place was expected hourly.

Heavy Snowfalls.

Operations on the Northern front have been delayed unexpectedly by an early heavy snowfall, but fighting has been going on at Tsaikowpu, the Northerners advancing westward, causing the Shansi army to evacuate the important trading city of Kalgan.

The Shansi leaders evidently had made elaborate plans to capture Peking, the spokesman said. Apart from the two main armies, the divisions were detailed to advance along the mountain roads and cut communications. This plan failed largely because of the rapidity of the Northern victory against the main Shansi armies.

Several of these raids have been stopped ,notably in the western hills, 20 miles from Peking, where one Shansi regiment was disarmed. A stronger Shansi force took Chochow, only 38 miles south of Peking, but were driven out by the Northern troops

Break up Raids.

The Northern spokesman said that similar raids near Peking were expected but that the raiders were unable to keep in contact with each other and were more like bandits than regular troops. The Northern Alliance, he said, consequently did not regard their movements seriously. Even if some of these irregulars should appear near the walls of Peking, and firing should be heard in the city, he continued, there would be no cause for fear, since the Northerners had ample forces to round them up.

Severe fighting has been going on between the Northern forces and the Nationalists in the province of Honan, but reports here indicate a somewhat slow advance of Shantung (Northern) troops along the Lunghai railway.

Re-Occupy Concession.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(A.P.)— A dispatch to Westminster Gazette from Peking reports that the British intend to re-occupy the British concession at Hankow which was turned over to the Nationalists on March 15, now that the Nationalist regime of Dr. Eugene Chen and Michael Borodin has vanished.

The taking over by the Chinese Nationalists of the British concession of Hankow on March 15, was regarded as the first tangible victory of Chinese Nationalism in its struggle with the powers. The concession formed a base for British trade in the interior of China and was regarded as one of the most valuable extra territorial areas in that country The British had held it since 1851 and its abandonment was a direct result of anti-foreign violence indulged in last January when mobs invaded the concession and threatened to kill foreigners.

IF I WERE KING

PETERBOROUGH BOYS TELL INQUIRING REPORTER WHAT THEY WOULD DO IF THEY WERE IN THE PLACE OF KING MICHAEL OF RUMANIA—6 YEARS OLD

If I Were King of Tartary

If I were King of Tartary,
Myself and me alone;
My bed should be of ivory,
Of beaten gold my throne,
And in my court would peacocks flaunt;
And in my forests, tigers haunt;
And in my pools great fishes slant
Their fins athwart the sun.

If I were King of Tartary
Trumpeters every day
To every meal should summon me.
And in my courtyard bray;
And in the evening lamps would shine
Yellow as honey, red as wine;
While harp and flute and mandolin
Made music sweet and gay.

If I were King of Tartary
I'd wear a robe of beads,
White, and gold, and green they'd be—
And clustered thick as seeds;
And ere should wane the morning-star,
I'd don my robe and scimitar,
And zebras seven should draw my car
Through Tartary's dark glades.

Lord of the fruits of Tartary,
Her rivers silver pale;
Lord of the hills of Tartary,
Glen, thicket, wood and dale!
Her flashing stars, her scented breeze,
Her trembling lakes, like foamless seas;
Her bird-delighting citron trees
In every purple vale!

(Walter de la Mare).

FEW PETERBOROUGH boys really envy the position of little 6-year-old King Michael of Rumania. Most of them nevertheless have very decided opinions as to what they would do, were Fortune or Fate suddenly to raise them to the lofty pedestal of Chief Magistrate of their country.

Milne and De la Mare with clear insight into the mind of boyhood have expressed childish longings in verse that never fails to charm.

Boy Kings of History.

The boy king at one time a common phenomenon has been unknown in British history for the past 300 years. The last minor to be placed in the exalted position was James the Sixth of Scotland who was formally crowned king, after the abdiction of his mother when he was only a few months old. The last boy King of England was Edward VI, who died when he was sixteen years of age. Much of the internal disorders which afflicted Scotland during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are attributable to the rivalries of warring factions to obtain custody of the juvenile kings of the Stuart line. Five kings from James I to James V followed their predecessors on the throne as minors, Mary Queen of Scots was only a few days old when her broken hearted father died and the reign commenced which passed through so many tragic and dramatic episodes on the way to the headsman's block at Fotheringly Castle.

Prestige Decayed.

Today, kingship has lost much of its glamor. Except in Britain, where only at rare brief intervals in its long chequered history was the king "able to do just what he pleased" and where he is today stripped of every vestige of executive authority, and in Belgium where a modern reincarnation of the medieval warrior kings, by his invincible heroic and knightly faith shed lustre on his office, the sovereigns of Europe today fully realize the truth of the old proverb "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

Two main reasons may be assigned for the decline of royal prestige in recent years. One is to be found in the progress of modern democracy which has made kingship, other than that based on the model of British constitutional monarchy an intolerable anacharism. The other is the pusillanimous conduct of some many royal personages during and since the Great War. From 1914 till 1918, a former king, youthful, physically and mentally fit driven from a throne which he had made no personal effort to regain, lived in ignoble ease and safety, with a wrist sprained during a tennis game as his only physical injury in four years, while the country that gave him asylum and succor, Great Britain was fighting a death struggle and while his own native land, Portugal, was raising levies to help to meet the challenge thrown down to the rest of Europe by Germany. Fifty men of mature age, members of Imperial and State royal families, Germany and Austria were expelled by the countries ruined by their folly and arrogance. Not one of the number has risked a little finger to reinstate himself in power; not a solitary individual among them has proved himself capable of carving a career from out of adversity; the sole contribution of the chief actor, the ex-Kaiser, to the cause has been the writing of a dull book which convinces nobody; and all have shown a family resemblance in their sordid eagerness to fill their pockets from the depleted treasuries of the nations whom they tricked and impoverished.

Perhaps because of these circumstances Peterborough boys, probably absorbing some of the sentiments of their parents, have refused to become thrilled in the manner of boys of quarter of a century ago at the spectacle of King Michael of Rumania a lad of their own age occupying first rank in his country.

Never Heard of Michael.

Hymie Smith, of Central School had never heard of King Michael, and did not know there was anywhere a boy of his own age who wore a real crown of gold. At first he could hardly fancy himself at all in the resplendent position of the young Rumanian, but on further reflection he decided emphatically that if he were king there would be no schooldays for him. And he would buy candies—lots and lots of them.

Fond of School?

Gordon Leigh and Ken McWilliams were both seated on the German howitzer in Confederation Park

IF I WERE KING

I often wish I were a King
And then I could do anything.

If only I were King of Spain
I'd take my hat off in the rain.

If only I were King of France
I wouldn't brush my hair for aunts.

I think, if I were King of Greece
I'd push things off the mantelpiece.

If I were King of Norroway
I'd ask an elephant to stay.

If I were King of Babylon
I'd leave my button gloves undone.

If I were King of Timbuctoo
I'd think of lovely things to do.

If I were King of Anything
I'd tell the soldiers, "I'm the King!"

Klan Records Are Seized By Police

LUVERNE, Ala., Oct. 15. — (Canadian Press). —Records and paraphernalia of the Luverne Klanern of the Ku Klux Klan were seized in raids by state officers late yesterday at the home and office of Ira B. Thompson, repute Cyclops of the local klan unit.

The records were taken to the hotel room of Attorney General Charlie C. McCall. Neither McCall nor Thompson would make a statement regarding the raids.

The raids are believed to have been resorted to on refusal of alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan to testify regarding membership in the organization.

FORM YOUNG TORY CLUB

Formation Decided On During Meeting of Younger Element of Delegates.

APPOINT OFFICERS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Among the first fruits of the Conservative convention, held here this week, is the announcement of the formation of the Young Conservative Association of Canada.

Errick F. Willis, of Winnipeg, and Conservative candidate in the Souris constituency at the last general election, has been appointed president of the provisional executive, with S. T. Bigelow, of Edmonton, vice-president, and Wildred G. Mason, of Toronto, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Willis said last night that the formation of the Association had been decided on during meeting of the younger element among the Conservative delegates to the convention, and had coincided with the last plank in the Conservative platform which urged the formation of Macdonald-Cartier Clubs and other societies of young Conservative men and women.

Coast to coast organization is now being planned, Mr. Willis said, and it is proposed to have an interchange of speakers between the different centres of the Dominion. The nucleus of the Association, he said, was found in the clubs at present in existence at the University of Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Hamilton and Hull, as well as many country points.

By these means, Mr. Willis concluded, it was hoped to consolidate the opinions and organizations of young Conservatives in the national interest, and by a steady interchange of views to broaden the basis of the party in the country and to widen the viewpoint of the younger generation on all matters of public policy.

FINAL PROGRAM FOR FAIR WEEK

Pageant Will Be Presented Twice at Armories This Evening.

The grand stand performance for to-night, the concluding session of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition at the Armories, will be as interesting as the many provided there this week, when the hall, with a seating capacity of two hundred people, has been taxed to capacity for both performances each night, with many turned away on several occasions.

To-night, commencing at seven o'clock sharp, and at nine o'clock, the interesting Pageant brought from the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and entitled "Arriving of New Canadians," presented entirely by children of foreign parentage, in music, song and dance, will be presented twice, there will be Spanish and Hawaiian dances by Senorita Provita Vasquez, a Fashion Parade from the show rooms of the Canadian Departmenial Stores, Limited, and a Step Dancing Contest. The decision of the judges in the one-act play competition will also be given to-night.

ENGINEER KILLED.

Loses Life When Train Hits Break in Track at Washout.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 15 —(Canadian Press)— Engineer John Goatbe, 37, was instantly killed and fireman A. G. McLeod had a narrow escape from death when the Algoma Central Railway north bound freight train from the Soo ran into a washout near mile 94 early to-day. Goatbe stuck to the train until it reached the missing trackage but fireman jumped. It is expected that the engineer's body will be recovered from under the engine in time to bring it to the Soo to-night.

SUPERINTENDENT OF HOME CHARGED IN POLICE COURT WITH ASSAULT ON WOMAN

John Mayes Declines To Plead and Will Be Tried Next Week.

MAKES STATEMENT.

Says His Action Was Warranted By Behaviour of Mrs. Calberry.

John Mayes, superintendent of the County House of Refuge, appeared in police court this morning, charged with assaulting Sabina Calberry, an inmate of that home, on Sunday, October 9. The defendant, through his lawyer, J. A. O'Brien, declined to plead and date of trial was set for Thursday, October 20, at 2.30 p.m., in the Court House, Peterborough. The accused was released on $1,000 bail.

Mr. Mayes volunteered a statement to The Examiner, in which he acknowledged striking the plaintiff but he said she was threatening to strike him. "This kind of thing has been going on for a month or more and it was not until Sunday that I took a hand to deal with her," he said. The complainant was admitted to the House of Refuge in 1911 from the township of Dummer, and reports say she has been very unruly at times.

High County Constable Pearson arrested Mr. Mayes this morning.

Resignation Demanded.

The Board of Management of the House of Refuge, which is composed of James Hawthorne ,Reeve of Dummer as chairman, Warden J. J. Middleton, jr., Reeve of Smith, and John Scott, Reeve of Asphodel ,at its meeting this morning at the House of Refuge demanded the resignation of John Mayes, the superintendent and insisted on his immediately retirement from the position to take effect this afternoon. His effects are being moved out to-day.

Reports that all the other help at the House of Refuge would resign in sympathy with the discharged superintendent are branded as false by the Board of Management. At present, a new superintendent has not been appointed but the help promised the Board that they would carry on until an appointment was made.

No official action has been taken in regards to the complaints made by Mr. Hayes in regards to Mrs Calberry. County Clerk Elliott denied the report that Mrs. Calberry had been lodged in the County Jail and said that no action whatever has been taken by the Board regarding Mrs. Calberry.

Petition Dominion For Higher Salaries

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 15. — (Canadian Press). — Declaring there is no branch of government services where the employees are subpected to such hardships and so poorly paid, the Rural Mail Contractors' Association of Canada will shortly petition the Dominion Government for many changes in the system of remuneration and conditions of service. Garfield Mackinnon, of Guelph, Ont., secretary and general agent of the association, and T. N. Phelan, K. C., of Toronto, are preparing the case for submission to the government.

"There is no other part of the government service in Canada where men are employed under contract, and where the positions are publicly tendered for, and at such scandalously low income," says the petition.

FAIR PATRONAGE CONTINUES GOOD

Nearly 3,300 People Visit Exhibition at Armories Yesterday.

PAGEANT FEATURE.

There was a fine attendance yesterday at the Exhibition in the Armories. Thirty-two hundred and ninety-one people patronized the big show during the afternoon and evening, and the various amusement centres were going full tilt all evening, with crowds for the dance hall, which was in operation in Recreation Room after the musical concert was over, for the shooting gallery and bowling alleys downstairs, for the hot supper served by the ladies in the Lecture Room leading from the upper eastern balcony, for the bingo and dart games downstairs, the various exhibits in the booths and the demonstrations going on in many of them, and for two programmes provided in the Recreation Room and the room where the Grand Stand Performance is given The Musical Concert, for which the prize-winners in the Music Contest put on this week under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club, provided the programme, had a large attendance, and the two shows in the auditorium had overflow crowds for both events, many being turned away.

Excellent music during afternoon and evening again provided by the Orchestra from St. Peter's High School and the Band of the Peterborough Rangers. The "Melody Kings" Orchestra provide nightly music for dancing in the Recreation Room.

The programme given in the Grand Stand performance last night was especially good, and included a presentation of the Pageant, "Arriving of New Canadians," from the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, also the fifth one-act play in the contest, entitled "Box and Cox," and given by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church, a dance by Senorita Provita Vasquez and a Fashion Show presented by Barrie's, Limited. The "Melody Kings" orchestra provided instrumental accompaniments last night for the dance and the fashion parade, also playing in intermissions.

The one-act play, "Box and Cox," was very creditably presented by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's church, and was directed by those taking part, a trio composed of Miss Queenie Hope, as "Mrs. Bouncer," Mr. Cecil Hope as Cox, the hatter, and Mr. Jack Pritchard, as Box, the printer.

The notable event of the evening was the Pageant, "Arriving of New Canadians," an offering distinctly novel and very entertaining, with some twenty-five members. The outstanding feature of this Pageant, that makes it very noteworthy, is the fact that it is presented to the public by new Canadians, the children of immigrants from the Old Land who came to the Dominion of Canada in recent years, and whose offspring are now giving the older Canadians a glimpse of the music and costumes of their own native lands. They are Canadians, these children of people who became fused in the melting pot of a strange land, but they have distinctive characteristics of their own nations, and it is extremely interesting to watch them The eldest is nineteen years of age, a young girl, Betty Kniseley, one of the few members of the Pageant who is of real Canadian ancestry and represents "Miss Canada," and the youngest is nine years of age, the cunning little "Hulda from Holland" (Ada Payne), who does a Dutch song and dance

SPRINKLERS STOP FIRE IN BASEMENT

A small fire started in the basement of The Examiner Office about 6.30 this morning, near the news boys' entrance, and it is supposed a cigarette stub thrown by one of the boys may have been smouldering for some time and caused the fire. The heat was sufficient to cause one of the sprinkler heads to open and extinguish the fire with about $50.0 loss.

It more than proved the efficacy of the Grinnell Sprinkler System installed not long ago by this company.

The baker in Mr. Potvin's bakeshop heard the bell ringing and he immediately called the fire station, reporting fire in the store of William Lech and Sons. Fire Chief Gimblett called the entire force out for he knew it was The Examiner plant as the Lech sprinkler system is connected with the fire hall.

NELSON, B.C., Oct. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— A straight fight between Liberal and Conservative candidates will be decided at the polls Monday in a by-election to fill the vacancy in the Legislature created by the death of Premier John Oliver.

When nominations closed at noon to-day the only names placed before the returning officer were those of Mayor Thomas A. Macdonald, Liberal candidate and Dr. Louis Borden, Conservative.

CARS COLLIDE; DAMAGE SLIGHT

One Automobile Is Turned Over at Corner Accident.

BRAKES ALL RIGHT.

A car driven by George Ward of North Monaghan and one of the Canadian Packing Company's trucks collided at the corner of Simcoe and Stewart Streets this morning. In the car with Mr. Ward was his daughter, who at first was thought to have a bone in one leg broken, but on examination by Dr. Wood, the leg was found to be only bruised. The light car was turned over on its side and one front wheel was broken. The truck had one fender bent.

Mr. Ward was driving east on Simcoe Street, and the truck was coming north on Stewart Street. Mr. Ward claims he did not see the truck until he was on the intersection, and then he tried to turn north to avoid an accident. The two collided right in the centre of the intersection.

Constable Puffer viewed the accident and tested the brakes of the truck, which he found to be in first-class condition.

THE WEATHER

There was a decided frost last night, the thermometer going down to 26 degrees, or six degrees below the freezing point. It is now in order to get on good terms with the local coal and wood dealers, for they are due for the next six months to pocket a goodly share of our hard-earned dollars.—W.P.

OLD PEOPLE IN CITY HOMES ARE HAPPY AND CONTENTED

Protestant Home and House of Providence Give Good Care.

KINDLY TREATMENT.

Fading Days of Aged Citizens Pass in Comfort and Peace.

For those who have reached the "sere leaf" of their days, there is a great deal of comfort in the thought that they will be cared for kindly and thoroughly. At the House of Providence, the old people have little to complain of. Here they dwell in peace and security, unmindful of bitter winds of weather or adversity, with every want, spiritual, physical and mental, provided for.

It is not a luxurious existence, but for many who are within its walls it provides a refuge such as they may never have known. The atmosphere of cleanliness, of calmness and of somewhat ascetic comfort that marks the majority of conventual institutions, reigns here, and leaves a visitor with a feeling that there is little lacking to make these old people both comfortable and happy.

There are seventy-three old people in the House of Providence now, with twenty-eight men and forty-five women. Most of them are very old. There are a dozen or more over eighty years of age, three over ninety, with one old lady lacking only four years of a century of life, and the majority are over seventy years of age.

They sleep in little dormitories that cont in from six to eight beds apiece, and have white walls, painted, as all the walls in the house are, and furnished with white beds that have white coverings and stiff white day slips. On little tables and brackets are the flowers and statues that serve as adornment, and there are sacred pictures on the walls. The floors are finished in hardwood and there is every facility for comfort in the way of heating and lighting, and for security in the fire doors, the water-hose protection and the rows of steps leading to the windows in the sleeping quarters which look out on the fire escapes. From the verandahs is a wonderful panoramic view of the eastern horizon. There is a large kitchen garden at the rear, where many of the old men help with the vegetables, a variety of which are grown, and where this season has already yielded sixty-five bags of potatoes, besides those used all summer. Two fine apple trees are in full fruitage now. A flower garden is also cultivated.

The old men have their sleeping and dining rooms on the lower floor, with several of them sleeping in dormitories in the basement. This is by their own wish, as they feel warmer there, and they are nearer the room which is filled with smoke for most hours of the day, where they lounge and talk and read.

Upper rooms are used for the women who have little sitting rooms, where they sew and knit .Trays from the dining rooms are carried to those unable to eat at table, and there are dumb waiters for the service on three upper floors.

Twelve Sisters of the Order of St Joseph have charge of the various floors of the house, with a Superior. Their own rooms are as simple and unpretentious as those devoted to the old people, but there is much comfort in the separate rooms provided for the boarders who pay a certain amount. Twenty of the old people look after themselves in this way, with several others paying for comfortable, extremely cosy rooms, preferring this type of quiet community life to the noisier existence of boarding-homes outside.

One of the old men, a paralytic, is confined to bed at all times, and there are two old ladies quite ill at present. One is ninety-six years old, a bright-eyed woman with thin form under the counterpane She has not been here long and she misses the stove which warmed the little house the country where she lived alone for so many years. She has a heavy cough. Another old lady is eighty-eight years old, and is blind, and has stomach trouble. A friend, a resident of the house, chats with her at odd moments, and they appear to be pleasantly engaged. In the corridors and sitting rooms old ladies sit and talk, or mend stockings and knit woollen things. The rooms are very tidy, with separate wooden lockers provided in wall cupboards for each individual

They have their own chaplain, resident in the house, and their own chapel, too, a room with seating accommodation for seventy-five, comfortable pews and a pure white altar. The windows look out over the splendid countryside, and the room is full of the fresh air which seems to pervade the whole house.

One old lady has lived in the quiet house for twenty years. She is a sheerful elderly woman, with a smile, and grey hair, and the traditional lace collar to a dark dress that one always associates with the picture of an old lady moving on to eternity by peaceful ways.

AT THE PROTESTANT HOME.

On Hilliard Street, overlooking the north ward district and the Otonabee River, is situated the Protestant Home for the old people of the city of Peterborough who find themselves there, in most cases not for any reason on their part but because they are friendless and homeless and have not been blessed to the same degree with the riches of this world as their fellow citizens have.

They have all labored through the heat of the day and there they have gone in the fading years of their life to find comfort, food, rest and careful and attentive treatment.

The present home was built in the years 1911 and 1912, and on April 30 it was dedicated to the old of this city and those of the succeeding years who might need a place of comfort to spend their last days on this earth.

The late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls in her will left $20,000 towards the building of a home for the old. This money was well invested by a group of local citizens who had the care of the old at heart, and in the time before the home was built there was added a considerable sum to the principal.

The building, facing Anson Street to the south, is three storey of solid brick construction, with one front and two rear verandas. The two in the rear are used as sun porches for the old people, one being for the women and the other for the men. In the basement there is ample room for the storage of trunks and the necessities of life. There are also several toilet rooms. The central space of the main floor is occupied with a handsome board room. On the west of this room is the men's sitting-room, where they can entertain visitors. On this side there are also three bedrooms and the men's dining-room. On the east side of the house the same provision is made for the women, and also there is the superintendent's bedroom. The second floor is divided into two parts, one for the men and the other for the women. The part for the men is divided into two wards, and in the three wards there are many single bedrooms. On the men's sleeping side is found a bedroom for the superintendent of the men. Sleeping quarters take up most of the space on the third floor.

The house has accommodation for 50, and at present it is filled to near its capacity.

The women and the men at this home are kept separate except when they all unite for prayers every morning. There is everything in the Home that will make for the comfort and the happiness of the old people

The inmates of the Home are divided into two classes, those that pay their way or part of it and those

ROSENEATH FAIR ATTENDANCE AND EXHIBITS BREAK RECORDS

Five Thousand People Attend Final Exhibition of District.

FINE PRODUCE SHOWN.

Horse Races, Driving Contests, and Midway Prove Great Attractions.

ROSENEATH ,Oct. 15. — The fine Italian hand of Fate which has so cruelly depressed the spirits of the neighboring agricultural societies, yesterday waved away the rain which spells disaster to rural fairs, and the sun shone brightly all during the day ,which will be remembered by the citizens of the village as the greatest fair day in the history of the society. Upwards of five thousand people paid admission at the gates. The grounds were packed with merry makers and attractions of every conceivable variety from a baby show to pulling contests for heavy draught horses.

The event may be favorably compared to the grand finale of a stupendous drama. In the district there are 30 fairs listed to take place each autumn. Roseneath is number 29 in the series. Since the last one on the list is far distant from the Roseneath district it may be almost entirely disregarded. Roseneath is the place where exhibitors throng to capture the final prizes of the year. Pleasure seekers come in crowds to enjoy the final and one of the best exhibitions of the season. Amusement associations of every calibre set up their stands for the last time before putting them in winter storage. Everyone seems determined to make the best possible use of the time for the few hours that the fair is in full swing.

And with the exceptionally fine weather yesterday Roseneath fair established a record both for attendance and number of exhibits. Every enclosure in the stock pens was occupied and the exhibition hall housing the domestic craft exhibits and others of perishable nature was literally crammed full. The racing stables were not able to accommodate the number of fast horses which entered the various events and four of them were forced to find other quarters. Music by the Northumberland Regimental Band of Campbellford did its full share to keep things lively and many complimentary remarks were heard regarding their musical ability.

Horse Racing

The officials in charge of the head line attraction had little difficulty in handling the horses. There was practically no 'jockeying' and in the complete program hardly one false start was made. The officials in the stand were George Caldwell of Port Hope, starter ; H. Davis of Cobourg and I. Walters of Port Hope, judges; Richard Elmhurst, Keene, and Chas. Moyse, Port Hope, kept official record of the time for each heat, while Peter Brahaney, Roseneath, acted as secretary. Twice around the track is three quarters of a mile. The times for the events may be calculated for the mile. Those shown are for the three-quarters:

In the two-forty class, Down Bell won first money with three firsts. Silent Todd Jr. collected the second purse with a 2-2-3 score, while Hal Direct romped home in third place with a score, 3-3-2. Eva Patch scored three fours, and the time was 2.00, 2.00, 2.02 for the three-quarters.

Hal. E. captured the honors in the 2.22 class with three firsts. Thora Patch was next in line with 3-2-2, and the third to come under the wire was Della J with 2-3-3. Alta Silk and Butcher Girl also ran and finished fourth and fifth respectively. The time for the three heats was 2.00, 2.00 and 1.58½.

The classified race seemed to be pretty much the same thing for all three heats with the exception of the final, when one horse failed to start. The times for the heats were 1.59, 1.58 and 1.57½. The scores were: Final Direct, 1-1-1; Alfred Elk, 2-2-2; Jim Todd, 3-3-3; Eleanor May, 4-4-4, and The Limit, 5-5. This horse failed to start in the third and final heat.

The story of the free-for-all is much the same as that of the classified event. Jack Abbey, a Peterboro horse, won three firsts. Armadale got three seconds, and Minnie Patch took third place in each of the three heats. According to the judges, Fred Patch did not start. This was on account of some accident on the road. During the first heat of this event Louis Bennet of Port Hope, a driver, was unseated and dragged for some distance. It is not understood just how the accident happened, but Mr. Bennet clung to the reins and managed to stop his horse when just rounding the turn to come down the stretch. Miraculous as it may appear, he was not injured. In a very few minutes he was again in his seat and driving quite as though nothing un-

Shoeless Wonders Win First Match

LYNCHBURG, W. Va., Oct. 15 (United Press).—The "Shoeless Wonders" football team of the Presbyterian Orphanage here bids fair to equal its defeatless season of 1923.

In the opening game the barefoot team defeated Virginia Episcopal 19 to 0, the feature being a zig-zag run by George Branham, 15-year-old full back, which netted 60 yards to the goal line.

To accomplish the distance Branham dug his toes in about 120 yards of wet sod. The only shoe worn by the team during play is that used by Blair Watts, 17-year-old quarter back, for kicking. He discards the shoe as soon as the kick is off and sometimes in the heat of the battle does not wear it even when punting.

WAR MEMORIAL SITE IMPROVED

Cement Walk Has Been Built and Space Arranged For Flowers.

TO BE BEAUTY SPOT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Considerable improvement has been made to the immediate surroundings of the Campbellford War Memorial. A cement walk has been built from the street edge to the memorial structure and provision has been made for a good sized flower bed all around the column. Situated as it is on one of the main streets of the town and directly in front of the town wharf where it is noticed by every passing tourist, either by road or river, it is certain that the improvements will be greatly appreciated and will make the memorial one of the beauty spots of the district. From the time of its erection, the necessity for some such finishing touch has been keenly felt by many of the citizens. The local branch of the Canadian Legion is particularly pleased with the work.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 15.—Good export buying and further interruption of threshing operations in Western Canada gave prices a further upward thrust on the Winnipeg grain exchange yesterday. The closing gains ranged from 7-8 to 1½c. Wheat started on the upgrade with the opening gong and remained buoyant throughout the session.

All the coarse grain commodities reflected moderate strength. Flax receded fractionally.

JUNKERS PLANE MAKES LANDING PORT OF HORTA

Completes 900 Mile Hop From Portugal to the Azores.

GIVEN WELCOME.

Pilots Study Weather Charts To Decide Course Across Atlantic.

EMDEN, Germany, Oct. 15. --(AP) —The crew of the Junker's plane D-1230 and their passenger, Lilli Dillenz, Viennese actress who arrived at Harta, the Azores yesterday completing a 900 mile hop from Lisbon, Portugal, as highly elated over the successful performance of the plane, in a private dispatch from Horta.

The dispatch states that the D-1230 made a spectacular landing and was loudly cheered by a crowd that had long been awaiting its arrival. The plane approached noiselessly from Pico, the Azores, which indicated that Ralph Stavet, its chief pilot, had throttled down the motor. The plane made a graceful loop over the harbour and then landed on a comparatively small area inside the mail.

The sirens of all the ships in port whistled a welcome. Frederich Loose was in charge of the plane when the landing, which took less than three minutes was made. The crew and their actress passenger after expressing their elation over the successful flight, sat down to dinner.

The pilots will study the weather charts today and then decide whether to take off for Bermuda or Newfoundland. Lulli-Dillenz intends to fly the entire route with them.

Attack Atlantic.

PARIS, Oct. 15. — (AP). — French fliers fighting pluckily against the ill-luck that has pursued them since Nungesser and Coli disappeared again yesterday attacked the Atlantic ocean by air.

Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, after making a splendid flight from here to St. Louis, Senegal, where their plane barely escaped destruction from a tornado, took off in the Nungesser-Coli from St. Louis early yesterday morning continuing their flight to Bueons Aires.

Louis Brequet, constructor of their plane, is confident that the plucky pilots will make the second leg of their journey successfully. He thinks they ought to be heard from in the region of Natal, Brazil, between midnight and one o'clock this morning.

Costes and Lebrix are not out to astonish anybody but are simply making a useful experiment in connection with air communication between France and South America, which, it is expected will soon become practical. M. Brequet said. It is hoped to establish a regular air mail line between France and Brazil first with the aid of dispatch boats, eventually solely by air.

Start To-day.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 15. — (A.P.)—The party which has waited on the Sikorsky plane, the Dawn, through days and weeks, last night took on a livelier spirit with the almost certainty that Mrs. Frances W. Grayson and her companions would hop off this morning for Europe. As though to change the atmosphere engendered by wearisome postponements, the group of 40 who monopolized the Hotel Brunswick last night made merry at a farewell dinner.

It was the idea of Mrs. Grayson who has been most eager of the fliers. In the course of the celebration she presented each newspaper man and the guests with an autographed photograph, taken yesterday in Portland, while groups of news writers and camera men presented skits to remove all thoughts of today's ordeal.

Weather Promising

The weather reports of the evening were promising, according to Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Navigator Brice Goldsborough. Unless a disturbance develops on the trans-Atlantic route before morning they were confident that at last they would be on their way.

The criticism of the Belfast, Ireland, editor who decried distance flights by women and recommended that Mrs. Grayson's relatives take her home, was received with a scoffing laugh by the Long Island realtor.

"If we women had listened to the old cry of 'women should stay at home,' would you good Irishmen be any better off?" she asked with a smile.

"If the good Lord had appointed him to prophecy success or failure for one woman, or two, or for all women, and if he can show me his credentials, I will in turn feel that he has been blessed with a greater power than I and will humbly take cognizance of it. But until that, I feel that my understanding of conditions in general and my own programme in particular are better to be left to my own decision."

MEXICAN WINS ORATORY CONTEST

Young National University Student Wins Second International Contest.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. —(Canadian Press). — Arturo Garcia-Fermenti, 19 year old student of the National University of Mexico, last night won the second international oratorical contest.

George Guiot-Guillain of France was second, and Frederick P. Hotson of Canada was third.

One girl and four boys sent by their respective countries as representatives student orators, delivered ten minute speeches in the Washington auditorium before eight thousand people.

Henry Getty Chilton ,counsellor to the British embassy, presided over the meeting in the absence of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador who was prevented by a cold from taking the chair. Main Johnson, of Toronto, Canadian secretary of the foundation which featured the contest, announced the winner when final ballots had been counted and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur presented a silver trophy symbolic of the world's championship in high school oratory.

The judges were:

Dr. Guillermo Rivera, professor of Spanish at Harvard University; Dr. Richard Frederick Antoine Miller, Belgian engineer and lecturer; Dr. Richard Henry Milson, head of the department of romance languages at the University of Virginia; Herman G. VanRoyen, minister of the Netherlands in the United States and Dr Glen L. Swiggett, lecturer in the foreign service school of Georgetown University.

DEBILITY DUE TO INDIGESTION

Perfect Digestion Comes Through Rich, Red Blood.

There can be no perfect digestion unless you have rich, red blood. This is scientifically true. It is also true that there is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every other part of the body. The way, then, to tone up the stomach is to tone up the blood.

The many so-called stomach remedies merely try to digest your food for you. How much better it is to tone up the stomach so that it will do its own work as nature intended. There is no pleasure in eating predigested food. Tone up your stomach and your appetite and digestion will soon be normal.

If your digestion is weak and your blood thin you need the help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to enrich the blood and restore strength. In addition use care in the selection of your food and your stomach trouble will soon pass away. Mr. Gordon Dundas, Peterboro, Ont., tells as follows what this medicine did for him. He says: "Something over a year ago I was a gasoline salesman when I was taken sick. I felt very miserable and lost twelve pounds in weight. I did not sleep well and could not eat as I could scarcely retain anything in my stomach. I went to a local doctor who told me the fumes of the gas had got into my system. He gave me some medicine and told me I had better go to the country for a change of air. I did so, but I still felt listless and groggy, and had no ambition. On the advice of a friend I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not been taking the pills long before I was beginning to rest better, and to eat fairly well. I kept on taking the pills until at the end of the seventh box I knew I did not need any more, as I had gained the weight I had lost, slept well and could eat anything. I have since had splendid health and cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BLACK SKIRTS IN ITALY.

ROME, Oct. 15.—Purely from industrial principles, Italy is trying to restore the longer skirt and the petticoat. Knee-length skirts with scarcely any underthings are threatening to wreck Italy's silk-making industry. Now the Minister of National Economy is seeking to popularize a uniform of long, black skirt, petticoat and substantial undergarments. They should be liberally pleated, he says, to use a large amount of material.

GRANT REBATE WOOL SHIPPERS

Freight Rates War Between Steamship Lines Carries Step Farther.

15 P.C. REDUCTION.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Oct. 15.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's.)— The freight rates war between the Conference Lines and the British and Continental, South African Line, was carried a step further by the aanouncement of the former that they are prepared to grant wool shippers a rebate of 15 per cent. on the present rates, provided the Conference Line steamers are used exclusively.

This announcement has produced consternation in trading circles here. Sir Robert Thomas, who is head of the British and Continental South African line and who is expected at Port Elizabeth, has sent a wireless message from sea to the effect that he is prepared to quote freight rates as low as the Conference Line regardless of how low the latter reduce them. He also expresses the opinion that the rebate is illegal and he intimates the intention of seeking legal opinion in the matter.

The freight rates war dates back to the end of last April, when the Line headed by Sir Robert Thomas, distributed circulars amongst the South African shippers offering them freight rates slightly under those of the Conference Lines for monthly sailings from Newport and Antwerp and it was announced that they had received the support of the leading South African shippers.

The Conference Lines replied by announcing material reductions in freight rates, notably in commodities likely to be exported by opposition shippers.

LABOR CONGRESS ENDS CONFERENCE

Favor Active Participation In National Political Campaign of 1928.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15. — (A.P.) —Organized labour closed its annual congress here yesterday with a determination to participate actively, but not as a party in the National political campaign of 1928.

The final admonition of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in bringing the forty seventh annual convention to an end, was that each member do his share in the big political gestures next year.

The labor executive declared the outstanding development at the convention was the re-entry into the buliding trades department fold of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. This was effected in a pre-convention conference after the carpenters and joiners had stood apart from the building trades unit for more than six years as a result of jurisdictional dispute.

During its ten days of sessions, the convention declared against Communism and Fascism, favored modification of the Volstead Act to permit sale of "wholesome beer"; condemned the equity court in issuing injunctions in labour disputes and took action on numerous measures concerning immigration and other problems construed to be relative to the problems of trade unions.

RESOLUTION TO BAR FACTIONS PASSES UNION

Vote of 532 To 217 Will Result in Expulsion of Shields.

HECTIC SESSIONS.

Minister Questions Scripture Authority For Having Legislation Enacted.

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (Canadian Press).—Early this afternoon the Convention of the Baptist Union of Ontario and Quebec, by a vote of 532 to 217, adopted a resolution which will result in exclusion of Jarvis Street Baptist Church, Toronto, headed by Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, and other Baptist churches in various parts of the province, from the Baptist Union. The total vote was 749.

This action by the convention followed a long and bitter argument which was continued this morning from yesterday. For some days police have been stationed in and about the convention building at the request of some of the delegates. The action was foreshadowed on Wednesday last when the delegates endorsed the Parliamentary Bill giving them power to exclude non-co-operating churches. The Baptist Union of Ontario and Quebec has been disrupted for some years in a dispute between Modernists and Fundamentalists. Dr Shields is leader of the latter section.

The resolution to exclude the followers of the Jarvis Street pastor was moved by Rev. W. C. Smalley, Ottawa, who read a number of extracts from The Gospel Witness, edited by Rev. Dr. Shields. "I have no fear, my fear is for this convention," declared Rev. J. Macaulay of Quebec at the outset of the discussion on the motion. "This convention is on the point of facing the greatest tragedy in the history of Baptist issues."

His plea for a conciliatory attitude was met with cries of, "No, No" from many in the audience.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Boyd of Toronto spoke of his admiration for Dr. Shields as a thinker and preacher, but refused to be stamped as "a Shieldite." His church stood foursquare on the Word of God. He stated that some of the delegates had in his humble opinion, been more particular about Parliamentary procedure than about the Word of God. There has been considerable discussion in the convention as to the question of procedure.

"Dare any many among us say this legislation is not a violation of the Scriptures," Dr. Boyd asked. This was followed by a roar of disapproval.

Eager to Meet its Comrades —comes the Wolverine Sedan

Far and wide the Wolverines of the roads have gone. Strongest of their size, able and willing to conquer any conditions of highway or traffic, they have lived up to the reputation of that fearless master of the woods, the wolverine, for whom they are named.

Eager to take its place beside the other Wolverines of the roads, comes the new Wolverine Sedan, low and long . . . a roomy, brawny, comfortable four-door sedan for those who want Wolverine performance plus a sedan body.

Look one over and try one out. Feel for yourself its sweeping flow of power, the soft and certain action of its Velvet Stop brakes. Use its easily handled controls, pit it against time or grades, hold it at a fast pace for hour after hour. Then you'll find that, at a moderate price, you've found the kind of car you'll like to own.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

LEAP YEAR! Why should any woman have to wait for any man in the matter of matrimony? In religious matters she is almost always well ahead of him. Indeed, if men were as numerous and as aggressive within the church as women are, it would be better for the church and mankind in general. Apart from the results accomplished by preaching, more women have led men than men have led women into the most sacred relationship known to men or angels. That is the relationship which is established when the soul becomes vitally related to Jesus Christ. Yet, strange. to say, few men, if any, seem to think that is not as it ought to be.

IF WOMEN PROPOSED.

In matrimonial matters it seems to be taken for granted by most people that it is the man's prerogative, and his only, to propose, except when leap year comes round on the calendar of time. Then the woman may, if she likes, propose and be quite proper and within her rights in doing so. Whether she does really propose then or at any other time, I don't know. I have heard rumors which I don't care to repeat.

It would be hard to convince me that if women were permitted to propose matrimony to men there wouldn't be more marriages made in heaven than at present seems to be the case.

If a woman goes unwed beyond a certain period in life she is called "old maid," and a certain measure of pity is meted out to her.

Now, I have noticed that there seems to be something in human nature that rather resents pity. We don't mind sympathy—indeed most of us rather crave it—but it seems to humiliate us when we are made the objects of pity. So, thrown off her balance by the fear that she may be an old maid, the average woman is not so well fitted to be a party to a good match as she otherwise might be.

WHAT A BACHELOR THINKS.

Once-upon-a-time, a well-known bachelor who was also something of a phrenologist, gave some advice to the fair sex with leap year intentions. This advice was intended to help the girls win their hearts' desires without suffering rebuff in the process.

A man who has thin, straight lips, is branded a cold-blooded, stony-hearted creature upon whom the dearest girl's appeal would have no effect. He is the sort of man who will do his own proposing, run his own wedding and rule his own household; and he'll do it more with his head than his heart. But if the man of your choice has full, well-formed lips, this bachelor phrenologist says you may depend upon his capacity and inclination to love. He also is susceptible to the right sort of feminine approach.

WHEN IN LOVE.

This same authority says the way to tell whether the one you love loves you, is by the coloring of the under lip when he is with you. Every human emotion gives some physical demonstration when it is aroused. The evidence that love has been aroused is given by the deep crimsoning of the under lip. If his under lip is perpetually pale when he is with you, he doesn't love you. If it is crimson and you want him, grab him quick; he won't run. A man with a broad, square, massive forehead is a good business man; he will plan ahead; has good business judgment. If the crown of his head is high and round, he is absolutely conscientious, too; and if the back of his head is well rounded out, he will love his home, his wife and his children, and show them consideration above everything else in the world. The man whose head is flat on top, flat and almost even with his ears in the back, and narrow and foreshortened on the front, whose lips are thin, whose eyes are cold, will not make a good husband in any sense of the word, says this bachelor phrenologist.

WHEN GETTING MARRIED.

Now that you have the advice of our friend who has never been married himself I may be permitted to add, as a famous New York maestro says over the radio when announcing a number by his dance orchestra, "I hope you'll like it."

If you will get married, don't propose to a man who has thin lips. The chances are that he will scorn you. Of course, it will always be true that there are exceptions to every rule. You may be fortunate enough to strike the exception and be quite happy in spite of his thin lips!

Don't propose to a man whose head runs straight up from the back of his neck. He loves neither home nor wife. And, of course, you propose in order to become a wife; and to become a wife you must have a husband; but what's the use of being a wife and having a husband if you haven't a home? It takes more than furniture and a house to make a home. When you propose, fair lady, see that you propose to a man who will be phrenologically capable of loving both home and wife.

Don't propose to a man with a supercritical eye. He'll make you sorry. And what's the use of going out of your way to court trouble and sorrow? You'll have trouble enough on your hands in trying to court the average man. Indeed the average man is not worth courting—he ought to be in jail.

Don't propose to a man who has a restrained, quiet, indifferent manner or a purely selfish disposition. Such a man is better fitted for running a penitentiary than for running a home where there is a woman with a heart that's hungry for love.

IF YOU WILL PROPOSE.

Propose to a man who has full, but not too full, lips. He will love you.

Propose to a man who has a good sized bump at the base of his head. Don't ask him how he got the bump; just take it for granted that it is a natural growth and not there as the result of an accident. He's a good family man and loves his wife and home.

If you fall in love with a man who has a twinkle in his eye, propose to him. You'll get him, too. That twinkle suggests that he can take a joke and enjoy it.

If you love a man who has a frank, open manner, you'll probably get him, too, if you go after him.

If you want a money-maker, get a man whose forehead is broad and square and long. He will bring home the cash every time you need it, and that will probably be all the time.

WHAT'S YOUR AGE?

In all this transparent nonsense, I am taking it for granted that the women, who are willing to throw commonly accepted conventions to the winds, and go after the men, without waiting, till it is too late, for the men to go after them, are all over the legal age.

A young man threatened his wife with death. He is twenty; she is nineteen. He earns $6 a week; so she lives with her mother. There may be ways of feeding and housing two persons on $6 a week, but to do so these days requires a genius for economy and a willingness to put up with anything.

Now the youth is in jail, so that he is $6 worse off than before. Probably he will not have a wife when he gets out, divorce being the usual outcome of such under-capitalized marriages.

Isn't it odd that some States will license minors to marry, when it will not permit them to vote, hold office, bring suit at law or perform other acts of citizenship involving responsibility.

A boy is given a warrant to marry a girl and father a child before he can cast a ballot for alderman. Yet parenthood and matrimony are far more important to the welfare of society and the solidity of the State than all elections whatsoever.

MAKE MARRIAGE DIFFICULT.

It is high time to make marriage more difficult. There is rather too much romance of a cheap kind and not enough hard sense in courtship under our present standard of living—and everybody seems determined to maintain that standard.

"Safety First" in matrimony is a slogan that the honorable orders of Protarians, Wikanis and Stars of the Yeast ought to both father and mother. There's a service that will tax the strength of wise heads and sympathetic hearts.

Let us begin by laying emphasis on the economic factor, a factor that is too often disregarded. We permit children to act on the assumption that if two persons love each other they will get along somehow, regardless of rent, light, heat, food and raiment.

A man will give his daughter to a callow youth whom he would not trust to add up a column of figures correctly, if the emotion-blinded maiden but declares she loves him.

Before you get married, young folks, make yourselves well acquainted with a song that is sung in many flats, "Love Will Not Pay the Rent."

—Allan Fairbairn.

Playing The Game

SMALL as you may think you are, you are doing your utmost for the world if you are simply living up to the rules of common honesty, being square with everybody, and keeping all kinds of hate out of a mind which has been enlightened through contact with the word of God.

THE GAME OF LIFE.

LIFE becomes, as the stoics more than once tell us, like a play which is acted or a game played with counters. Viewed from the outside, these counters are valueless; but to those engaged in the game their importance is paramount. What really and ultimately matters is that the game shall be played as it should be played. God, the eternal dramatist, has cast you for some part in His drama and hands you the role. It may turn out that you are cast for a triumphant king; it may be for a slave who dies of torture. What does that matter to the good actor? He can play either part; his only business is to accept the role given him and to perform it well.

Churches And Churchmen

Religion Helps.

MANY have the impression that since the pioneering days are over there is now little opportunity for one rising out of obscurity into positions of large trust. But if one will watch the newspapers one will see that such is not the case. Two recent news items indicate that diligence and integrity still have their reward. Years ago, a young laborer, R. C. Dillon, helped spike down the last rail which completed the Belen cut-off of the Santa Fe Railway. Quite recently, as Governor of New Mexico, he drove the golden spike which marked the completion of the Cuba extension railway in Puerco Valley. As a fourteen-year-old lad, Chas. G. Black entered the service of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in 1882 charged with the duty of "putting wire handles in cans." On September 6th he was elected president of the company's newly organized $250,000,000 operating subsidiary. There is still room at the top.

The Church is Human.

DR. A. H. LOWE, of St. Louis, has the following to say about the church: The church is a human institution. She is marked by human deficiencies. She errs. She falls short of her possibilities. She becomes extravagant in her claims. She settles disputes in foreign realms. At times she has distorted the very faith of God.

The church is divine.

She bears the marks of God. Her very imperfections at times are her glory and cannot obliterate her divine powers. The church with all her faults, with all the imperfections that are germane to human touch, has cradled the greatest passions for good. She has engendered the most divine impulses in the hearts of men. She has given birth to the greatest movements throughout history. She has blessed mankind with the conservation of moral and spiritual energies. In her darkest hours, in the moments of greatest apostasy, she did still cling to Christ her Lord.

She is the benefactress of us all.

A Hospital in a Necklace.

DR. GRENFELL says: "I have been discouraged sometimes in the Labrador work by men who would say, 'Why spend money for X-rays, radium and up-to-date hospitals for a few fishermen?' Yet these same men have never queried, 'Why hang the price of a full fledged hospital in pearls around my wife's neck as earlier barbarians did?' Why? Because that is one of the first things that Christ means to me."

Presbyterian Generosity.

A SPLENDID thing has been done by the Hammond Avenue Presbyterian Church, Superior, Wis., when it surprised the minister, Rev. Leslie A. Bechtel, at the close of his eighth year as pastor, by offering him a trip to Europe. No doubt this will prove to be a good investment both for the church and the minister.

He chose England, and entered the Presbyterian College at Cambridge University, Westminster, for the Easter term. During week-ends and for two weeks after the university closed, he made a bicycle tour of the English cathedrals and monasteries, spending some time in the best preserved of the medieval towns. He recently returned from his trip. In addition to making the trip possible, the church also supplied the pulpit for the twelve Sundays the minister was absent.

Sherwood Eddy's Five Principles.

TO live simply and sacrificially avoiding waste and luxury—to share all with my fellow-men. To apply the Golden Rule in all my relationships.

2. To practice brotherhood toward all. To seek justice for every man without distinction of caste or color.

3. To make peace when there is strife; to seek to outlaw war, substituting a positive program of international justice and good-will.

4. To overcome evil with good; to test the evils of the social order by the principle of love. To endeavor to replace them by the constructive building of the new social order, the Kingdom of God on earth.

5. To seek a new discovery of God, which will release within my life new springs of power such as men in the past have experienced when they rediscovered the religion of JeJsus.

The Quaker in the Thames.

SPURGEON was one of the speakers at a meeting held in his Tabernacle on the question of public morals. Paying a high tribute to the courage of the members of the Society of Friends, he related the story of a man who said that he had seen a Quaker swimming in the Thames. "How did you know that he was a Quaker?" asked the listener. "He was swimming against the stream," was the prompt reply. Said Spurgeon, "A Christian never takes the easiest way."

A Great Ministry.

FOR the first time in four months, on his return from his summer vacation, the Rev. Dr. Isaac M. Haldeman, who is 83 years of age, preached last Sunday morning in the First Baptist Church, Broadway and Seventy-ninth street, New York. The sermon marked the beginning of his forty-fourth year as pastor of that church and of his thirty-third year in the edifice on Broadway. After the benediction, virtually the entire congregation, almost 1,000, shook hands with the minister.

Fear Needed.

IN an effort to get away from the stern coldness of the religion of their fathers, Christians have swung the religious pendulum too far in the opposite direction, and are now exalting the mercy of God to the exclusion of righteousness and God's just retribution for man's wrongs, according to Dr. Howard, the well-known Australian preacher who is preaching at present in Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York.

We are living in a day of religious reaction and revolution. We must not, however, forget the old Bible text, which tells that the "fear of the Lord is wisdom and righteousness is true understanding." Through the fear of God and the obedience of His moral law we shall come to a perfect peace and to a truly Christian life.

A Pen Picture

THERE is an old man speaking earnestly to someone, he seems as if pleading for something. He is evidently speaking to no stranger, but to one whom he has known for a long while. As a result of his entreaty he climbs a hill, and when the summit is reached a look of satisfaction and peace comes over his face—but, he is gone! Where is here?

* * *

A very long time has passed by, everyone has died except the one to whom he was speaking, and I see the old man again, and again on the top of a hill. A river flows between the peak on which we saw him first and that where we now behold him. He is not alone. At the foot of the hill I see a noisy crowd, at the summit is a little group, some of whom are conversing upon a subject which appears to be of the deepest interest. What would I not give to hear their words!

The key to last week's Pen Picture of Bible history is 1 Chron. 19:1-4; 20:1-3.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

FRA ROCCO, a Dominican, preached a celebrated penitential sermon on one occasion, when all the audience were in terror, and fell on their knees, showing every sign of contrition. Then he cried, "All who are truly penitent, hold up your hands!" Every man in the vast multitude held up his hand. Then he said, "Holy Archangel Michael, thou who standest with adamantine sword at the judgment-seat of God, cut me off every hand which has been held up hypocritically." Every hand dropped.

A Band of Emigrants

IT is a curious sight, not without deep suggestiveness, to watch a band of emigrants embarking for some distant continent. They have learned a trade and their tools are carefully carried in their hands as they wait upon the landing stage for the steamer which is to take them to the land of their opportunity. To the onlooker it is a graveside, where many tears bear witness to the sorrow of parting. To the travellers it is the delightful travail of their birth into a new country and a new life where they shall have free scope for all the power which has been developed in them.

World Distress! Why?
The Remedy
World conditions are rapidly reaching a crisis. The complete failure of Church and Government to find any solution to the world's problems is precipitating the day of settlement. Statesmen talk and plan; religious leaders preach and plead; politicians scheme; and the profiteers rejoice at the prospect of more gains from armament contracts.

EDUCATION NOT ENOUGH.

The Ontario Highway Safety Committee is appealing to motorists to use care, courtesy and common sense, pointing out that the majority of accidents could thus be prevented.

The Examiner believes that a very large percentage of those who drive cars are courteous and careful, considerate toward others and anxious to do everything within their power to prevent accidents.

It is the other class of driver who apparently believes that no car but his own has no right to be on the highway or street, and that pedestrians should be banned from the road altogether that makes safety first campaigns necessary, and despite the logic and force of the Safety Committee's warnings there is some reason to believe that such drivers can only be effectively dealt with in the Police Court.

The educational campaign now being carried on should, therefore, be accompanied by an energetic drive on the part of municipal and highway officials to deal with those motorists who are consistently careless and reckless in their driving.

Those who habitually violate important traffic regulations cannot be curbed in any other way than through an appearance before the magistrate.

A SPLENDID SUCCESS.

The response made by the people of Peterborough in regard to the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition must be gratifying to the members of the Kiwanis Club under whose auspices this most successful event has been staged.

The advance sale of tickets and the patronage extended throughout the week guarantees the club a very substantial sum with which to carry on its community welfare activities, and the support given by the public can be accepted as an endorsation of the splendid efforts of Kiwanis in the past to make the world a little happier for those to whom fate has not always been too kind.

The Exhibition closes in a blaze of glory tonight, and a large attendance at the closing session will ensure the financial success of the affair beyond a doubt.

Many features are included in tonight's programme that should make a strong appeal even to those who have several times this week visited the Armouries, and there is every reason to hope that the final rally at the 1927 Produced-in-Canada Exhibition will be a memorable one.

A SOUVENIR OF THE CELEBRATION.

In order to provide a suitable and lasting souvenir of what was undoubtedly the most successful community effort in the history of Peterborough, The Examiner has prepared a souvenir booklet of Peterborough's celebration of the Diamond Jubilee.

Such a souvenir should be in keen demand, and should be carefully preserved in the homes of Peterborough's citizens as a record of an outstanding event in the city's annals.

The booklet is a concise but complete recording of the local celebration, illustrated with splendid photographs of every float in the parade, the militia, bands, school children and all others who participated in that wonderful procession, the water sports, the Nicholls' memorial gates—in short, all other features of the great three-day observance of Canada's birthday.

Included is a list of committees, a history of the organization of the celebration, and other pertinent information of the same kind that will make the souvenir booklet most valuable for reference purposes in the years to come.

The edition, issued by The Examiner, is limited to 2,000 copies, so that those who wish to secure a copy of the booklet should make their applications at once, using the coupon appearing daily.

FIVE YEARS FOR A LITTLE WINE.

(From The Hamilton Herald.)

At the Hamilton Fall Assizes John Terry, a man with a family and a good overseas war record, was sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary for five years. His offence was that, in driving a car while he was intoxicated, he ran down and killed a woman.

Terry pleaded that he had only two glasses of wine on that fatal day. Whether or not that is true, the fact remains that he was not in a fit condition to drive a car. For what happened as a result of his condition, he was responsible. His conviction was just, and his punishment not too severe.

But let this be considered: John Terry was in reality no more culpable than is any other man who takes the risk of drinking just before driving a motor car. The man who does that may be quite confident that the liquor he takes will not in the least affect his driving. But that is what Terry thought. Could he have foreseen the terrible effects of those two glasses of wine, we may be sure he would either not have taken them or would not have taken his seat at the wheel. Unfortunately he had too much confidence in his ability to resist the effects of intoxicating drink.

Any man who did what Terry did is liable to meet the fate that Terry has met. And he will have deserved it when it overtakes him. Nobody can safely assume that he is immune from the natural effects of intoxicating liquor in moderate quantities. He may not be conscious of any effect and yet be unfit to drive a car. His judgment may be impaired, his vision dimmed, his mental machinery slowed down so that he cannot think quickly in an emergency. The only safe plan for motor drivers is to abstain completely for some hours before they drive.

A NIGHTMARE FOR UNCLE SAM.

On the authority of none other than Mr. Frederick Bausman, of whom probably no Canadian has heard but who, nevertheless, once sat on the Supreme Court of the State of Washington, we are told in The American Mercury that Great Britain is plotting the political and economic overthrow of the United States—and achieving considerable success! It's a sad, sad tale. These terrible Englishmen, with Machiavellian subtlety, and an astuteness that is perfectly devilish, are acquiring control of American newspapers and public men, they have persuaded the Americans definitely to assume second place as a naval power, and now—to cap the climax—they are conducting "an insidious, dangerous propaganda" to bring about cancellation of the war debt.

Says Mr. Bausman in his article headed "Under Which Flag:"

> "The British possess in this country a large share of our most influential press, our leading bankers, in seaport towns our leading lawyers, and in fashionable circles the bulk of those persons who most influence public opinion and abash opposition."

This astonishing writer credits the English with "silent unflagging vigilance," though "no better on the whole than we are." Their aristocrats are "seedy" and wear "walrus moustaches." But he proclaims Britain "the most powerful country in the world"—which compares oddly with much that we hear and read about the Empire and the United States of America. He says:

> "The war has enormously strengthened the Empire. In point of fact, its rearrangement and apparent dissolution into several dominions has been a most decisive strategic gain from a military point of view. Take the case of Canada. So long as it was wholly subservient to England we might have seized it as a prize of war. Today, should we get into a war with Great Britain, Canada could simply declare herself neutral."

Which is a truly delightful conception of our inter-Empire relationship, possibly of interest to our ultra-nationalists. But Mr. Bausman passes on to the situation in Europe. "Great Britain has for the first time in thirty years a rear absolutely secure." Not a statesman in Europe "would dare to criticize Great Britain or to show any marked approval of anybody who did criticize her." Germany is "the absolute prisoner of Great Britain." The alliance between Britain and Japan "has never been broken, but simply suspended," and "England has only to combine with Japan in order to inflict upon our commerce losses almost incredible." But completion of the naval works at Singapore will permit John Bull "to make his Asiatic dominions an independent foundry of war."

This is the way the former judge works it out:

> "The strategic position of the British Isles, now that the German navy has passed away, is beyond all challenge. . . . As for ourselves, Great Britain can easily attack us, for she has in front of us Halifax, Bermuda and Jamaica, all near our coast. We have no naval stations in Europe and cannot get any. In consequence Great Britain could attack us and we could not attack her. . . . They can blockade us by a line of cruisers from the Hebrides to Brazil. . . . This is the least that would happen to us."

The British "thoroughly dislike Americans." "Since the days of Rome no nation has ever had a more deep-seated contempt for all other races than the English have today." But he admits they are clever. They hire "spiritual bureaucrats" like Dean Inge to write gloomy and depressing pictures of industrial England, so that the United States will feel sorry for the decadent and tax-ridden islanders and cancel the war debt. At the end of the war Britain notified the United States that building of warships must stop, and at the Washington conference "induced us to send to the bottom of the sea more than 200,000 tons of ships." Thus was accomplished, declares Mr. Bausmen, "without the firing of a gun the greatest naval victory since the days of Nelson" and today Britain "is keeping herself in such a position that, in the event of war with us, she could crush us immediately without resorting to invasion."

These inimitable British show their cleverness in the "insidious, dangerous propaganda" which they disseminate. They achieved what Bausman calls the "astounding" feat of electing as president of the American Library Association none other than "one George Locke, of the public library of Toronto, Canada, a gentleman possessing the distinction of having been at the head of the Canadian propaganda department during the war." Shortly afterwards, he goes on, pro-British literature was recommended in reading courses throughout libraries of the United States. It is truly shocking that innocent Americans should be subjected to such pernicious influences. Then there are the Rhodes scholars. They are invited to Oxford "for a British purpose," which we are led to infer is the desire the writer attributes to Cecil Rhodes—"to recover the United States for the British Crown."

Here, at last, we have the spectre which dances before the eyes of this stalwart citizen Bausman. Wheedled by British wiles, seduced by British gold, he fears the Americans will forswear George Washington and all his works and return to the fold of a later George than the one who lost the American colonies. The alternative is found in the constant threat of being blockaded, starved and crushed by the all-powerful British fleet. It all sounds like a nightmare of one of Mr. Hearst's bright young men—it is rather surprising that a magazine of standing is to be found willing to spread abroad in serious style such an amusingly preposterous thesis.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It had to come. A contemporary points out that now that Mr. Bennett is severing his connection with the Eddy company the Conservatives have a matchless leader.

His Majesty King George has requested Canadians to mark the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice by a two-minute silence at 11 o'clock on the morning of November 11. The request should be loyally obeyed.

Fire Prevention Week closes today, but fire prevention itself should be kept in mind the year round.

It is charged against the new Conservative platform that it contains some rubber planks. A little elasticity is perhaps not a bad thing during an election campaign.

So far no fight promoter has booked Messrs. Meighen and Ferguson for a return bout. It would be interesting.

LOCAL HOG MARKETS

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, October 15. — Owing to the improved demand from the United Kingdom and the continent, the export trade in grain here yesterday was active and some fair-sized lots of wheat were sold.

The car lot trade in grain in the domestic market was only of a moderate character but the undertone was firm.

A moderate amount of business was worked with foreign buyers in spring wheat grades of flour, but the local trade was inactive and steady. The winter wheat flour market was more active and prices ruled firm.

Prices for all grades of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats and the trade was fair.

The exports of baled hay from the Port of Montreal for the week ending October 12, 1927, were 34,933 bales. The foreign demand continued good to-day.

The demand for eggs was fair and prices for all grades were unchanged. The receipts were 510 cases.

The potato market was moderately active and the undertone was steady. Sales of car lots of New Brunswick Green Mountains were made at $1.30 to $1.35 per bag; Coblers at $1.20 to $1.25 per bag, and Quebec white stock at $1 to $1.15 per bag.

The butter market was quiet but the undertone was firm and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 1462 packages.

A feature of the cheese trade yesterday was the demand that developed from United States buyers and a moderate amount of business was don. The local and English demand was quiet and prices were easier. The receipts were 10,657 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—Active export demand for wheat with buying of wheat future deliveries against simultaneous selling of corn, lifted wheat values yesterday and broke the corn market. Fresh European purchasing of North American wheat totalled about 1,000,000 bushels, largely domestic spring. All deliveries of corn touched a new low price record for the season.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ⅝ to ¾c net higher, whereas corn finished 1⅞ to 2¼ to 2⅜ down; oats unchanged to ⅜c off, and provisions at 2 to 5 cents decline to 10 cents advance.

Unlooked for upturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool, and persistent adverse weather reports from Canada, as well as likelihood of more reductions in estimates of the yield in Australia, all tended to lift the wheat market from the outset. Talk was current that owing to drought the Australian crop this season would amount to only 100,000,000 bushels, a total of 60,000,000 bushels less than was harvested last year. Meanwhile, word was received that as a result of continued excessive moisture in Canada, country marketings of wheat have decreased 36,000,000 bushels, compared with the same time in 1926. Highest premiums of this year's crop were paid here yesterday for Number 2 red wheat, 5c over December in store . As much as 8c over was bid for similar wheat to arrive, 20 days shipment.

On the other hand predictions were heard that before lake navigation is ended, large receipts of domestic spring wheat would be witnessed in Chicago. Contrasting with these predictions, however, were assertions that only 10 per cent of threshing has yet been done in Alberta.

Heavy selling of corn took place especially in the late dealings. Houses with eastern connections were aggressive on the bear side, and found the market devoid almost of support despite killing frost in parts of Illinois and Iowa. Oats were influenced largely by the action of corn.

Provisions likewise reflected the downward trend of the corn market.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 15. — The cattle market this week has been uniformly steady to firm in all classes. Price quotations have not materially changed from last week, though a few more cattle may have changed hands at top prices, raising the general average a shade higher for the week.

Stockers and feeders have moved out freely at steady to firm prices. Western steers from $7.00 to $7.25, with a few loads of short keep at $7.50. Stocker heifers, from $6.00 to $6.25 tops, and the lower grades from $5.25 to $5.75.

Calves have held strong and from 50c to a dollar higher than last week.

Lambs, choice, have held steady to firm all week, top prices going from 14c to 15c. Choice butcher sheep, 6c to 7c.

In the above connection, it is said that Americans are showing an increasing preference for the Canadian fed bacon hog. This is doubly interesting to the Canadian hog feeder in view of the recent slump in bacon prices in the old country with increasing competition from the Danish and Irish fed bacon imports.

General run of prices as follows:

Choice butcher cows $5.50 to $6.25; $8.25 to $8.75. Heavy beef steers choice, $8.50 to $9. Choice light steers, $8.25 to $8.50 and choice butcher heifers $8 to $8.25.

Baby beeves, firm, choice, $12 to $13.

Common steers and heifers $5 to $5.50.

Choice butcher cows $5.50 to $6.25 medium $4.50 to $5.

Buffs, choice, $4.75 to $5.25; choice butcher $4.50 to $5.

Springers and milkers, quiet and steady prices.

Stockers and feeders active, good quality feeders from $6.75 to $7.25; heifers, $5.50 to $6.75 delivery country points.

Lambs, choice, firm at $11.25 to $11.50, tops, best ewes and wethers.

Hogs, steady. Selects off cars $10.90 Selects, f.o.b $10.

Calves, strong at $14.50 to $15.50.

BENNETT A BUILDER.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I know the new leader, the Hon. R B. Bennett, well. He is a man of the first rank in every particular, and possesses that state-craft which his predecessor seems altogether to have lacked. He is if need be a smashing critic, but usually leaves that work to those who can not do constructive work. Critics are plentiful. He is not of the deadly watchful-waiting class, either, but able to help in the great work of "making" Canada what she ought to be. He was a Methodist before union, but since that denomination disappeared I suppose, like the rest, he doesn't know what he is. He is a total abstainer from conviction, but is willing to leave others to their own conviction also. He is worth, financially at least, ten millions, and will be bound by no considerations of salary. He is quick tempered and straight and will not stand for being the tool of cliques, gangs or boards of strategy. In a word he will be a great driving force in Canadian affairs. He is scientifically educated and therefore does not expect praise for telling the truth.

I heard a man this morning mutter "the big interests." Take the big interests out of Canada and what is left? Are we not trying our best to get capital to come here? The big interests include agriculture, and if Mr. Bennett gives his best energies and honest effort to the development of big interests all the rest of us must prosper. Capital is not like the farmer who starves his land. It must make the masses prosperous if it is itself to prosper.

THINK THIS ONE OVER

What a convenience it must be to have plenty of cash. How gratifying it is to have plenty of gold and the things that this precious metal will purchase, but sometimes it's a good plan to stop long enough in your efforts to get more money to try to see if you haven't lost the things that money can't buy.

number. The fact that these children with one exception, the Bulgarian girl who mistakenly chose "The End of a Perfect Day," sung in English, as her contribution to the Pageant, sing and dance the music of their ancestral lands, probably accounts for the fact that they all do it so well, and appear to enjoy it so thoroughly. They are gowned also in native costume, with one more exception in the young Macedonian boy.

This Pageant was a "filler-in" at the Women's Building programme for this year's Canadian National Exhibition, and proved so popular a form of entertainment that it had overflow houses on every occasion. Miss V. D. Dickens, superintendent of the Women's Institute Building at the C.N.E., Mrs. Jessie McIntyre of Toronto, who has for many years been engaged through the United Church in the Foreign Mission work in Toronto, and who presents work by new Canadians for exhibition every year, with Mr. C. McCann, chief clerk of the C.N.E. staff, are with the children, who were gathered by the two ladies from the various church organizations, Mission Schools and training institutes of Toronto, for the purpose of presenting this Pageant, which is distinctly musical in character, and which aims to present to dwellers in their new home land some of the "gifts of art, music, handicraft, song and dance" that these New Canadians bring from their own countries. Several of the children are pupils of the Birdsall School of Dancing in Toronto, and all contribute in various ways, in little speeches, in songs and recitations of a national character, many of them rendered in the language of the country represented.

The Pageant, who has a back-drop representing the "S.S. Canada," on which these new citizens have supposedly arrived, opens with Miss Betty Kniseley, appearing in a white, marabou trimmed dress, holding the Canadian flag and singing a pretty song about Canada. Then in turn come a tiny girl in a white middy suit and cap, representing England, and dancing a light-footed sailor's hornpipe. This is Violet Scott. A little boy who represents Wales sings "Men of Harlech," and is named Cyril Taylor, and a little girl (Betty Planke) as Ireland, in colleen's dress of white, scarlet and green, dances an Irish jig to the tune of the Irish Washerwoman. A young girl, Marie Jowroski, with the beautifully embroidered dress and velvet bolero of a Ukrainian peasant, plays the violin in exceptionally good style; a small lassie (Audrey Denyes) as Scotland, dances the Highland Fling, wearing the McGregor tartan and Scotch cap, and a song in the Finnish tongue is given by a young girl (Evva Saasamaki) dressed in the national costume of her country.

French Canada is represented by Miss Betty Kniseley, appearing this time as a vivacious demoiselle wearing a habitant homespun suit and hat, and singing in accented English about a "little bayou," and two small Ukrainian damsels (Stella and Teza Krath), do a very graceful dance in twirling, hoppy fashion, wearing bright embroidered aprons over white frocks, and long, gay streamers from their floral head-bands.

Johnny Canuck and a Boy Scout of Canada, wearing the red soldier's jacket and dark trousers of the former's uniform and the Baden-Powell hat and navy suit of the latter, are two small Canadian boys, brothers (Sam and Ted Tomlinson). They sing "Land of Canada," very tunefully.

A small Polish boy of twelve years of age, representing his native land, plays with extraordinary facility the violin, rendering a difficult selection from memory, with sweet, clear tone and expert fingering. He is Anthony Rembish, a pupil of the Former School of Violin Music in Toronto, and regarded as possessing outstanding musical talent. He is a protege of one of the Mission Schools of Toronto.

A little Armenian girl, in native costume, sings in Armenian. She is Annig Lightsonian. A young Macedonian boy makes a brief speech, extolling the opportunities found in the Dominion by her new citizens from older lands ,and is called Louis Velianoff. A small Ukrainian girl dancer is Annie Bolishyn.

Much applause followed the clever and interesting selections of the small people, but there was repeated enthusiasm manifest for the dainty little lady of nine years of age (Ada Payne) who did a Dutch song and dance in jaunty fashion, gowned in the tradional white and Delft blue costume of a Holland maiden.

A Bulgarian girl (Tuba Athanaso) sang in English, "The End of a Perfect Day"; a little Ukrainian boy (Peter Bolishyn) danced, and a pretty Italian girl, with a lovely soft voice (Itala Lamberti) sang in her native tongue. Miss Betty Kniseley had the last solo, in the dainty "Goin' Fishin'" number, done in fisher-boy costume.

A final tableau was formed of all those taking part in the pageant, singing "O Canada," in English, followed by the singing of the National Anthem.

The music for the performance was played by Miss Ida Krehur, assisted by the young violinist, Marie Jowroski. An item of interest was the inclusion in the programme of two songs by Canadian composers, one of whom, Miss Emily Taylor, was present with the pageant group last night, and whose composition, "Land of Canada" was a portion of the programme, also the "Goin' Fishin'" song sung by Miss Betty Kniseley, the composition of Miss Bertha Tamblyn, with words by Edith Groves, both Canadians, whose song book, "We Are Seven," songs of childhood, has made a recent wide success in musical circles.

Owing to the length of the programme, the one-act play was produced only once last evening, as was the case with the Pageant of New Canadians, while it was found impossible to include the Fiddlers' Contest in the entertainment. Senorita Vasquez repeated her popular Scanish dance number, to the orchestral accompaniment of "La Paloma," and a Fashion Show was presented by Barrie's, Limited, with local models in Mrs. Homer Borland, Miss Teddy Conner and Miss Daisy Davidson, and a special model in the person of Miss Florence Garbe of Toronto, runner-up with Miss Jean Ford Tolmie in the recent beauty contest of the Queen City.

Miss Garbe appeared in introduction of the Fashion Show, which had a pretty stage setting in long mirrors, lighted floor lamps and palms. She represented "The Spirit of Kiwanis," appearing encircled in a huge blue Kiwanis emblem, with an electrically - illuminated headdress bearing the Kiwanis motto, "We Build" in silver lettering on a blue coronet, and was attended by two cunning little maidens with flowers which they threw to the crowd. These were small Marjorie Boyle and Evelyn Hill of Peterborough.

The Fashion Show was composed mainly of a parade of lovely gowns from the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear section of the store of Barrie's Limited, and a display of beautiful models in fur coats from their main showrooms.

A deep rose gown of canton crepe, with two-tone effect in the differing shades of rose in the blouse and skirt portion, and a chestnut satin-faced crepe with an odd treatment in the diagonal portions of the satin making the upper section of the crepe sleeves, were opening numbers in the Parade. Another model in black had a skirt of taffeta and a top of velvet, made with pink vestee and pleated frills as edging. An extraordinary shade of geranium red in crepe had a wide velvet hem of the same hue, a pointed yoke and long sleeves, while an exquisite gown of black lustrous satin had a front panel that opened and closed momentarily to show a long inset panel of pale green that also formed tiny cuff ruffles on the long sleeves. A top of metallic lame in pastel tints was worn with a skirt portion of transparent black velvet, and another bodice of tight-fitting style was of black lace over a rose pink foundation.

The evening gowns were very striking. A Peach taffeta had a wide skirt made of ruffled net and a sleeveless black velvet showed the intriguing slits in white. An extraordinarily striking model had a skirt of black taffeta moire ribbon in wide bands and a lace bodice, the small rounded yoke of net outlined with silver embroidery and a large silver butterfly at the waistline in front.

A pale blue taffeta showed an odd but effective combination of colors in its trimming of applique orchid flowers and panel of fuchsia shade.

A tableau of evening gowns made a pretty finale for the Fashion Parade, which included also a showing of up-to-date coat models. A very new idea in several of these coats developed in colth was long revers of contrasting color. A black velvellaine had these revers in grey, with a grey wolf collar, and another showed red used in the same fashion, with touches of red showing in long, narrow insets. A coat of invisible plaid in grey and black was very smart, with a skunk collar, and a green cloth model had trimming of grey astrakhan fur.

There were many fur coats, among them a lovely grey lamb with gray wolf collar and cuffs, a grey squirrel with sable, and a brown broadtail with brown fox trimming.

Grain Prices Sag With Corn Leading

CHICAGO, Oct. 15. — (Canadian Press). — Grain values underwent an early set back to-day with corn touching a new low price record for the season. Selling out on standing orders to stop losses at various fixed limits on corn holdings was the chief outstanding feature. Starting unchanged to 5-8 to 3-4 off, corn soon suffered general tumble. Wheat opened at 1-2c decline to 1-4 to 3-8 advance and then sagged all around to below yesterday's finish. Oats were easy. Provisions tended down grade.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 11311 1-8. March 134 1-4. Corn, December 86 3-8. March 89 5-8. Oats, December 46 1-14. March 48 3-4.

Steel's Gain Features Trading At Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 15. Steel of Canada, jumping 7 points to 176, was the feature during the heavy trading in this morning's short session on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Breweries and distilleries and Northern Bakeries showed the biggest total transactions, but the oil stocks, particularly British American, were active and strong. Zimmerknit gained 1¾ at 37 and King Edward hotel up 1 at 57 were the only other stocks to make better than fractional gains. City Dairy at 186½ had a net loss of 1½. Northern Bakerics eased 1-8 to 42. Gooderham and Worts and Walker stocks held steady. British American Oil firmed ¼ at 32.

Mine Market Active With Trend Downward

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—Amulet's jump of 32 to 5.62 was the feature of very heavy trading during this morning's short session on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange. Wright Hargraves had the greatest recession at 7.90, losing five, as did Newbec at 105. Malartic Mines and Argonaut Cons., though very active, maintained their closing prices of yesterday. Laval Quebec at 44 was off ½, and Tough Oakes at 62 gained one.

LIGHTS MARK STUDENTS.

OXFORD, Oct. 15.—Green lights on the motor cars of Oxford undergraduates, which recently were made compulsory by directors of the college, have turned out to be a success and have shown that many complaints made against students are unjust. They have shown that only one per cent of the cars out after ten o'clock in the evening belong to students.

OBITUARY

D. J. FITZGERALD.

The funeral of the late D. J. Fitzgerald, who succumbed to a short illness, at Portland, Ore., was held here recently. A former Peterborough boy, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fitzgerald, he left the "Electric City" in 1882, and subsequently attained eminence in financial circles on the Pacific Coast and the Western United States. Although the late Mr. Fitzgerald had been away from his native city for many years, he still maintained a close contact and his funeral was attended by large numbers of sorrowing friends.

Commencing his business career in Montreal, the unusual abilities which later were to make him a power in new fields were at once evinced, and in 1886, he accepted an attractive offer to leave Eastern Canada for the Middle West, where he became identified with a prominent firm of contractors. Three years later he accepted a position which placed him in charge of the A.C.M. smelter offices, at Carroll, Mont., as an associate of the late Marcus Daly, who at that time was one of the outstanding mining and financial magnates of the Western United States.

Mr. Fitzgerald's ability brought about further business responsibilities when, in 1896, he accepted an offer with the F. A. Heinze interests and was appointed Manager of that corporation's important financial and mining interests in British Columbia. Subsequently, he represented this company for four years in New York, and for two years in London, England, crossing the ocean again to become Vice-President and Cashier of the Silver Bow National Bank, at Butte. In 1924, Mr. Fitzgerald retired from active business life and since that time has been living in Los Angeles.

Of a pleasing personality, the late Mr. Fitzgerald won for himself a host of friends wherever his business relations happened to take him, and news of his death was received with genuine sorrow and regret, not only throughout the Pacific Coast and the Western United States, but also by a large number of prominent figures in the financial, mining and commercial circles in England and America.

The remains were brought eastward, from Portland, by his brother, Mr. E. Fitzgerald, of the Canadian National Railways, for interment in Peterborough. The late Mr. Fitzgerald is also survived by a sister, Miss Fitzgerald, of Boston, and Mr. W. H., of Gig Harbour, Wash.

CAPTURE OF CAMBRAI RECALLED

Nine years ago Sunday at 4.30 a.m., following 100 days of bitter fighting, the first Canadian troops entered the war-scarred old city of Cambrai. Thirty-one divisions took part in the many battles. Photographs show, at the left, Col. W. R. Patterson, D.S.O., of the 4th C.M.R., one of the first units to enter the bombarded city, and at the right Col. W. Rhoades M.C., D.S.O., commander of the 5th C.M.R., who played a big part in the fighting before Cambrai and who entered the city on the morning of Oct. 9, 1918. The centre picture is a group of English officers with "The Tiger of France," Georges Clemenceau, after the enemy evacuation.

Hundreds of Furnaces are Installed

Blind Folded

Scientists have made two vital discoveries regarding domestic heating. The first is that practically all inefficient heating systems are the result of improper installations. The second—that Warm Air, scientifically installed, is healthier and more economical than any other system.

As a result of these discoveries, heating engineers have prepared a Standard Code for installing Warm Air systems which guarantees efficiency and winter comfort such as has never before been attained. Today no home owner need install his heating system "blindfolded". McClary's Sunshine Furnace is now installed according to Standard Code—assuring a job infinitely more efficient, healthful and money-saving than any yet discovered.

WARM AIR MOIST AIR HEAT FRESH AIR

CODE INSTALLED

McClary's are the only Canadian members of the National Warm Air Heating and Ventilating Association—an association which has adopted a scientific code for installing warm air furnaces. By insisting on a McClary's "Code Installed" Sunshine Furnace you are guaranteed a heating system which costs less to buy and less to maintain than more elaborate systems—yet provides 70 degrees of heat in every room.

Ventiblast

McClary's Ventiblast is an exclusive feature of McClary's Sunshine Furnace which burns soft coal equally as well as hard coal, coke or wood. It mixes pre-heated air with soft coal gases and converts them into flame—thus eliminating soot, waste and dust.

Fill in and mail attached coupon, and we will send you name and address of the nearest McClary's dealer who will guarantee a "Code Installed" heating system which will give lifetime satisfaction.

$5,000.00 CASH PRIZES

A FORTUNE — $2,000.00 FOR YOU!

THE MAIL AND EMPIRE

Offers this tremendous Fortune to any Man, Woman or Child. Find the Words Hidden in the Letters of the Word

"CONSTANTINOPLE"

IT'S EASY There is nothing hard to do. And there is Two Thousand Dollars to win. All you need is paper and pencil. It is easy to understand and play this game. Just sit down and see how many words you can make from the letters in the word Constantinople. You will find all sorts of words that can be made out of these letters. For example, cat is one, pie is one, pant is another, and ant, etc, etc. It is as easy as that. It is a game for the whole family. No expert knowledge is needed. All you have to do to win a fortune is to play the game according to the rules announced to-day. IT COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

FIFTY Prizes will be given for the 50 best lists of words submitted. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of words made out of the letters in the word Constantinople will be awarded first prize; second best, second prize, etc.

Observe These Easy Rules

(1) Any man, woman or child who lives in Canada and is not a resident of the City of Toronto and who is not in the employ of The Mail and Empire may submit an answer.

(2) Make as many words as possible from the letters in the word Constantinople. You may use the letters over and over again in different words, but each word must not contain a letter more times than it appears in the word Constantinople. For example, you may use the letter "a" just once in each word, the letter "e" just once in each word and the letter "t" twice in each word.

(3) Write your words plainly on one side of the paper and in alphabetical order, numbering them 1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address on each page in the upper right-hand corner. If you desire to write anything else use a separate sheet.

(4) Do not use proper nouns, proper adjectives, prefixes, suffixes, abbreviations, contractions, foreign words, obsolete words, combined forms, Scot or dialectic words. Words spelled alike but with different meanings will be counted as one word. Words spelled differently but with the same meaning will be counted as separate words. Both the singular and the plural may be used, and both will be counted, provided both forms are listed in the dictionary

(5) The Judges will use Webster's New International Dictionary, the latest edition, as authority, and the largest correct list of words made from the letters in Constantinople will be awarded first prize.

(6) One correct word will be deducted for each misspelled or incorrect word.

(7) In the event of a tie for any prize offered, the full amount of such prize will be awarded to each tied participant.

(8) Only one prize will be awarded to any one household or group of persons. Every list must represent your own effort, and must be prepared by the person submitting it. Lists submitted which cause the judges to believe that they have been compiled by one and the same person will be rejected.

(9) The largest correct list of words prepared according to these rules will win first prize. The next largest correct list will win second prize, and so on until 50 prizes have been awarded (subject to rule 6).

(10) A cash prize of $50.00 will be awarded the first prize winner if no subscriptions to The Mail and Empire are sent in. However, the first prize winner will receive $1,000.00 instead of $50.00, provided one new or renewal yearly subscription to The Mail and Empire is sent in. Better still, if TWO subscriptions to The Mail and Empire (either one new and one renewal, or both new, at $5.00 per year by mail, or $6.00 per year delivered by carrier in Hamilton or London) are sent in by the first prize winner he or she will be awarded $2,000.00 instead of $50.00.

(11) Renewal subscriptions will not be accepted that extend any subscription beyond January 1st, 1931.

(12) All answers will receive the same consideration, regardless of whether or not a subscription to The Mail and Empire is sent in.

(13) Three prominent Toronto citizens, having no connection with The Mail and Empire, will be selected to act as judges to decide the winners; and participants, by sending in their answers, agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.

(14) Prize winners in former contests conducted by The Mail and Empire who have won $200.00 or more are not eligible to participate in this contest.

(15) Lists of words must be mailed and postmarked on or before midnight of Saturday, December 3rd, 1927.

Sir Charles Batho, chosen unanimously for lord mayor of London, following the withdrawal of candidacy by Sir Harold de Courcy Moore, who was entitled by aldermanic seniority to succeed ir Rowland Blades. ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

CAVAN UNITED CHURCH

CAVAN, Oct. 13.—Very successful anniversary services were held in Cavan United Church morning and evening on Sunday, October 9th.

The Rev. T. L. Jull, B.A., of Brooklin, preached morning and evening.

In the morning his text was from Deut. 8:2, "And thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee these forty years in the wilderness to humble thee, to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldst keep his commandments or no."

He depicted the way in which the hand of God had been in the life of His people—punishing, teaching, guiding and trying to lead them.

Now on the borders of the promised land, Moses calls upon them to remember that always when they heeded God's commands He was with them and urging them to go forward in His strength, and possess the land which God had given them. He assures them that the God who had helped them in the past would still be their source of help.

So it is with us, just as the Israelites could look back over a long stretch of years, where God had guided them over dangers and hardships, so we can remember the many good things which have come to us through our pioneer ancestors and their faith in God. It is a long way from the trackless forest to our farms and wonderful highways; from the little log school houses to our modern schools and universities; from the small gatherings to sing God's praise to our churches. He enumerated many forms of progress and civilization, but reminded his hearers, it was due to the pluck, energy, perseverance and faith of our forefathers that these things had come to pass.

We still have giants to conquer—materialism, loose living, where all discipline is chafed at, and sectionalism, being some of these. This is a day for understanding and confidence in the future. Canada is progressing and is a great nation with a great future; but her people must remember that it is as true now as in the days of Moses that there is no true progress unless the hand of God is in it. "The God of yesterday is the God of to-morrow."

He stressed the fact that nothing is great in a church, in the life of a person or nation, without work and discipline.

It was an excellent sermon and well delivered. It was listened to attentively by a large congregation.

The choir with Mrs. Totten as organist, rendered good music.

At the evening service Mr. Jull took for his text Acts 2:22.—"Jesus Christ, a Man approved of God." He was God's perfect measure of manhood; the supreme moral and spiritual standard of life. Some of the characteristics of this approved manhood were: His personal life was clean; His deeds were above reproach; His speech and thoughts were pure. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Manliness is cleanness and cleanness is manliness. It takes courage to stand for everything that is pure and good.

He was genuine. He hated all forms of insincerity. The unit of the nation is the home. In this home must be a man and woman, having confidence in each other; back of this confidence must be moral integrity.

He was courageous, rebuked evil. The world needs courage today. Far too few of our Christian public men will stand on a platform and insist on things being done because they are right, not just because they are expedient. Ministers require courage to preach their convictions of right and wrong.

This man approved of God was an optimist. He lived in an age when His own nation were in bondage, and all manner of corrupt customs were being adopted. Through it all He believed that God could change conditions by changing men and women.

Another characteristic was love. He revealed the spirit of God by His general sympathy for humanity, by his forgiving and His sacrifice on the Cross.

No man can describe the life of this Man approved of God. He can only touch the hem of His garment.

In our day there is great need of this standard of approved manhood.

The speaker ably developed his theme of God's idea of approved manhood along these lines.

The subject was dealt with in a very lucid and interesting manner.

This was Mr. Jull's first visit, as a preacher to Cavan and he was well received and will be welcomed again.

The choir sang the anthem, "Only Trust Him," Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. M. Carr taking a duet in it.

Miss Annie Tinney sang a solo, "In The Garden Of Prayer." It was much enjoyed.

The trustees had asked the congregation to place a thank-offering of one hundred and seventy-five dollars on the plate. This objective was almost reached, with a few still to give their offerings.

On Sunday, October 16th, the Rev. Mr. Wilks will take the services on Cavan circuit.

The Rev. J. O. Totten took the services on Brooklin circuit on Sunday.

On Sunday, October 23rd anniversary services will be held at Ebenezer appointment, morning and evening. The Rev. Mr. Poulter, Bethany, will preach.

On Sunday, November 6th, the annual Thanksgiving services will be held in Cavan church, morning and evening. The Rev. R. B. Ferris, Toronto, Secretary of the Ontario Religious Education Council will preach, morning and evening.

On Thanksgiving Day the usual dinner and concert will be given in Cavan Community Hall.

ALL MOUSE'S FAULT.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Oct. 15. — When O. W. Gunz was driving his car the other day, he didn't know he had a mouse as a passenger. The mouse didn't like the idea of motoring, so he dashed up Gunz's trouser leg. Gunz let go of the wheel and stepped on the gas, ramming a line of parked cars. A pedestrian walking between two of them got a broken leg.

CELL FOR MACHINERY.

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 15. —The strangest padded cell in the world has been built here, not for human occupancy, but as a place to test high-speed machinery to the breaking point. Cushioned walls of reinforced concrete nine feet thick protect observers from flying parts that break apart under terrific speed. Camera lenses peer through holes to watch the tests.

Make Your Furnace Take Care of Itself

You can forget that you even have a furnace when you own a Just-Rite Automatic Oil Burner. When the first cold weather begins, light the burner and set the thermostat upstairs at the temperature you desire. Apart from ordering the oil supply, your work is now done for the winter. Like the proverbial brook, the Just-Rite "goes on forever," keeping your home at an even, comfortable temperature.

The Just-Rite Burner can be installed at low cost in any furnace. It is fitted on the door—the furnace is not changed in any way and is always ready to burn rubbish or wood if you let the oil supply run out. This in-the-door feature is exclusive to the Just-Rite.

Before buying any oil burner, first investigate the Just-Rite. The following dealers in your locality will gladly demonstrate the Just-Rite and explain the many features that make them better.

Glaring Headlights

Night Time Terror of the Highways

How to Test your Headlights

Lights on motor cars may glare either through bulbs being out of focus or the lamps themselves not having the proper tilt.

To test the lights on your car place the car on a level space 25 feet from a wall or screen. Mark a horisontal line on the wall the same height from the ground as the centre of the lamps on your car. Under no circumstances should this line, which is called the Lamp Level Line, be more than 42 inches from the ground.

With lamps having a screw adjustment turn the screw one way or another until the horizontal beam on the wall from each lamp is as narrow as possible. (Lens need not be removed.)

To focus bulbs in lamps without outside adjusting screw, remove the lens and move the bulb backward or forward until the circle of light on the wall is as small as possible. Then replace lens.

Then test each lamp separataly with lens installed. The top of the beam of light should be 4 inches to 7 inches below the Lamp Level Line to take care of the loading of the car. Light touring cars require a full 7 inches below the line. Lamps on Fords without batteries require 10 inches below the line. If in doubt tilt the lamps till the top of the beam is still lower.

The law requires an approved headlight device and 21 candle power bulbs.

The Department of Highways will supply more detailed instructions. Or you can have your lights tested and adjusted at most garages. See to them.

The motor car with glaring headlights is a danger to its own driver and a terror to others on the highway. Drivers moving in the opposite direction are deprived of sight to guide their cars.

A good garage mechanic can focus headlights so that they do not glare. Drivers can do it themselves by following printed instructions. The Department of Highways will mail you without charge complete instructions. Test your headlights often to be assured they do not glare. You are responsible. Lamps are designed for the roadway and not the other driver's eyes or the tree tops. Night driving must be made safe. Never drive with only one headlamp lighted or tail light out.

Brakes and steering gear should be kept in perfect condition at all times. Your car must obey if you wish it to be safe for you and not a menace to others.

The concentrated effort in behalf of safety on the highways is meeting with a widespread and active support. Co-operation from every motorist is asked so that the example set during this period may take a permanent hold of the consciousness of all who use the highways. It is the duty of everybody to learn how accidents may be prevented.

To show that you support this movement put the sticker on your car, "I'm for Care and Courtesy. Are You?" You can get one at any garage or filling station.

TRICKS TO LEARN IN BARNYARD GOLF

Champion Advises Against Having Shoe Spin Swiftly.

Some people who cherish the idea that pitching horseshoes is mere child's play and requires no special skill other than grabbing a shoe and throwing it, have never seen real shoe-tossers in action. Just as in every other sport different experts have their own pet methods of handling the irons. The average man who thinks that he can pitch shoes fairly well, but has never considered himself in the champion class, gives a fast twirl to the shoe as he flings it, hooking his index finger around the end of the shoe and giving it a pull back as it leaves his hand. This sends the shoe spinning through the air and as a rule it will land flat and "stay put," but very often if it hits the peg it will ricochet to one side.

Most of the real champions, it seems, toss the shoe so that it does not twirl in the air, but makes a slow turn that brings it nicely in position to settle around the peg. Any ambitious horseshoe fans who are starting to train for the Canadian Championship Contest, which the Ontario Athletic Commission is staging at the Royal Winter Fair next month, will be interested to learn how one champion has achieved success. This method, which is described in the following paragraphs, is now generally accepted by the "best people" in the horseshoe world.

"In playing always look at the opposite stake you are aiming for", he says "not at your opponent's shoes, or the people on the sidelines.

"Learn first to throw the open shoe so that it will land right into the stake, not slide into it. Take the shoe in the right hand, unless you are a southpaw, take hold of the right fork with the thumb on the top side and all four fingers gripping the fork, with the little finger against the heel calk. Keep the calks face down. The thumb controls the shoe in turning. If the shoe turns more than a one-and-three-quarters turn, move the thumb slight forward toward the toe calk, gripping the shoe tighter. To slow up the turn, hold closer toward the heel calk. The shoe when leaving the hand should be level, not edgewise.

"When in position to deliver the shoe make a full swing and don't jerk the arm when pitching. Don't pitch crossfire f-unless it becomes more natural; it's harder. Then pitch the shoe so that your arm in the swing will pass directly over the stake. Never make a downward or swooping movement in delivering the shoe.

"The open shoe is one that lands with the opening toward the stake and is all controlled by the grip or hold on the shoe. An open shoe cannot be a success that has more than three and one-half turns, as all control is lost. The one and one-quarter turn is used by the best horseshoe pitchers, although a three-quarter turn has been used by some, but never to an advantage on account of having to be thrown so hard. Then, if the stake is missed, the shoe travels beyond all possible scoring distance.

"In throwing an open shoe it should be thrown with all possible ease and land right into the stake. Many pitch with a twist. This has a tendency to cause the shoe to land otherwise than flat, which makes it impossible to keep a ringer on top of another ringer.

"Nearly anyone can learn to throw the open shoe by learning the proper hold and making the natural swing. If the shoe is not opening at stake, then throw a little higher, that is, if you are landing in front of the stake. If you are pitching over the stake, then lower your height. This will at the same time bring your turn of the shoe slower. The position of the hold on the shoe governs this and all depends on whether your shoe is turning too much or not enough.

"Always be sure to train yourself to throw the same height, which is about ten feet. When throwing a ringer always try to stop it, throwing the shoe so that the speed is spent when arriving at the stake. In doing this, if you fail to get on, you will be within shooting distance. When a shoe is leaning against a stake, this being one of the hardest conditions to pitch against, you should learn to throw shoe, or rather hook the shoe straight in. This all depends on the position of the leaning shoe. Sometimes you can drop a ringer down on the leaning shoe, which will cause it to fall, your shoe remaining a ringer. The real object is to keep the first pitch. The slow one-and-a-quarter shoe is the most scientific and easiest thrown."

When Nature fails to do her proper work of eliminating harmful waste through the kidneys, bladder and bowels, a remedy must be found. Many people have found Gin Pills to be this remedy. Among them, James Johnson of Bridgeburg, Ont. He writes:

"I was troubled with pains across the kidneys for two years. I was unable to do any work. I read about Gin Pills and got a box right away from my druggist. My sincere thanks are due you for your wonderful remedy, which has done so much for me."

Neglect of kidney trouble spells disaster. Lumbago, Rheumatism and Sciatica as well as bladder and urinary troubles follow. Upon the first warning get a box of Gin Pills, 50c at all druggists. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Canada. 127

Your Last Chance

The Trend for 1928 Is Forecast in the Perfected Whippet

STILL A YEAR AHEAD

Economy—The most economical light car power plant—assuring unequalled mileage from gasoline, oil and tires—holds the Coast-to-Coast economy record.

4 Wheel Brakes—Introduced into the light car field in the Whippet 16 months ago—from a speed of 40 miles per hour, they can bring the car to a stop within 51 feet.

More Leg Room—You will find in driving the Whippet that there is appreciably greater leg room and comfort than in any other light car.

EVERY recent new car announcement serves to emphasize the fact that the Whippet has now all of the modern features that other cars will offer for 1928.

Expert engineering and the experience and friendly suggestions of more than 125,000 loyal owners who have driven their cars more than 400,000,000 miles, have developed the finer Whippet of today—the Whippet which still sets the pace for 1928.

No other car—at anything like the Whippet's price—offers you all the modern advantages of the Whippet—utmost gasoline economy as established by 5,508 owners who averaged 38 miles to the gallon, the safety of BIG 4-wheel brakes, low centre of gravity, more leg room, full-vision bodies, force-feed lubrication, silent timing chain and many more.

By all means see the Whippet and ride in it. Buy it with the assurance that a year from now its re-sale value—due to its modern design—will necessarily be greater than that of less modern cars.

C.N.R. TO BUILD HALIFAX HOTEL

Thornton Also Refers To Larger Marine Services Planned.

C.P.R. BUILDING, TOO.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—The Canadian National Railways will immediately proceed with the construction of a combined station and hotel on the site of the present station at Halifax, it is announced in a telegram sent by President Sir Henry Thornton to H. R. Silver of Halifax. Sir Henry also refers to the "larger marine services" the Canadian National is about to inaugurate in relation to Halifax. The Canadian Pacific and a Halifax committee are already building a hotel in a different part of the city.

disobeying an order from his Queen mother to desist from pulling the dog's tail, was the recipient of a sound spanking in no way different from those administered on sundry occasions to boys of lesser degree. Crowns and kings are associated together in Billy's mind and not unnaturally he wondered how it was that Michael's crown did not fall off as he was laid over his mother's knee while the parental slipper was brought into play.

Edward Copperwaite seeing his playmates wrestling with the problem presented them by an inquisitive reporter joined them in eager discussion. Edward was not quite sure where Canada's king lived but he had an idea that it was somewhere around New York—the home of so many railway, wheat, pork, oil, steel, and motor kings. In the debate that ensued, Billy Sage digging out of the remote recesses of his memory recalled something about kings who were intensely interested in the young children of their countries. Children, said Billy, were invited to the royal palace and all were given keys to open a magic box. Only one lucky boy was the holder of the right key, and when he opened the box, he found within it something that the king wanted. The prize according to Billy was a fine horse on which the lucky boy rode home in triumph, and after returning it to the king received a great reward.

Harold Thornton has something of the Napoleonic touch about him. Harold declares that if he were king he would try to get more land, and he would try to persuade his new subjects to obey him and the laws of the land. He would treat them well, probably better than they had been treated by their own king and in time they might become loyal subjects.

By this time the news of the strange questions that were being asked of their chums trickled through to other groups of children and the interviewer, a newspaper man of remarkable intellectual powers and great personal beauty, but of a very retiring disposition was discovered to find himself the centre of interest of a crowd of children which increased every moment and threatened to block the passage on the side walk on Brock Street. Prudence suggested a speedy retiral and he withdrew to mingle with the crowd of ordinary mortals in George Street—every individual among them a king or queen to someone, at least.

JUNKERS PLANE MAKES LANDING

this attitude was shown in the latest cablegram from Mrs. Aage Anaker, her sponsor:

"Denmark awaits you. Don't be influenced by anything but your own judgment."

Mrs. Grayson's sheaf of telegrams and cablegrams mounts hourly. In the past two days five persons have begged for a seat in her plane. One of these requests came from Dayton, Ohio and this one enclosed, in case of refusal, a message to relatives in Copenhagen. The Club Femenine Espanol wire tersely why not Madrid?

Mrs. Grayson yesterday made perhaps the greatest sacrifice in the power of women. She decided to leave behind the two evening gowns and the several modish accessories that she had had especially designed for the reception she anticipates in Europe.

"Every pound counts to-day; after that we will find a way," she said. This wholesale discarding of baggage left her the brown flying suit she will wear with a pair of dress slippers and silk negligee as her only luxuries. When she flies to-day she also will have a Bible and in an old-fashioned oval wooden frame, a picture of her dead mother, which shows a striking resemblance to the daughter.

The talisman of the trip is an old silver coin from a pot found on the ancestral Sikorsky estate, near Kiev, Russia, and presented by Mr. and Mrs. Igor Sikorsky. Experts have said the coin dates to the reign of Sultan Basil of Persia in the seventh and eight centuries.

One other picture is to be carried. Mrs. Grayson is the god-daughter of Mrs. Anne Key Palmer of Atlantic City, who is a great great grandniece of Frances Scott Key, author of the national anthem. It is his picture which will be taken as evidence of the blessing of Mrs. Palmer. No mail will be carried.

ASSAILS MEIHEN

Hon. George Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of Ontario, at the Conservative Convention in Winnipeg assailed Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen's war policy, and warned the convention that he would wash his hands of it, if it endorsed Mr. Meighen's views.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 15.—Miss Bailey of Peterborough has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Anderson for the past few days.

Miss MacDonald, Ottawa, is the guest of Miss Mabel Anderson.

The fine weather which is so unusual at this time of year, has made it possible for the two to do considerably more road work than they had thought possible. The roller and crew of men are busy on some of the rougher spots on the main roads. Gravel, well rolled, is being used to fill the "church" holes which have caused so many unofficial complaints to be made recently.

The government inspectors of auto service stations, weigh scales, etc., made their appearance in town this week. They appear to accomplish their official inspection with a remarkable degree of efficiency.

Some of the Campbellford people who attended the concert and dance given in the Town Hall, Warkworth, in connection with the Public School Teachers' Convention being held there this week, were Miss Dorothy Linton, Eleanor Ferris, Evelyn Irwin, Cherrie Turner, Irene Stevens, and John Callahan. They report a most enjoyable evening.

The Regent Theatre is daily consolidating its position as the foremost local theatre of the district. The pictures shown are not of the ancient vintage usually found in small town picture shows as the present bill proves. The Volga Boatman, which is the week-end attraction, is one of the greatest pictures of the season. It is a picture version of Russian affairs at their most interesting period, when all the world looked to that great power for possible solutions to economic national problems. The Bat, which will be shown at the first of next week, is one of the greatest mystery pictures ever filmed. Those who have read the book or seen the play on the legitimate stage will be interested to know that they are to have the privilege of seeing the picture at their local theatre.

B. Eddy Co. of Hull, Quebec. The Hon. R. B. Bennett, who is reputed to own a controlling interest in the Eddy Company, is to confer with Graustein here in the next few days, it is understood.

IF I WERE KING

near McDonnell street when the question was put to them and, after satisfying themselves that their questioner was not a bearer of summary vengeance on them for what uneasy conscience suggested was probably a choice of location frowned on by bigger folks whose opinions seem to count for so much when the juvenile population is concerned, they sat down to consider the situation. Both boys were not quite sure that they knew exactly who or what a king was ;but thought on the whole it must be very nice to have all the privileges that were attached to the office. Neither had they heard of the little King of Rumania. Unlike most of the boys interviewed, Gordon thought that even if he were king he would go to school for a while yet, and Ken decided after some reflection that even were he raised to the exalted position, he would continue going to Central School. Ken thought that with the royal treasury at his disposal, he would spend quite a bit of money, in buying clothes.

Robert Ingram was ardently engaged in the pursuit of grasshoppers when he was interrupted by the query "what would you do if you were king?"

Robert has not quite reached the stage of reading the newspapers, and King Michael was an unknown name to him. At first, Robert could hardly picture himself as a lucky youth entitled to wear a crown and to spend unlimited sums of money just as he liked, but when he thoroughly grasped the idea, he thought that the little Rumanian must be a very happy youngster. Probably as Robert grows older and becomes more experienced in the ways of the world, he will realize that his lot is a much happier one than that of the child king; although he does not suspect it as yet, his privilege in being born and brought up in Canada is one that far outweighs any fanciful advantage, attached to the position of the still unspoiled son of a spoiled princeling.

Alec Carlyle was also playing in Confederation Park when the question was propounded to him. Kings to Alec are strange creatures and he failed to manifest the slightest enthusiasm when asked to imagine himself in the place of the child king. "Would you go to school if you were the king of the land?" Alec thought he would. What would he do with all the money he would get. He would buy things. Oh, lots of things.

Don't Want the Job.

Roland Hopkins and Harold Webster were engaged in a kind of juvenile marathon on the way home from Central School when they were both stopped in George street north and were asked the question that had intrigued their school fellows. Both of these little fellows knew what a king was all right, but it was news to them entirely that a youngster of their age could hold down the job. Sturdy Canadian democracy is manifest in these little lads even at their early age. Plainly they were not impressed by the fact that the position of kingship was one that may be open to the smallest. None of them have ever heard of the old proverb uttered by one who was himself a wearer of the crown and purple. "Woe unto the land when thy king is a child", but who can doubt that their attitude is even from the point of worldly wisdom far ahead of that of the schemers who nominally at least placed the destinies of a nation into the hands of a baby whom they hope to make a pawn in the game of politics and plotting.

Duties of Kingship.

George Thornton, a bright, intelligent-looking little fellow also on his way home from Central School not only knew what a king was but he had very definite opinions as to the duties of a monarch and had no hesitation whatever in declaring the principles he would follow if he were unfortunate enough to be called to a royal throne. "I would help people who are sick," he said, "and if I saw a boy who was poor I would go up to him and help him all I could. I would tell them all to go to church and if I saw a boy fighting I would tell my soldiers to stop him. I would do all the good I could and would try to make everybody happy." Justice, mercy, charity, the promotion of peace and the fostering of religion are all contained in the truly noble philosophy of rule laid down in the few simple words of a child. "Practical" politicians whose practical policies laid a world in ruins might well ponder over the words of babes and sucklings who speak after the manner of this child of an elementary school. Like Michael who has referred to photograhpers desirous of snapping him, George said, "See mother first if you want my picture for the paper."

Bill Sage of Bethune Street joined in the conversation. Bill had not considered within himself, what he would do if he were suddenly elevated to a throne, but he was interested to hear it was only a few weeks ago, that Rumania's boy king

MOTHER DEFENDS CUB.

MENOMINEE, Mich., Oct. 15. — After running down a bear cub which ran in front of his car, Leonard Baldwin stopped his machine and got out to capture the injured animal. He was met by a charge from the infuriated mother bear and his car bears scratches showing where she missed him with a swipe of her paw as he slammed the door in her face. She kept the cub.

FREIGHTER SUNK BY GIANT LINER

French Line Steamer Paris Rams Norwegian Freighter Amidships.

34,000 TONS VS. 3,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—The giant French liner Paris in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty early today rammed and sank the Norwegian freighter Besseggen. At least twenty-four of the thirty-one passengers and members of the crew of the freighter were brought to safety in spectacular rescues by ferry boats and other craft. The survivors included several women and children.

The freighter went down within fifteen minutes and when those aboard climbed to the superstructure it was found that the lifeboats had been thrown from the davits and there was no time for lifebelts.

The crash came without warning, the 34,000 ton liner crashing the three thousand ton freighter amidships.

The search for survivors continued through the night, long after the silent waters of the channel had completely submerged the freighter. The liner resumed her journey to France after the eight survivors it had picked up were removed. The liner was undamaged.

FLIERS REACH AZORES.

Ruth Elder and George Haldeman Landed at Horta.

HORTA, Azores, Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—Ruth Elder and her co-pilot George Haldeman of the American Girl landed here today safe and sound from the steamship Barendrecht, which picked them out of the plane shortly before it was destroyed by fire in the Atlantic on Thursday. The aviatrix and Haldeman, who achieved the longest over-water flight on record, set foot on land for the first time since Tuesday night.

Miss Elder looked as if she had just left Broadway. It was declared she had been cool and courageous throughout the adventure. On arrival the fliers told of how the plane had been lost while the crew of the Barendrecht was trying to hoist it on the deck. Owing to the high waves the plane was smashed against the side and sunk.

Ruth's first words when she stepped on the tanker from the plane were, "Thank you very much," the crew said on arrival. Then she produced her lipstick. The crew also said the plane's wings had been broken off when it crashed into the side of the ship as it was being lifted and the flames shot so high the steamer would have blown up if it had had a cargo of benzine or gasoline.

They plan to remain here until Monday, when they will likely take a steamer for Lisbon, Portugal, and thence entrain for Paris.

BARACAS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Lew Ingram is President of Murray Street Young Men.

The Baracas are away to a good start for another year. The annual meeting was held this week when they elected Lew Ingram as president.

This is a young men's class meeting at Murray Street Baptist Church every Sunday morning under the leadership of Joseph Wearing. Last winter they had an average attendance of over fifty each Sunday and they are looking forward to making it seventy-five this winter.

Mr. Wearing has prepared a fine programme. He started two weeks ago on a series of talks on characters of the New Testament. The last Sunday of every month Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, the pastor, will be the speaker.

The members bought a piano last week and have plans for making the Class Room more comfortable.

The other officers are: Harry Baptie, vice-president; Roland Scott, secretary; Howard Frise, treasurer, and Lou. Smith, Doug. Loomis, Sid Drury, Roy White, Geoorge McNabb, and George Post as members of the executive.

LADIES ARRANGE FOR FOWL SUPPER

St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid of Campbellford is Working Hard.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 15.—The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its regular meeting in the rooms in the basement of the church on Thursday afternoon. The attendance reached the highest mark of the season, which was very gratifying as business of major importance was to be discussed.

The meeting opened with the customary devotional exercises and after the secretary's report had been read, the routine business was quickly attended to. The fowl supper which is to be given in the church was then discussed by the members. As this event is dated for October 25, the ladies lost no time in appointing their committees and arranging for the innumerable details involved. It was decided to set seven tables and the ladies who will be in charge of these are Mrs. J. R. Battisby, Mrs. William Hume, Mrs. Neil Morrison, Mrs. Watters, Mrs. Harry Townsend, Mrs. John Storie, and Mrs. James Johnston.

Although it is not generally considered, the most fatiguing part of the fowl supper is the part which falls to these ladies and those who are generous enough to assist them. Whether the fowl supper is a success on a par with other years or not depends almost entirely on the efforts of this society.

SIXTEEN KILLED IN AUTO TRAILER

Interurban Car Crashes Into Loaded Vehicle at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—Sixteen persons, five of them women, were killed last night when an automobile trailer in which they were riding to a pre-Hallowe'en barn dance was smashed to pieces by a Muncie-Indianapolis Interurban car at the edge of the city. Five others are critically hurt. The five passengers aboard the Interurban were unhurt. The motor truck cleared the tracks before its trailer was struck.

The dead are Charles Poisel, Robert Parker, Lee Merriman, Opal Merriman, William Hobges, Mrs. Rowland Rhodes, Von Glasscook, Frank Meredith, Mrs. Mabel Meredith, Carl Jones, Mrs. Adam Jones, John Watson, Mrs. Robert Dallas, and Robert Dallas, all of Indianapolis; and Earl Wolford and Charles Wheler, of a suburb.

The view to the crossing is not obstructed and the motorman of the Interurban car, whose leg was broken, says the whistle was sounded.

TOBACCO EXHIBIT MOST ATTRACTIVE

Imperial Tobacco Company Has Booth at the Kiwanis Fair.

The Imperial Tobacco Company have an attractive exhibit in the northwest corner of the Armouries, at the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition.

It is tastefully decorated with draperies and tartan bunting. A bust of "Bobbie" Burns is prominently displayed in conjunction with a number of boxes of the company's cigars of that name.

Winchester Cigarettes are featured extensively and are being given away free to all enquirers.

who do not. Distinction is made in the dining-room between the two classes and this in some cases is not liked by those who are unable to pay their board. The same good food is served to each group, but there is a little difference in respect to the setting of the table.

The old ladies when visited appeared to be very happy. Everything was clean, and several who were spoken to, were quite contented with the way they were being looked after. The old men have their smoking room, and while they do not relish the fact that they have to go to bed at nine o'clock every night, for the most part they do not complain about the way they are treated.

Looking after old people of various temperaments is not an easy task, but judging from the appearance of the Protestant Old People's Home for the city of Peterborough, everything is as it should be.

CHILDREN START SERIOUS BARN FIRE

Play With Maches Beside Haystack, Causing Loss of $5,000.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 15 (Canadian Press). — Children playing with matches late yesterday set fire to a hay stack on the farm of John Dymond, Garretton, Augusta Township, which was communicated to a nearby frame barn. The latter, together with all its contents, was destroyed at a loss of $5,000. No insurance was held.

Ruth Elder and Haldeman to Go On to Paris Will Be Given Welcome At LeBourget Field

PARIS, Oct. 15 (A.P.).—Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, rescued from the sea by the Dutch tanker Barendrecht Thursday, will set their feet on land today at Horta, the Azores, for the first time since they hopped off Tuesday afternoon from Roosevelt Field, N.Y., in their ill-fated plane "The American Girl."

It is understood here that Paris, which was their goal when they climbed into the plane, is still their destination and that they will continue their journey here by the more ordinary means of transport.

It is likely that the two fliers will land without even a toothbrush for it is believed that all their belongings were destroyed when their plane took fire as an effort was being made to lift it aboard the Barendrecht. The plane lies beneath the waves of the Atlantic, a mass of charred wreckage.

Although no definite news was received from the fliers themselves, it was known from wireless messages sent by Captain Goss of the Barendrecht that the fliers were tired and Paris assumed that they are also happy.

The tenor of all the comment in the Paris newspapers is that the fliers had a miraculous escape, that they ought to be congratulated, but at the same time told not to do it again. It is likely that Miss Elder will get quite a welcome, for the French have shown great admiration for her spunk although they doubt the wisdom of the course she tried to pursue.

For the moment, however, knowing that she is safe, Paris is turning its thoughts to other things, and the voyage of Dieudonne Costes began across the South Atlantic yesterday morning has taken the place of Miss Elder's Odyesey on the front pages of the Paris newspapers.

The commtitee of American aviation enthusiasts who waited all Thursday at Le Bourget, will welcome Miss Elder and Haldeman on their belated arrival in Paris—at some railway station, some day next week.

Exhibition Notes

Captain Ayres did a number of sensational flying stunts over the Armories building yesterday.

Arrangements have been made to have one of the members of the Kiwanis Club given a permanent wave to-night at the booth conducted by Madame Merriam.

The performances in the auditorium will commence at seven and nine o'clock to-night, when the Pageant from Toronto, "Arriving of New Canadians," will be repeated, as well as other attractions. For the Pageant, one of the young members who was absent last night, arrived from Toronto to-day, in the person of Mary Lee Sing, a little lady of Chinese parentage who sings and plays.

Colonel Miller posed for two fine heads in clay done yesterday at the booth in which the Misses Beryl Forward and Lucy McWilliams are giving demonstrations of their skill in this art. Among those posing for charcoal sketches by Miss Mamie McCarthy were Miss Marcelle McNulty, Dr. E. H. Wood ,Captain Ayres Messrs Bert Miller and Ken McDonald, and two of the exhibitors, Mr. Andrews and Mr. McQuarrie.

Mrs. Ingram of Toronto, in the Gold Dust products booth, played several instrumental numbers for the Baby Show on Thursday.

The decision of the judges in the one-act play competition will be given at the Grand Stand performance this evening.

At the E. W. Gillett Company's booth, A. Miller is in charge, and demonstrations are the work of Mrs. H. Bellaire.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

A choker of fine gold chain with carnelian clasp is sketched above, below at the right a dull gold chain with jade stones, and at the left amethysts mounted on a fine silver chain.

Chain necklaces are important. The string of pearls no longer reigns supreme.

Chains are of plain gold, Roman gold, silver, or of gold or silver with insets of emeralds, rubies, amethysts, or brilliants.

You may still see the unyielding neckrings suggestive of prehistoric torsads, but these are probably left over from last season or the season before. Whatever you wear around your neck should be soft and pliant, no matter how heavy or barbaric it may appear. Necklaces that are worn close about the base of the neck are in keeping with the mode, but they must not look as if one were doing penance in wearing them.

Long strings and chains are passed twice around the neck—one strand coming close to the neck and the other hanging down as a second necklace. Some necklaces are indeed made with double strands, both attached at the back—one of neck size and the other somewhat longer.

To wear necklace, bracelet and earrings to match with your evening frock is well enough. Some women like a more unusual arrangement. A jewel "ensemble" consisting of slipper-heels, one shoulder strap and a pair of earrings, all set with synthetic emeralds, would appeal to such women.

SAINT and SINNER
By ANNE AUSTIN

As soon as Faith laid eyes on Bruce Patton she had a sudden, unshakable conviction that this new "flame" of Cherry's was not a solution at all, but a whole new problem in himself. He and Cherry, both resplendent in evening clothes, came in at half-past two, laughing and whistling together intimately. Cherry did not see Faith at first, for the back of the couch was toward the door.

"My sister's left the lights on for us," Cherry laughed as she swung open the door. "Poor darling! I promised her I'd be home by one o'clock. She's frightfully Victorian, though she's only two years older than I."

"You're not going to send me home just yet, are you, sweet child?" a man's voice, deep, vibrant, caressing, interrupted the bright flood of Cherry's words. "I've got to kiss you again—and again—and again—oh, you lovely, precious little thing! Adorable!"

Faith rose abruptly then.

"I must have been asleep," she said drowsily. "What time is it, Cherry?"

Cherry whirled out of the man's embrace, her golden eyes wide and startled. Then anger leaped from them like an actual flame. "So you stayed up to spy on me and cross-examine me, did you?" she demanded in a shaking voice.

"Cherry!" Bruce Patton protested, embarrassment coloring his dark, lean cheeks richly. "I'm afraid it's fearfully late, Mrs. Hathaway. All my fault. Cherry begged to be taken home at one o'clock, but the music was so enchanting——"

"Won't you introduce us, Cherry?" Faith asked coldly, as she crossed composedly from the couch to where the couple stood near the door.

"My sister, Mrs. Hathaway—Mr. Patton," Cherry complied sullenly. "Is Hope all right?" she added, anxiety submerging her anger.

"Sleeping soundly," Faith said curtly. "I waited for you because I wanted so much to meet Mr. Patton. But since it's so late—" and her eyes glanced toward the hall clock, whose chimes had just begun musically to announce half-past two—"I'll have to postpone the pleasure of becoming acquainted with Mr. Patton. Will you dine with us soon, Mr. Patton? Next Monday, if you are not already engaged?"

Bruce Patton bowed in continental fashion, or like the dancing master that he was. "I shall be delighted, Mrs. Hathaway. And since it is so late, Cherry, I'll not keep you up any longer. Good night."

"Well, what did you hear—and see?" Cherry panted on little gusts of anger as the door closed.

"I heard—and saw—the first act of a new romantic comedy," Faith answered dryly. "Starring the popular favorite, Miss Cherry Lane, with a new leading man, who looks every inch the matinee idol."

"Oh, I think you're mean!" Cherry blazed. "If you were going to act like this, why were you so honey-sweet to him? 'Will you dine with us soon, Mr. Patton?'" she mimicked bitterly.

"Perhaps," Faith said slowly, her eyes brooding strangely upon Cherry, "I'm tired of the married-life problem play in which I'm playing second lead, and the idea of a romantic comedy intrigues me. Good night, honey," she added with sudden tenderness. "I'm sorry. I didn't mean to spy."

"I don't understand you, Faith," Cherry wailed. "You're so—changed."

Uncle Wiggily
By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BOBBY'S HAT

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

While hopping down the woodland path, not far from his hollow stump bungalow one day, Uncle Wiggily saw bounding toward him something round, shiny and black. It came on with funny little jumps such as a hop-toad might use when going to the movings pictures.

"Hum suz dud!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman talking to himself, for he saw no one else to whom he could speak. "I wonder what that is? Some trick of the Fox or Wolf, perhaps. I had best be careful."

But as Mr. Longears stood at one side of the path, near a hollow tree in which he knew he could hid if there really should be danger, he saw that the bounding black thing was so small it could scarcely harm him.

"Unless it is the sly Weasel," said the bunny, still speaking to himself, for as yet he saw no one else.

But a little while after that, when the black thing was nearer, Uncle Wiggily gave a laugh as he exclaimed:

"It looks like a tall silk hat, the same as mine only smaller. But how a little black silk hat can come bounding along this way I don't know. It is very strange."

"It's too bad, if you ask me," suddenly spoke a voice from beneath the hat. "And if you say this hat is small I should like to know what your idea of a large one is. Gozinka!" and the voice under the hat made all sorts of funny noises as it jumped up and down. But though it bounded in this funny way Uncle Wiggily could not yet see who was beneath it. So the rabbit asked:

"Is that you, Bully No Tail, under that hat?" For he thought it might be one of the hopping frog boys.

"Why, don't you know who I am?" asked the voice in surprise.

"Well, I can't see you," answered the rabbit gentleman.

"You might if I could only jump herd enough to get from under," said the voice beneath the hat. With that the hat gave such a nice bounce up into the air that it flopped to one side rolled away and from under it bobbed Boppy, the little wooden daddy of the six wooden Wogglejigs.

"Boppy!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Is it really you? And is that your hat?"

"I guess it is I," said Boppy. "And that must be my hat for I paid for it, but I think they sent home the wrong size, for it comes 'way down over me and doesn't stay on top of my head as yours does on you."

"I guess you are right about its being the wrong size," chuckled Uncle Wiggily, when he had made sure it really was the little wooden man who lived in the Bungleump with his wife Um and the six Wogglejigs. "But why did you get so large a hat?" The rabbit gentleman picked it up from where it had rolled beside the path. The tall silk hat would have fitted Sammie Littletail, perhaps, though it was too small for Mr. Longears. And it was miles and miles too large for small Boppy.

"I didn't buy the hat as large as that," explained the little wooden man. "I went to the one and two cent store and told them I wanted a silk hat like yours, to be stylish. I tried on one that fitted me and told them to send it to my Bungleump. Well, when it came and I put it on, it slipped all the way down to my—" Boppy was going to say feet, but he really hadn't any, being made of two round pieces of wood joined together with a peg, with another peg on which his round head was fastened.

"I see," said Uncle Wiggily. "Your new hat came all the way down to the ground; didn't it?"

"Yes," Boppy answered. "So I put it on, or, rather, I got under it, and started to hop back to the store to get my right size. That's how I met you."

"Well, I couldn't imagine what it was hopping along that way," chuckled the rabbit. "But if you want to get a hat the right size I'll go with you. And, what is more, I'll carry you in my pocket. We can go faster that way." Which was true, because the only way Boppy could get along was by

"Well, I can't see you," answered the rabbit.

bouncing up and down or lying down and rolling.

"This hat that is too large for you—it's spoiled because of the way you knocked it about," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll throw it away."

"Oh, don't do that!" begged a sparrow who was flitting along. "It will make me a lovely nest for the winter! Stick it up in this tree for me."

So Uncle Wiggily put Boppy's big hat in the crotch of a tree and in it the sparrow built a nest where she lived all winter. Then the bunny, with the little wooden man in his pocket, hopped to the one and two cent store where Boppy bought a tall silk hat just his size.

THIN WOMEN HAVE SLIM CHANCE HERE.

BRESLAU, Germany, Oct. 15.—When a woman in America diets to willowy slimness, she wins her husband's approval. But if she does it in Germany, her husband may win a divorce. A man here came into court with a demand for a divorce, saying his wife had reduced 31 pounds so that she could wear fashionable clothes. He argued that this was a deliberate reduction of what she knew was her principal charm, and so constituted a legal grievance. The court agreed with him. He's single now.

An unusual position for a woman is that filled by Dr. Dorothy Jordan Lloyd, who is director of research for the leather manufacturers of Great Britain. She is said to know the tanning industry from A to Z.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1927.

Astrologers read this as a fortunate day in planetary direction with a benefic aspect strongly dominating.

Women should benefit from the influences of the stars which today have an effect on human destiny.

Under this sway housekeepers should have a good grasp of domestic problems and be able to plan wisely.

Romance is likely to flourish while this rule prevails and the evening should be a favorable time for suitors who offers hearts and hands.

This should be an auspicious date for giving intimate dinner parties or for entertaining groups of friends.

Music today is subject to the best possible rule, making for a season of splendid success in opera and concert.

All the artistic interests now prevalent in America appear to be under a government of the stars that promises supreme attainment.

There is a legend that good luck attends the wearing of new garments under this configuration.

Fashions now will assume undue importance, it is foretold, but modists and importers will face unusual financial risks.

There may be an inclination toward dissembling today, for the desire to make a good impression will be strong in the human mind.

Luxury will be sought even more assiduously than formerly, if the stars are rightly interpreted and America will lead the world in new splendors in the way of dwellings and modern forms of living.

Closer relations between the United States and Great Britain are forecast for the coming year.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of a happy, prosperous year marked by fine friendships.

Children born on this day probably will be lovers of home and of artistic things. Men who are subjects of this sign should be especially lucky.

Monday, October 17, 1927.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Until late in the afternoon the planetary government is rather sinister, according to astrology.

It is a time when the contemplation of one's financial condition may be especially depressing.

There is a sign supposed to encourage employees to make unusual demands for wages and workers may nurse petty dissatisfaction.

One of the effects of this rule may be a reluctance on the part of both men and women to pay their debts.

It is an unfavorable direction of the stars for extending credit or for lending money.

The seers warn all who are in business to avoid pessimistic views on commercial matters, for all the signs presage tremendous commercial activity and trade expansion in the coming years.

This is read as an unpromising sway for all who seek employment, for while there may be positions available small wages may be offered.

There is rather a threatening rule for physicians and surgeons to-day and country districts may find difficulty in obtaining resident practitioners.

Good luck should attend all new ventures started to-day, which is held to be peculiarly helpful to all who plan or start big enterprises.

There is a sign that is not promising for those who choose this as a wedding day. Quarrels are indicated.

Again the United States may be forced to discuss military and naval preparedness. Martial ideals will be exploited.

Neptune near the nadir presages trouble with Mexico or another nation, which will require wise diplomacy.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of great activity. Losses and gains are foretold.

Children born on this day probably will be wonderfully fortunate. They may be too impulsive for their best development.

Braves' Manager Given Unconditional Release

BANCROFT WILL GO TO ROBINS

Release Granted at Own Request, No Money or Players Involved.

FOUR YEARS PILOT.

NEW YORK October 15. — Dave Bancroft, manager and shortstop of the Boston Braves for the past four seasons will wear a Brooklyn uniform next season.

His unconditional release was announced here yesterday by Emil Fuchs, President of the Boston Club, but there was some mystery about the actual details of transferring his contract to Brooklyn.

Mr. Fuchs declared Bancroft's release was granted at the latter's request, and that no money or players were involved in the transaction. At the Brooklyn club's offices, however, it was indicated that a cash consideration figured in the deal. Baseball men circulated an unconfirmed report that the release cost the Robins about $20,000.

Observers attributed the poor showing of the Braves this season in finishing seventh as a factor in Bancroft's release, as well as the fact that the shortstop himself fell considerably below his usual high playing standards. Mr. Fuchs, however emphasized that the Boston club was prompted solely by Bancroft's wishes in the transfer of his contract to Brooklyn. In a letter to Bancroft Mrs. Fuchs praised the player as a 'credit to the American game," and extended the Braves "good will, best wishes, and affection."

Under four years of Bancroft's leadership the Braves finished eighth in 1924 ,rose to fifth in 1925, but drooped back to seventh last year and this season.

ARGONAUTS HOPE TO STOP OTTAWA

Eyes of Toronto Fans Turned Towards Big Four.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—Argonauts are ready for the battle of their careers today, when the Ottawa Senators, the team that generally delivers the goods in the pinches, meet them at Leaf Stadium. The Oarsmen have done everything they were capable of in order to get into the best possible condition for this engagement, and the last word from the camp is to the effect that there will be no excuses in case of defeat.

The locals are confident, but hardly over-confident. Having matched their ability against that of the Senators at the capital they fail to see why they should not be able to vanquish Dave McCann's men on local grounds.

While the Easterners have not won a game against the Argos in Toronto since the war they have made it very close on two occasions, in 1920 and in 1923. On those visits they played just as good football as they conquerors did and the result was a toss-up until the final whistle was blown. In fact, the Senators went back to the city of parliament buildings vowing that they had been outlucked.

Argos Not Underestimated

The champions are certainly not underestimating the strength of the Double Blue. They did this in the final period of the opening game and they lived to regret it. Eastern critics expect the battle here to be a hard-fought, thrilling affair and they have no hesitation in saying that judging by the way the teams played at Ottawa, the titleholders will win. However, football games are won and lost on the field and all the arguments in the world won't effect the final result.

This Ottawa-Argo game stands out as one of the most promising of the season. In fact, it is in the nature of a blue-ribbon event, with the grudge part thrown in for good measure. The Senators are more than anxious to repay the Double Blue for that 24 to 0 drubbing handed the champions at Leaf Stadium last fall. There were some who were inclined to belittle Argo's feat in thus mistreating the titleholders, but the Ottawa players weren't numbered among them, and they freely admitted that they received the surprise of their lives when the Argos handled them like they would a juvenile team.

Ottawa Seeks Revenge

The statement made that the Senators didn't try can be taken with the proverbial grain of salt. Following the rough battle at Ottawa, Argos made no secret of their claim that they would give the champions a real whipping here. The Senators, knowing this, and being eager to show that they were real champions, went into the game in Toronto determined to win, but they never had a chance, and now, one year later, they are seeking to avenge that runaway verdict.

Coach Dr. Knight will trot out a well-conditioned squad, one that will be able to go 60 minutes at a terrific pace. In this important department the Argos of this season are superior to those of 1926. Last fall some of the players didn't take their football at all seriously, and were not in good condition, but they learned their lesson, and won't be caught napping again.

PIRATE HURLER AMONG STARS

Carmen Hill Pitched Brilliantly During Regular Baseball Season.

THOMAS SHONE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Major league pitchers hurled their benders and fast shoots into some freaky records in the 1927 season, according to the charts and diagrams now being drawn and compiled.

With reference to individual successes by pitchers against individual clubs, Jakie May of Cincinnati and Al Thomas of the Chicago White Sox led all major league pitchers. Each of them won six games and from one club. May was on the victorious side against Philadelphia in six games and Thomas pitched winning ball against the St. Louis Browns six times.

None of the so-called stars did as well as that against any one club. May was of more use to his team in 1927 than he was last year—worse luck for Cincinnati. If he had reversed that order of procedure, the Reds might have won the 1926 pennant in the National League.

Pitchers who won five games from a single team in 1927 were fairly numerous. They are: Vance of Brooklyn, against New York; Grimes of New York, against Cincinnati; Fitzsimmons of New York, against Philadelphia; Hill of Pittsburgh, against New York, and also against Philadelphia; Van Gilder of the St. Louis Browns against the Philadelphia Athletics; Lisenbee of Washington, against New York Yankees; Luque of Cincinnati, against Brooklyn; Root of the Chicago Cubs, against Philadelphia; Hoyt of the Yankees, against the St. Louis Browns; Shocker of the Yankees, against the St. Louis Browns; Collins of Detroit, against Boston.

The St. Louis Cardinals had some rather capable pitchers and they were in the fight all the way, but there was not a five-game winner on the team—nor was there a pitcher who lost as many as five games to an individual club.

Pitchers who lost five games to a single club during the season were: Scott of the Phillies, against Cincinnati; Werts of the Boston Braves, against Cincinnati; Uhle of Cleveland against Detroit; Buckeye of Cleveland against Boston; Gibson of Detroit, against Chicago; Blankenship of the Chicago White Sox, against New York; Jones of the St. Louis Browns, against New York; Shaute of Cleveland, against New York.

In this record of the losers you will find three pitchers, each of whom lost five games to the New York Yankees. That is all of a month's work in pitching. No wonder the Yanks could run out ahead of their league when they discovered within it three pitchers who were so easy—and one of them, Sam Jones, was an old Yankee pitcher. He goes to Washington in 1928. He has a fine curve and maybe he has 12 or 15 victories packed around him somewhere. If he has he will help Washington where help is needed.

No real pitching feat was greater than the work of Carmen Hill of Pittsburgh against the Giants and the Phillies. New York was the chief rival to Pittsburgh, and Hill did his full share to put the Giants down. He was pitched out of place in the world series or he might have silenced the heavy artillery of the New York Yanks. He should have been used in the second series game in Pittsburgh rather than Aldridge. Next to the pitching skill of Hill against two clubs comes the fine feat of Horace Lisenbee of Washington, who defeated the Yankees in five games. It is too bad that the Senators pitched him against the Yankees in the windup series of the season, for he was defeated. As he is looking forward to the season of 1928 it would have given the youngster a lot of confidence in himself had he gone to the pitcher's box without being broken twice. He lost a game to New York earlier in the season. That does not alter the fact that in 1927 he was one of the best young pitchers in baseball. He has a fine running mate in young Hadley, a pitcher of the Senators,

RADIO IMPROVES MILK

LIBERTY, Mo., Oct. 15.—Years ago, Arnold Schwartz was a dairyman in Switzerland. In the evening the milkers would perform to the accompaniment of yodeling and accordian music. Result, wonderful cheeses. Now that Schwartz is running a dairy here, he has installed a radio in his cow lot. Music, he says, brings better milk. Market reports on the prices of corn, oats and hay also are music to the cows' ears.

Dempsey Welcomed On Arrival Home

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 15 (Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey was welcomed home yesterday by a large and shouting crowd of admirers, a band that led the parade of welcomers and a large group of sporting notables headed by Jerry Luvadis, the former heavyweight boxing champion's trainer.

Dempsey declared there was nothing in the report that a reconciliation with Jack Kearns was under way. He reiterated previous statements that the matter of his affairs with Kearns were in the hands of his lawyers and that he had not been approached regarding renewing any former business relations.

"I might fight again," Dempsey said, "it all depends on what turns up."

PITTSBURGH MAY TRADE CUYLER

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—It won't be long now before the fall gossip about big league trades gets into full swing. That is an annual custom as soon as the world series is over.

This fall the player most talked about as trading material is "Kiki" Cuyler, the star in-bad outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The drastic action of Manager Bush and Owner Dreyfuss in keeping Cuyler on the bench, while waging one of the toughest battles in the history of the National League to win a pennant and all during the past world series, makes it seem a certainty that Cuyler is doomed to go elsewhere for 1928.

Unless both Manager Bush and Player Cuyler are willing to let bygones be by-gones, unless Cuyler is willing to admit publicly that he was in error, thereby offering a reason for his continued benching, it hardly seems possible that he will fit into the Pirate line-up for next year.

Cuyler is a great ball player With him in the outfield between the Waner boys, Pittsburgh would have one of the greatest trio of gardeners in baseball, perhaps the best since the days of Lewis, Speaker and Hooper of the Boston Red Sox. In addition, so valuable a fielder as Barnhart would be on the bench ready for any emergency

"Kiki" is excellent trading material Any club in the National League would be delighted to make a deal for him However, Pittsburgh will insist on something worth while in return and only a few clubs can offer such a package

It is known that a deal with the Cincinnati Reds is on the fire and Cuyler will go to that club if Manager Bush can get the players he desires in the deal

Realizing that the first and second base side of his infield is rather weak, Bush is angling with several clubs that have such trading material Hughey Critz is the player most desired by Bush It is understood Pittsburgh has offered Cuyler to the Cincinnati club for First Baseman Walter Pipp and Second Baseman Hughey Critz

Last spring, Critz held out for more money The trouble wasn't adjusted until after the opening of the season and, when Critz reported, he was in far from playing condition. He early suffered a "charley horse," as well as other injuries that kept him out of the line-up.

His absence from the game was one of the reasons for the terrible start made by the Reds. It would be conservative to say that Critz's failure to play his game cost the Reds at least $100,000 at the gate because of the club's failure to be in the first division. It's possible that Critz's status with the club owner and manager may be very much like that of Cuyler

Regardless, there is a deal on the fire for an exchange of Cuyler for Critz and Pipp, which would give Pittsburgh desired strength at two weak spots. Its consummation is entirely up to the Cincinnati club.

Incidentally, another deal hinted between the two clubs is an exchange of Catcher Earl Smith of the Pirates for "Bubbles" Hargraves of the Reds.

HEAVIES OVER LONGER ROUTE

Things Shaping Up For Third Meeting Between Dempsey and Tunney.

NEXT SEASON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—From a cursory glance at the mail, Tex Rickard will have no trouble whatever in promoting the third Tunney-Dempsey bout. The partisans of Jack Dempsey are just as insistent that the former heavyweight champion is the better man. The fact that Tunney got two clear decisions over him is not taken into consideration, writes N. O. McGuhan.

The argument is that Dempsey was not knocked out, and it is hard to call off the old tradition that a heavyweight champion must be horizontal before his supporters will concede defeat. It does not seem to matter that Dempsey was close to a knockout each time he fought Tunney. If the bout at the Sesquicentennial stadium had lasted a few rounds longer, Mr. Dempsey would have been counted out. If the bout at Chicago had gone only one round more, the former heavyweight champion would have been as horizontal as Joe Beckett ever was.

Of course Mr. Rickard will hold that third Tunney-Dempsey fight, since the prospective customers themselves are furnishing the ballyhoo. Just where it will be held is not yet decided, but to forestall the chances of the Tunney-Dempsey bout being made an annual event the next bout should be held in some place where the boxing laws permit more than ten rounds.

It has been demonstrated clearly enough in two cities that Tunney cannot only outpoint Dempsey in ten rounds, but that he can start him on the way to being knocked very flat. There has been talk of holding the bout in London, where the law permits twenty-five rounds, but the general idea seems to be that it will be held in New York City, where the law allows fifteen rounds. That would be long enough to permit a decision that would end the argument, and the chance of the most expensive show on earth continuing until the customers began to weaken.

When Corbett Fought

When James J. Corbett knocked out John L. Sullivan, much to the disgust of those who idolized Sullivan, there was no demand whatever for a return bout, though Sullivan had a greater following than is claimed for Jack Dempsey. The fight at New Orleans was all too convincing and Mr. Sullivan himself conceded that he was "beaten by a younger and better man."

ELECTED PRESIDENT.

Major Frederic McLaughlin, Head of American National Jockey Club.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (A.P.).—The election of Major Frederic McLaughlin, Chicago sportsman, as president of the American National Jockey Club, was announced yesterday by the board of directors of the new Arlington Heights track. Major McLaughlin, husband of the former Irene Castle, also is head of the Black Haws, the Chicago team in the National Hockey League.

RULES ON PUNTS

By E. J. O'BRIEN, Famous Football Referee.

The change that has been made in Rule 18 is expected to bring back the very pretty play of catching and running back a punt. In recent years most safety men or backs on defence, who were about to receive a punt, have been coached not to catch the ball, but to let it strike the ground. This was all for fear of a fumble, whereby the ends coming down the field would, as a result, recover the ball and run for a touchdown.

Years ago, I well remember, what a pretty sight it was to see a nervy safety man catch the ball and run it back, even though he knew that there were two heavy crashing ends coming at him with full speed, ready to tear him apart.

Jack Connell, the old Dartmouth quarter, and now assistant coach at Hanover, was probably one of the best receivers of kicks that football ever had, for his record is that he never muffed a punt.

The rule has now been changed so that any kicked ball legally recovered by the kicker's side before it has actually passed into the hands and possession of the opponents is dead at the point of recovery. This, of course, does not hold good on the free kick.

It simply means that if a man on defence gets his hands on the ball, and it is then recovered by the kicking side, that no run shall be allowed. However, there is an opening possible here. If the defence man actually catches the ball and starts to run with it, and is tackled so hard that he drops it, this ball may be picked up and run with. There is a rather sharp line to be drawn here, but the rule is clear when it states "before it has passed into actual control and possession of the defensive side."

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, us and the Pirates was knocked outa baseball for the season in the same day and by the same score, but you gotta admit anyway that he Petes made a better fight off it than Donie Bush's hired help did. It wouldn't of taken more'n a brake or 2 in either game to have made Mister Swanston's lads winners instead of the Hams, and in that last battle in the shadow of the Mt., if the O.B.A.A. had put a empire behind the plate that could get a straight bead on curve ball pitching, they would of been a 3rd game needed. This here Mister Chandler was fooled by Mister Hardill's curves about as often as the Oskies was, and that was plenty, and this here Mister Scott that busted in with a 2-bagger in the 8th was really struck out and should never of had a chance to make his hit. But the crowning blow was Mister Jimmy Hall's muff. Off-handed, Mac, I don't know any surer way of committing baseball suicide than to hoist a fly into Mister Hall's territory, but this time the ball oozed outa of his fingers, and with it oozed he game and the championship.

If Mister Shiner Johnston scored from 2nd on a sacrifice fly or Mister Swanston hit 4 balls to right field in 1 game or Mister Holyman tried to steal 2nd with the bases full, I wouldn't of been as much surprised as to know the Petes lost a ball game because Mister Hall failed to hold a fly. But that's baseball. You're a hero 1 min. and a tramp the next, and Mister Hall'll win a lotta ball games yet, take it from me.

Anyway, Mac, you gotta hand it to the home talent. They stuck together all summer when nobody else in town knew or cared whether they was a sr. team here at all, and when they did at last get into action they come within a coupla brakes of winning the sr. title. They gotta whole pile of joy kicking the Toronto winners in the slats, and they made the final serious so tight that the Oskies themselves admitted they was lucky. And that's a pretty fair wind-up to a season that started out as if it was going nowhere and had all year to get there.

The air is fulla rumours, Mac, about our hockey players signing up in the cash and carry circuit. Well, they was good fellows when they had it, and if they decide to take a chance to pick off some easy money from the new magnates busting into the pro. market, well, I for 1 wish them luck. It looks like the towns what pay attention to developing jr. hockey is going to get the cream of amateur hockey to look at, Mac, for all these new pro. clubs need players, and the sr. O.H.A. ranks is where they're looking for them.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, they ain't nothing more on my mind this week, so I'll toddle off.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

RECORD ENTRY OF PLOWMEN

International Match at Langstaff Draws 105 Entries.

90 PLOW AT ONCE.

TORONTO, Oct. 15. — With 105 entries and 90 men plowing at one time all previous records were shattered at the International Plowing Match at Langstaff. The crowd, too, considering the weather, which was rather cool and cloudy, was very satisfactory, between 15,000 and 20,000 people visiting the Municipal Farm, where the contest was held, during the course of the day. The heavy rains of the day before had put the sod in splendid shape, in fact this moisture was just what was needed.

Officials Well Satisfied.

"We are well satisfied with the attendance," stated M. O. Bingeman, Waterloo, President of the Plowmen's Association. "There are a lot of people scattered over the 800 acres of ground here." J. J. Duffus, Peterboro', Past President of the association, said that he had never seen so much good plowing in his life.

Reminded of Old Matches.

But at a gathering of this kind, which includes so many critical old-timers with experiences going back over half a century, all remarks were not as flattering as those from the headquarters' tent. George Pollard, formerly of Orono, recalled some of the old matches of 50 years ago. "You have a good crowd here and some good plowmen, but not a bit better than in the old days. We used to have some real good crowds then, too, and as for plowing, I have seldom seen the equal in recent times."

Practical Farmers Critical.

Then, again, practical farmers were somewhat critical of the time and care shown. They declared that a man should plow a good deal more than a quarter of an acre in the time allowed, and that it was ridiculous to use the hand or feet in turning over refractory furrows. But these critics forgot that this sort of plowing is an art, and as such requires much care. One cannot take any class of work or sport out of ordinary channels without a certain amount of "professionalism" creeping in.

The average farmer who thinks he can pitch horseshoes with the best of them will probably get a surprise when he sees the skill used at the contest at the Royal Winter Fair next month. Fishermen down in Nova Scotia used to stage a friendly race between homecoming sailboats loaded with fish, but in a short time we find that boats were especially built for racing, and only dirtied their decks with one cargo, which was one of the regulations governing the contest. No, the plowing at the match at Langstaff might not be fast enough for the average farm, but it was a demonstration of the highest skill.

Some Big Classes.

There were some big classes with 23 entries in the jointer plows, 14 in the class for Indians only, and 10 in the boys under 18. As the stubble was soaked the day before, the regular program of sod plowing was followed. This was in splendid shape after the showers, although some of the work would have been neater and more even had the sod been a little older and therefore thicker. Judges were unable to complete their work on the tractor in stubble and the boys' classes, but will announce their later, as well as the special prizes for best crown and finish in all classes.

Horseshoe Pitching Contest.

The Royal Winter Fair has put up a horseshoe pitch in front of their booth on the grounds to give contestants for Canadian championship honors a chance to practise. Interest has been so keen that a regular contest with special prizes will be staged, and the winners invited to compete in the tournament at the Royal Winter Fair in November.

Awards in Detail.

Awards in detail are as follows:

Second Class (high cut)—1, K. Thomas, Maple; 2, W. Short, Woodville; 3, Gordon Anderson, Maple; 4, Robert Lawrie, Markham; 5, Howard Ormerod, Greenwood.

Tractors in sod—1, W. Timbers, Stouffville; 2, H. J. Copperthwaite, Agincourt; 3, Ernest Evans, Maple; 4, C. Walkington, King; 5, Gordon Weldrick, Maple; 6, A. Cowan, Agincourt; 7, Elgin Smith, Malton.

Special Class (open to Indians only)—1, G. Garlow, Jr., Ohsweken; 2, T. Porter, Ohsweken; 3, N. Miracle, Deseronto; 4, Joe Young, Christina; 5, E. Eskewe, Cape Croker.

ROSENEATH FAIR.

usual had occurred.

Seldom is a road class, special race of the calibre of yesterday's race seen at any exhibition. Mrs. Horace Walker of Port Hope captured the honours and the admiration of the crowds as she drove down the stretch and under the wire, an easy winner. Not only was Mrs. Walker's turn out very smart in appearance but her horsemanship was of the highest quality. She drives with a skill, ease of manner and an amount of daring that is most rare in these days of automobiles and rapid transportation. Each time she sped past the judges stand, and all down the stretch, the speceators cheered her to the echo.

After the racing program had been completed, a little girl in blue drove her black spaniel dog, hitched to a wicker-work cart, past the judges stand and received the applause of the pleased onlookers. The little lady smiled bashfully but very sweetly upon her admirers.

The riding and driving by both ladies and men held the interest of a large portion of the crowd during the entire afternoon. The turnouts were exceptionally smart and the brand of horsemanship second to none. In this particular department, the judges were sorely tried to select the winners. Such a collection of well-groomed horses of all classes is seldom seen by fair goers. In order to relieve the monotony of perfection Harold Blodgett and Edward Turner appeared in the ring of sleek horses, driving the most dilapidated vehicles and scrawny horses which it is possible for the human imagination to picture. The effect was as it had been intended —highly amusing for everyone.

Shorty Campbell, the wandering cowboy, who hails from somewhere in the Province of Alberta, and, more definitely, somewhere in the foothills of the Rockies, gave an exhibition of just what can be done with a cowboy's rope. To use the thread-worn expression of the penny-dreadful magician, the quickness of the hand will sometimes deceive the quickness of the eye. A flick of Shorty's wrist and the rope was knotted, twirled or what-have-you. His line of entertainment is what one expects to find in some of the hair-raising and impossible tales of the wildest and most wooly West. But the Wandering Cowboy demonstrated the fact that these things are actually a reality. They actually can be done and are done in his part of the Dominion.

Motor Row Good

Motor Row formed the most commanding exhibition of the day. The closed models were in the majority among the exhibits, but the Star sport roadster seemed to attract considerable attention. This model was done in canary yellow and dark blue, a most attractive ensemble. The Falcon-Knight, Chrysler, Dodge, senior and four-cylinder line, and Overland Whippets also seemed to interest many. General Motors showed a fairly complete line of closed models of Buicks, Pontiacs, and Chevrolets. The Chevrolet truck was also in line for inspection. Hudsons were to be seen, as was also the Essex closed models. Oaklands completed the display of fine motor cars.

The Midway

Down the Midway was to be found anything that the heart could desire in the way of souvenirs or amusement. A little skill at throwing balls, feathered darts or rings would reward the skilful one with anything from a cigar or chocolate bar to an Indian blanket. The man who could hit the nail on the head, as the saying has it, could easily stock up with cigars. When the band stopped playing for a few minutes, Koister radios filled the breach. If a ride on the merry-go-round was not exactly agreeable to some they were able to find relief from their illness in the Arrowhead Indian Herbal remedies which were sold in the vicinity. Those to whom the fortune tellers did not prophesy an untimely death took a turn on the chair plane to stimulate their appetites sufficiently to munch another hot-dog. The famine which arose in this commodity before the end of the afternoon was a matter of genuine regret to many of the hungry ones.

At the end of the midway were situated two large marquees. In the first was the baby show Dr. Hershey, Rosencath spent the entire afternoon examining babies that were entered for the honors. The mother of each child as it was examined assisted the doctor. The infants were divided into two classes, those under nine months and those nine months and under fifteen months. Of course only one baby in each class could win the beautiful silver cup which was donated by Hopper Bros., Cobourg; but each child entered received a small consolation award. No doubt this very considerate provision aided greatly to the success of this number on the prize sheet.

The second marquee housed the poultry exhibit. While this was not as large an exhibit as has been at other fall fairs this season, it contained quite as many varieties and is the largest exhibit which Roseneath has on record. Some very fine specimens of Chinchilla rabbits, ferrets, and guinea pigs were also included in the exhibition lines of the marquee. At a late hour in the afternoon the judges had not completed their rounds of the tent and some of those interested in the poultry were slightly disappointed at not being able to see some of the specimens.

On the whole, Roseneath Fair this year surpassed even the highest expectations of the society. The attendance was larger, the entry list was longer and the competition keener than at any other time in history. The weather was ideal for the programme of entertainment and there were no serious accidents to mar the pleasure of the day. All afternoon the interest of the crowds did not wane in the least. If one attraction seemed to lose its charm for the moment, there was always another at hand. The officials in charge of the horse-racing expressed their sincere appreciation of the complete programme, and were inclined to be surprised that Roseneath fair in general had assumed such unexpectedly large proportions.

The exhibits in the field root classes contained some monstrous specimens of such things as turnips and mangles. The potatoes were of an exceptionally high grade. In the exhibition hall, the large number of entries made it necessary to crowd the various articles so closely that some of the work was not readily noticed, but the needlework and other domestic science exhibits were very attractive. Deserving of special mention is the home cooking exhibit. Every one remarked on the wholesome and attractive appearance of the various foods.

The officials and members of the Roseneath association are to be complimented on the remarkable success of their exhibition.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

EXPERIENCE

White-haired, stoop-shouldered, bent with age,
An old man creeps along the way.
A man who knows by heart the page
That other men must turn today.
Surely the world must love the sage,
Respect the words that old men say.

But old men learn one lesson more,
After the heart has learned the rest:
That youth cares little for the lore,
The knowledge, by old men possessed.
For youth would rather life explore
Than ask the old which way is best.

For life is not an enterprise
That men can master in a school;
Man finds the truth because he tries,
And in exceptions finds the rule;
Perhaps the wisest of the wise
Are those who first have played the fool.

Although our words are often spurned,
Although the world will listen not,
A lesson that is quickly learned
Is just as easily forgot.
Only the man that fire has burned
Believes that fire is really hot.

ETIOLOGY OF "HEART TROUBLE"

Those of you who are not familiar with medical terms may think that the word "etiology" has something to do with eating, and although I believe it is from eating that we develop most heart derangement, I will save youa a look in your dictionary and explain that etiology means a study of the causes of disease.

Both functional and organic heart disorders may develop from eating too much food, the use of wrong kinds of food, bad food combinations, eating when enervated, using too many liquids, and alcoholic or other stimulants. The heart has enough work to do in an ordinary lifetime without being forced to work against the distension of the stomach overloaded with food. There is a slight rest between each pulse beat, but the heart is a muscular organ which must remain constantly at work twenty-four hours of the day.

Every time a heavy meal is eaten there is liable to be a disturbing pressure upon the diaphragm and on the arteries in the abdomen which carry the blood to the lower parts of the body. The heart laboring against such pressure must grow old and tired before its time, and under such strain the heart valves frequently fail in their functions and are unable to open and close sufficiently for the proper distribution of blood to the circulatory system.

The pressure of an abnormal amount of stomach or intestinal gas may be cited as an equally important cause as that produced from overeating. It is a noticeable fact that the X-ray examination invariably discloses the presence of large gas pockets either in the upper part of the stomach or the splenic flexure of the colon of everyone suffering from any kind of functional heart derangement. It is doubtful if athletes would ever injure their hearts in any ordinary athletic competition if it were not because of the existence of this gas pressure during the time they are making some supreme physical effort. A schoolboy who runs a hundred yard dash a short time after eating a "gassy" lunch is in grave danger of developing heart strain with perhaps serious injury to some of the heart valves.

All athletes should remember the rule to have both the stomach and intestines as empty as possible just before a contest. If such precaution is taken, there is no need for the athlete to fear heart strain and he can then get all of the good from his exercise without the consequence of heart injuries which will handicap him all through life.

In tomorrow's article I will explain more of the causes which lead to "heart troubles."

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. Patterson writes: "I have read with interest your various articles, and especially have watched for an item on gaining instead of reducing. I think there are just about as many slim people who need advice as there are fat ones. Do you think malted milks all during the day will make me take on flesh? I want to gain just a little—I am so thin."

Answer: I have written many articles on the subject of gaining weight and will be glad to send some of them to you if you will give me your name and address, you will not gain any good weight by stuffing yourself. A reasonable amount of wholesome food is all that is necessary, if you will take proper exercises and build a strong muscular body.

Question: Mrs. K. T. W. writes: "Living in a small town it is not always possible to get the fresh vegetables. Still, we wish to follow your menus exactly. Would it be all right to use canned vegetables now and then, in a pinch?"

Answer: There is a widespread belief that canned foods are unwholesome, but with our modern methods of canning this is not true at the present time. Also, there are arguments about the vitamin content being lowered by food standing in a can for very long before being used, but there is no evidence to show that this decrease is very great. By all means use the canned vegetables if you cannot get the fresh ones, and I especially suggest: spinach, asparagus, string beans, corn French artichokes, pineapple and olives.

DOLORES COSTELLO COMING IN THRILLING MELODRAMA.

"Old San Francisco", the Warner Bros. extended run production which portrays the lurid days of Chinatown and the Barbary Coast, before and during the "Great Fire", is acclaimed by New York reviewers as one of the finest melodramas of the generation.

Beautiful Dolores Costello plays the part of a Spanish heiress who is kidnapped by a half-caste boss of San Francisco's underworld, and goes through weird experiences and horrors which all terminate with the furious onslaught of nature and the Great Fire which relegates "the mile of hell" to oblivion.

Warner Oland, the celebrated character actor is featured in support of Miss Costello. The photography is startling in its revelation of what may be done with the sensitive lens and the direction of Alan Crosland adds new honors to his already famous name.

The cast includes Josef Swickard, John Miljan, William Demarest, Anders Randolph, Charles E. Mack, Sojin, Angelo Rossito, Anna May Wong, Rose Dione, Lawson Butt, Otto Mattieson, Walter McGrail, Martha Mattox and Tom Santschi.

"Old San Francisco" comes to the Capitol Theatre next Monday for a run of three days.

GOLD GARTER CAUSES CHUCKLES GALORE IN NEW PREVOST COMEDY.

"Getting Gertie's Garter" Based On Avery Hopwood's Famous Stage Success.

The man who conceived the advertising slogan, "No metal can touch you," as applicable to garters, couldn't have had Gertie's garter in mind.

For Gertie's garter was of metal in its entirely — solid gold in fact. Its original purchaser thought it was a bracelet—and it is because of his mistake that the story of "Getting Gertie's Garter," a new Metropolitan comedy starring Marie Prevost, swings along at a highly hilarious pace.

Charles Ray, in the male lead opposite Miss Prevost, anxious to purchase a fitting engagement gift for his wife-to-be, buys what he believes to be a beautiful bracelet. It strikes his fancy and after its purchase he has his picture placed in a little frame which graces the dainty ringlet and gives the combination to his fiancee.

Later, as in the case of many engagements, the two disagree and Ray finds himself confronted with the embarrassing situation of having his former sweetheart wearing a hosiery accessory which conspicuously flaunts his photograph.

Ray's frantic chase after Gertie's elusive garter furnishes laugh-a-galore throughout this scream humorous screen version of Avery Hopwood's stage farce. It will be seen at the Regent Theatre Monday. E. Mason Hopper directed from the script of F. McGrew Willis.

Prominent in the cast are Del Henderson, Harry Myers, Sally Rand, William Orlamond, Franklin Pangborn, Fritzi Ridgeway, and Lila Leslie.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died sewing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married. David kills the fiancee of Arthur Graham in an auto accident. Graham's parents are bitter toward David. A neighbor consoles Mary. Then the trial is at hand.

CHAPTER VI

"I—I can't stand it, Mrs. Tomlinson, dear." Mary's hot young forehead against the thin bosom of Mrs. Tomlinson, her fingers held close to her cheeks, trying to catch up the tears as they raced.

"Hush, baby, hush."

"It isn't fair, it isn't fair, I tell you." Hot sobs that tore from her breast and seemed to carry her very inner being with them.

"Sh, Mary, dear. It's the Lord's will and all for the best," she murmured, clucking mother phrases against the tumbled soft hair, and stroking the head that was cushioned on her breast.

Quivering sobs that rippled through Mary's young body as did the wind through the hedge outside. Deep tearing sobs, till it seemed that the last would carry her away with it as it melted into the afternoon silence of the semi-darkened room.

"What can I do?" The face Mary lifted was wild, with a sudden leap of light to the eyes. A ferocity had taken possession of it at the thought of the inevitability of the court decision earlier that day. It wasn't possible—it was one of those things, those wild conjurations of the brain that took possession of the mind while asleep. But she was not asleep. This was no dream, but hard actuality. And, it being actuality, how could the frail feminine hands of Mary ward it off? What could she do? What could she do? Was this what was meant by taking leave of one's senses? There was that phrase in the book, "The harassed and long-suffering woman then took leave of her senses." This was it, then. These mocking thoughts that raced madly through your mind and laughed at one another and hid in dark corners and brooded, then raced madly on again. Her head. It was so enormous. There was a throb in it that grew from a little pulse to something that no longer was contained in her head, but that contained her head instead. It grew and grew, ghoulishly Gargantuan, till the corners of the room were pulsating with it. The throb was in the air; it leered at Mary; it minced closer and closer with grimaces that caused her to shrink, until finally the horror of it was too close. You couldn't retreat because of the horror you felt behind you. There was nowhere to go. Even Mrs. Tomlinson had joined forces with the capering host, and then Mary blessedly fainted.

Ten years at hard labor—he had taken it without flinching.

Those were difficult weeks. Mary had forgotten the existence of the high places, to which her gold tipped wings would carry her, as for thinking that she would walk their mighty crags with dainty feet—that was ludicrous, somehow. Life had taught Mary. Taught her sternly that it was high time she walked the earth, with others of her ilk. And Mary no longer rebelled at the position that had been relegated to her as she did during those first few days of Davie's sentence, when life seemed too cruel to bear. What was the use? Mary's soul had questioned her mind. What was the use of anything, if you were so unarmed, so helpless against this inexorable fate? It was like a builder who set up little careful stones upon one another. Set it up this way, and thus, and perhaps like this? All with an eye to the beauty of the ensemble. Then the wind that tore it down with a mocking laugh. "Pff! You builder! Work and toil and sweat for the beauty of the finished product, and sell your soul for it. You puny builder! Don't you know better than to play with me? I do not care for your bricks, builder. Their color does not please me. What! You have spent your life upon them, to make them snugly fit? What does that matter to me? I tell you I do not care for the color of the bricks!" And down they come. There seemed to be no protection against it. No way in which to ward off fate that plays with human lives as do kittens with straws. No. Mary would not rebel. She was glad now to be permitted to walk the earth, if but the chasms would be spared her.

She thought of the sentence that had been pronounced upon David that still summer afternoon so many decades ago. The courtroom had been crowded to suffocation. There had been the element of human passion in this case which had brought out all who had been able to walk. Mary realized only that afternoon the extent of her friendship in the town. So many eyes. Some of them smiting timidly, some avoiding her gaze, others staring frankly. Mrs. Tomlinson had been the bulwark. And Wally's steady gaze from the reporter's table near the bench. They had both buoyed her up somehow. The impassioned plea of the prosecuting attorney. Why did he hate David so? White faced David sitting beside his lawyer and looking at no one but Mary till called upon to testify in his own behalf. The testimony of Arthur Graham. That of a woman who had witnessed the catastrophe. The summing up, with the district attorney waxing more and more eloquent upon the beauty of the deceased, her loveliness, her charm, that had been cut off by this drunken roisterer, this killer of America's womanhood, this, this, this! That had been horrible, with the memories of Davie coming home with the Saturday pay envelope and handing it to Mary. "Here you are, kid. Let's have mushroom soup tomorrow, huh?—to celebrate." To celebrate. No. "Not mushroom soup, old dear. We shall save for the thermos bottle." Davie, all unaware. "Thermos bottle—bunk! The old whiskey flask is good enough. Let's have the mushrooms, Sister Anne." Very well then. It was difficult to refuse Davie. Very well then. They would have the mushroom soup. Davie had a passion for mushroom soup. Davie, the drunken roisterer, the slayer of America's womanhood, Davie had a passion for mushroom soup.

Then the jury left. Their return, slowly, weighed with the somberness of the occasion. Wally's eyes trying to find her own to signal courage. But she wasn't looking at Wally, though she felt the concentration of his gaze. There was not one for her eyes but David. White faced David.

Mary closed her eyes to shut out the sight of his face as the foreman delivered his message. Ten years at hard labor. He had taken it without flinching, making sure to flash a smile at her before being led away. Davie, Davie, her dear brother Davie! There was still this heavy weight on her heart, despite her obeisance made to the wishes of fate. It was difficult to think of Davie because everything else at the time dwindled in comparison. He and his life for the next ten years loomed large, blotting out the sun, the earth, existence itself.

She pressed her hand to her eyes, then shook her head as if to rid herself of a spectre. That was finished. Somehow the next ten years would be obliterated. She didn't know exactly how, but it had to be done. There was but one thing for which to live now. A culmination ten years hence. And, of course, Bobbie. There was always Bobbie. Young Robert who strove so valiantly to emulate his Lancelot. Alas, the tanned "Elaine" was growing whiter and fairer day by day, and Robert, who had longed for it during the days of lusty racquet swings, now carried an ache in his heart.

Mrs. Tomlinson came in to talk things over. "What do you intend to do, do you know, dear?" Her eyes were brooding places of sorrow.

Mary looked very young, and very frail.

"I don't know. Would you advise anything, Mrs. Tomlinson?"

"We were talking it over, Mr. Tomlinson and I. The house isn't yours, is it dear?"

"No. Davie rented it furnished." It was becoming much easier to mention his name.

"Do you suppose, if you got something to do, that you could keep it up?"

"I've thought of that, Mrs. Tomlinson. I don't think so. Bob and I will have to find a much cheaper place in which to live. A furnished room, somewhere."

The brooding pity in Mrs. Tomlinson's eyes.

(To be continued)

Are Parents People?

1. Does the present-day parent compare favorably or unfavorably with the parents of the past generation?

2. To what extent can parents be blamed for juvenile delinquency? And in what respects?

3. Can a parent, by controlling environment and companionship, mould the character of the child as desired?

4. Do you believe in the principle of parent education? If so, what should it include?

5. At what age do you think parent education should start? Should it be before or after marriage?

6. Do you think the inclusion of health as a major topic in a parent education scheme might do much to increase the physical well-being of the country?

By Most Rev. Archbishop Neil McNeil, Toronto.

1. Unfavorably, in the great majority of cases. The difference lies in a weakened sense of parental responsibility. There are so many agencies now assuming the work of guiding and caring for children that the parents cast their responsibilities on these agencies.

2. Impossible to apportion blame between parents and environment. dren obey. When environment be- Parents begin too late to make chilgins to influence the children, it is already too late to correct them unless the habit of respect and obedience was formed years before.

3. No. The moulding process must begin long before environment calls for control. At the age of six months, a child cannot understand what respect for parents is, but it can, then, or younger, learn to respect the wishes of its parents.

4. Yes. There is no efficient substitute for the family as the child's first school. The fundamentals of character are formed before the age of six. The parent need not impart much knowledge. The object of parental education is in the emotions—a sense of reverence, a sense of honesty, truthfulness, a capacity to bear disappointment, etc.

5. A knowledge of the duties of parents and of the ways of treating children should begin at the time of marriage. The actual training of the child should begin within a month of birth. The child has then at least as much sense as a domestic animal, and domestic animals can be trained.

6. It would help, of course, provided that it is not one-sided,—that is, if happiness is not sacrificed to material well-being. Too much emphasis on health may lead to neglect of habit and the vital importance of habit-forming practices. Happiness depends more on moral well-being than on physical well-being. An interesting volume on the subject is: "Essays on Duty and Discipline", published by Cassell & Co. (Published by arrangement with Canadian Social Hygiene Council)

BROWN—In proud and loving memory of our dear son, Flight-Lieutenant Percy Llewelly Brown, R. A. F., (formerly of the Bank of Nova Scotia) who died Oct. 16, 1918, from injuries received in an aeroplane accident while instructing in England.

Thou wast all that to me, love,
For which my soul did pine;
A green isle in the sea, love,
A fountain and a shrine
All wreathed with fairy fruits and flowers
And all the flowers were mine,
Ah, dream too bright to last!
Ah, starry Hope, that didst arise
But to be overcast!
A voice from out of the Future cries
"On, on!"—but o'er the Past
(Dim gulf) my spirit hovering lies
Mute, motionless, aghast.
And all my days are trances
And all my nightly dreams
Are where thy dark eye glances,
And where thy footstep gleams—
In what ethereal dances
By what eternal streams

GRAYSON PLANE IS NOSE HEAVY; FLIGHT HELD UP

Starts For Copenhagen, But Has To Turn Back Almost Immediately.

HARD TO KEEP IN AIR.

Fresh Start To Be Made To-morrow With Gasoline Suppiy Re-arranged.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. France Grayson's big amphibian plane, Dawn, hopped off to-day for Copenhagen, Denmark, but within quarter of an hour it had returned as a result of lack of balance in the air. It made a quick hop-off after a short run but had difficulty gaining altitude and some gasoline was dropped. Then the plane headed out to sea but landed again shortly after, back on the beach. Pilot Stultz explained it was nose heavy and it had been difficult to keep in the air. Mrs. Grayson's first words on landing were to Captain Jones: "We must have 260 gallons of gasoline at once. We will shift fifty gallons aft to give us better balance and try again." They still had two hours before the tide would block the attempt.

The decision to make a start had only been reached at seven this morning and a cheery "Well, boys, we are going to-day," was the first intimation to the newspapermen. Last-minute preparations were completed and the hop-off was made at 9:33 after a run of less than a mile. The plane, after rising in the air, found difficulty in attaining altitude and about 260 gallons of gasoline were released, streaming down in a white cloud. The plane vanished over the sea but almost immediately was seen coming back and apparently in good flying order landed on the beach at 9:47. Pilot Stultz said it was impossible to keep the plane up.

It was decided to postpone another attempt until the next tide because sufficient gasoline could not be loaded in time. This means to-morrow morning will be the time for another attempt, the plane being again in position. The plane had been barely twenty feet above the water when the gasoline was dumped and it shot upward on the first attempt.

COSTES CONTINUES FLIGHT.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—Dieudonne Costes and Lieut. Lebrix, en route from Paris to Buenos Aires, hopped off from Caravellas, Brazil, to day, for Rio Janeiro, a distance of 450 miles along the coast. They landed at Caravellas last night after a trip from Port Natal, where they had arrived after a flight across the South Atlantic.

French Reach Rio.

RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 17. — (Canadian Press). — The French aviators, Costes and Lebrix, arrived here today after a quick flight from Caravellas, 450 miles away.

THE WEATHER

This morning the thermometer was down to 27 degrees, and the roofs of many houses were covered with a heavy white frost. A year ago to-day there was an inch of snow on the ground, which, however, did not remain long. The latter half of October usually has a little snow, from a few flurries to an inch or so. A notable exception was Oct. 28, 1910, when something over 4 inches covered the surface. Do you remember that snowstorm, 17 years ago? If you had occasion to make a journey on foot or by vehicle on that day, you probably will, for it was an unusually heavy snowfall for so early in the season.—W. P.

Five Persons Killed In Plane Experiment

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Five persons were killed here Saturday night when a local experimental aeroplane crashed near Stinson Field, the municipal airport.

L. L. Clark, M. 32, of Houston, who was piloting the plane, was killed when the plane plunged to the ground, as were Mrs. Ed. Cavanaugh of San Antonio, her four-year-old daughter, and William Windburn, a reporter for The San Antonio Light.

Ed. Cavanaugh, husband of Mrs. Cavanaugh, died shortly after the accident in a hospital.

BURNING COAT ALARMS DRIVER

Smell of Cloth Calls His Attention To Fire In Large Truck.

VEHICLE DESTROYED.

A truck owned by the Andrews Transportation Company was completely burned at an early hour this morning on the Provincial Highway, about half a mile south of Kendry station.

At the time of the fire the truck, which was a two ton vehicle, was coming to this city, loaded to capacity. While coming down the hill the driver of the truck smelt burning clothes, and to his astonishment found that the tail of his overcoat was burning. He immediately threw the clutch into neutral and jumped. The truck coasted down the hill and struck the railing of the new bridge that was built this year.

The fire is supposed to have started when the engine backfired. Nothing is left but a twisted frame H. McGee went out this morning and towed the wreck in. He told The Examiner that in all his experience he had never seen a car or truck so badly burned.

All traffic was held up for more than an hour. Several loud explosions occurred.

TRAIN KILLS THREE HORSES

Wilbert Paul, of East Emily, Suffers Severe Loss During Night.

ANIMALS BROKE LOOSE.

EAST EMILY, October 17.—Wilbert Paul lost two horses and a colt during the night when they were struck by a train at Burgess' Crossing. One of the horses and the colt were killed by the impact, while the other horse had its leg broken and had to be shot. The three animals got over a fence during the night and wandered on to the track. Mr. Paul first learned of his loss when the section gang came along and reported the accident.

MILK WAGON HIT BY TRAIN

Boy Hurled 15 Feet at C.N.R. Crossing, But Escapes Without Injury.

110 BOTTLES BROKEN.

A Canadian National Train struck the milk wagon of William Clancy, this morning, on the crossing just south of Little Lake Cemetery. Mr. Clancy jumped before the train struck his wagon but a school boy named Burke, who was in the wagon, was hurled about 15 feet, escaping injury. The train at the time was going very slowly. Charles Peters, the man at the swing bridge, claims that the train whistled and that it stopped about fifty feet after the accident occurred.

Mr. Clancy says that he did not hear the train coming until he was on the railroad track and as soon as he saw it he jumped.

One hundred and forty-eight quarts of milk were spilt and one hundred and ten bottles broken. The horse ran away and was caught on George Street where it had fallen, hurting its leg.

Sergeant John Deannard investigated the accident for the police department.

FRANCE MAKES TARIFF OFFER

Would Apply Old Rates On American Imports Pending Treaty.

STICK TO PRINCIPLE.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The French Cabinet voted Saturday to make what Paris regards as a great concession to America on the tariff issue, and this concession has been embodied in a note which was handed to the United States Embassy yesterday morning.

The note is a highly interesting document and the most important yet written in the pending controversy. The concession which the Poincare Government regards as so important is this: As a temporary arrangement during the negotiations Paris agrees to revert to the status quo ante for American imports.

This means that American imports will be put back on the basis prior to the ediction of the new rates on Sept. 6. It is believed that this will be accepted by the Amerians.

The action does not amount to giving America most-favored-nation treatment in principle, because there remains a distinction between the minimum rates that Germany enjoys and the rates the Americans enjoyed prior to Sept. 6. However, materially speaking, the difference is very small.

France Holds To Principles.

In some cases, America would get better treatment than Germany; in some cases, not so good. What the French regard as important is their refraining from giving most-favored nation treatment in principle during the negotiations.

Another important point is that the French note begins by reiteration of the French stand of being willing to negotiate a commercial treaty with the United States only on the basis of reciprocity, and it repeats the French denial of America's claim to most-favored-nation treatment as a matter of right.

It is understood that the new note also makes it plain that France expects a modicum of concessions by America in establishing the temporary regime.

Thus it becomes apparent that the issue must be fought out as a contest between America's claim to the right of most-favored-nation treatment and Europe's reciprocal tariff system.

What the French seek to have the Americans understand is that there is at issue, not only the Franco-American commercial relations, but also the European tariff system. The French law of 1892 specifies in Article 1 that the French Government may give most-favored-nation treatment only to countries, which in turn make concessions to France.

Poses Europe's Position as Whole.

Not only that, it is argued here, but the whole European tariff system is based on reciprocity arrangements, which system would fall of its own weight were France to accord the best treatment to America without concessions. And that, perhaps, is why the New French note, it is said, makes plain to America what concessions the French would like to obtain.

One hears it also pointed out in Paris that France has no more discriminated against the United States in her new tariffs than against numerous European nations ,including three of her allies, Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Furthermore, it is asked, if America condemns all special treatment, how does Washington explain the special treatment it has enjoyed in Brazil and now enjoys in Chile.

What should be borne in mind is that the French expect the coming negotiations to cover not only the 2½ per cent. of American exports to France affected by the Sept. 6 rates, but 100 per cent. of American trade with France and French trade with America.

The French have been planning for two years to revise their whole tariff system, and thus the American negotiators will face problems arising from a possible general increase in the rates on American exports to France.

Claudel to Conduct Negotiations.

It is not to be forgotten that when the French rates were tripled in 1921, America was exempted ,largely because that course enabled France to oppose the German dumping danger, which no longer exists in view of the new commercial treaty with the Reich.

It is understood that the French are willing the negotiations shall take place in Washington, with Ambassador Claudel heading the French representation.

While the French make it plain that the new proposed regime should be only temporary, and contingent upon successful negotiations, there would be no surprise in Paris if the conversations extended beyond the period of the coming American Presidential campaign.

Rescuers Tell of Ruth Elder's Heroism Pleaded With Them to Save Haldeman

HORTA, Island of Fayal, Azores, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—A story of the heroism of Ruth Elder, relating how she pleaded with her rescuers to save her companion, George Haldeman, from the icy waters of the ocean before rescuing her, was told by members of the crew of the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, which brought the crew of the American Girl to land safely.

When the American Girl descended on to the tumultous seas beside the Barendrecht Thursday morning, 360 miles from land, Miss Elder and Haldeman clambered onto the wings of the land plane. The crew of the Barendrecht, under orders of Captain Goos, launched a ship's boat. High rolling waves tossed the boat about, and it was impossible to get near the plane.

Miss Elder, the crew related, was clinging to a wing of the plane dressed in a non-sinkable suit; Haldeman, on the other wing, was dressed for flying but not for swimming. The crew shouted to the fliers asking if they could swim. The fliers shouted back that they could not. The men in the boat then decided to throw lines to the fliers. As they prepared to throw the line to Miss Elder, they heard her shouting for them to save Haleman first.

Shouting her explanations, Miss Elder said that she could keep afloat in her suit, but that Haldeman would surely sink because he did not have his on.

The sailors threw out lines to both the fliers with orders to make them fast around their bodies, and both were pulled into the ship's boat.

Miss Elder's first words after putting foot on the deck of the Barendrecht were, "We will do it over again." She then thanked her rescuers, they recounted.

VARIOUS PRIVILEGES GRANTED PEASANTS IN SOVIET MANIFESTO

Council Holds Session Marking Tenth Anniversary of Bolshevic Resolutions.

SHORTER WORKING DAY.

Abolition of Capital Punishment Except Most Grave Offenses.

MOSCOW, Oct. 17. — The abolition of capital punishment, excepting the most grave offences and the commutation of prison terms, except of those convicted of working to destroy the Soviet government, was announced on Saturday night.

The announcement was made in a manifesto read by Alexis I. Rykoff, president of the Council of People's Commissars, before the Soviet parliament which opened an extraordinary session. The session, marking the tenth anniversary of the Bolshevic revolutions, was held in the Tauride Palace, built by Catherine the Great, in 1793 as a gift to her lover, Field Marshal Petemkin.

The shortening of the working day to seven hours and the granting of various privileges to peasants and workers were also provided in the manifesto.

The clause dealing with capital punishment reads:

Exclude Capital Punishment.

"Exclude from the criminal code in force in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, the application of capital punishment as a measure of social defence in all cases save in anti-government crimes, military and armed riots."

A Soviet government authority asked for an explanation of the meaning of "anti-government crimes," since such crimes might mean any crime against the Soviet government declared that under the manifesto the criminal code excludes specifically many crimes heretofore punishable by death.

Clause 10 of the manifesto directs the presidium of the all-Russian executive committee to commute the sentences of all serving prison terms whether punished judicially or by administrate order. This exception is provided however "Save active members of political parties aiming at the Soviet Government's destruction, villainous thieves of government funds and grafters."

The executive manifesto grants further relief regarding these items:

Increase in Budget.

Increase in the budget for workers' homes by 15,000,000 rubles over last year's appropriation, the release of 10 per cent. more of the poor peasants from paying taxes (25 per cent. of the poor peasants already having been released), the increase of the school budget for the population of villages by 15,000,000 rubles; and double insurance funds for war invalids.

The manifesto also provides the setting aside of 10,000,000 rubles to help poor peasants restock their farms and the working out of a scheme to make the peasants secure in their old age.

M. Kalin in opening the session with a few brief remarks, recalling Lenine's reading of the first Bolshevic programme in the same palace, and asked the delegates to rise in memory of their dead leader.

As the delegates rose and listened with bowed heads to Chopin's funeral march played by a military band, Leon Trotsky, recently expelled from the executive body of the communist international, entered through a side door, Gregory Zinovief, with him. They stood in a narrow passageway, near the speaker's dias, and remained standing there throughout the session.

Never since Lenine, pressed by superior forces, moved the Soviet government from what was then Petrograd to Moscow, has this city been quickened to the tempo it reached when the all-Russian central executive committee arrived for the session.

The Bolshevic leaders declared that last night's session of the parliament was representative. They claim that more than half of the members of the Legislature are not Bolsheviks, having been elected at popular peasant assemblies.

FINAL DETAILS OF CONFERENCE ARE ARRANGED

District Council of A. Y. P. A. Hears Report of Its Committees.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Cecil Hope, of St. Luke's, Succeeds John Bent, of Omemee, as President.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 17.—The forthcoming dominion conference of the Anglican Young People's Association, to be held in Peterborough starting on Thursday next, is to be an outstanding event, according to reports submitted to the Peterborough District Council at its meeting here on Friday night. There will be close to three hundred delegates from outside this district and their four days in Peterborough will be filled with features coming under the four headings of the A.Y.P.A. programme: Work, Worship, Fellowship, and Edification.

Outstanding events in the program are the great rally service in All Saints' Church on Thursday evening, with the Rt. Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Lord Bishop of Niagara, as the speaker, and the banquet at the Canadian Legion Hall on Saturday, at which the Rt. Hon. Sir George E Foster is to be the chief speaker.

Bert Graham of St. John's branch, chairman of the Conference Committee of the District Council, went over the general details of the activities arranged. Miss Clara Adams of St. Luke's, head of the Billeting Committee, reported on the problems and successes of her committee, which has probably the most arduous task of all. Miss Florence Hutchinson, of St. John's, in charge of refreshments, reported that the outside branches, Millbrook, Omemee, Lakefield, and Lindsay, had contributed generously in money, while the Peterborough branches are providing such edibles as pies, cakes, and salads for the luncheons to be served during the conference. Victor Sedgwick of St. Luke's reported that arrangements had been made for the banquet and adviced those present that they must buy their tickets early as the caterers wished to know how many to provide for. Miss M. E. Dawson of all Saints' reported good musical programs arranged.

Friday night's meeting was also the annual meeting of the District Council, and Cecil Hope, of St. Luke's, Peterborough, was elected President in place of John Bent, of Christ Church, Omemee. The report of the nomination committee was read by the convenor, Miss Blanche Graham of St. John's, Lakefield, and adopted without change. Other officers are as follows:

Patron—The Lord Bishop.

Honorary President—The Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., of St. John's, Peterborough.

Past President—John Bent, Omemee.

Vice-President—Miss May Blackwood, St. Paul's, Lindsay.

Secretary—Miss Dorothy Worboy, All Saints', Peterborough.

Treasurer.—George Beauclerc, All Saints', Peterborough.

Chaplain—The Rev. P. C. Howard, St. Thomas', Millbrook.

Publicity Secretary—E. J. Robertshaw, St. John's, Lakefield.

Dramatic Committee—J Gore, St. Johns', Peterborough, convenor; H. Hill, Christ Church, Omemee; and Mrs. W. Hepburn, St. Luke's, Peterborough.

The retiring president gave a short address, outlining the progress made in various lines during his term of office and thanking the executive and members for the support given him.

Horace Hill, the retiring secretary, reported on the number of meetings held and the accomplishments of the council during the year.

Miss Clara Adams, last year's treasurer, reported a balance of $51.51 in the treasury.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the Lakefield members and an invitation to hold the November meeting in Omemee was accepted. This meeting will be held on November 11, the second Thursday of that month, a motion to change the meeting night having been rejected by a large majority. The Rev. G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's acted as chaplain for the meeting, while the Rev. W. J. Creighton of St. John's, Lakefield, acted as installing officer.

MAYES WON'T LEAVE REFUGE

Discharged Superintnedent Declines To Give Up Position at Home.

LEWIS FRY IN CHARGE.

John Mayes, former Superintendent of the House of Refuge, has refused, on advice given to him by his solicitor, J. A. O'Brien, to reliquish his position. Although Mr. Mayes was discharged by the Board last Saturday, he has made no offer to get out.

The Board of Management of the House of Refuge has installed Lewis Fry, a resident of this city, as temporary Superintendent of the home. Mr. Fry is well known by the citizens as he was conductor on the Peterborough Street Railway for many years. He has the reputation of being very courteous, kind hearted, and obliging.

The Board has received many applications for the vacant position, but it is considering every application very carefully as it is known that the position is hard to fill and above all the wife of the superintendent must be a very capable woman because of the great many duties that fall upon her, especially when the old people are ill.

Handful of Rebels All That Remains, Mexico Reports.

BATTLE IMMINENT.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 17. (A.P.).—General Alvarez, chief of the presidential staff, announced yesterday afternoon Federal troops under General Escabor had discovered General Arnulfo Gomez with only thirty-five followers, in the Huatusco region of the State of Vera Cruz. A battle was believed imminent.

Surrender, capture or death in battle were the only alternatives for Gomez, General Alvarez said.

NOGALES, Ariz., Oct. 17. (AP).—Unconfirmed advices to the Nogales Herald say Colonel Mateo Flores, former chief of the garrison at Guymas, Corora, Mexico, has been executed by a firing squad at Tepic, State of Nayarit ,for complicity in the revolution.

Advices from Mexico City say the government has ordered the confiscation of the $1,000,000 estate of General Hector Almada, aide of the fugitive, Arnulfo Gomez.

Similar action will be taken with regard to the Gomez estate and the estates of other leaders who took up arms against the Government.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 17. (AP). — Another Mexican newspaper man has been deported in the Government's campaign to stamp out opposition. Victoriano Salado Alverez ,editorial staff writer for The Excelsior, was placed on a train for the United States Saturday night accompanied by an agent of the Department of the Interior.

Marie Says Ileana Companion to Her

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Deeply stirred by published reports that Princess Ileana had eloped with a young naval lieutenant, Queen Marie last night issued this statement:

"I am pained and indignant that it is possible for anyone to spread such idiotic and calumnious tales. Since King Ferdinand's death Ileana has never left my side, we are constant companions and cannot do without each other. Ileana's earnest sense of duty and love for me is a guarantee that she will always be the pride of her country and the royal family."

Ever since the sensational report of Ileana's elopement appeared in American and European newspapers the Queen and palace officials have been flooded with inquiries about the truth of the report.

FAIR CLOSES WITH BIG DAY

Young Canada's Day Draws a Large Attendance to Armories.

CONCERTS WELL ATTENDED.

The Produced-in-Canadia Exhibition presented last week in the Armories by the Kiwanis Club closed late on Saturday night, with the day's attendance recorded at over three thousand. The Exhibition concluded with as much enthusiasm as when it started. Saturday was "Young Canada's Day." There was plenty of patronage for the various demonstrations at the booths, the games and refreshment centers had their full quota and the Recreation Room, where the previous night's musical concert was repeated, had a good attendance. In the amphitheatre where the Grand Stand performance was given, there were packed houses for both shows.

The Rural School Children's Parade and Drill Competition in the afternoon, the results of which are given in another article, was an entertaining section of the day's programme.

The grand stand performance, included a repetition of the Pageant from the Canadian National Exhibition, "Arriving of New Canadians,"a Spanish dance, with encore, by Senorita Provita Vasquez of Lockport, N. Y., a step dancing contest, and a repetition of the one-act play, "The New Reporter," given by the first group of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A., who presented this play on Monday evening for one performance only, and gave it a second showing on Saturday night.There was also a repetition of the Fashion Show given earlier in the week by the Canadian Departmental Stores, Limited, and described fully at that time. This was an excellent parade of the gowns, hats, shoes and furs sold by these stores. Models were the Misses Mildred Merphet, Florence Adams,Violet Davidson Edna Conner and Maida Conner.

The decision of the judges, Miss Cathleen McCarthy of The Examiner editorial staff, Messrs. J. A. McKone and J. John, in the one-act play competition presented during the week, was given on Saturday night. The first prize of $15 was awarded to St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. (second group) with their play "Box and Cox," and the second award of $10 to the Keo Club of the George street United Church, with their play, "Trapped." Special mention was made of the play entitled "A Night in a Medical College," presented by the Dramatic Section of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum. A misunderstanding as to the exact nature of the competition arose in connection with St. Paul's Church Young People's Society, who presented a snappy musical sketch instead of a one-act play, the competition being intended only for competition in one-act plays.

The Step Dancing contest had three enries, the prizes of $3 and $2 respectively going to Miss D. Wilson of R. R. No. 2, and Mr. William McIntyre of Keene.

A new entry in the Pageant from Toronto was the little Chinese girl, Mary Lee Sing, Canadian-born

PRESS COMMENTS ON TORY LEADER

Suggests Conservatives Mean To Concentrate First On Farmers' Vote.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 17. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—The London Herald, commenting editorially on the selection of Hon. R. B. Bennett as the leader of the Canadian Conservative party, suggests that the Conservatives mean to concentrate first on the farmers' vote. But there is no fundamental reason, continues the Herald, why the Conservative party, which is foremost in upholding the British ideals and institutions should not succeed by carefully studying the needs of each province and by winning support in every quarter of the Dominion.

Health Association Hopes To Secure $1,500 By This Means.

HEALTH CHECK-UP.

Dr. G. S. Cameron Tells Rotary Yearly Test Is Desirable.

In bringing some of the features of the work of the Peterborough Health Association before the Rotary Club, to-day, Dr. G. S. Cameron took advantage of the opportunity to deal with certain phases of preventive medicine.

The interesting suggestion was brought forward by the speaker that some plan might be devised by which it would be possible for all citizens to have their bodies systematically checked up at least once a year. Dr. Cameron strongly urged such a check up as tending to produce longer life, and pointed out that it would not have nearly the same effect if it were confined merely to people who had means enough to pay for this annual inspection. It would be necessary to provide those not in good circumstances financially with an opportunity to be similarly tested.

The speaker led up to this phase of his address by giving a short history of preventive medicine. As an effective illustration of what had been accomplished along this line, he remarked that while the British deaths from typhoid fever during the South African war had been greater than the number of those killed or had died of wounds the deaths from typhoid in the world war had been less than one per cent. of the war fatalities.

Dr. Cameron advanced the Health Association's summer camp as an example of preventive measure. He stated that some 175 children had been in attendance at the camp this year and these had been examined by dotcors, members of a committee under the chairmanship of Dr. W. D. Scott. It was felt that as a result of these tests and of the treatment at the camp the children were being given a better chance to become healthy citizens. The cost of the camp this year had been taken care of by the Kiwanis Club.

As to the other work of the Association Dr. Cameron explained that a district nurse was provided and that the association supplied milk eggs, and other things to those requiring help. The speaker paid a hearty tribute to the committee of women chiefly responsible for the success of the Association's work.

It required, he said, some $2500 a year to finance the general activities of the association, aside from the camp and of this amount $1000 was paid by the city council, leaving $1500 to be raised. Dr. Cameron announced that it was hoped to secure that amount by the sale of Christmas stamps, preparations for the campaign being already under way.

At to-day's meeting Chairman A. L. Killaly expressed the congratulations of the Rotary Club to the Kiwanis upon the very successful Produced-in-Canada Exhibition.

INJURIES FATAL.

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct 17 (Canadian Press).—Two fatal motor accidents occurred in the city Saturday, the circumstances of which are being investigated by Coroner's juries. POLICE HUNT FOR GUNMEN

Continue Search For Murderers of New York Gang Chieftain.

BODYGUARD WOUNDED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. — (A.P.). — Confronted by the wall of silence which surrounds gang warfare on the Lower Eastside, police sought vainly yesterday for the perpetrators of the murder of Jacob Orgen, gang chieftain known as "Little Augie" who was ambushed and slain by a crew of five gunmen in Delany Street Saturday night.

Jack Diamond "Little Augie's" bodyguard, was still in a critical condition with two bullets under his heart, but he would not tell detectives who had shot him and his chief as they strolled along the crowded street.

Among the throngs that swarmed the pushcart lined thorougfare, police could find no one who recognized the killers, three of whom trailed their quarry afoot while two operated the getaway car.

Despite this reticence detectives knew that Orgen's death was due to activities of the reorganized "Kid Dropper" gang which still exists although its leader was slain on August 28, 1923, by Louis Kushner, a member of "Little Augie's" gang.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17. — Excellent foreign demand and short covering in October and November delivery wheat gave prices an early upward lift on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Saturday. The deferred futures, after sharing in the initial advances, declined fractionally before the close. The final range was ¾c. higher to ¼c. down.

One exporting house was credited with purchases in excess of 500,000 bushels of wheat.

An improved demand developed on Friday for rye while the other coarse grains were inactive.

Akey of Peterboro, appeared before Magistrate Floyd in Alderville on Friday, and was convicted of two charges, breach of the Liquor Control Act, section 72, sub-section 2, and to reckless and negligent driving. The offences were said to have been committed on Sunday, Sept. 25th, during the unveiling ceremony of the Alderville war memorial. Constable Seaborne made the arrest. At the trial, Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr appeared for the prosecution and J. A. O'Brien of Peterboro, for the defence.

To the first charge Akey pleaded not guilty, but was fined one hundred dollars and costs. Pleading guilty to the second offence, he was fined ten dollars and costs. It is understood that Akey will appeal the case at an early date.

Denounces Barnes For False Teachings

LONDON, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press Cable).—As Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, who recently criticized adversely doctrine of transsubstantiation, entered the pulpit at St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday to deliver an address on "Man's Creation — Blind Mechanism or from Design"— a robed clergyman, the Reverend Dr. Bullock Webster, Rector of a city church, accompanied by a number of young men, proceeded up the transept and denounced to the congregation, Bishop Barnes for his false and erratic teachings. He said, that Bishop Barnes had poured contempt on the doctrines and sacraments of the Holy Catholic Church. Dr. Webster called on the Bishop of London to inhibit Bishop Barnes and prevent him from ministering or preaching in any church within his jurisdiction. He demanded that Bishop Barnes be forthwith deposed and cast out of the Church of God until he recanted from his errors.

Dr. Webster then left and Bishop Barnes preached a sermon which was not interrupted.

Business In New York Is Of Personal Matter

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—"My business here has nothing to do with my holdings in the E. B. Eddy Company. I do not expect to see Mr. Graustein of the International Paper Company while I am here. My business here is strictly personal." Thus Hon. R. B. Bennett, in an exclusive interview with The Canadian Press last night, disposed of a rumor that he is here to negotiate with officials of the International Pulp and Paper Company for the sale of his majority share holding in the Canadian firm of E. B Eddy, and Company. The newly-elected leader of the Conservative party came to New York yesterday and will return to Canada to-day. He stated that he hurried here from the Winnipeg Conservative convention in order to conclude some personal business with a European friend who is sailing for home at once.

PRODUCE CIRCLES OPPOSE NEW REBATE

Condemn Tactics Employed By Steamship Lines in Meeting Opposition.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa, Oct. 17.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's).—Opposition to the 15 per cent. freight rate rebate offered by the Conference Steamship Lines to South African wool shippers last Friday is growing in produce circles here. At a meeting attended by practically every wool buyer in this city, it was unanimously resolved to send a letter to the Conference Lines strongly condemning the tactics employed by them in meeting the opposition of its competitor, the British and Continental South African Line, on the ground that those in the wool trade considered these tactics as nothing short of intimidation.

It is learned that the interests at Roubai, France, concerned in the importation of wool from South Africa, have refused to sign any contracts with the Conference Lines

FRENCH FLIERS NEARING GOALS OVER THE SEAS

Costes and Lebrix Given Reception By Brazilian Officials.

CHARLES AT KARACHI.

French Now Occupied in Admiring Exploits of Their Own Aviators.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—After lauding American fliers all summer, the French now are occupied in admiring the exploits of their own. The newspapers give the greatest prominence to the flight of Dieudonne Castes and Joseph Lebrix, and after them to Captain Charles, who left Villa Coubley Oct. 11, for a flight to Indo-China, and who yesterday was reported as having lnaded at Karachi. His flight has recalled the electrifying ed as having landed at Karachi. His to Tokio three years ago.

The goal of Captain Charles is Hano and his purpose is to prove the feasibility of rapid communication by aeoplanes between France and her distant colonies.

The fine reception given to Costes and Lebrix by Brazilian officials and the population of Natal are the subject of long articles in the Paris afternoon newspapers which also play up the fact that the fliers lost no time in getting away towards Rio Janeiro and their goal.

Miss Ruth Elder and Captain George W Haldeman, the crew of the ill-fated American Girl are receiving less and less notice in Paris, although Miss Elder's announcement that she might return to New York with Friederich Loose in D-1230 has somewhat revived interest in her. Miss Elder's insistance in keeping secret the story of her flight until somebody gives her a vast pile of dollars for telling it, has dampened much enthusiasm over her adventure.

Start On Second Hop.

The English woman, Mrs. Keith Miller, and Captain Lancaster, after a night in Paris, made the second hop of their London-to-Australia flight yesterday. Their light two-seater soared from Lebourget after breakfast and arrived at Gijon for luncheon. Their next hop will be Rome.

The German hydroplane D-1220, which left Amsterdam yesterday morning for Vigo passed Gris Nez at 10.35 o'clock.

Declines Offer.

HORTA, Azores, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—Her offer to take Ruth Elder to New York on the Junkers plane D-1230 was declined by Miss Elder, Lilli Dillenz, Viennese actress who is a passenger on the plane, has announced.

The American aviatrix who was rescued from the icy waters of the Atlantic wishes to go to Paris, Miss Dillenz said.

"From woman to woman, I say Miss Elder is a most charming girl, pretty and jolly despite her experience," Miss Dillenz said. "Paul Starke and I met Ruth and George Haldeman, her pilot, and privately offered to take them to New York. Ruth declined because she wishes to go to Paris.

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix in their Brequet biplane "Nungesser-Coli" landed north of Bahai yesterday near the Espirito Sante border. They flew from Port Natal, a distance of about 500 miles.

The two French aviators, who are nearing the completion of their flight from Paris to Rio Janeiro, and thence to Buenos Aires, Argentina, took off from Port Natal at 7.40 o'clock yesterday morning. They flew over Pernambuco two hours later, having covered a distance of 150 miles, and proceeded to their landing place, 300 miles further along.

The distance from Bahia to Rio Janeiro is 800 miles.

Start To-day.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—Reports of improved oceanic conditions yesterday led the crew of the Sikorsky plane, the Dawn, to hope that their hop-off for Europe, delayed for a week, might be accomplished to-day.

Navigator Brice Goldsborough and Pilot Wilmar Stulz said that radio reports from ships showed that the strong adverse winds, which have prevailed over most of the Atlantic for several days had at last diminished, and that the low area a few hundred miles from Newfoundland was moving northward and soon would be beyond their course.

In anticipation of the ordeal of the long flight the party spent the day quietly.

Igor Sikorsky, designer and builder of the plane, who came on a day or two ago to make a final inspection and watch its performance on the take-off yesterday, said that he was more than satisfied with the result thus far attained.

Lands At Vigo.

NORDDEICH, Germany, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—The Heinkel hydro-aeroplane D-1220 bound for the United States via the Azores, is reported from Teneriff to have landed at Vigo, Spain, at six o'clock last evening. The D-1220 hopped off from Amsterdam at 9.05 yesterday morning. The distance between Amsterdam and Vigo is about 1,000 miles.

The D-1220 was sighted passing over Brest at 2.35 p.m., according to a wireless message from that place, and was moving at fast speed.

The plane completed the first lap of the flight, from Wilhelmshaven to Amsterdam, Friday.

It is estimated that all the cut and polished diamonds in existence weigh only about ten tons, and could all be stowed away in one large wardrobe.

SPANIELS AND SETTERS LEAD

Both Classes Show Big Advance at British Kennel Show.

ALSATIANS LOSE OUT.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (by The Canadian Press).—One of the most significant features of the recent show of the Kennel Club at the Crystal Palace was the striking decline in the number of Alsations on exhibit. There were nearly three hundred fewer than at the previous show. Their popularity—if the results of this well-known show are any criterion—has been successfully challenged by the Cocker Spaniel or the Irish Setter, both of which classes showed a big advance.

W. H. Moore, president of the British Alsation Association, denies that the popularity of the breed is on the decline. "Some people no doubt have been scared by the publicity given to their reported delinquencies, but I think they have come to stay. By way of proof I may say that the entry at Birmingham was a record for the breed. My view is that people have come to the conclusion they cannot win in such huge classes, and have decided it is a waste of time and money to show dogs time after time."

A breeder of elkhounds said: "Alsations have been popular for a long time, and elkhounds will soon have their day. They are more docile and reliable."

Another interesting circumstance about the Kennel Club Show was that there was a considerable reduction in greyhound entries. Owners, seemingly, are too busy finding dogs for the prizering. Greyhound puppies which a year ago sold for five guineas now fetch from 15 to 20 guineas, and dogs have shown a similar increase in value. A prominent greyhound breeder in the North declared that Americans were scouring England for likely track winners and paying big prices for them. Irish dogs were being brought to race in this country, although generally speaking they were smaller, and not of such a good standard as the English dogs.

ARE WOMEN GOOD DRIVERS OF CARS

British Insurance Companies Inclined To Penalize Them in Policies.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (by the Canadian Press).—The question whether women are more dangerous drivers than men has been much discussed lately. It is interesting to find that several of the leading insurance companies are inclined to penalize women as far as accident insurance policies are concerned.

The Manchester Guardian relates that a man whose daughter had just bought a motor-cycle decided to take out an accident policy for her, as she had only taken out a third-party policy for her machine. After she had filled in the usual form he took it to a certain well-known company and paid the premium. When the policy arrived a few weeks later it was found that several clauses giving the company extra protection had been added. As the girl in question was an experienced motorist who had never had an accident a protest was made. The answer was: "They are really very good terms. We try to avoid insuring women against accidents if we possibly can, and if our representative had not made a mistake in thinking that the policy was for a man on your bringing it in we probably should not have accepted it at all."

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

Campbellford, October 17. — Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Irwin and Miss Katnerin Irwin, motored to Bath to spend Sunday with relatives there.

Miss Helen MacDonald is spending the week-end at home.

Through some misunderstanding, the Rev. Canon Vernon, who was to have had charge of the services in the Anglican church here, did not appear. The services were conducted by A. J. Jenkins, who is a lay reader of the church. During the absence of the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, a regular program has been arranged and some of the leading men of the Anglican church are scheduled to occupy the local pulpit. Local parishioners are fortunate in being thus given the opportunity to hear sermons from the higher clergy of their church.

The Rev. James Grier will be out of town during the first three days of the week. He will be in Brighton, Grafton and Toronto in connection with the business affairs of the church.

Miss Margaret Dickson spent the week-end in town.

MOUNT BALDWIN CAUSES COMMENT

British Press Asks Why Such Honors Can't Be Paid in Old Country.

LONDON, Oct. 17. (by the Canadian Press).—"A peak in the Canadian Rocky Mountains has just been named Mount Stanley Baldwin, in commemoration of the Prime Minister's visit to that country," comments The Saturday Review. "There is rather a subtle significance in this handsome gesture on the part of the Canadian people. Why it is that such a thing would be impossible in this country? POLICE HUNT FOR GUNMEN

Continue Search For Murderers of New York Gang Chieftain.

BODYGUARD WOUNDED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. — (A.P.). — Confronted by the wall of silence which surrounds gang warfare on the Lower Eastside, police sought vainly yesterday for the perpetrators of the murder of Jacob Orgen, gang chieftain known as "Little Augie" who was ambushed and slain by a crew of five gunmen in Delany Street Saturday night.

Jack Diamond "Little Augie's" bodyguard, was still in a critical condition with two bullets under his heart, but he would not tell detectives who had shot him and his chief as they strolled along the crowded street.

Among the throngs that swarmed the pushcart lined thorougfare, police could find no one who recognized the killers, three of whom trailed their quarry afoot while two operated the getaway car.

Despite this reticence detectives knew that Orgen's death was due to activities of the reorganized "Kid Dropper" gang which still exists although its leader was slain on August 28, 1923, by Louis Kushner, a member of "Little Augie's" gang.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17. — Excellent foreign demand and short covering in October and November delivery wheat gave prices an early upward lift on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Saturday. The deferred futures, after sharing in the initial advances, declined fractionally before the close. The final range was ¾c. higher to ¼c. down.

One exporting house was credited with purchases in excess of 500,000 bushels of wheat.

An improved demand developed on Friday for rye while the other coarse grains were inactive.

F. Kerr appeared for the prosecution and J. A. O'Brien of Peterboro, for the defence.

Denounces Barnes For False Teachings

LONDON, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press Cable).—As Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, who recently criticized adversely doctrine of transsubstantiation, entered the pulpit at St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday to deliver an address on "Man's Creation — Blind Mechanism or from Design"— a robed clergyman, the Reverend Dr. Bullock Webster, Rector of a city church, accompanied by a number of young men, proceeded up the transept and denounced to the congregation, Bishop Barnes for his false and erratic teachings. He said, that Bishop Barnes had poured contempt on the doctrines and sacraments of the Holy Catholic Church. Dr. Webster called on the Bishop of London to inhibit Bishop Barnes and prevent him from ministering or preaching in any church within his jurisdiction. He demanded that Bishop Barnes be forthwith deposed and cast out of the Church of God until he recanted from his errors.

Business In New York Is Of Personal Matter

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—"My business here has nothing to do with my holdings in the E. B. Eddy Company. I do not expect to see Mr. Graustein of the International Paper Company while I am here. My business here is strictly personal." Thus Hon. R. B. Bennett, in an exclusive interview with The Canadian Press last night, disposed of a rumor that he is here to negotiate with officials of the International Pulp and Paper Company for the sale of his majority share holding in the Canadian firm of E. B Eddy, and Company. The newly-elected leader of the Conservative party came to New York yesterday and will return to Canada to-day. He stated that he hurried here from the Winnipeg Conservative convention in order to conclude some personal business with a European friend who is sailing for home at once.

PRODUCE CIRCLES OPPOSE NEW REBATE

Condemn Tactics Employed By Steamship Lines in Meeting Opposition.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa, Oct. 17.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's).—Opposition to the 15 per cent. freight rate rebate offered by the Conference Steamship Lines to South African wool shippers last Friday is growing in produce circles here. At a meeting attended by practically every wool buyer in this city, it was unanimously resolved to send a letter to the Conference Lines strongly condemning the tactics employed by them in meeting the opposition of its competitor, the British and Continental South African Line, on the ground that those in the wool trade considered these tactics as nothing short of intimidation.

It is learned that the interests at Roubai, France, concerned in the importation of wool from South Africa, have refused to sign any contracts with the Conference Lines

FRENCH FLIERS NEARING GOALS OVER THE SEAS

Costes and Lebrix Given Reception By Brazilian Officials.

CHARLES AT KARACHI.

French Now Occupied in Admiring Exploits of Their Own Aviators.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—After lauding American fliers all summer, the French now are occupied in admiring the exploits of their own. The newspapers give the greatest prominence to the flight of Dieudonne Castes and Joseph Lebrix, and after them to Captain Charles, who left Villa Coubley Oct. 11, for a flight to Indo-China, and who yesterday was reported as having inaded at Karachi. His flight has recalled the electrifying ed as having landed at Karachi. His to Tokio three years ago.

The goal of Captain Charles is Hano and his purpose is to prove the feasibility of rapid communication by aeoplanes between France and her distant colonies.

The fine reception given to Costes and Lebrix by Brazilian officials and the population of Natal are the subject of long articles in the Paris afternoon newspapers which also play up the fact that the fliers lost no time in getting away towards Rio Janeiro and their goal.

Miss Ruth Elder and Captain George W Haldeman, the crew of the ill-fated American Girl are receiving less and less notice in Paris, although Miss Elder's announcement that she might return to New York with Friederich Loose in D-1230 has somewhat revived interest in her. Miss Elder's insistance in keeping secret the story of her flight until somebody gives her a vast pile of dollars for telling it, has dampened much enthusiasm over her adventure.

Start On Second Hop.

The English woman, Mrs. Keith Miller, and Captain Lancaster, after a night in Paris, made the second hop of their London-to-Australia flight yesterday. Their light two-seater soared from Lebourget after breakfast and arrived at Gijon for luncheon. Their next hop will be Rome.

The German hydroplane D-1220, which left Amsterdam yesterday morning for Vigo passed Gris Nez at 10.35 o'clock.

Declines Offer.

HORTA, Azores, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—Her offer to take Ruth Elder to New York on the Junkers plane D-1230 was declined by Miss Elder, Lilli Dillenz, Viennese actress who is a passenger on the plane, has announced.

The American aviatrix who was rescued from the icy waters of the Atlantic wishes to go to Paris, Miss Dillenz said.

"From woman to woman, I say Miss Elder is a most charming girl, pretty and jolly despite her experience," Miss Dillenz said. "Paul Starke and I met Ruth and George Haldeman, her pilot, and privately offered to take them to New York. Ruth declined because she wishes to go to Paris.

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix in their Brequet biplane "Nungesser-Coli" landed north of Bahai yesterday near the Espirito Sante border. They flew from Port Natal, a distance of about 500 miles.

The two French aviators, who are nearing the completion of their flight from Paris to Rio Janeiro, and thence to Buenos Aires, Argentina, took off from Port Natal at 7.40 o'clock yesterday morning. They flew over Pernambuco two hours later, having covered a distance of 150 miles, and proceeded to their landing place, 300 miles further along.

The distance from Bahia to Rio Janeiro is 800 miles.

Start To-day.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—Reports of improved oceanic conditions yesterday led the crew of the Sikorsky plane, the Dawn, to hope that their hop-off for Europe, delayed for a week, might be accomplished to-day.

Navigator Brice Goldsborough and Pilot Wilmar Stulz said that radio reports from ships showed that the strong adverse winds, which have prevailed over most of the Atlantic for several days had at last diminished, and that the low area a few hundred miles from Newfoundland was moving northward and soon would be beyond their course.

In anticipation of the ordeal of the long flight the party spent the day quietly.

Igor Sikorsky, designer and builder of the plane, who came on a day or two ago to make a final inspection and watch its performance on the take-off yesterday, said that he was more than satisfied with the result thus far attained.

Lands At Vigo.

NORDDEICH, Germany, Oct. 17.—(A.P.)—The Heinkel hydro-aeroplane D-1220 bound for the United States via the Azores, is reported from Teneriff to have landed at Vigo, Spain, at six o'clock last evening. The D-1220 hopped off from Amsterdam at 9.05 yesterday morning. The distance between Amsterdam and Vigo is about 1,000 miles.

The D-1220 was sighted passing over Brest at 2.35 p.m., according to a wireless message from that place, and was moving at fast speed.

The plane completed the first lap of the flight, from Wilhelmshaven to Amsterdam, Friday.

It is estimated that all the cut and polished diamonds in existence weigh only about ten tons, and could all be stowed away in one large wardrobe.

SPANIELS AND SETTERS LEAD

Both Classes Show Big Advance at British Kennel Show.

ALSATIANS LOSE OUT.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (by The Canadian Press).—One of the most significant features of the recent show of the Kennel Club at the Crystal Palace was the striking decline in the number of Alsations on exhibit. There were nearly three hundred fewer than at the previous show. Their popularity—if the results of this well-known show are any criterion—has been successfully challenged by the Cocker Spaniel or the Irish Setter, both of which classes showed a big advance.

W. H. Moore, president of the British Alsation Association, denies that the popularity of the breed is on the decline. "Some people no doubt have been scared by the publicity given to their reported delinquencies, but I think they have come to stay. By way of proof I may say that the entry at Birmingham was a record for the breed. My view is that people have come to the conclusion they cannot win in such huge classes, and have decided it is a waste of time and money to show dogs time after time."

A breeder of elkhounds said: "Alsations have been popular for a long time, and elkhounds will soon have their day. They are more docile and reliable."

Another interesting circumstance about the Kennel Club Show was that there was a considerable reduction in greyhound entries. Owners, seemingly, are too busy finding dogs for the prize-ring. Greyhound puppies which a year ago sold for five guineas now fetch from 15 to 20 guineas, and dogs have shown a similar increase in value. A prominent greyhound breeder in the North declared that Americans were scouring England for likely track winners and paying big prices for them. Irish dogs were being brought to race in this country, although generally speaking they were smaller, and not such a good standard as the English dogs.

ARE WOMEN GOOD DRIVERS OF CARS

British Insurance Companies Inclined To Penalize Them in Policies.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (by the Canadian Press).—The question whether women are more dangerous drivers than men has been much discussed lately. It is interesting to find that several of the leading insurance companies are inclined to penalize women as far as accident insurance policies are concerned.

The Manchester Guardian relates that a man whose daughter had just bought a motor-cycle decided to take out an accident policy for her, as she had only taken out a third-party policy for her machine. After she had filled in the usual form he took it to a certain well-known company and paid the premium. When the policy arrived a few weeks later it was found that several clauses giving the company extra protection had been added. As the girl in question was an experienced motorist who had never had an accident a protest was made. The answer was: "They are really very good terms. We try to avoid insuring women against accidents if we possibly can, and if our representative had not made a mistake in thinking that the policy was for a man on your bringing it in we probably should not have accepted it at all."

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

Campbellford, October 17. — Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Irwin and Miss Katherin Irwin, motored to Bath to spend Sunday with relatives there.

Miss Helen MacDonald is spending the week-end at home.

Through some misunderstanding, the Rev. Canon Vernon, who was to have had charge of the services in the Anglican church here, did not appear. The services were conducted by A. J. Jenkins, who is a lay reader of the church. During the absence of the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, a regular program has been arranged and some of the leading men of the Anglican church are scheduled to occupy the local pulpit. Local parishioners are fortunate in being thus given the opportunity to hear sermons from the higher clergy of their church.

The Rev. James Grier will be out of town during the first three days of the week. He will be in Brighton, Grafton and Toronto in connection with the business affairs of the church.

Miss Margaret Dickson spent the week-end in town.

LIQUOR PERMITS.

One of the surprising features of the operation of the Liquor Control Act in Ontario is the comparatively small number of permits sold up to the present time.

The total is approximately 260,000 out of a population of over three million people, and it must be remembered that a very large percentage of the permits sold were purchased by tourists.

The number of Ontario people who have shown a desire to take advantage of the privilege of legally buying liquor has been much less than was anticipated, following the heavy vote in favour of the Government control policy, and emphasizes the fact that thousands of electors who had no wish to drink liquor themselves supported that policy because they believed that it would bring about improved conditions.

The lesson to be taken is that it will pay those who appreciate the privilege of legal purchase to obey the law and insist upon its enforcement.

Otherwise there might be a chance of heart on the part of the large number of voters who personally are not concerned about the sale of liquor.

THE RURAL SCHOOLS' PART.

One important object aimed at by the Kiwanis Club is to bring about a closer entente between the city and country a development that has been sought through various channels but through none more effectively than through the happily conceived idea of having the rural school children play a part in the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition.

The visit of so many children from the district schools to the Exhibition on Saturday afternoon contributed materially toward a better understanding between rural and urban residents.

The parade and other features of the demonstration formed a delightful surprise for the city folks who saw them, while on the other hand, the children most thoroughly enjoyed their afternoon at the Exhibition and appreciated the opportunity to display the progress they are making.

In the whole week's programme there was nothing more pleasing than the willingness of the rural schools to co-operate and the success which attended their contribution toward the Exhibition's activities.

Their visit was an outstanding feature of an event that was packed full of features.

IT TAKES MORAL COURAGE.

A clergyman in an Eastern Ontario town appeared in Police Court recently to testify against a motorist who had failed to bring his car to a stop before entering a through street.

The minister had seen the breach of the traffic rules—in fact, his own car had nearly been involved in a collision because of the failure of the other driver to stop—and had reported the incident to a traffic officer, giving the number of the erring motorist's car.

In Police Court the reverend witness expressed regret at having found it necessary to make a complaint, but avowed his intention of reporting every such infraction of the traffic regulations, declaring that it was the duty of every good citizen to help make the streets safe.

It takes a certain amount of moral courage to take a stand like this on behalf of safer driving conditions, but there is not the slightest doubt that if drivers who are scrupulous themselves about obeying the traffic regulations would report all violations of the Highways Act they see there would be an immediate improvement.

There are many drivers who will pay no attention to the law if they think that they are outside the scrutiny of the police, and it would require a few public-spirited citizens like the clergyman mentioned above to convince such motorists that it is cheaper as well as better to obey the regulations.

THE HOCKEY OUTLOOK.

With three well-known members of the Peterborough Senior Hockey Club, which has given the city so much publicity during recent years, leaving shortly for Kansas City, where they will play professional hockey during the coming season, the prospects for senior hockey here this winter are, to say the least, not remote.

The rapid development of professional hockey, as a result of Canada's fascinating winter game capturing the admiration of sport-loving Americans, leaves the Ontario Hockey Association, the cradle of the game, face to face with new conditions.

New professional organizations, commanding plenty of capital, need players; the demand is almost greater than the supply, and Ontario is being combed for material.

Salaries are being offered on a scale unthought of but yesterday, and promising players find a new avenue of wealth opening out before them.

And the end is not in sight—more and more United States cities are becoming interested in hockey, and the demand for Canadian players is sure to increase as our neighbors have not yet succeeded in producing stars on their own account.

Ontario, in short, promises to be bled white of senior material, and that brings us up against the self-evident fact that communities on this side of the line that want hockey have to start from the ground up.

The wise town will concentrate its efforts on developing a strong junior team—and even then must reconcile itself to the fact that even crack juniors will be lured away by the big money across the border.

The present outlook for hockey is far from pleasant, but the old law of supply and demand cannot be dodged.

MANNERS AND MANNERS.

The teaching of manners in our London schools is treated by The Ottawa Journal with a levity which would cause us pain if we did not realize that its gibes are directed against the form of good manners rather than the substance. We quote:

"We can imagine nothing less stimulating to a freckled youngster than a blackboard demonstration of table manners, or a solemn address on the proper handling of the knife and fork. Some hearty victuals ought to go with this course, and from the elementary study of porridge and roast beef the classes would progress by easy and gradual stages to the more intricate problems of the boiled egg, corn-on-the-cob, oysters on the half shell and—in the very highest grades—the supreme social art of balancing in one hand a cup of tea, a sandwich, and a piece of cake without imperilling Milady's frock or agitating a hostess proud of her valued china."

Such details of etiquette are of minor importance, and are valuable only in so far as they may protect the bashful guest from ridicule. Such ridicule would be a real offence against good manners, because it would spring from a lack of kindness and consideration. Noble manners, says Tennyson, are the flower and native growth of noble mind. This is the root of the matter. Children should be taught to show special consideration and courtesy toward new pupils, toward those who are weak in body or mind, toward those who are deformed or poorly dressed, as well as toward their elders. There is no harm in telling them about some of the details found in books on etiquette. But if the plant of courtesy is firmly rooted in "noble mind" there need be little anxiety about the flowers.—London Advertiser.

SIMPLIFYING TAXATION.

Taxation is a dismal enough branch of the "dismal science," from the standpoint of its victims, but it steadily becomes more necessary, as well as more complicated. The meetings in Toronto this week of the National Tax Association and of the Canadian Tax Conference have attracted representatives from forty-two States and from several Canadian Provinces, all of them practically interested as tax collectors or administrators. They may not fix the amount of taxation, but they have to carry out the collection, and they are seeking means of standardization and simplification which will be beneficial to citizens of the two countries.

One of the noteworthy movements of recent years has been that for a reciprocal inheritance tax, under which one State or Province will apply the same laws and regulations as another in regard to taxation on intangible personal property. Hon. Mark Graves, of Albany, N. Y., one of the prime movers for this change, is among those attending the conference here. So far, twenty-two States have come within the provisions of this reciprocal arrangement, either by direct legislation or by not having an inheritance tax in operation. The advocates of the plan are not opposing inheritance taxes, but are, rather, seeking to relieve them of some of the complications which in some States baffle all but the best lawyers, thus making administration of estates a long and costly proceeding. It is felt that if the Canadian Provinces fall into line it will be another attraction for United States capital flowing toward this country for the development of our resources.

Tax exemption has become a troublesome matter in some of the States where liberal concessions have been given for the encouragement of industry. Legislation against such concessions at last became advisable in Ontario but the delegates from over the border have much upon which to confer in this connection. The gasoline tax is a modern growth, and is so general that forty-six States now have it, the exceptions being New York and Illinois.

It is doubtful if taxation could be made a popular study, but the visit of the experts now in the city will leave an impression of a serious effort to lighten the worries, if not to reduce the payments, of a tax-burdened age.—The Globe.

COMMUNISM IN BRITAIN.

Great Britain can hardly be considered as in serious danger from Communism when the organized members of that party can muster only some 7,300 members out of 45,000,000 of population. Yet this number is the latest revelation of its strength, or weakness rather. Last year at the date of the unsuccessful coal strike, the party claimed 10,000 members, so that its strength is waning, not increasing, and its publications have also been reduced by thirty per cent. during the past six months. Of course, 7,300 does not represent the Communist strength in the country, judging from the pollings in certain constituencies. But a cult that can only attract a handful of followers into its active organizations cannot be regarded as formidable.

Whether Communism will increase from its present standing in the British Isles, is an interesting subject of speculation. In the meantime the odds seem to favor its further elimination. Its tenets evidently are not making much headway in British trades union circles, as recent votes in the Trades Union Congress and at other labor gatherings show conclusively. The British working man evidently is antipathetic rather than sympathetic towards the Third International, a body with whose policies and methods he finds himself in sharp disagreement. Premier Baldwin, whose knowledge of the British worker is extensive, has abounding faith in his fundamental common sense and dislike of violence. But the Government will act prudently, as will the masters of industry, if they endeavor to remove as far as possible the conditions on which Communism lives and thrives.

If The Westminster Gazette is reliably informed, the Russian Soviets will soon inaugurate an endeavor to induce the British Government to restore diplomatic and commercial relations. Not long ago Arcos, the Soviet headquarters in London, was raided and its officials ordered to leave the country on short order. A brief experience of being sent to Coventry is reported to have brought about a change of heart and Moscow is thought to be preparing an offer similar to that made France. In brief, it is said that Moscow will offer to renew negotiations for British credits in return for settlement of the claims of Russia's creditors. Britain, however, will not snap at the opportunity unless completely satisfied that the Bolsheviki can be trusted to honor their pledges. Meantime, their reputation in that regard is far below par, the distrust coming from their own disregard of the ordinary amenities and obligations of civilization.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Produced-in-Canada Exhibition will be remembered as one of the most successful affairs of its kind in local annals.

There are times when one fancies that The Toronto Telegram is not completely satisfied that the Conservative convention made the best possible choice.

And now Mr. Ferguson will have a chance to explain the Meighen bout for the benefit of the electors of Prince Edward.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—Lowest prices yet for corn this season were reached Saturday as a result of heavy selling by holders unable or unwilling to face further losses. Largely owing to corn weakness, other grain sagged. Closing quotations on corn were unsettled, ½c to 1½c net lower, with wheat ⅝ to ⅞c off, oats ¼c to ⅝c down, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 27c.

From the new bottom level, and after an overnight drop of 3c a bushel in some cases, the corn market had a fair rally, but the finish was well below the preceding close. Bright, clear, windy weather favorable for maturing the crop had a good deal to do with increasing bear sentiment, but pressure to sell was also ascribed to continued influence of the recent government report indicating that the 1926 field may yet be equaled this season or perhaps even exceeded.

As the market now stands, about 7½c to 8c a bushel has been clipped from the value of the country's corn crop as compared with a week ago. Contributing to the declines in price Saturday was the fact that a period of auspicious weather appeared to be in prospect for the forepart of the coming week. Besides primary arrivals of corn last week showed an increase, the total being 3,211,000 bushels against 2,008,000 bushels the week before.

Word of improving condition for threshers in Canada tended to ease wheat prices down, houses with connections northwest led the selling, considerable of which appeared to be of a hedging character against the movement of new spring wheat northwest. Less pessimistic advices meanwhile in regard to the Australian crop outlook were also at hand. Oats followed the action of other grain.

Provisions averaged lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here was of the usual Saturday character and only a moderate amount of business was done. The domestic trade in cash grain was slow, but the undertone was steady.

A fairly active business was done in all lines of millfeed and prices were well maintained. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and prices were steady.

The inquiry from London, England, for Canadian baled hay continued good. The spot trade was quiet and steady.

Prices for all grades of eggs ruled steady under a moderate demand. The receipts were 522 cases.

The demand for butter was again of a limited character, but prices ruled steady. The receipts were 707 packages.

In sympathy with the lower prices ruling at country boards, combined with the indifferent demand from English importers, the local cheese market was easier and prices were reduced ¼c per pound. The receipts were 7,735 boxes.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

If it is not obtruding, my views in an analysis of the Ferguson-Meighen clash, perhaps I may be allowed to give them by reason of the fact that I was at Ottawa during the greater part of the period under discussion.

First of all it must be noted that all the leaders of the Conservative party and the entire executive of the Convention begged Mr. Meighen not to introduce a subject which had passed into oblivion with the defeat and retirement of Mr. Meighen himself. But no. He was bound to bring the matter before the Convention and did so. Unless his war policy therefore was repudiated it would stand as endorsed. There is no getting away from that. If the Convention did not assure Mr. Meighen that he had made a mistake in his Hamilton-Bagot-Massey Hall speeches it follows that it did not think so. Hence, Sir Robert Borden, Mr. Bennett, Sir Thomas White, Mr. Ferguson, etc., felt bound to answer Mr. Meighen and Mr. Ferguson was chosen to make the answer. Mr. Meighen's war policy is exactly that of Mr. Bourrassa who has preached it for many years. Mr. Bourrassa is opposed to British connection altogether, notwithstanding the fact so universally overlooked that England won this country, both by right of discovery and conquest. Part of it, such as Hudson's Bay and British Columbia was hers, admittedly, by right of discovery. The rest she acquired by conquest. Canadians were given the country by Britain not to become a separate nation, but to govern and administer it as a part of the British Empire. This fact Mr. Bourassa rebels against as does Mr. Meighen's ally, Mr. Lavergne, and now Mr. Meighen himself.

For the sake of gaining power in Quebec Mr. Meighen is and was ready to repudiate any obligation to remain within the Empire and to defend it. This position Mr. Ferguson denounced, and, of course, rightly so.

The issue is neither Mr. Meighen nor Mr. Ferguson, but connection with the Empire. It is impossible to be in the Empire and to be out of it at the same time. The Irish Free State does better than that. Mr. Meighen stands out as the advocate of independence. The struggle in the Conservative party is between those who wish to remain as an integral part of the Empire and willing to defend it and those who do not. Those who propose to adopt the policy of standing out until we decide where we will go and what we shall do are Meighenites and Bourassaites. The time to decide such a question is before a war not when war is declared or imminent. That is self-evident. Hence the necessity if Conservatives are loyal to the Empire, of saying so now and not standing out as mere huckstering opportunists, looking to see which way the wind which will blow us into power, is blowing. Such a course is contemptible from every point of view, and the sober second-thought of Conservatives undoubtedly will be, if the party is to continue, that Mr. Meighen made two mistakes: first in adopting such a policy and secondly, in defending it. It had at all hazards, to be repudiated by all loyal men and women. The calamity or crisis, whichever we call it, is Mr. Meighen's work, both in the first instance and in the second, and a distinct repudiation of it was necessary, and Mr. Ferguson made that repudiation.

An Empire whose people do not know just yet whether they will defend it or not cannot be much of an Empire. The same disruptive forces which precipitated the American Civil War are at work here. Our duty is plain if we desire to do it, but it does not lie in the direction of cheering those who stand in awe of the Bourassas and the Lavergnes and are prepared to sacrifice everything for their support. The Conservative party is in grave danger of falling on evil times.

—J. H. Burnham.

A Thought For To-day

We are all so prone to slight or neglect doing the little details on time and almost before we know it these undone little things pile up and get in our way and it is then that we feel we have more than we can do.

MILLBROOK UNITED W.M.S. MEETING

Attendance Large in Spite of Heavy Rain on Wednesday.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 17.—The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church held its October meeting on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. E. S. Burnham, and in spite of the heavy downpour of rain which continued all day, there were about twenty members present.

Mrs. F. H. Howard took the chair for the opening business period, and announced that the W.M.S. Sectional Meeting will be held at Bailieboro on Thursday, October 20, the local Auxiliary to furnish a paper on "Mission Band Work," and one or two musical selections. Mrs. Ofa Williamson, who was band leader last year, will give the paper requested, and the music will be arranged for.

The thankoffering envelopes were given out to the group leaders, this offering to be received either at the November or December meetings. Members of the former Methodist church Auxiliaries were accustomed to give their annual thank-offering at Easter, and considering that many other special financial calls are coming at this season it was decided to adhere to this custom another year, but to ask that something be put in the envelopes this fall in order that the Auxiliary be credited with a thank-offering in this year.

Group E, Mrs. Hilliard Lang, convener, took charge of the programme, the corresponding secretary reading a devotional leaflet on "Faith and Moods," based upon the passage, "This is the victory that overcometh the world even our faith," 1, John, 5:4.

Mrs. A. J. Brown took up the first chapter in the new study book, "New Paths for Old Purposes," by Margaret E. Burton, the material presented being both inspiring and interesting.

A duet, "Go Tell The World of His Love," by Mrs. W. G. Rowland and Mrs. F. McMahon, was much appreciated.

The members of Group E assisted Miss Burnham in serving at the tea hour which followed the meeting, the formal vote of thanks being moved by Mrs. J. McKnight, and seconded by Mrs. (Dr.) Rae.

Miss S. Hetherington furnished music during the social hour.

BRANTFORD LADY HAS EARLY TURNER

Picture Painted By Artist While Studying With Reynolds.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 17 (by the Canadian Press).—It has been discovered that Mrs. F. W. Craig, a resident of this city, has in her posse sion an oil painting by Turner, executed by this famous painter in his early days, when he was studying under the great Reynold.

The picture was until recently stored away, and was purchased by the present owner at an auction sale. In this work the painter represents himself in a boyish mood, hunting birds' nests under a hedge. As far as is known, this painting came out from England nearly a century ago.

THE AFTERNOON FROCK

They Call it the "Robe D'apres-midi" in Paris, Where It's the Smartest of Fashion's Features.

Jean Patou is the creator of this colorful afternoon model, white, with green and red stripes.

Black wool and white marocain Lanvin ensemble, the black coat lined with squared fur.

BY ROSETTE
NEA Fashion Expert.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The great new feature this season in the realm of fashion is the reappearance of the afternoon frock. While last year a sports ensemble could be worn and was often worn by many a well-dressed woman right up to the dinner hour, this year it is relegated to its proper place and from the early afternoon on she will now slip into a real "robe d'apres-midi."

Another novelty is the "tailleur d'apres-midi," that is to say the afternoon suit. This is mostly carried out in velvet, either plain or corduroy, or in satiny broadcloth, and in every case is lavishly trimmed with real fur. With these are worn elaborate jumpers of very supple lame or soft satin or again in a very fine jersey interwoven with a pattern in gold thread which immediately lends this material an air of refined elegance.

Black velvet trimmed with natural fox fur at the neck, sleeves and on the bottom of the coat, accompanied by an oyster-white jumper, is one of the favorite interpretations of this fashion feature.

Jeanne Lanvin's collection is especially rich in afternoon frocks, easy to wear, but with that touch of distinction which is so eminently hers.

She shows a very originally-designed printed woolen matinal dress with coat to match in a beautiful shade of brown, which is sure to prove a success. The printing is carried out on a white background, which forms the top part of the dress and the bottom part of the coat's lining.

Another handsome afternoon or dinner frock—it would suit either occasion—is carried out in black mousseline de soie and steel paillettes. The skirt is composed of two or three widths of draped mousseline, and the whole of the top is of steel paillettes on tulle, which makes it as supple as satin. The sleeves are very new in that they show a bias of the tulle just above the elbow, and have the same bias of tulle at the wrist. The neck treatment is also very chic, finishing off in a huge "chou" of mousseline with two long streamers.

Still Popular

Black and white has always been and always will be a favored color combination, but whereas years ago black was worn by only the more mature women, now young people show a marked preference for it.

It is a far cry from the sombre, unrelieved monotony of the black dress of fifty years ago, of course, and today even the very young girl has at least one black frock in her wardrobe. An ensemble which stands out amongst all others is another creation of Jeanne Lanvin's. It might be said in passing that the more feminine line now adopted is eminently suited to her style.

The model in question was carried out in black woolen material and white marocain, the black forming the slightly flaring skirt and lower half of the blouse, finishing in two points on the white top. The coat had also a slight flare and was entirely lined with black and white fur forming large squares, with a deep collar of the white fur. The color scheme was carried out even to the hat, which had a white crown with a wide rever of black, edged with black velvet.

Darker Shades.

Aside from black and white, the most favored colors for afternoon wear are all the darker shades of green, blue, brown, some shades of dark purple, beige and gray. Beige is also being featured for evening dresses, which is a distinct novelty in the color line.

W.M.S. MEMBERS HEAR FINE REPORT

The annual Thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was held on Friday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Robert Hall in the chair. The meeting opened with a hymn and prayer offered by Mrs. Hall, a scripture reading by Mrs A. McLeish and prayer by Mrs. J. Garbutt.

The report by the secretary, Mrs. W. R. Turner, was given, also the report by the treasurer, Mrs. McKee. A responsive reading which followed was led by Miss Nina Davidson, and a very enjoyable vocal solo was given by Miss Simpson.

An address by Mrs. J. W. Dill of Toronto, secretary of Mission Band Work, was very inspiring and was listened to with intent appreciation by all present. A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mrs. D. Jordon, and seconded by Mrs. R. Lees.

The Thankoffering received amounted to $322.90 with $54.95 from canvass envelopes.

The prayer in dedication of the Offering was voiced by Mrs. William Allan.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith had intended to tell Bob of her dinner invitation to Bruce Patton before breakfast that Saturday morning so that she could spare the rest of the family his certain displeasure, but he was still burrowing sleepily into his pillows and refusing to acknowledge that he was awake when she had had her own bath and was ready to prepare breakfast. So it was at that meal, at the table which had come to have a hateful significance in Faith's mind as the family battleground, that she made her announcement.

Bob answered as she had dreaded that he would, his blue eyes stormy, his mouth tightening grimly: "You've invited that dancing fop to dinner? In God's name, why? I thought I'd made it abundantly clear that that slick-haired prancer's name is mud to me—"

"I'm sorry, dear," Faith said evenly, keeping her eyes fixed upon the coffee pot so that he should not see the film of tears that gathered over her eyes. "But if Cherry is going to accept Mr. Patton's attentions, I think the—friendship—should be dignified by his reception in our home—Cherry's home, too, by the way. She has a right to have her friends come here, since it is the only home she has."

"Thanks, Faith," Cherry laughed. "You do put it so exquisitely! You ought to write advice on etiquette for the papers. But listen, brother-in-law," she flashed her golden eyes at Bob defiantly, "if you're going to be nasty to Bruce, I'll meet him somewhere else—street corners are, I believe, the traditional rendezvous for repressed girls with stern relatives—and as Faith would put it so elegantly, you can preserve the sanctity of your home against such insidious influences as dancing masters, et al."

Bob glowered at her murderously, but made no other answer.

Aunt Hattie calmly "dunked" a bit of crisp toast in her coffee, ate it with smacking appreciation, then opened her thin, wrinkled mouth to address her nephew-in-law:

"I declare! Bob Hathaway! I'd never have believed it if anyone had told me you'd change like you have since you married. Proving you never can tell about a man. Anybody'd think to look at you that you was jealous of this Bruce Patton, whoever he is. You got any real reason to hate this new man of Cherry's except that he can probably dance better than you and makes his money easier?"

"All right!" He pushed his chair violently away from the table. "Have him here every night if you like. I can always get a decent dinner at the Fraternity Club."

"Oh, damn!" Cherry cried, her voice choking on a sudden sob of rage. "I'll clear out if that's what you want, Bob Hathaway! Far be it from me to break up a HAPPY home."

For a long minute those two stood staring into each other's eyes, in a deadlock composed of hatred and some other secret, terrible emotion—or so it seemed to Faith, who sat stiffly in her chair, as if turned to stone.

Then, as Bob answered slowly, with great difficulty, his eyes burning into Cherry's, Faith knew that those two had forgotten her and Joy and Aunt Hattie, that they remembered nothing, no one—not even Bruce Patton, the cause of the quarrel—except themselves:

"Don't be a —— fool, Cherry. Of course—you're going — to stay. I'm sorry."

For her gloriously clear teeth was this

Just accept, please, this remarkable dental test. Note how "off-color" teeth go. Note how delicate gums become firm when DINGY FILM is removed

THAT cloudy teeth, yellowish, discolored teeth, can be made whiter and toneless gums firmed is now an accepted fact. Foremost dentists of the world are widely urging this new method. You can have clean, pretty teeth and gums like coral if you will start today.

This is accomplished by combating a viscous film that covers teeth. A stubborn, hard-to-remove film that old-type dentifrices did not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel this film. Under it are the clear, attractive teeth you envy in others. Combat it, and your teeth become many shades whiter—more glistening.

The enemy of teeth and gums

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums; a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth, you can't have firmer, prettier gums unless you combat that film.

Ask your druggist or mail the coupon for Pepsodent. Don't expect the same results from old-time dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1927

Good luck appears to attend this day, according to astrology, which finds that benefic aspects dominate.

In the morning the mind should be keen and alert. Foresight is supposed to be quickened under this planetary rule.

This should be fortunate for all who deal in mineral waters or harmless drinks. Money is to be made through new fads that promise health.

There is a sign read as promising pleasant voyages to all who start ocean journeys today.

The seers warn that storms of unprecedented violence may be expected on the Atlantic later in the season.

Teachers are well directed at this time, which may seem to be discouraging in regard to pecuniary rewards, but later financial benefits are indicated.

The seers prophesy that for a few months wages for brawn will be higher than those for brains, but better salaries are foretold for intellectual pursuits.

While the autumn trade in most lines of commodities will be good it is wise to delay ambitious development in business, the seers declare.

Temptation to speculate will be strong under this direction of the stars, but it should be resisted.

The stock market may be even more uncertain than usual, owing to unusual conditions in the commercial world, astrologers forecast, after study of the charts for the next few months.

Again fashion will decree for both men and women extremely costly attire, it is prognosticated. Costly materials will be in demand.

Competition among importers and modistes is to be extraordinary keen during the winter, astrologers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a lucky year, but they must not lend money.

Children born on this day probably will be generous and able to see life in its largest relations. They should be good public servants.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Nothing could be more convenient for the little boy's every-day suit than this pair of short trousers buttoned on a washable waist with collar attached. The pull-on sweater is thus provided with the trim finish of a washable collar without the inconvenience of a separate shirt.

The most trying phase of the problem of dressing children is that they have an inconsiderate habit of growing. They do their growing in leaps and bounds—broadening and lengthening never in exactly the place that you expect them to.

No little boy looks his best in clothes that are too large, yet it is certainly foolish to buy suits that are just large enough at the time of purchase. There are some children who never look really well save in their most battered every-day outfit—and one reason for this undoubtedly is that their clothes are not usually small enough until they have been relegated from best to every day.

The light-weight slip-on sweater has come to be an accepted garment for school boys, and one reason that it is usually becoming—more becoming than the usual sack coat or jacket—is because the sweater is elastic enough to fit fairly closely even when it is large enough to do for many months.

The sketch shows a type of garment most convenient for the boy between four and ten or thereabouts. It consists of a pair of straight short trousers which button on to a washable underwaist. By changing the position of the waist buttons it is possible to adjust the trousers to growing legs. There is a collar attached to the waist, of dark cotton material, which gives a trim finish to the little slip-on sweater that is worn over the waist.

In this country until recently only rather little boys wore short straight trousers. Knickerbockers have been and still are chosen for most boys over six or seven. But recently—through the influence of French and English fashions—these straight trousers have been made for older boys as well. The small American boy in his baggy knickers usually excites the amusement of French and English school boys.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SHELL PARTY

"Hop around now, my dears, and gather all the shells you can find!" called Uncle Wiggily to his forty 'leven little bunny boys and girls one morning as they played on the seashore. "Get little shells and big shells. This is our last day at the shore. Tomorrow you must go back to school."

Instead of giving three cheers, laughing and shouting with glee as they heard this the forty 'leven little bunny boys and girls, or forty twelve if you count Baby Bunty, all of them looked sad and Bunty cried:

"Oh, dear!"

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Don't you want to gather shells for my party?"

"Oh, are you going to have a party, Daddicums?" shouted Jingle.

"A shell party," answered the rabbit gentleman. "So gather as many on the sandy beach as you can find."

"Are we only going to have shells to eat at the party?" asked Jangle.

"Ha! Ha!" chuckled the bunny gentleman, "to eat shells you would need teeth like the drum fish who can crack oyster and clam shells like a steam roller. No, you aren't going to have shells to eat at my party. But since this is our last day at the seashore, I thought it would be nice to have all the dishes on the party table made from shells."

"Oh, it will be lovely!" exclaimed Timble.

"And I'll help pick up a lot of shells," cried Tumble.

"So will I," echoed Stumble. Then all the other bunnies laughed, for Stumble and Tumble, two of the smaller boys, fell down, which was the reason they had the names they did. But falling down on soft sand doesn't hurt, so Timble picked up his brothers Stumble and Tumble and then all the bunnies began gathering shells.

"What fun we'll have at the party!" sang Jingle as she picked up a blue shell.

"But think of having to go back to school," murmured Jangle. "That will be no fun!"

"Oh! maybe we can have some fun there," whispered Timble. "I'm going to take home a pocketful of sand for the Lady Mouse Teacher."

"I'll take some seaweed," offered Stumble. So, though the bunnies were a little sad at the thoughts of the long summer vacation being over still they made the best of it. Soon they had gathered many pretty shells, blue, pink, red and yellow. Meanwhile Uncle Wiggily with his wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had made a little table of driftwood on the beach. And when the children brought up their shells they were filled with ice-cream, cake, pudding, carrot pancakes, turnip sauce and lettuce macaroni. I mean the shells were filled with these good things to eat, though, of course, the children were filled also, a little later, at the party.

At last the table was set with good things to eat and Uncle Wiggily sat at the head of it, his wife on one side and Nurse Jane on the other, with the rabbit children and some of their dog, kitten, goat and piggie friends, who were visiting them, ranging down the sides.

"Welcome to my shell party!" cried Mr. Longears. And really it was a beautiful lunch with shells for plates, cups and saucers, and even long, slender broken bits of shells for spoons, knives and forks. Some shells were deep and some were shallow. Some held a great deal and some held only a little. And some shells were so large and so curved and twisted and turned that even a corkscrew couldn't have seen what was inside them.

But every one was having a fine time, and Nurse Jane was passing the cabbage ice cream when, all of a sudden, up out of the ocean and across the sand toward the party table flopped the Sea Lion.

"I hear you are going back to Woodland and your hollow stump bungalow, Uncle Wiggily," roared the Sea Lion. "Well, before you go, I am going to take some nibbles off your ears. Ever since you have been at the seashore I have tried in vain to catch you. Now I have you.

The Sea Lion leaned over the table, with his two long front tusks showing, and reached a flipper for Uncle Wiggily. But, just then, from one of the big sea shells that Timble had found, a Hermit Crab reached out his big claw and nipped the Sea Lion so hard on his nose that the bad chap gave a loud howl of pain, and, turning a back flip flop, splashed into the ocean.

"Oh, thank you, Hermit Crab!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I didn't know you were at my shell party."

"I have no shell of my own," said the Hermit Crab, crawling back into the one whence he had stuck out his claw, "so I live in any empty ocean shell I can find. When I am small I live in a little shell and when I grow big I crawl out and find a larger shell. I was asleep inside the shell your little bunny picked up, and he brought me here."

"I am glad he did," said Mr. Longears.

So everything turned out for the best, I think.

ATTEMPT MADE TO BURN INFANT

Body Wrapped in Sheets Found On Pile of Burning Leaves.

OUTSIDE TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 17.—Wrapped in sheets and lying on a little pile of burning leaves and paper, the body of a newborn baby was found by some boys in Silverthorn bush, about two miles from Islington, yesterday afternoon. Although the sheets were scorched, examination showed that the fire had not reached the child's body.

The boys reported their find to Constable George Simpson of Humber Bay, who summoned Coroner Dr. W. Snider and had the body removed to Baycroft's Undertaking Parlors at New Toronto. The theory advanced by the police is that the child had been brought to the woods in the sheets and that a fire had been built around it in an attempt to destroy the body.

Dr. Snider made a preliminary examination last night, and an autopsy will be conducted today. It is not yet known whether the child was alive at birth. An inquest has been ordered.

The only clue to its identity obtained by the police was a laundry mark on the sheets, and their efforts to trace the infant's parents were still unsuccessful at a late hour last night.

PAULIST FATHER ATTACKS EDITOR

H. L. Mencken Condemned as Enemy of Democratic Ideals.

WRITINGS CITED.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Oct. 17 (United Press).—H. L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, was attacked as an enemy of democratic ideals by the Rev. James E. Gillis, Paulist father and editor of the Catholic World, in an address to the Knights of columbus. The Catholic divine also spoke in uncomplimentary terms of Mussolini's manner of Italian government.

Mencken's writings were termed "a continual vicious, vile, and determined expression of disdain and disgust for all democratic principles. Father Gillis cited the following list of terms from Mencken's "Notes on Democracy."

"Booboisie, the city moron, country yokels, righteous clodhoppers, hinds of Dayton, Tenn., anthrapoidal proletariat," and Menchen's assertion that American people were, "sheep donkeys, and jackasses."

"In the principle involved is that you and I and the mass of men are a crowd of boobs and should not have right of suffrage," he said.

"But if boobs are to be disfranchised, I say let us continue the process, and also deprive the shrewd, capable, intellectual fellows of their right to vote. They are working more harm towards democracy than anyone else."

PLANE RUMORS ARE CONFIRMED

German Officer Says He Flew Over Sydney During War.

HAD LOAD OF BOMBS.

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 17 (United Press).—When the German raiders were scouring the Pacific in the early days of the war, the people of Sydney were badly scared more than once by rumors that seaplanes loosed from their ships had been flying over the city and that bombing air raids might be expected.

These stories were never definitely confirmed until yesterday, when Alexander Stein, chief officer of the German freighter "Main," now in this port, disclosed in a lecture that he had once flown over Sydney with a bomb-laden plane and authority to smash up the town. Stein was then a flying officer on the German raider Wolf. When the raider was lying near Gabo Island he flew over Sydney at a height of 3,000 feet, in order to ascertain what British warships were lying in Sydney Harbor. He carried at the time, so he says, a load of bombs which he had discretionary power to use, but refrained from dropping them because he had lived in Sydney before the war and had many friends here.

W. H. KIDD CHOSEN CHOIR PRESIDENT

Elected at Annual Meeting of Murray Street Baptist Choir.

On Thursday evening last, at the close of a short choir practice, the annual business meeting of Murray Street Choir was held. The occasion was one of harmony, humor, and good natured banter.

After disposing of various matters of business, the election of officers for the ensuing year, was proceeded with. This occasion is always looked forward to, with much interest by the choir ,as two candidates are always nominated for each office and each nominee is called upon to make a speech, setting forth his or her qualifications for the office.

The gathering was not disappointed, on this occasion, and repeatedly applauded the witty sallies of the various speakers.

The ballotting resulted in the election of the following candidates: President, Mr. W. H. Kidd ;vice-president, Miss T. Pearson; secretary, Miss E. Smith; Treasurer, Mr. A. J. Raddon; convenor of social committee, Miss M. Scott; representative to church music committee, Mr. H. H. Graham; Librarian, Mr. T. Dallin; Mistress of Gowns, Mrs. H. H. Kidd.

FAIR CLOSES WITH BIG DAY

daughter of nine years of Chinese parents living in Toronto. This small girl attracted much interest with her playing on her Chinese piano, the only instrument of its type in the Dominion, and of a dulcimer type, struck with tiny hammers. She sang also in Chinese to a singsong sort of music. This little girl leaves next month for China, where she will stay for four years to study Chinese music before returning to Canada. The Pageant was repeated twice during the afternoon.

At the modelling booth conducted by the Misses Beryl Forward and Lucy McWilliams, two fine heads of Mr. P. G. Towns of Douro were done on Saturday, while Miss Mamie McCarthy had charcoal sketches during the day of Mrs. F. C. Webebr, little Aileen Reynolds and small Virginia Madill, and Mr. R. M. Glover, Mr. W. H. Howard and Mr. H. Huffman. At Madame Merriam's booth, Mrs. J. R. Heron impersonated very successfully the member of the Kiwanis Club who was offered a permanent wave.

An item of interest was the manner in which the Exhibition was arranged, seventy eight booths being erected in the short space of three days. Two days will be required to take the booths down in such a way as not to damage the structures. Messrs. C. H. Huffman and Sons executed the erection of the booths with great despatch, thirty five hundred feet of beaverboard and 800 yards of cotton being used for the purpose. Messrs. Harris and Boddy looked after the painting, J. J. Turner & Sons decorated the hall and the exterior, while Gordon Hall, Grant and Thorpe, and Miller, Powell and Watson did the wiring—all in record time.

General arrangements for last week's Exhibition were looked after by the president, Mr. I. F. McNabb and the general convenor, Dr. J. J. Craig, to whose energy possibly the greatest measure of success was due. Dr. Craig looking after every detail with devoted and untiring energy. The Executive Committee had other members as follows: Messrs. C. D. Cook, H. Dickin, H. Boyle, J. J. Turner and J. A. McKone, while various committees were: Exhibits Committee: H. Boyle (convenor), J. J. Turner, F. Stinson, P. Lang and J. Marshall. Publicity Committee: J. Heron (convenor), C. Cook, R. Haddow, W. Kidd, A. Moffatt and E. H. Wood. Bond Selling Committee: H. Dickin (convenor), C. Brown, C. Saunders and J. Wearing. Treasurer's Committee: C. Elliott (convenor), C. Cummer and A. J. Reynolds. Programme Committee: V. Morphet (convenor), H. McCannan, A. J. Reynolds, M. Chenhall, A. Blade, D. Wren, assisted by H. Lush. Allotment Committee: H. Huffman (convenor), C. McDonald, J. John and C. Blewett. Agricultural Committee: J. Nelson (convenor), J. Dewart, J. Meyers and E. Smith. Decorations Committee: C. Saunders (convenor), J. J. Turner, J. Comstock and J. A. MacNabb. Dancing Committee: H. Gilgour (convenor), M. Bredin, W. Huycke, J. Allen, J. Green and A. Kimmel. Premiums Committee: J. P. McNabb ,convenor), Dr. J. J. Craig, J. John, P. Bond, J. Chadwick, F. C. Webber and T. McGovern. Games Committee: C. Brown (convenor), R. Taylor, C. McLean, H. Huffman, W. Oke and E. Taylor. Parade Committee: F. H. Dawson (convenor), J. Doran, I. Lillico and T. Mark. Cat Show Committee: W. S. Merrell (convenor), C. Lacheur and D. Grant. Baby Show and Babies' Rest: J. Allen (convenor), J. A. McKone, Rev. J. D. Paterson, Dr. G. Ray Scott, Dr. F. C. Neal and Dr. E. H. Wood.

Ladies assisted in the two refreshment booths, the supper room, and the fortune-telling booth. The Catholic Women's League took charge of the Babies' Rest, which proved such a convenience to mothers during the week, and there were a number of assistants, members of the Women's Art Association, in the room devoted to a display of art work and habitant weaving.

At the two refreshment booths where ice cream, hot dogs and coffee was sold, Mrs. M. Bredin and Mrs. J. H. Gilgour were in charge, assisted by Mesdames A. Moffat, F. C. Miller, George Johnson, J. R. Heron, D. Grant, M. B. Chenhall, T. Mark, F. H. Dawson, H. Huffman, H. Boyle, C. Blewett, J. Wearing, R. Mackey, W. S. Merrell and Adele Picard.

Mrs. J. J. Craig had charge of Mrs. Bredin's booth on Friday evening, and was assisted by Mesdames A. J. Reynolds and R. Mackey.

In the fortune-telling booth, in charge of Mrs. F. C. Neal, the following ladies assisted: Mesdames J. E. Smith, W. H. Dickin, J. A. Dewart, F. C. Webber, J. John, C. Saunders, E. H. Wood, G. R. Scott, C. L. Brewer, J. J. Craig, D. F. Drummond, Mrs. J. A. O'Loghlin of Stratford, Miss M. Foote and Miss McKay.

The supper room was in charge of Mrs. Walter Oke, with the following assistants: Mesdames J. Chadwick, J. R. Marshall, C. Cook, J. W. Meyers, F. Stinson, C. H. Cummer, J. J. Turner, J. Comstock, John I. Allen, W. E. Taylor, J. D. Paterson, H. Huffman.

The Babies' Rest, operated by the Catholic Women's League, was in charge of Mrs. Frank Lynch, assisted by the following members: Mesdames John Lynch (president), A. J. MacPherson, F. J. Overend, J. Kelly, W. O'Brien, T. McQuillan, W. J. Grady, M. Henry, J. E. White, P. Heffernan, C. Rutherford, J. E. Crowley, B. Law and the Misses Laura O'Brien, Nora Shevlin, Marie Shaughnessy, Lillian Simons and Margaret O'Loghlin.

In the Women's Art Association room, ladies in charge of the exhibits were Mrs. Wm. Blackwell (president), Mrs. N. H. Sutton and Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, assisted by Mesdames J. H. Seels, W. Sangster, H. E. Connolly, B. L. Barns, J. H. Vernor, G. N. Gordon, E. W. Borbridge, D. Carmichael, H. W. Morphet, G. E. Porter, A. E. Dixon, C. B. Adair, M. T. Breckenridge, N. D. Seaton, V. S. Foster, P. L. Allison and the Misses G. Reinhardt, H. Buller and Linden Hall. Mrs. J. Kennett, a member of the Association, assisted the out-of-town ladies in a demonstration of handloom weaving.

5TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

"A Scout's duty is to be useful and help others." This results in doing a good turn to somebody each day. The good turn for Saturday was made a troop affair, the Fifth Peterborough troop in obtaining trees during a hike for the A.Y.P.A. conference. The hige was held in order to gain proficiency in second class work. Signalling from a distance with flags resulted in successful messages. A new Scout was taught the Scout laws. A strenuous game of "duck on the rock" was played for fully an hour. Then followed the most important part of the program. Fire lighting was a great success. The cooking was eatable to say the last and was of the usual camp fare. Around the fire the fellows enjoyed themselves in singing and in talking over a cycle trip. The fire was left dead and the Scouts realized how dark it gets in the woods at night. The night march was good experience.

FIRST SYRIAN PRIEST.

Rev. Father Ashash, an Owen Sound boy, who is the first priest born in that city to have celebrated mass in the church where he was baptized. He is also the first Syrian born in Canada to have entered the priesthood. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Ashash, resides in Owen Sound. He is pastor of St. Norbert Church in diocese of Edmonton.

TREASURE HUNTER USES INSTRUMENTS

Hopes To Find Some of Loot Pirates Buried on Cocos Island.

ANCON, Panama, Oct. 17.—Cocos Island, which for decades has lured the adventurous into search for buried treasure, is now being combed by George Williams, a member of the modern treasure-hunting school, which uses scientific—but decidedly secret—instruments in groping for gold and gems, rather than mysterious maps and charts.

The island, a volcanic speck in the Pacific, 300 miles southwest of Costa Rica, which owns it, appears to have offered natural banking facilities for most of the pirates who preyed on stately Spanish galleons engaged in ferrying the concentrated riches of the New World back to Old.

The mystery is that so many depositors could use these facilities without stumbling over each other. Morgan, Hawkins, Bonito, Willnet, Baurnane and others who lived by the cutlass are believed to have run into that haven when the loot became too heavy for comfortable storage. They say it got so that a pirate could scarcely dig a hole for his booty without finding that some competitor had already buried gems in that spot. This congestion was one of the serious problems of the time.

The total treasure buried on the island has been variously estimated at from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. Most estimators prefer the latter figure.

Member of 400 Opens New York Night Club

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (United Press).—A social temblor jostled teacups along exclusive Park Avenue with the announcement that Mrs. Park Benjamine, Jr., had invaded the realm of Tex Guinan and would open her own night club Thursday.

Tangues were set a-wagging at this unconventional vagary of one of the proudest names in the social register—a charming matron and sister-in-law of the late Enrico Caruso.

"Mrs. Park Benjamine's Gold Room, as the new club will be known, will occupy the eighth floor of the Beau Arts Building at 40th Street and 60th Avenue.

"And I hope my club will be as far superior to the other clubs as it is above them in heighth," Mrs. Benjamine told the United Press.

Before polishing your stove, go over it all with vinegar. It will remove all grease and makes excellent base for polish.

Chicago May Preserve Start of 1871 Fire

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—A movement to preserve as a memorial the site where Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lamp that started the fire of 1871, which destroyed the city, has been taken up by the City Council. The aldermen are looking through the various funds to find which one they can set back to obtain purchase money. The form the memorial will take has not been settled, but experts are of the opinion that the cow and the lamp, not lantern, should figure in it. An apartment building now covers the site at No. 558 De Jeven Street.

There are historians who assert that the cow is innocent, that a gang "rushing the can" of that early day assembled behind O'Leary's stable, drinking and smoking, and accidentally started the blaze.

ELECTRICAL DEVICE UNCANNILY HUMAN

Called By Phone 'Televox' Answers Questions and Obeys Commands.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—That the "televox," the uncannily human electrical device which answers questions and obeys commands, after being called up by telephone, will shortly be in extensive use and will even prove practical for the average householder, is the promise of its inventor, Roy J. Wensley. The inventor, standing at an ordinary telephone, asked the operator for extension 280, connecting him with another telephone in the same room at which the "televox" was stationed. At the first ring of the phone bell, a lead weight lifted automatically from the receiver hook and "televox" was ready for action. The receiver itself was slung in a frame before a microphone, but not in contact with it and before the phone stood a loud speaker, microphone and loud speaker being respectively ear and mouth of this startling device.

The language of "televox" is straight music, or at least musical sounds, tuning forks, pitch pipes or the human whistle being used at will by the person desirous of conversation with this non-sleeping, non-eating servant.

"Televox" has been designed principally for use by power companies and the like as a substitute for watchmen.

TWELVE FIREMEN HURT AT PITTSBURG

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—The most spectacular and devastating fire downtown Pittsburgh has experienced in several years was brought under control today after burning four hours and bringing injury to twelve firemen, four of whom were seriously hurt. One six-storey building was destroyed and two others badly damaged. The loss was placed at half a million dollars.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves Or Cutting.

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid & Jury and McDermid Drug Store, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

SERVICE HELD AS MEMORIAL TO W. H. HILL

Large Congregation Attends St. Paul's Church Yesterday Morning.

IMPRESSIVE SERMON.

Appropriate Music Rendered By Choir in Memory of Late Elder.

Taking for his text the following words, "These all died in the faith", as found in Hebrews 11:13, the Rev. William Allan preached a memorial sermon for those connected with the church who have died during the past two years, but with special reference to the late W. H. Hill whose death has removed one of Peterborough's most highly respected citizens.

The service will long be remembered by a very large congregation. The sermon, which was supported by most appropriate music, stirred the deepest feelings of every worshipper.

Mr. Allan said: "I have been here little more than two years, and in no other two years of my life have I been brought so much into contact with death. I have lived much of that time in the 90th Psalm.

If you are familiar with that particular psalm you will know that it is like a funeral procession all through which may be heard a funeral dirge.

Well, with very real regret I am compelled to say that the past two years of my ministry have been lived in the atmosphere of that psalm. Regret, because of the depression of spirit death always brings to any sympathetic nature; Regret, because of the loss that death has inflicted upon many homes and upon this church, and upon the entire community.

Amid the Shadows.

My first contact with this congregation was amid the shadows, the sorrow, and the tears that death always brings. That was the funeral of the late Mr. Gilgour. He was a stranger to me, but the family I have since got to know and esteem very highly. Since that day few weeks of the working year have passed without my services being required for Christian burial for the dead and to minister comfort to the bereaved. On more than one occasion I have had two funerals on the same day. Not all of them have been members of this congregation but that has made no difference in the service I have tried to render.

It is never easy for me to minister at such times, even in the case of a poor stranger at whose grave I was the only mourner other than the undertaker and those assisting him. But it is specially difficult when you are seeking to minister comfort to those whom you know well. Sometimes it has been for children too young to know and appreciate a mother's love. At other times it has been young people at the dawn of manhood and womanhood. Or it has been mothers who have brought a young life into the world at the expense of their own life. Then it has been those who, living on borrowed time, have gone out at a ripe old age.

During the past week I have stood beside three open graves, the last of which was that opened to receive the remains of one we laid away to rest yesterday.

Winsome and Modest.

William Henry Hill, a successful business man and highly respected citizen of this city. The first 18 years of his life were spent in Inverness, Quebec, where he was born. Two years were spent in Manitoba, and one year in Jersey City. Coming to Peterborough in 1873 he spent the greater part of his life here where his winsome disposition and genuine modesty won the affection of all who knew him. For 30 years he served as a member of the local Board of Education. For 12 years he was a member of the Board of Water Commissioners; and for 20 years he was a member of the Public Library Board.

While his days were made happy by public esteem and private affection he suffered a severe blow in the death of his splendid son who, with others throughout the Empire, laid down his life in defence of a Christian civilization.

I know that the deepest sympathy of this entire congregation is extended to the family in the hour of its bereavement even as we extend it to all who mourn the loss of those who before him have had to pass through the valley of the shadow of death.

A Lover of Light.

Before he reached the final stages of the sickness which carried him off I would sometimes call upon him late at night when other sick calls had been made. And I always found him in what seemed to be his favorite room. It was a room that was brilliantly lighted. He loved the light. And I don't think he had anything to hide for which he might seek the darkness. And he loved intellectual light for he was always reading some new worthwhile book. Spiritual light he also loved as I had good reason to know as the result of some heart to heart talks with him.

There is a gentleman in this city who has been his intimate friend for more than 40 years, and he told me that when they used to room together as young men, or when they went on trips together then and later, Mr. Hill never forgot to read the Word of God and never neglected prayer.

"These all died in faith."

This chapter in Hebrews has been called the Westminister Abbey of the New Testament. In it you have a galaxy of great names, each with his and her own distinct individuality. Yet there were some things which they had in common. "These all died."

One thing is certain and that is that one of these days we shall, all of us, lay ourselves down and let the darkness deepen around us, and learn the Great Secret for ourselves. One of these days someone will step into your office, enquire for you and be told in low voice that you died yesterday.

"Dust to dust" is stamped on everything here!

Ten million times ten million more are they who are underfoot than are they who are moving on the earth. Oh, that we might have it said of this company, "These all died in faith."

Faith in the Cross to satisfy the demands of a broken law, purge the guilty conscience and establish a basis upon which God can be just at the same time that He is the justifier of all who believe on His Son as Saviour.

Faith, that in the valley of the shadow the Great Shepherd of the sheep will not forsake His own.

Faith in the coronation of all who love His appearing.

The choir rendered the following items:

"The Radiant Morn"—Woodward.

"Crossing the Bar"—Barnby.

"Yea, Though I Walk."—Sullivan.

"The Dead March" was played on the organ by Mr. Chenhall.

The funeral of the late William Henry Hill took place on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 from his late residence, 303 Brock street, with his pastor, Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, officiating.

A short service was held at the house in which Mr. Allan spoke words of comfort to those who remain and also extolled the deceased as a citizen and a friend of all in need.

A very large funeral cortege followed the remains to the grave in Little Lake cemetery. There were two cars banked with flowers, in which were wreaths and tributes from many friends, organizations and societies in which the deceased was connected.

Citizens from all walks of life were present at the funeral, many were men with whom Mr. Hill had been associated with in public life, in business and in church life.

The pallbearers were B. F. Ackerman, T. F. Matthews, W. G. Morrow, A. Mowat, D. H. Moore, George Boucher, James Lynch and Robert Fair.

"IT is an unpardonable crime" writes Mrs. Ethel Baillie, of Montreal, "to use any other suds than 'Lux,' for the exquisite hand-made woolies, belonging to the "Teenie Weenies;" the soft, dainty shirts, panties, jackets, bootees, etc.

"They represent, besides the expense, many hours of skilful, patient work, done by the loving hands of adoring Grannies, Mothers and Aunties. To risk spoiling these lovely, delicate little garments, by using anything but 'Lux' would be an unpardonable crime, for they cannot be replaced. Money cannot buy what love gives."

There is a lot of good common sense in this letter.

Mrs. Baillie is but one of the millions who has found by experience that when it comes to doing difficult as well as simple work — there is no substitute for Lux.

WARSAW PUPILS WON IN CONTEST

Otonabee 16 Second and Smith 2 Third in Drill Competition.

WELL TRAINED.

The parade and school drill competition by rural school children which formed a portion of the afternoon programme on Saturday at the Armories, was very interesting. Seven rural schools, with a total of one hundred and eighty-two children on parade, took part.

Prizes awarded by the judges, Miss C. Littlefield, physical directress of the Young Women's Christian Association, Rev. J. McAuley, parish priest at Ennismore, and Mr. D. A. Loomis, physical director of the Young Men's Christian Association, went to Warsaw No. 3 School, the class being taught by Mr. A. B. Currie, in first place; to Otonabee S.S. No. 16, taught by Miss Doris Palmer, in second place, and to Smith S.S. No. 2, with Miss Minnie Green as teacher, in third place. The prizes for first and second awards were phonographs donated respectively by the Heintzman Co., Limited, and the J. M. Green Music Company, Limited, and the third prize was a volley ball set donated by the LeBarr News Agency. A softball outfit was also awarded to each of the other four entries in the parade, these being donated by Messrs. Walter Kidd and J. Chadwick.

Taking part in the parade, which assembled at the Market Square and proceeded to the Armories by way of Charlotte and George Street, were the following schools; Smith S.S. No. 2 (30 children), Warsaw No. 3 (forty-six children), Dummer No. 4 (twelve children), Otonabee No. 7 (twenty-two children), Smith No. 7 (twenty children), Young's Point (eighteen children), and Otonabee No. 16 (thirty-four children).

The Parade separated at the Armories and lined up in sections on Confederation Square, each school taking turns at presenting the various sections in a programme which included marching, physical and school song or yell, with points given for each of these, also for deportment and identity, the latter being outlined by the various head-bands, banners and other ornaments used. Any Peterborough County Rural School was eligible for the contest, which was under direction of Dr J. J. Craig and Mr. J. B. Nelson, local representative of the Department of Agriculture. Two thousand free tickets were distributed among rural school children for the Exhibition on Saturday.

The various exercises, mainly from the Strathcona School Manual, were put through in snappy style, each school showing excellent training. Warsaw No. 3, first prize winner, had a yellow and black banner and trig yellow head bands, Otonabee S. S. No. 16, second winner, went in for red, white and blue decorations, with a Confederation year note in the presentation of Miss Canada as a central figure, also a couple of Indian-suited children and a snappy little band from the school. Smith S. S. No. 2, third winner, had a decorative effect in a profusion of maple leaves on their dresses and head bands. The other schools also had attractive decorative schemes.

TRIED CROSSING SEA IN 22-FOOT YAWL

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 17.—"I've lost everything I had in the Joan, except what I have here," said W. E. Sinclair, a South London schoolmaster, holding up a small brown parcel, when he arrived at Liverpool from Canada on the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose.

A member of the Erith Yacht Club W. E. Sinclair at the end of June sailed from the Thames for Iceland with Richard M. Jackson, a young Northampton law student, in the 22-ft. yawl, Joan.

After reaching Iceland they resolved to cross the Atlantic, but encountered a terrific storm which carried away their mast. After baling out water for 36 hours they were picked up and taken to Montreal.

Prince of Wales Obeys Pier Official

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 17.—The Prince of Wales figured in an amusing incident at Folkestone Harbor one night recently.

From Sandwich, where he had been staying, he came by car with two little girls to meet their mother as she landed. As the boat came alongside an official approached the Prince, who had his cap pulled well over his forehead, and asked "Are you a visitor?"

"Yes," said the Prince, and the official at once politely asked him to stand back behind the barrier used by the Home Office for examining passports.

The Prince at once obeyed, and walked to the public part of the quay. But a few minutes later his identity was discovered by another official, who promptly invited him to stand at the bottom of the gangway down which passengers disembarked.

The passengers also failed to recognize the interested onlooker.

London Doctor Denies Swimming Channel

DOROTHY LOGAN RETURNS PRIZE TO NEWSPAPER

Perpetrated Hoax To Show It Was Easy To Deceive Pubic.

UNFAVORABLE COMMENT.

Need International Commission To Supervise and Certify Channel Swims.

LONDON, October 17 (Associated Press).—The News of the World says yesterday that Dorothy Cochran Logan, London physician, in a confession to the paper, declared that she did not swim the English Channel. The woman physician, whose record breaking performance was announced last Tuesday, in the "confession" to the paper declared that she had perpetrated the hoax to show it was easy to deceive the public and in order to show the desirability of establishing an international commission to supervise and certify all Channel swims.

"It was a fake to end fakes," the physician who swam under the name of Miss Mona McLellan and was widely hailed as the woman whose time of 13 hours and 10 minutes bettered the record of 14 hours and 31 minutes held by Gertrude Ederle of New York is quoted as saying.

Her revelation is supported by her trainer, Horace H. Carey, and her good faith protected by a letter she wrote explaining her purpose before leaving Hythe, England, for Cape Gris Nez, France, from which point she was said to have started her swim.

Returns Prize.

Dr. Logan, in making the disclosure, returns to the News of the World a cheque for £1,000 which the paper had offered to the English woman who should improve upon Miss Ederle's time.

After entering the sea at Cape Gris Nez Monday afternoon, Miss Logan relates, she swam until she was beyond the sight of land or of any possible observation. Then she was taken into the boat which was convoying her. This was manned by her trainer and two other men acquainted with the whole plan.

She says she remained on the boat for several hours, during which she was seasick. She slipped into the water again after daylight Tuesday when three miles from Folkestone, England. She swam ashore and received the greeting of the crowd.

When Miss Logan returned to London she was nearly mobbed by admiring throngs. She was congratulated by friends and the newspapers and officials paid tribute to her.

Written Confession.

After telling her story to the News of the World and returning the cheque, Dr. Logan explained that the protective letter would be found locked in a hotel safe at Hythe. The letter was found as promised. It read:

"I, Dorothy Cochrane Logan, hereby declare before leaving Hythe to start on my Channel swim on October 10, 1927, that I am not undertaking this swim for any personal gain in honor or money.

"If conditions are favorable I hope to swim the Channel in a straightforward and unassisted manner. If conditions are unfavorable I intend to get across somehow with the purpose of proving the necessity of independent umpires to prevent possible abuses. If my swim is successful without assistance, my trainer and my two pilots will make an affidavit with me to this effect, if there is no press representative with me. If we have in any way faked the result we will publish the full facts within one month of this date.

"If any money prizes should be awarded I shall make no personal use of them until I have published the full facts.

"(Signed) Dorothy Cochrane Logan, M.D., D.S.

Suffered From Nausea.

Dr. Logan's letter was witnessed by G. H. Woodward, Loren Madams, Lieut. Commander of the British Navy, retired, and Carey.

The log kept by the pilot showed that the woman was aboard the vessel eight hours and fifty minutes of the 13 hours and 10 minutes that the swim lasted.

Corroborating Miss Logan's story, Carey told of the difficulty of consuming sufficient time to make the feat appear reasonable. Miss Logan while on the board suffered from nausea which resulted in reducing her strength.

"Some of the French people don't believe that we were ever at Cape Gris Nez," Carey said. "We got to Gris Nez alright—and left it too. Three miles out we struck a strong drift of tide which carried us fast toward Calais which was off our course. Moreover, the waters were desperately cold and general conditions too much for human endurance over a long period. Out of sight of Cape Gris Nez light I took Dr. Logan from the water."

The convoy vessel, a fishing smack with a motor, loafed about the Channel until dawn, trying to keep to the course which the swimmer would naturally follow and trying to avoid other craft.

"A few minutes before 6 a.m. we were off Wouthforeland lighthouse, not more than three miles away," Carey continued. "On the open deck in broad daylight, in full view of any binoculars that might have been turned upon us from Dover or Folkestone, I greased Dr. Logan for the second part of the swim."

"The ebb tide was flowing strongly when she re-entered the water and swept us past Dover toward Folkestone. Suddenly the tide slackened and we were struck by the amusing possibility of the hoax ending in Folkestone Harbor of all places.

"But we were spared that. With the slackening of the tide the young flood came in and Dr. Logan found it easy to swim on to the beach under the eyes of the waiting and cheering crowd."

Unfavorable Comment.

LONDON, October 17 (Associated Press).—Dorothy Cochrane Logan, the young London physician who confessed to hoaxing the public by her alleged swim across the English Channel, seems likely to reap much publicity but very little credit from her attempt, as she put it, to show the desirability of establishing an international commission to supervise and certify all Channel swims.

Alderman Wood, Mayor of Folkestone, put in a nutshell the general view of the public of her escapade, saying:

"I approve of Miss Logan's suggestion that there ought to be some board of control to verify the claims of Channel swimmers, but I do not approve of her method of drawing attention to it. She might have done it in some other way — the public doesn't like being hoaxed."

Miss Logan herself now seems to realize the questionable nature of her procedure. To a newspaper correspondent she said yesterday:

"I hate the publicity the hoax has caused, and now I realize that it was a foolish thing to do."

She added that she wished to apologize to those who may have been hurt by her apparent acceptance of undeserved congratulations.

Her trainer, Horace H. Carey, gallantly shoulders the responsibility. He said yesterday that he had organized the whole thing and that Miss Logan had no idea of the intended hoax, and that when he first suggested it she refused to have anything to do with it.

Press comment is antagonistic. The "News of the World," the periodical which offered the prize of £1,000 to any English woman breaking Gertrude Ederle's record, and to which Dr. Logan returned the cheque, says in an editorial:

"If Dr. Logan's object was to benefit British sport she has given a striking object-lesson in how not to do it. She played unpardonably upon the best feelings of her countrymen and brought under suspicion the efforts of all those who preceded her."

MANY UPSETS BIG TEN GAMES

Northwestern and Indiana Defeat Ohio State and Minnesota.

GLORY FOR COACHES.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17. —(A.P.). The youngsters among the Western Conference Coaches—Dick Hanify at Northwestern, Ted Weiman at Michigan and Pat Page at Indiana —covered themselves with glory on Saturday in a day long to be remembered in Big Ten History. Sharing their laurels was "Old Man" Stagg, whose downtrodden team beat the Conference sensation Purdue.

Northwestern's power against Ohio State was one of the greatest upsets and Indiana's "moral victory" over Minnesota matched it. The failure of Ralph Welch to equal his Purdue battle was one of the day's disappointments.

The only game which came out as foreseen was Iowa's 38-0 victory over Wabash.

Ted Weiman, shouldering the burden of "Hurry-Up" Yost as Coach of Michigan, for the first time upheld the tradition of unbroken victory over Wisconsin since 1899, by winning 14-0.

Washington, Oct. 17. — Walter Perry Johnson, veteran pitcher of the Washington American League Baseball Club, has resigned from the team and President Griffith has accepted the resignation.

Johnson, who celebrated his 20th anniversary as a Major League player this year will be given an unconditional release at his own request, provided waivers are obtained from other clubs of the league.

Unlike other stars of baseball who reached the heights of stardom only to pass their declining years in the uniform of a minor leaguer, the Big Train has decided to quit and go into business at a time when he thinks he still has a few victories left in his arm.

In a letter requesing his unconditional release the Washington twirler expressed great regret at having to leave the team with which he has been associated during his entire score of years in Major League baseball, but realizing he may not longer be rated as a star, he said, he "simply did not want to be in the way next season."

Replying to his letter, President Griffith said he and the public could not imagine the Washington team appearing without Walter, but felt it his duty to grant the pitcher's request, especially in view of the business offers he had under consideration.

Johnson said last night that he would like to continue in baseball as an investor and added that he had several minor league propositions under consideration, in addition to one or two "opportunities in the business world."

"I hate like everything to think of not being with the Washington team next season," Johnson told newspaper men; "and I hate to think of the possibility that I may for business reasons have to leave Washington, where I have been treated royally by the fans.

No Definite Plans.

"I have no definite plans," he added; "I have saved up a little money and am looking around for a good investment."

Johnson intimated that in the event he went into a minor league club, he "might" pitch an occasional game.

Clark Griffith, National League club owner, in announcing the granting of Johnson's request, acted as though he had lost his best friend.

One of the greatest honors ever accorded a ball player was bestowed upon Johnson here on August 2nd, when he was presented the first disguished service baseball cross ever awarded. It was of solid gold, studded with 20 diamonds, one for each year of his service.

Johnson's introduceion to his baseball came when a scout of the Northwestern League saw him pitching on the sand lots and recommended him to his club owners. Accordingly, he reported to the Tacoma Club in the spring of 1906, but was soon released, as not quite ripe enough. The Tacoma manager then recommended him to the Weiser club of a semi-pro. league which played games once a week. Johnson played with Weiser throughout 1906 and the spring of 1907. Then a leader of a government surveying party who was a baseball enthusiast saw Walter pitch several games and hastily sent word to friends in the capital city that he had made a remarkable pitching find.

Offered Bonus.

A scout was sent to look Johnson over. The scout never saw Johnson perform before signing him. The day he arrived at Weiser he offered the young fellow a contract, which he accepted with a $250 bonus provision ,and the future pitching ace was brought to Washington.

The 19 year old youngster, who had cost the Washington club nothing but his carfare, arrived in Washington in July, 1907. He pitched his first game August 2nd of that year against the slugging Detroit Tigers. The latter were almost helpless against Johnson's speed, but the seedy westerner lost his own game 3 to 2 by clumsy fielding.

Johnson pitched the same number of innings on that day 20 years ago—eight and one-third—as he did last August 2, against the same team, which he also lost 7 to 6. He struck out six men that day, raising his all time record of strike out to 3455, never before equalled.

Walter has been the dean of American League pitchers for more than a decade, although his team has seldom finished in the first division in his 20 years service. For years he has been one of the biggest drawing cards in baseball.

M'GILL HOLDS FIRST PLACE

Defeat Queen's 11-10 To Strengthen Position in Senior League.

INTERCOLLEGIATE RUGBY.

MONTREAL, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press). — McGill obtained a strong hold on first place in the Senior Division of the Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union by defeating Queen's 11 to 10 at the Percival Milson Stadium Saturday in a versatile and thrilling game. It was McGill's second straight victory in the series, they having defeated University of Toronto the previous week-end at Toronto.

It was a titanic struggle which had thirteen thousand spectators on edge most of the time, and which was only decided in the last 45 seconds of play when McGill kicked a rouge to break a 10-10 tie. The punt which decided the battle was a drive from the toe of Tremain which carried from centrefield to Warren behind the Queen's goal line, a distance of sixty yards.

The sway of battle throughout was changeable. McGill got off to a good start and finished strongly, while Queen's held the upper hand during the middle part of the game. McGill were in front three times while Queen's held the scoring advantage twice. The score was twice tied, at 5-all in the first quarter and at 10-all during the last quarter. Every play known to modern Canadian football was injected into the game. McGill's eleven points came by way of one unconverted touchdown, three single points and a place kick, the latter rather a novelty to the Canadian game. Queen's ten points came by way of an unconverted try, two single points and a drop kick.

McGill's placement kick was executed by Tremain and came at a time, early in the third session, when the local Red team was two points in arrears and with Queen's appearing to be holding an advantage in play. The ball was placed from scrimmage at the forty yard line and sailed squarely between the posts. Queen's however, came right back and the versatile Harry Batstone hoisted a neat drop kick between the McGill posts to once again give the Kingstonians the lead.

Both touchdowns came in the first quarter which ended with the rival squads deadlocked at five points apiece. Soon after the first whistle, Little and St. Germain broke away on a neatly-executed end run and carried play from centre to Queen's five-yard line. On the first down Little hurdled the defence to cross Queen's line. The Tri-color immediately staged a counter offensive and some fast running and passing by Batstone and Warren brought play well into McGill territory, Captain Howard finally crashing through left middle for five points, to tie the score. Both converting attempts were rather feeble.

The tide of battle then distinctly changed in favor of the visiting team, St. Germain, stellar McGill back had been forced to retire following Queen's touchdown owing to aggravation of a previously injured foot. With the main spring of the backfield gone, McGill did not look the same team, and by half time, Queen's had added two singles to their count to hold a 7 to 5 lead.

At the start of the third session, McGill opened on the offensive and Tremain, who was doing heroic work alongside Capain Jack Little, put McGill in the lead once again with his placement kick. Queen's were still going strong, however, and their hefty and powerful line in front of the dashing and brilliant Batstone and Warren were clearly outplaying the local twelve. The visiting line was checking the McGill offensive efforts while Batstone was leading Warren in their assault around the McGill ends which were weakened by injuries to both regular outsides. Batstone then put Queen's in the van once again with his drop kick and the third quarter ended with Queen's ahead 10 to 8.

Then came the final quarter with the startling and thrilling climax. Tremain and Little grew stronger while the former was using better judgment in punting by giving his wings more time to get down the field, thus giving Batstone and Warren as little chance as possible to break away. Tremain made it nine for McGill on another single, then St. Germain returned to the fray and a roar from the stands gave encouragement to the fast-tiring Red machine. Their play immediately picked up. Queen's showed visible signs of tiring from their brilliant and strenuous play of the preceding periods. Tremain was kicking high and far. He finally booted another rouge to tie the score at ten all. Then came the battle.

Led by the master footballer, Batstone, the tired Queen's team put up a stirring defensive rally, McGill were pressing. Four times Tremain kicked to Batstone behind the line and four times the veteran returned the ball, each time for Queen's gain. Following one of these long bounding returns, St. Germain grabbed a pass from Little, broke through the Queen's line and swerved for the sideline. He evaded tackler after tackler and dashed down the sideline and across the Queen's line for an apparent try. It was the signal for a joyful outburst from the jammed stands. The cheering quickly died down, however, when the play was called back, the official ruling that St. Germain had run in touch at Queen's 40-yard line.

TIGERS WIN OPENING GAME

Leadly Drops Five Goals Over Montreal Posts For 24-3 Victory.

INTER-PROVINCIAL RUGBY.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—"Pep" Leadley kicked the Tigers to victory Saturday, when he dropped five perfect field goals over the Montreal posts in the opening game here of the Inter-Provincial Rugby Union. The score was 24 to 8.

By his performance Saturday, Leadley tied his own record of five field goals in one game. Not only by his great kicking points but by his brilliant punting in the open field and his all-round play did he give the Hamilton team a wide margin over the visitors. Montreal was outplayed at every angle; their line failed to hold against the smashing attacks of the Tiger line men and their back division could not compete with the Hamilton punters and tacklers. Leadley received sterling support from Walker and Wright, while Timmis and Baker were outstanding in the Tiger line. Montreal's plays were not carried through with any degree of success, owing to the strong defence Tigers were able to maintain, but Murphy and Bennett showed up well and Harrison used good judgment in the pivot position.

The visitors got away to a good start, chalking up a score of seven before Tigers made a point, but it proved a mere flash in the pan, with Montreal scoring only once after the first quarter, and Hamilton rolling up their big count.

It was perfect football weather, with the lightest of winds blowing downfield.

The first quarter opened up with the advantage to neither side. Bennett of Montreal and Languay of Hamilton indulging in a fruitless kicking duel. Languay made a great play when he recovered on his own fumble, and Sheppard drew a cheer from the Montreal crowd when he took play into Tiger territory on a long run. Bennett kicked to Walker for a rouge, giving the visitors the the first point. He followed up with a run that took him within 20 yards of the Hamilton goal. Fraser tried a drop kick which hit the post, but Montreal recovered on the rebound and Bennett went through a clean hole for a touchdown. Fraser converted and the score stood at 7 to 0.

Timmy Languay of Hamilton sustained two fractured ribs during the first half of the game.

Before the game started the teams marched to the monument at the south end of the field, where a wreath, carried by Captains Ernie Cox of Hamilton and Clare Booth, Montreal, was laid on the stone by Mrs. William Southam, mother of Major Gordon Southam, one of the Tiger stars of other days, who lost his life in the Great War. The Last Post was bounded by the bugle band.

When well on in years, Foster Powell, a celebrated English pedestrian, walked from London to Canterbury and back, about 112 miles, in twenty-four hours.

QUAKERS AND THISTLE DRAW; 2 GOALS EACH

A Real Cup Tie Game Resulted in a Battle to the Finish.

REPLAY SATURDAY.

Ferguson Opened Second Half With Rocket Goal—Dawson Equalizes.

In spite of the extremely cold breeze that prevailed on Saturday afternoon, a good crowd of spectators witnessed the Quaker Oats and the Thistle battle to a drawn game of two goals each, in the Phelan Charity Soccer Cup. It was a typical cup-tie match that was full of excitement throughout the ninety-minutes play. George Blowers, late of the Masseys, assisted the Quakers on the defence, and put up a brilliant exhibition.

The replay will take place next Saturday afternoon between the same teams.

FIRST HALF.

The Quaker Oats lost the spin of the coin and faced the sun but this disadvantage did not prevent them being early aggressiv and in one attack ought to have scored but the forwards failed to convert. It was left to Robb in the next raid to demonstrate the locality of the goal when the custodian saved a rising shot in below the bar. The next visit nearly caused disaster to the Thistle when Miller about headed into his own goal, that went for a fruitless flag-kick.

Cameron's Lightning Drive.

On mid-field tactics, Cameron gained the decision in close dribbling that gave the Thistle a chance to pay the Quakers citadel a visit when he finished his characteristic play with a fast drive into the corner of the net that Curtis failed to hold. A further raid by Lang resulted in his parting shot going across the goal-mouth looking for a gentle touch that wasn't there. The Quakers, thereafter, for a brief spell found their feet, Fergusson causing the Thistle defence to kick to touch when hard pressed. Robb followed with a capital effort from a difficult angle.

Quaker's Equalized.

A further raid on the right wing by the Quakers brought success to them when the opposing defence misjudged the ball to allow Foster to finish with an excellent effort that Griffin ecffset quickly but he had to concede defeat immediately when Avis bulged the net in below the bar. Throughout this period, Dawson initiated movments that were worthy of encouragement, when he repeatedly outwitted the defence to go into close quarters with the goalkeeper who pounced upon him at the critical moment to keep his goal clear. He was well assisted by Blowers and Downer in front of him. Shortly before the interval, the Thistle defence were again in a tangle and with Turner not so active through injury, gave the Quakers ample time to gain ascendency but Bromley held them outside the shooting range when they pressed the issue. Half-time—one goal each.

SECOND HALF.

The story of the second half is soon told. With Turner incapacitated, and changed to right half instead of centrehalf, it was evident that the Quakers would finally gain the decision in which they accomplished when Fergusson broke away on the wing with no player to stop him, made a splendid finish to his achievement, while in possession of the ball, with a left foot drive on the ground into the net, after two minutes play.

Quaker's Dominated The Play.

Encouraged by their success, the Quaker's played havoc with the Tristle half-backs that failed to hold the extreme wing men, although Bromley put in a superb display in around the goal to prevent serious damage. It was a typical end-of-the-season game in which gave-and-take reigned supreme. The Thistle replied with many clever raids and certainly looked more promising as the Quakers fell away in the attack, they besieged the desired area for a time, but poor finishing was their undoing, the ball being kept bobbing up and down in front of goal, until finally Robb would punt upfield, while George Blowers was not far behind in clearing the raid with punctual kicking. The latter kept the Quakers forwards, always on the jump towards the other end, that lacked forced and it was left to T. Williams to give Griffins a hot one to handle.

Dawson Evened Up the Count.

With only ten minutes to go, Dawson ultimately gained a well-placed forward ball from Cameron in between the full-backs. Quick as a flash, he made for goal, with the defence upon him and sent a hot drive in between the goal-keeper and the post for the equalizer. Dawson deserved this registration because he worked hard all afternoon to gain the goal he got. Time and again he was right through but W. Curtis robber him repeatedly, and did so, a few seconds before he counted. The remaining part was confined to mid-field play until the finish.

Goal-scores: Quakers—Avis and Fergusson. Thistle—Cameron and Dawson.

Quakers—W. Curtis goal; Downer and Blowers backs; T. Williams, Robb and T. Wilson halves; Carmichael, Hutton, Avis, Foster and Fergusson forwards.

Thistle—Griffine goal; Miller and McKenzie backs; Tait, Turner and Bromley halves; Lang, Waddell, Dawson, Cameron and McPhate forwards.

Referee:—W. Rintard.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

GRANDAD SHAVES HIMSELF.

My grandad always shaves himself,
Each morning still he gets his cup,
And takes his razor from the shelf,
And finds his brush, and lathers up.
A hundred times I've heard him say,
Although he's past four score and ten,
"I shaved myself just yesterday,
And, if I did, I can again."

Some fellows let their whiskers grow
When they get old, or hunt a shop,
But one old fellow answers, "No,
I'll shave myself until I drop.
I may be old, I may br gray,
But one thing's certain, anyhow,
That, if I did it yesterday,
I'm good enough to do it now."

Yet younger men will hesitate
Before some task they have to do,
Say they're too old, or it's too late,
Or they're too tired to see it through.
But, brothers, there's a better way;
Each morning just remember, men,
That, if you did it yesterday,
Then you can do the same again.

FASTING AND CHRONIC DISORDERS.

Many readers will be surprised to know that the most effective treatment for pernicious anemia is fasting, and not stuffing. Primary anemia is a condition of the blood where the red cells are destroyed by a vicious toxemia, the origin of which has not been definitely established. The real cause of this toxemia is probably that produced from a combination of bad habits, such as over-eating and under-exercising, the use of wrong food combinations, and destructive habits of thought.

Anemia patients should be concerned with one thing, and that is to stop the destruction of the red cells. As soon as fasting begins, the red cells really begin to increase in number, with a corresponding increase in hemoglobin. This statement may sound ridiculous to those who have believed that stuffing with food is the proper treatment for anemia and the deficiency diseases. Laboratory tests with thousands of patients have confirmed that the quality of the blood is always improved during a fast and that, in fact, fasting is the only method of treatment which will halt the destruction of the red cells.

In all forms of kidney disorders, such as nephritis, albuminorrhea, etc., the function of the kidneys is always improved if the patient will take a rest from all food, and drink large quantities of water. Kidney stones may often be dissolved by the simple treatment of fasting from all food and flushing the kidneys by water-drinking for two or three weeks.

Most of the so-called nervous diseases are created through the nerves being irritated by various accumulated bodily toxins. Even where the cause of nervousness seems to be mostly mental, the first treatment to be given the patient should be one that will bring about a de-toxicating of the entire system. This, of course, removes much irritating material from the nerve centers.

A fasting and diet treatment should always precede treatment by psychrotherapy, psychanalysis, New Thought, or any of the mental healing systems.

Fasting has a marvelous effect in the reatment of all the glands of internal secretion. Thyroid trouble, such as goitre and hyperthyroidism, is quickly conquered by a fast of proper length to suit the requirements

In yesterday's and to-day's articles I have briefly explained the effects of fasting in the cure of some common disorders. Watch for future articles in which I will explain the exact fasting and diet treatment to use in the treatment of every chronic disease.

Questions and Answers.

Question.—Martha J. writes: "Will you please tell me the best diet for tubercular bowell?"

Answer.—The diet must be well balanced, but with a minimum of starches and sugars. The most effective treatment is to use two or three warm enemas a day. At the same time, it is necessary to build up the general strength of the body in order to overcome any form of tuberculosis. Strength can come only from exercising, and so you must take calesthenic exercises, and walk increased distances each day.

Question.—Mrs. W. J. L. writes: "You mention an article of food in your weekly menus called 'Zucchini.' I never heard of it. What is it?"

Answer.—You probably missed the menus on which a footnote was made explaining about this vegetable. Zucchini is a small Italian squash, similar to the ordinary summer squash, and may be used freely as a non-starchy vegetable if cooked by boiling or baking. As this vegetable is difficult to obtain in certain parts of the country, the ordinary summer squash may always be substituted when the Zucchini is included in the weekly menus.

Question.—D. J. T. writes: "Kindly advise through your column what will take acid out of the blood for good."

Answer.—The blood is never acid until death, but most people who are ill have a lowered alkalinity of the blood. This can be corrected by living on a well-balanced diet such as I recommend in this column each week.

LOCAL RUNNERS IN TORONTO RACE

Dorrington and Bates in First 20 Out of 100 Starters.

TORONTO, Oct. 71.—Two youngsters, Allister Dicks of St. Mary's Boys' Service Club, and Archie Wilson of the Pontiac Club, both starting from the limit mark, romped off with Monarch Athletic Club's fourth annual five-mile handicap road race Saturday. There were 125 entries and over 100 starters, with many out-of-town runners in the field.

The fine weather brought out a large crowd of spectators, who were gathered along the course, which was reminiscent of pre-war days. The field presented a fine sight as it stretched for fully half a mile along the Davenport Road trail.

Following Dicks and Wilson, another novice, Burnsides of the Monarch Club, finished with a good margin over George Moss of Kendal, Ont. Then in very close order came the rest of the field. A great battle ensued between Bricker of Galt and Webster of Hamilton (two Olympic men) for the time prize, and only a few yards separated them at the finish, the former getting the verdict in the last quarter of a mile. Snell of Gladstones made the third best time, while Hornby of Hamilton, Sargeant of Galt, McCluskey, Boyd, Dahl and Roberts of the Monarchs, and Jim Dellow and James Potter of the Gladstones made very good runs. Bricker, Webster and Snell all came in under the old record.

The order of the first 20 to finish:

1. Allister Dicks, St. Mary's Service Club (6.30).
2. Archie Wilson, Pontiac A.C. (6.30)
3. Alec Burnside, Monarch A.C. (5.15).
4. George Moss Jr., Kendal, Ont. (6 min).
5. Clive White, Monarch AA. (5.15).

Boxing Association Opens Convention

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 17. — (A. P.). — The National Boxing Association, with a membership comprising the athletic commissions of 24 states, opened a three day convention here yesterday with prospects of taking action to force Sammy Mandell, world's light-weight champion, to defend his title against an outstanding challenger or having a boycott raised against him in every state affiliated with the association.

Walk Miller, manager of Tiger Flowers, former world's middleweight champion, will appear before the association tomorrow in the interest of having Mickey Walker stripped of his title as middleweight holder. Miller claims to have a contract with Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, guaranteeing a return bout with Flowers within 90 days in the event that title changed hands when they met in Chicago last April. The title changed hands but the Georgia deacon failed to get the return fight.

NOTRE DAME RALLY TO WIN 19-6 SCORE

Pittsburgh Upholds Intersectional Prestige of Season By 32-0 Win.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. —(Canadian Press). — Triumphant banners of a few football teams still were flying high yesterday over the gridirons of the East after a hard fought mid-October battles as the game has seen.

The colors of Notre Dame were kept aloft by a remarkable last half rally that brought a 19 to 6 win over the Navy, while Pittsburgh, undefeated and unscored upon, upheld the intersectional prestige of the East by taking Drake of Iowa into camp by 32 to 0.

Upsets were few as most of the game were "naturals," with the contestants rated on even terms, but the day had its surprises among which were counted the 20 to 0 triumph of Penn State over Pennsylvania's hitherto unbeaten team, and the 119 to 6 victory of Syracuse over a Georgetown eleven which had been carrying all before it. Somewhat surprising too, were the aggregations and the work of West Virginia in holding the Lafayette Juggernaut to a 7 to 7 tie.

Both Yale and Harvard, rejuvenated, gained sweet victory over foes which had beaten them the year before, Yale downing Brown, and Harvard disposing of Holy Cross.

In defeating Georgetown, Syracuse gained similar solace for a whipping in 1926.

A untimely trimming by Virginia Polytechnic Institute a week ago apparently stung a fighting Colgate team to its best efforts, for Columbia, which had not yet been scored upon, went down before the Maroon assault.

Many Aspirants For S. Mandell's Crown

CHICAGO Ill., Oct. 15. — Sammy Mandell has agreed to risk his world's lightweight championship for the second time at the Chicago Coliseum, November 14th.

Seven opponents, who rank the highest in the light weight ranks, are being considered by Promoter Jim Mullen, holder of Mandell's signature, for the titular contest.

These are Louis (Kid) Kaplan, formerly recognized by the New York Athletic Commission as featherweight champion; Billy Petrolle, "Fargo Express"; Spug Myers of Pocatello, Idaho; Stanislaus Loayza, Jimmy McLarnin, Hilario Martinez, the Spanish lightweight champion, and Phil. McGraw of Detroit.

Mandell has not defended his title against a dangerous opponent since he defeated McGraw at Detroit last July. But of his apparent reluctance to meet outstanding challengers, he has been threatened by the National Boxing Association, which warned him it would strip him of his title if he would not do so. The warning of the association, Mandell said, did not have any influence on his decision to fight.

"When a Man Loves" is a stupendous creation, gorgeous in setting and costume and interpreted by two who are acknowledged to be the greatest lovers of the screen, John Barrymore and Dolores Costello. The extraordinary quality of their support may be gleaned from the cast above. "When a Man Loves" is a retelling of the Abbe Prevost story, and while less tragic than the original, it is suffused with beauty and passion, and is possessed of many brilliant high lights and thrilling situation. The locale is the France of Louis XV. The sea and the shores of the New World also figure in the presentation.

Manon and Fabien meet first in the courtyard of an old inn in Picardy. She is on her way to a convent, he bound for St. Sulpice to finish his priestly studies. They have scarcely met when Fabien hears her brother plotting to sell her, and whisks her away to Paris where the two live in idyllic happiness until she is stolen by her brother and taken to an aged follower of the King.

Fabien grows rich by gambling and one day, meeting her with her protector and believing her to be a courtesan, he hurls his winnings at her. She is able to explain, however, and is forgiven. They again live togther, now in possession of fabulous wealth. Louis XV. plays at cards for Manon, wins her, and turns her over to her ancient enemy. Fabien, trying to protect her is sentenced to the Bastile and Manon to be deported to America. Fabien kills her tormentor, boards the ship, stirs the crew to mutiny and rows Manon to safety.

This is but the skeleton of a story pulsing with life and burning with strange, inextinguishable beauty. Barrymore has the chance to do all the things he did in "Beau Brummel" or "The Sea Beast" or "Don Juan" and Dolores is even more exquisitely frail and appealing than before. "When a Man Loves" is a picture no one can afford to miss.

AT THE GRAND

THE DUMBELLS COMING.

The Dumbells continue to provide the outstanding feature of the year in Canadian theatricals. This time it is "Oo La, La," their ninth annual revue, and from all reports their most unquestioned success.

Captain Plunkett and his popular company will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre for two days commencing Friday, October 28.

A glance at the program shows that all the well-loved entertainers of other years are still in the cast, while several new names appear as well.

"Oo, La, La!" opens with a little post-war prologue, in which Al Plunkett, Jack McClellan, Cameron Geddes, "Jock" Holland, and Morley Plunkett appear.

"Red" Newman and Pat Rafferty have a burlesque on Mary and Doug. Fred Emney and Charley Jeeves provide a cemedy entre act and Ross Hamilton and the quartette are heard in 'Shalimar." "Red" Newman sings "Ma, Look at Charlie," and Harry Binns sings, "Some Night, Some Waltz, Some Girl," while Glean Allan and Morley Plunkett provide the waltz setting.

Fred Emney, Charlie Jeeves and "Jock"Holland have a rehearsal scene that is followed by a revival of "Hello, My Dearie," an echo of ten years ago, with Ross Hamilton as a girl, and Harry Binns as the soldier in the trenches.

Al Plunkett sings one of his giggling hits, "Walking Back from a Buggy Ride," and Cameron Geddes' golden bass voice is heard in "The Roamer."

The first act closes with Jack McClellan in his quaint role of the op'ry house manager in "The Town Hall To-night.

The second part opens with a veritable musical festival, with Capatin Plunkett, himself as host. The captain sings some of his own songs, the trio of Plunkett brothers sing a popular medley, Howard Fogg is heard in a violin solo and Fred Emney and Louis Crerar have a piano duet.

The musical act is followed by a budget of comedy and song numbers, and the show comes to a close with a sketch called "Sailing, Sailing," in which the eight comedians of the company provide the funniest twenty minutes that any one could possibly conceive.

AT THE REGENT.

"GERTIE'S GARTER" LAUGH TONIC.

If things look a little "blue" to you; if the world doesn't seem just right, and you get up in the morning with an irresistible desire to slap the baby or kick the cat—these signs indicate that you need a liberal dose of laugh-tonic.

To all and sundry such we recommend seeing Marie Prevost in "Getting Gertie's Garter," her new Metropolitan comedy, now playing at the Regent Theatre. Here's a farce-comedy that will restore the silver lining to your darkest cloud; it will dissipate the fogs of melancholia and reveal the zest that makes life worth living.

'Getting Gertie's Garter' as a stage play was the hit of the season in New York several years ago. It was written by Avery Hopwood, one of the most brilliant farceurs now writing for the stage, and in its screen form it retains all the humour and verve that made for its success on the stage.

Marie Prevost is a positive riot as Gertie who becomes involved in trouble when she attempts to restore to Charles Ray, in the role of her ex-fiance, a garter to which his picture is attached and which he had given her in the belief that it was a bracelet. In her surreptitious attempts to return the dodad, she runs afoul of her new fiance, who becomes intensely jealous, and thereby hangs the farce. The humorous situations are unforced, the action speedy and the complications provocative of genuine enjoyment. E. Mason Hopper was the director.

"Gertie" is about the best thing Marie Prevost has done in a long while. Which means that it is unusually meritorious. Charles Ray is featured opposite Miss Prevost and proves himself a farce-comedy actor desined to achieve as much fame in such character types as he did in his celebrated bucolic roles.

Don't believe everything you see, but, by all means, don't miss seeing "Getting Gertie's Garter." The supporting cast is brilliant in every respect. The direction by E. Mason Hopper was thoroughly artistic.

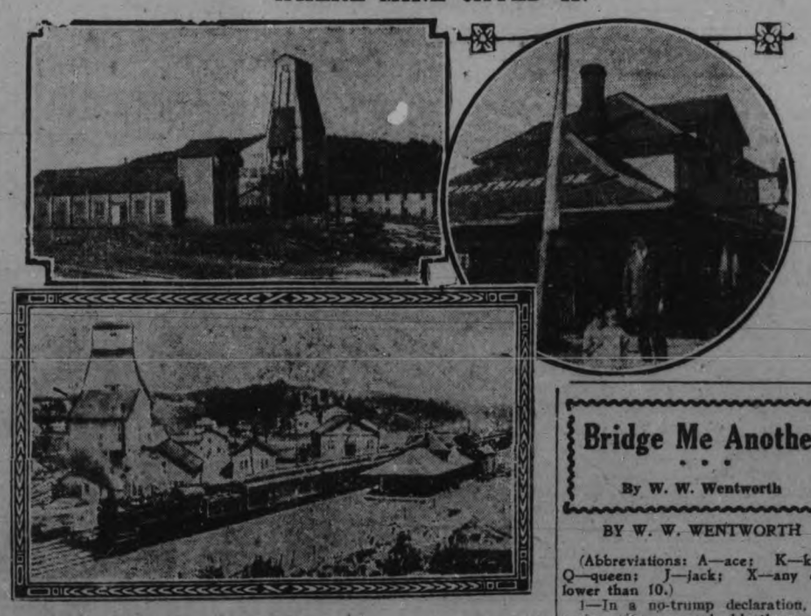
WHERE MINE CAVED IN



Above are photos of the Worthington mine of the Mond Nickel Company, near Sudbury, Ont., which was completely wrecked when the shaft collapsed. Above, on the left, is a picture of the section of the mine and of the town which is now more than one hundred feet below the level of the earth. The building in the front is the power house, now a mass of ruins. On the right is a photograph of the C.P.R. station which was left tottering on the brink of a 150-foot precipice. In the foreground the C. P. R. tracks, which sank in the collapse, are shown. Below is a general view of the town, with the C. P. R. tracks and station and the power house and shaft head in the foreground. Practically all of the town shown in this picture has sunk with the cave-in.

"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died sewing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married. David kills the fiancee of Arthur Graham in an auto accident. Graham's parents are bitter toward David, who is sentenced to ten years in prison.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

"Please, Mrs. Tomlinson, dear," Mary rose. "You mustn't pity us." Pity was more than she could bear. "We'll turn out all right. It will all turn out all right." She smiled, determinedly, as if to say: "See the courage I have! It's bound to turn out well!"

The landlord was very sympathetic, but Mary and Robert would have to leave at the end of the month, which was close. Very well then, Mary would find some place to live. A place with a bit of grass for Patch, the cat. She grew quite cheery. It really wouldn't be difficult, and after all Davie wasn't dead. Davie—Davie was touring the world, a trip that would last for ten years. Davie behind prison doors. But she mustn't think of that. Davie was touring the world. And she still had young Robert, who was a joy.

She would go on.

The day before they were to leave and the day after Mary had found the room for both of them, a little sunny room in a home kept by a widow, with a square of green for Robert and Patch, it was that day that they came for young Robert.

David, it seemed, had begged them to see that the little family was taken care of. David had said, "I am their only support, and now that I am gone how will they live?" quite losing sight of the fact that Mary, though pampered luxuriously by her big brother could under necessity go out and toil. Quite earnestly, a bit wildly, Mary assured the policewoman that she would work and make quite enough to support them both, but the woman who came for young Robert (she was of the type that is known as "raw-boned") proved deaf to pleas, and Bob was led away, after having bravely resolved not to weep—for Mary looked so harassed.

"I'll come and get you, Mary, when I'm big and can work and we can stay together and wait until Davie comes." His lower lip trembling as Mary knelt by the side of the bag, packing his clothes.

"Oh, Robert darling!" Mary leaned back on her heels, and closed her eyes against the tears that would persist in blinding her.

"If—I'll write you, Mary, every single day."

"Yes, darling, and I'll write to you."

"If—if I shouldn't be able to come so quickly, you'll come to me, Mary?"

Mary couldn't bear that. She wheeled towards the policewoman who rocked placidly beside them, looking on.

"Where are you taking him, do you know?" she demanded.

"New York, probably. That's the nearest."

"Shall I be able to come to see him?"

"Well," placidly, "I don't see why not."

"You hear that, young Bob? I shall be able to come to see you—and I will, often. Oh, darling, darling!" Young Robert held closely against Mary. Young Robert struggling desperately to be brave, because Mary looked so harassed. "I shall play I am Lancelot, Mary, going to the wars." He stroked her head, where she knelt beside him.

"Yes, darling." Her voice was muffled in the grey tweed of his knickered suit. His Sunday suit He had insisted upon it for the journey. Grey looked like the gleam of armor.

His sturdy little figure, minute beside that of the policewoman marched off down the street. He turned and blew numerous kisses to Mary. Then Mary was alone.

Returning to the house, Mary stumbled against a crack in the macadam of the walk. "Davie was going to fix that," she thought drearily. There would be no need for it now. They had all left the little green house, Davie and young Robert, and now she would go on the morrow. Alone. Free of all encumbrances, was Mary. Her previous conception of the perfect state for woman. No encumbrances that dragged at one and pulled one from the high places. Strangely enough, there was no joy in the thought. She savored it and found it dry. Did one live in ideals and dreams only to discover them empty mockeries?

Within the house all was cool and quiet. A tennis ball was being rolled aimlessly about by Patch, who had been bidden a very brave farewell by Robert. Patch was annoyed. When young Bob had clutched her convulsively to his breast he had wet and mussed her sleek fur, somehow. Young Robert had reckoned that tears did not show in fur, and reckoned correctly. For if Mary did see the tears on Patch she would think they were caused by the kitten's little pink tongue. But Mary didn't notice either Patch or the tears Mary sought relief in work. Packing. Anything to recall her thoughts from the figure of the little boy being led off by the woman whose type was most commonly termed "raw-boned."

Her white tennis middies and skirts. Would she require them where she was going? Did one play tennis in New York? One doubtlessly did if one had the time and the court. Mary doubted that she would have either. At the moment she had no other desire than that of rescuing Robert from "that place." She avoided the noun orphan asylum. It was bitter that Bobbie should have a taste of that which Davie had done his utmost to protect them from. Davie should never know. She would go to New York, where she might be near the little brother, and work. Anything. Anything that would bring her enough for them both. Anything that would prove to the raw-boned woman that Bobbie would be as well off in Mary's care as he would in that of the asylum.

She would leave tomorrow. There was almost a quickening of her blood at the thought. A new life! "Not too much eagerness, my dear," she counselled herself. She resolved to go slowly, and build with patience and careful forethought. Build her house in such a fashion that the foundation would not permit of a careless overthrow by a superior force. Wariness had become part of her creed now.

Downstairs the telephone rang and Mary ran to answer it. There was lightness in her step again. She felt within her a new urge, something for which to live and work. The thought brought her tranquility, a commodity of which she had felt little these past chaotic weeks.

The voice at the other end of the wire proved to be that of Wally.

"Hello, sweet; what's the cry from Camelot?"

Mary answered with a gay lilt in her tone, but with her eyes closed against their sudden dimming. "The brave young Lancelot has ridden off to the wars."

Wally was suddenly alert. She felt the spring to attention, as though at a command. "What's that?" he asked.

"Robert's gone, Wally," she swallowed, and repeated it more firmly the second time.

"I'm coming over," and the sound of the receiver being snapped back on the hook.

She finished her packing before he came, and was waiting for him as he remembered her the first time he had seen her, after the tournament at the park, her head a shining mark against the green of the post, ankles crossed before her.

"Well," he grinned as his eyes took her in, "you look peaceful enough, Lord knows. Tell me why I've chased down here on one leg, as it were, with the other flying behind me in mid-air."

"I don't know," she asked, smiling at his flushed face, "why did you?"

"You're an irritating baggage. Where's Robert?"

"I've told you, Wally." She rather enjoyed the anxiety she was causing. It pleased her to think that the affairs of the Sullivans were proving so very much a part of his life.

"But you haven't told me all," he came to seat himself on the railing opposite her, removing her ankles, as he did the first time. He remembered, as, of course, Wally would. But did Mary?

YORK MINSTER BELL REPLACED

Big Peter, Third Largest in England, Has Been Recast.

SPECIAL SERVICE.

YORK, Eng., Oct. 17.—The third biggest bell in England, ranking in size only after Bib Ben at Westminster, and the big bell at St. Paul's Cathedral, "Big Peter," returned to York Minster recently after the absence of a year at Loughborough, where it has been recast and had new head stock made for it so that it can be rung. It is now quite glossy in appearance compared with the old rusty bell which had hung useless for 81 years in the northwest tower of the Minster.

The bell is larger than it was, and stands 8 feet high and measures 8 ft. 8-in. across the mouth. The head stock weighs two tons and the clapper 700 pounds.

There was a special service at which the bell's return was welcomed.

21ST BATTALION REUNION DINNER

Ninth Annual Gathering Will Be Held This Year in Ottawa.

NEXT SATURDAY.

The following call has been sent out to old 21st Battalion members, inviting them to the ninth annual Reunion Dinner of the 21st Overseas Battalion, at Ottawa, on Oct. 22:

"Comrade, Greetings:

"Fall in"; and come to the Ninth Annual Dinner and Reunion of your Old Battalion this year. Come and meet the Old Boys again, talk over the good old days when we were up to the eyes in mud, and you will again feel like singing that Old Time melody "We're going away next week." Think of the glorious days in Kingston, then dear old Blighty, to say nothing of Glorious Belgium in Sandbags and La Belle France; along with the days way up on the Rhine. So come, to YOUR reunion and dinner at Ottawa on October 22nd and hear the Carillon play that old refrain—"Are we downhearted. "No."

It is almost impossible to get the addresses of all the Old Comrades of the Battalion, so if you know one that has not received this notice and invitation, just let him know that he is wanted right here in Ottawa on Oct. 22nd, next. The Officer commanding the 38th Battalion, Ottawa Highlanders, has given us the use of the Drill Hall to use as our headquarters for the day, and the Ottawa boys are making the drill hall the rendezvous.

Please report there on arrival and register, receive your ticket for the dinner, if you have not already obtained one, and let us welcome you to our city.

The dinner will be held in the Palm Garden, Sparks St., and that one-time popular call "Come to the cookhouse door" will be sounded at 8.15 p.m.

The tickets for the dinner will be $2.00 and we would appreciate it if you would purchase yours as soon as possible, in order that we may form an estimate of the attendance and be prepared. We desire to make this the best yet, and would be pleased if you would get in touch with the undersigned.

In conclusion, let me implore you to pack up your troubles in your old kit bag, and smile, for it's a long way to Tipperary, but be among those present in Ottawa on Oct. 22nd and let us prove to you that "WE Ain't Downhearted Yet."

ROYAL ART SOCIETY IS 100 YEARS OLD

Birmingham Association Has Had Many Famous Members.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Oct. 17 (by the Canadian Press).—The Birmingham Royal Society of Artists recently celebrated its 100th year by holding a centenary exhibition. It began in a small way by holding its first exhibition in a room normally used as an auctioneer's sale-room, and from that humble origin the society rapidly grew and soon began to exercise a decided influence in the art of the period. Of the Society's past-presidents no fewer than seven held that office coincidently with the presidency of the Royal Academy, while other achieved the latter distinction afterwards. Amongst these were Sir Edward Burne-Jones and Frank Brangwyn.

The Society derived its royal title from a command exhibition given in 1868 for Queen Victoria, who had once visited the Society's galleries while she was Princess, and had been greatly impressed with what she saw. Although the Society's present building in New Street has not its former dignity externally—the exigencies of street developments compelled the demolition of the imposing Corinthian columns—the gallery is still one of the best to be found in the provinces, apart from the museums. The centenary exhibition embraced an historic collection of works representing about 150 artists.

LANDLORD KISSES WIVES OF TENANTS

One Lays Charge of Assault and Has Him Bound Over.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 17.—When Alexander Veryard, of Stapleford Abbotts, Essex, was summoned recently for assaulting Mrs. Leetha Macdonald by kissing her, he told the Bench proudly that he kissed all his tenants. One of them was a woman of 84.

Mrs. Mac donald told the magistrates that Veryard frequently rushed into her cottage, caught hold of her, and kissed her. She denied that she had ever asked him to do so. It was true that she paid him only one shilling a week rent for the cottage.

Edward Macdonald, her husband, said that on one occasion Veryard kissed his wife in his presence. "I thought then it was time to bolt the door," he added.

"I am very pleased to have appeared attention," Veryard told the Bench when he was bound over for 12 months.

Oddly enough, Switzerland, the health resort of Europe, can boast only half-a-dozen centenarians.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by
Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 1

It is really surprising what simple mistakes often are made by players who think they play a pretty fair game. Here are several examples that the writer noticed in a recent game:

Hearts — K, 6, 3
Clubs — J, 4
Diamonds — K, 7, 6, 3, 2
Spades — J, 10, 8

Y
A B
Z

Hearts — Q, 9, 4
Clubs — A, Q, 7
Diamonds — A, 8
Spades — A, Q, 7, 6, 2

Z dealt, bid one spade, A and Y passed and B bid two hearts. Z bid two spades, all passed and A opened the ten of hearts. Z's proper play, of course, is the king of hearts in dummy. B must either win this trick with the ace or allow the king to hold. If he wins the trick, Z must win the next two heart tricks, for he holds the queen nine of hearts over B's jack. If B should fail to play the ace, Z must win one more trick with the queen of hearts. In either event, therefore, by playing the king of hearts at trick one, Z is sure of two tricks, no matter how B plays. In the actual play, however, Z made a serious mistake. When the ten of hearts was led, he played the trey of hearts from Y's hand and B also played low. Z was thus forced to win the trick with the queen and B now held the ace jack of hearts over Y's king and was, therefore, assured of two tricks.

Z's mistakes in this hand, however, were not over. After winning the first heart trick with the queen, he led a low diamond and won the trick in Y's hand with the king. He now had two possible plays. He could lead the jack of spades or the low club, with the purpose in view of finessing in either case. His proper lead was the jack of spades. If this finesse should lose, he would have a re-entry in Y's hand with the ten of spades. If B should cover with the king of spades, Z should play his ace and thus again have a re-entry with the ten of spades. If B held the king and failed to cover, Y's jack of spades would hold the trick and Z should then lead Y's low club and play the queen from his own hand. If this finesse loses, he will thus have a re-entry with the jack of clubs in Y's hand.

Z, however, thought of none of these facts. He proceeded to lead the jack of clubs from Y's hand and A won the trick with the king. He returned a low heart and B won two heart tricks with the ace jack. B then led a low club which Z was obliged to win with the queen of clubs in his own hand. He now had no way to get Y's hand in the lead except by trumping a club. He trumped with the eight of spades and B over-trumped with the nine. As B originally held the K, 9, 5 of spades, he also made the king of spades so that Y-Z scored only two odd.

On the other hand, if Z had played his finesses correctly he would have scored four odd and game, provided, of course, that he had played the king of hearts at trick one. It is mistakes such as Z made in this hand that lose so many games; and the sad part of it is that they are all so easy to avoid. Learn to think out your plays in advance and select the one that gives you the best chance for game.

Here is another hand that illustrates the value of planning your finesses so that you will get a double chance for game, instead of a single one:

Hearts — J, 7, 6, 2
Clubs — J, 10
Diamonds — none
Spades — 9, 8

Hearts — Q, 9, 8, 5
Clubs — 6, 3
Diamonds — Q
Spades — J

A B
Z

Hearts — K, 10
Clubs — K, 8, 7
Diamonds — 8
Spades — K, 6

Hearts — none
Clubs — A, Q, 9, 5, 4
Diamonds — none
Spades — A, Q, 10

Z is playing the hand, spades are trumps and Y's hand is in the lead. He has two possible finesses, one in clubs and one in spades. If he leads the jack of clubs, he is sure of the balance of the tricks for if B covers with the king, Z will play his ace and put Y's hand again in the lead with the ten of clubs. He can then finesse the spades. If B doesn't cover the jack of clubs, Z should then play the low spade and finesse the queen. He should then play first the ace of clubs and then a small club and trump in Y's hand. He can then trump a heart, lead the ace of spades and his clubs are good. Played in either of these ways, Y-Z can win all of the tricks.

Suppose, however, that Z at trick one takes the spade finesse before the club finesse. It will win, of course, but how can he get Y's hand in again to make the club finesse? He would thus have to lose a club trick and win one less trick than if he had first taken the club finesse.

There are numberless hands where these principles should be applied, so study them carefully and if you thoroughly understand them you will win many a game and rubber that you could not win otherwise.

CAR HITS TEAM; FIVE INJURED

Occupant of Automobile and Driver of Horses Hurt in Crash.

NEAR BELLEVILLE.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 17—(Canadian Press.)—Mr. and Mrs. Walter McKitrick and Mr. and Mrs. J. Harris of Rochester, N.Y., are lying in the Belleville Hospital, all with injuries, the result of an automobile accident near the village of Smithfield late Saturday afternoon. Joseph Gibson, of Stoney Point, was severely bruised and is suffering with much shock, he being the driver of a team of horses on a wagon that was struck by McKitrick's car.

Gibson was returning from Smithfield with a load of grist and before crossing the highway looked in both directions. Failing to observe the car driven by McKitrick proceeding west he drove directly in the path of the approaching car. The horses were taken clear of the wagon, the nearest horse being killed outright and the other dragged a distance of 60 feet. Gibson was thrown into the ditch with the dead animal. The car continued from the north to the south side of the road and turned over four times, pinning the occupants underneath.

Dr. Clark, of Brighton, rendered first aid and then ordered the injured to be brought to the hospital. This was done by the Trenton ambulance. McKitrick suffered fractures of the left arm and the other passengers were cut about the face from flying glass. The car was a complete wreck.

Has Rib Broken.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 17. —(Canadian Press). — Although one wheel of a motor car passed over his neck, Dr. W. E. Inksetter of Dundas escaped with comparatively slight injuries in an accident at Bullocks Corners to-day. He suffered a fractured rib.

Prison Guard Hurt.

GUELPH, Oct. 17. — (Canadian Press). — Andrew Roulson, a guard at the Ontario Reformatory, was struck by a motor car on the road close to the Reformatory last night and was taken to hospital with a fractured leg and serious head injuries. The driver of the car, George Wilson, was charged with criminal negligence and released on bail to-day.

LOCAL HONEY GOES ABROAD

Car Loaded Here To-day For Shipment To European Ports.

DEMAND IS ACTIVE.

Local members of The Ontario Honey Producers' Co-operative Company completed the loading of a car of "Beekist Brand" honey at noon to-day. This car is being rushed to Montreal to catch a boat sailing the latter part of the week, and is consigned to British and Continental points. Ontario honey is in active demand on the British market owing to the consistently high quality of the product exported by the organized producers. In this connection it is interesting to recall that honey from Peterboro district last year won first prize at the Colonial Exhibition at Crystal Palace, London, in competition with the entire Empire.

New York Market Turns Downward

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. —(Canadian Press). — Pronounced reactionary tendencies developed in to-day's stock market. The railroad shares offered fairly good resistence to selling pressure but many of the popular industrials were hammered down one to five points. The lowering of the call money rate to four per cent failed to check liquidations. American Sugar Refining was carried down another 4½ points and other sugars were heavy. Sharp breaks took place in International Harvester, Abitibi Power, and Commercial Solvents.

Better Weather Sends Wheat Prices Down

CHICAGO, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press).—Better weather in Canada turned wheat prices downward today after a show of firmness at the start. The initial strength resulted from unlooked for upturns in quotations at Liverpool that were associated with the smallness of world shipments. Opening unchanged to ⅝c higher, wheat soon declined all around to below Saurday's finish. Corn, oats, and provisions were easier, with corn starting at ⅝c off to ⅛c advance and subsequently showing a decided general setback.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 131⅛, March 134⅛. Corn, December 85⅝, March 89⅛. Oats, December 46¼, March 48 1-8.

J. JOHN HEAD OF BOY SCOUT ASSOCIATION

Progress in Past Year Reported at Annual Meeting Here.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Provincial Executive Expected To Meet in Peterborough Next Year.

A year of progress in scouting in Peterborough was reported at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Boy Scout Association, held yesterday evening in the City Council Chamber, and hopes for even greater advancement were expressed by the outgoing and incoming officers.

The secretary, F. Taylor, read the report for the year, showing about fifty members in four troops, and a small balance in the treasury.

The following officers were elected on motion of W. R. Morris and W. G. Howden, who formed the Nominating committee.

President—J. John.
First Vice-President—W. H. Dickin.
Second Vice-President—A. Kay.
Third Vice-President— J. A. McKone.
Secretary—F. Taylor.

The patrons are His Honor Judge Huycke, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, His Worship Mayor Holloway, E. A. Peck, M.P., and W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

The executive consists of Thomas Barrie, Rev. P. Costello, Dr. J. J. Craig, W. H. Dickin, Dr. G. M. Fraser, H. G. Hagerman, W. G. Howden, Chris. Hughes, J. John, Alex Kay, J. A. McKone, W. R. Morris, Rev. J. D. Paterson, C. H. Rogers, G. H. Roper, F. L. Roy and J. J. Turner.

Rev. Father Costello, in discussing the past year, spoke of the pleasure he had found in the work. It has been a slow, up-hill struggle for some years, he said, but it would seem now that the movement is well under way, with four active troops. He bespoke for the new president the support which had been accorded him.

The new president, J. John, accepted the office with a promise to do his best to follow the footsteps of those who had preceded him in office. The real work will fall, he said, on the commissioner and district and troop scoutmasters, but the executive will be behind them in all their efforts.

Commissioner J. J. Turner reported that Dr. G. Murray Fraser, who had wished to resign as District Scoutmaster because of pressure of work, had agreed to remain in office.

Mr. Turner advised the inauguration of scoutmasters' meetings for discussion, which he felt would aid the men in their work and in possible extensions. It is likely, he said, that the Provincial Executive would accept the invitation to hold its 1928 meetings here, and he hopes to have the movement in as healthy a condition as possible for that time.

He moved a vote of thanks to the retiring president and to the returning officer, stating that his belief that the president had been imbued with a feeling that the scout work is necessary for the city. W. H. Dickin seconded the motion, which was carried.

W. R. Morris moved a vote of thanks to the Commissioner, Assistant Commissioner, District Scoutmaster and Scoutmasters for their work in the past year. Rev. Father Costello seconded the motion.

A. Hope responded for the scoutmasters. He expressed pleasure that Dr. Fraser had decided to remain in office. He urged the officers to visit the troops frequently during the year.

There were present the Rev. P. Costello, Frank Taylor, W. G. Howden, W. R. Morris, A. Hope, C. Corbett, C. Hughes, J. J. Turner, J. John, H. Dickin, F. L. Roy, J. F. Mackenzie and J. A. McKone.

Those Previously Notified Given Seven Days To Instal Conveniences.

TEST VALUE DISCUSSED.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning, with Alderman Hancock in the chair, and Mayor Holloway, City Clerk Armstrong, Sanitary Inspector Stapleton, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M. O.H., and J. J. Turner present.

It was decided to inform all owners of houses who had already received several notices as to the installation in their premises of sanitary conveniences that only seven days' grace will be allowed them, the Board to take action at the expiration of that period.

N. T. LaPlante attended the meeting this morning, with regard to a notice served on him to install conveniences at 285 Romaine Street, Mr. LaPlante has already made three installations of this type, and is contemplating installing conveniences at 70 Aylmer Street. On explanation of certain circumstances surrounding the tenancy of the Romaine Street house, it was decided to allow the matter to remain over until the spring.

The report of the matron showed four admissions (diphtheria cases) to the Isolation Hospital during the month of September, with three cases already in the hospital. Five patients were discharged during the interval, with two now in the Hospital.

After listening to the report of expenditures for the month, Mayor Holloway spoke of the large amount expended in looking after a small number of patients. Dr. Young said the Hospital afforded protection for the patients themselves and for their neighbourhood and the city at large, and, in that way, the expenditure was worth while.

The report of samples of milk submitted to the Board monthly by Dr. Murray Fraser also came in for comment by the Mayor, who, after interrogating Dr. Young, discovered that this report does not reveal in any way the number of disease germs that may be harboured in the milk samples. It has only to do with the organic content, and gives an idea of the comparative cleanliness of the samples. In one case, where certain bacilli were reported in various instances as being very plentiful, Dr. Young said that these were harmless. "They are in everything," he asserted, "and were quite innocent."

Going on to answer other questions by the Mayor, Dr. Young said that pasteurized milk was the very "safest" type of milk to use, but tests made in England showed that it did not contain the same nutritive elements as the unpasteurized variety. Children fed on pasteurized milk were found to be possessed of rougher skin and hair than children drinking the untreated milk, and did not advance in weight so rapidly. Valuable properties lost by pasteurization might be made up partially, he said.

Australian Musicians Ask Ban On Americans

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 18.—(United Press).—The Australian Musicians' Union is making efforts to have legislation enacted which will forbid the entry of American musicians into Australia. This is a retaliation against the action of the American Musicians' Federation in securing a ban against the "Commonwealth Band" in the United States.

If the proposal is carried out many American jazz experts now in Australia will be excluded.

PRIVY COUNCIL SAYS CABINET HAS AUTHORITY

Rhodes Government May Eliminate Provincial Legislative Council.

TWO METHODS.

May Add Enough Men To Vote For Dissolution or Dismiss Council.

LONDON, October 18 (Canadian Press).—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council upheld the Nova Scotia Government in its claim that it has the right to abolish the Legislative Council of the Province. The judgment handed down states that the Government may either appoint enough new members to vote the Council out of office or dismiss the Council.

The fight to abolish the Legislative Council began in 1925, when Premier Rhodes announced his intention to abolish the Council. The members declined to resign, and when the matter was carried to the Supreme Court of the Province, disagreement resulted.

On behalf of the Nova Scotia Government, Attorney-General W. L. Hall, during the hearing of the case in July, submitted that the Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia had power to appoint members to the Legislative Council at will, and equal power to dismiss them when he chose. On behalf of the Council, Stuart Jenks, K.C., of Halifax, had submitted that the pre-Confederation constitution gave the authority for a Legislative Council not exceeding 21 members and the British North America Act perpetuated these provisions. He asserted the Government had no power to dismiss the members since the members were not officers within the meaning of the statutes.

The Judicial Committee answered two principal points in delivering the judgment: That the Lieutenant-Governor has power to appoint members to the Council in excess of the limit of 21; that the members appointed before May 1925, were appointed during the pleasure of His Majesty represented by the Lieutenant-Governor.

The Privy Council points out that although the limit was fixed at 21 in the nineteenth century, this was in no way intended to restrict the powers of the Queen or King in appointing so many members as they might think fit.

Government Pleased.

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 18 (Canadian Press).—The Government of Nova Scotia is greatly satisfied with the decision of the Privy Council giving it power to abolish the Legislative Council, Premier Rhodes said to-day. The Legislature would have to meet and pass an Act amending the constitution so that the decision could be put into effect, he said. It was possible that a special session would be called for this purpose. It was not proposed to give the existing members of the Council monetary consideration on the occasion of their retirement, he added. He estimated the direct annual saving to the province by reason of the abolition of the Council at forty thousand dollars.

Hon. F. P. Bligh, President of the Council, said he could not say what the next move would be, although it would be on the part of the Government.

Hon. William Chisholm, leader of the Opposition, remarked the decision would be hailed with satisfaction as settling the dispute. At the same time he debated whether it would be in the public interest.

HUMAN SERUM FOR PARALYSIS

Harvard Doctor Gets Favorable Results From This Treatment.

FROM CONVALESCENTS.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 18 (Canadian Press).—Favorable results have been obtained with human serum for the treatment of infantile paralysis, Dr. Milton Rosenau, Harvard, said in a report to the Inter-State Post-Graduate Medical Association, in convention here. He did not claim that a cure had been discovered, but physicians were no longer altogether in the dark. The serum was prepared from the blood of convalescent infantile paralysis patients.

VICE-PRESIDENTS OF VETERANS

CANADIAN LEGION OFFICERS ELECTED AT ANNUAL MEETING

Splendid Reports Presented Show Growth and Expansion in Year.

HALL RENOVATED.

James Abraham Succeeds Charles Ackerman as President of Local Branch.

President:
James A. Abraham.

1st Vice President:
Dr. H. N. Sutton.

2nd Vice-President.
Rev. Paul Costello.

Executive:
Norman E. Crowe;
A. Everett;
R. E. Layfield;
John R. Heron.

Auditors:
W. Swanger;
G. R. Melton.

The above is the list of officers elected by the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League at the annual meeting last night, and these men, with past president Charles H. Ackerman, will guide the destinies of Branch 52 during the coming year.

The retiring president was importuned to accept the position for a second term, but urged the election of a new man. The honor of commanding the Peterborough Branch, Colonel Ackerman declared, should be passed on, and while he would continue to interest himself in and work for the Legion, he found himself compelled to refuse the honor of a second term. Dr. Sutton was also named as a presidential candidate, but refused to allow his name to stand, as he served a term as commander of the G.W.V.A. President Abraham was elected by acclamation as were Vice-Presidents Sutton and Costello. N. E. Crowe, in withdrawing in favor of Rev. Father Costello, cited the good services given the cause of returned soldiers by the latter, and his long and faithful service with the local branch.

In presenting his report of the past year, the first year of the Canadian Legion, which took over the Great War Veterans Association, the retiring President commented with satisfaction on the work accomplished. He was specially pleased with the financial statement, presented by W. Swanger nd G. R. Melton, showing the Peterborough Branch to have assets of $60,000 in plant and equipment. The work of the euchre committee under N. E. Crowe was outstanding, and splendid assistance had been given comrades in need. "I consider the work of the Legion more important than any one of the many activities I am engaged in in Peterborough", Colonel Ackerman declared, adding, in the words of Coolidge, "I do not care to stand for re-election in 1927."

"The Canadian Legion is going to live", the retiring leader said, drawing upon experience gained in Ontario and the west for his authority. "The Prince of Wales called the British Empire Service League the best institution in the British Empire. He himself has the welfare of the returned man of all ranks at heart, and if the Prince of Wales is exercised and works for the League surely it behooves all returned fellows to join the association and help out.

"In retiring this year I am not losing interest in or severing my connection with the Legion in Peterborough. I hope in the coming year to be able to devote even more time to the work than in the past.

Lipton Gets Tip For Serving Lady

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (United Press).—The yachting cap affected by Sir Thomas Lipton proved a money-maker for the multi-millionaire while en route to the United States aboard the liner Leviathan. A woman passenger, presumably near-sighted, called Sir Thomas to her deck chair. "Steward," she said, "will you please bring me a rug."

Without comment, Sir Thomas found the desired blanket and brought it to the lady. "Thank you," and she slipped him 50 cents. Sir Thomas bowed low and walked away. He kept the half dollar.

COUNTRY PARTY HOLDS BALANCE

Forces New South Wales Premier To Allot Four Cabinet Seats.

FREIGHT RAISE FEARED.

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 18 (United Press).—As a result of the recent New South Wales election, the Farmers hold the balance of power in the new State Assembly. They have forced the Nationalist leader, Mr. Bayin, to cede them a disproportionate number of portfolios in his new Ministry.

The Cabinet includes four Farmer representatives out of thirteen Ministers. The allotment of the portfolio of Railways to the leader of the Farmer party is generally interpreted to mean that rural fares and freight rates will be decreased at the expense of the metropolitan areas. The final standing of the parties in the new House is: Nationalists 35, Country party 13, Labor, including two Independents, 42.

CAR BUILT TO FIT.

WINSTED, Conn., Oct. 18.—James McClelland, Norfolk farmer, is 3 feet, 3 inches tall, but he drives a motor car. He put long pedals on a flivver, extended the emergency brake and shortened the wheel. James has a brother shorter than himself by two inches.

Beauty School Pupils Suing Their Teachers

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Oct. 18.—(United Press). — Two women beauticians in two courts are suing two beauty concerns for sums aggregating $125,000 for the alleged loss of their crowning glory during permanent wave treatments.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Selap B. Strong awarded Miss Louise Jahr, 24, a verdict of $1,500 damages against the Wanamaker Beauty School, Inc. Miss Jahr expected $75,000, claiming she had a nervous breakdown and a bald spot three inches long and an inch wide as the result of a permanent wave treatment while a pupil at the school.

Mrs. Bertha Neulander has begun suit before Justice Faber, asking $50,000 from Charles Nessler, operating under the name of the C. Nestle Company. Mrs. Neulander said her hair faded and most of it fell out after the treatment and that when she started a beauty shop of her own, prospective customers took one look and fled.

CLAIM ERROR MADE FREIGHT RATE HIGHER

Made in Computing Costs of Transporting Coal To Ontario.

TEST SHIPMENTS.

Statement Says Alberta Entitled To Rate of $6.75 Per Ton.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 18. — (Canadian Press). — Through an error in computing costs of transporting coal to the Ontario market, the railway board of Canada has made a rate of 47 cents higher than actual facts of the case call for, according to the claim which will be put forward by Alberta and Ontario. Premier J. E. Brownlee announced in a statement issued yesterday.

Briefly, the effect of the error which comes through figuring an average load for a car from 2.3 to 4 tons lower than figures from both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific show, means that Alberta is entitled to a rate, the statement says.

In its judgment the railway board undertook to accept as its basis of average loading the figures resultant from test shipments of coal from Alberta to Ontario, and Premier Brownlee asserts these test shipments were made in trains composed of nothing but minimum capacity cars, arranged to ensure the speediest distribution to as many different points as possible.

Investigation of further items may result in Alberta's claim for reduction being substantially increased the statement continues.

Return Trip.

Another interesting feature, according to the statement, is that the board took it for granted that it would cost just as much to haul an empty train as to haul a full train east; and they also based their figures on the supposition that all returning trains would haul 100 per cent empties.

The statement went on that Geo. W. Oliver, prominent railway cost accountant who was retained by the Ontario Government, makes the following statement in a letter to S. S. Woods, chief Counsel for Alberta, before the railway board

"I do think the Board was justified in using a load of 33.4 tons. However, this opinion is in such form that the government, if it chooses, could put into effect an out-of-pocket rate, on the basis of a minimum load per car of 36 tons, of $6.75 (7.2 minus 47 cents).

"The Board ignores the fact that the costs calculated on my basis 'B' were arrived at by doubling the cost of hauling a loaded car eastbound and that by Mr. Mallory's (chief statistician for the C. N. R.) basis which is substantially the same.

"It is a well known fact that it does not cost as much to haul an empty car as a loaded car. Therefore, my basis 'B' must necessarily have reflected a maximum cost and the same statement applies to Mr. Mallory's costs."

RETIRES.

COMMON GAOL HERE NOT FULL

Fourteen Confined at Present —One Insane and Two For Other Prisons.

Other counties in Ontario may claim that their jails are being filled to capacity, but this is not the fact with Peterborough's common gaol. At present there are fourteen inmates on the hill. Two are waiting to be taken to other institutions, one is insane, and the rest are serving time. Two of the inmates are women, one being the mother of a little child.

Of the eleven serving sentences here six have been committed as a result of breaches of the Ontario Liquor Act. Four men are serving time for being intoxicated while driving cars and the other two were not able to pay police court fines for being drunk. Of the other five in the jail two are in for theft, one for assault, one for an indecent act, and one for vagrancy.

So far this month there have been seven commitments.

M'MASTER HAS INSPIRED MANY SAYS WEARING

Defends University in Great Speech at Baptist Convention.

SUPPORTS REMOVAL.

Says University Will Grow and Flourish Only in Hamilton.

TORONTO, October 18 (Special).—Two sparkling speeches defending McMaster University from its traducers and supporting a proposal to remove the premier Baptist seat of higher learning were made yesterday by Joseph Wearing at the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec meeting in Temple Baptist Church, Toronto. Mr. Wearing addressed the convention shortly after Professor Marshall, whose theology has been under ceasless fire since he came to Canada, had thrilled the assembly with a wonderful speech that brought his hearers in direct contact with the great verities of the relationship of the human soul to God and the Holy Scriptures.

In a powerful stirring speech Mr. Wearing vindicated McMaster from the charges brought against it. He said he thought of the hundreds of men, not preachers, but lawyers, doctors, and engineers, who were still carrying on active work in churches all over the province under the influence and inspiration drawn from their years at McMaster. He instanced Murray Street Church as a case in point. A small church compared with some others in the denomination, but which had no less than six McMaster graduates actively carrying on in aid of the activities of the church. Men like that were seldom heard in the convention, but they were steadily carrying on work at home.

Deprecating the amount of time consumed in debate on points of theology, Mr. Wearing declared business and professional men were not interested in doctrinal controversy. They felt the needs of the soul. It was to satisfy those needs that they came to church. They cared for nothing else. They went because they wanted Christ, not debates about dogmas. He referred to the wrong impressions that were being created by the controversy among people outside the church.

"The University," said Mr. Wearing, "is sound and true to the faith, and I am glad to have had the opportunity of saying a word for dear old McMaster."

In the evening Mr. Wearing aroused the enthusiasm of the assembled delegates by a telling speech advocating the re-location of the University in the city of Hamilton. He said he

CATS COLOR BLIND.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 18.—It's a very drab and colorless world for cats. Prof. F. M. Gregg, of Nebraska Wesleyan University, who has been experimenting with the color sensitivity of night-prowling animals, says that cats lack all color perception. Even dogs are almost color blind.

DR. ALAN BROWN TELLS OF VALUE OF SUN'S RAYS

Missouri Medical Association Meeting Addressed By Toronto Specialist.

DATA DISCLOSED.

Definitely Establishes Value of Summer Sunlight in Combating Rickets.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 18 (Canadian Press).—More definite establishment of the value of sunshine in combating disease, particularly in the treatment of rickets, was announced at the opening of the meeting of the Interstate Post-graduate Medical Association of North America here yesterday by Dr. Alan Brown, professor of pediatrics at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Brown explained that, although the curative power of sunlight long had been recognized, he believed his experiments with white rats had disclosed valuable data.

Best in Summer

The experiments indicated that from March 1 to the middle of September, the anti-rachitic effect of the sun's rays are eight times as great as during the remainder of the year, Dr. Brown said. The most valuable period of the day was found to be between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., except during the extremely hot weather, when the earlier hours would be more suitable. An infant, exposed during these periods, even though on a rachitic diet, would be greatly benefited, he declared.

Skyshine

Skyshine, described as reflected rays from the sky and clouds, was found to have approximately fifty or sixty per cent. of the value of direct exposure. An infant placed on the shady side of a street would therefore receive only two-thirds of the benefit it would obtain on the sunny side. This point is frequently unrecognized, he said.

The resistance of rats to infection with specific organism also was increased by sunshine, and undoubtedly indicates human being would derive the same benefits, he concluded.
